"Johnny on the Spot." Farmer.

A western farmer dropped in upon the liberty loan committee in his town, toward the close of the subscription period, placed a milk can on the table, removed the cover and emptied the contents. That milk can contained the savings of years, in coin, silver and gold coins and bank notes. When counted, the cash was found to amount to a goodly sum. "I never put my money in bank," said the farmer, "but I've been thinkin' it over an' I guess I can trust Uncle Sam." No doubt he was typical of a much larger element of the population than is generally known. —Christian Science Monitor.

CHILDREN MUST BE PROTECTED

The children must be safeguarded, for, if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption. Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is admirably suited as a treatment for children. It is pleasant to taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account, as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

Upon The Farmers Of The Country Rests The Fate of the War

The Farmer's Duty is to Supply Food—Haul a Load Each Way—Fertilizers Save Farm Labour—Solving the Labour Problem

FOR THE SPRING DRIVE

President Wilson has said: "Upon the farmers of this country rests the fate of the war, and the fate of the Nation." Money, men and food are needed to win the war. The farmer's duty is to supply the latter. Certainly every farmer should have a good garden and where a canning factory is near at least a few acres of tomatoes, peas, sweet corn, or other canning crops should be planted. All kinds of canned goods are demanded by the U. S. Government for our soldiers. Every farmer should pledge himself to grow at least a few acres of these vital crops. Crop experts from the canning companies will gladly advise and help anyone who wishes to grow canners' crops. A well prepared soil; good seed or plants (usually furnished by the company) careful planting, frequent cultivation, and plenty of manure or fertilizers will insure profitable crops of canner's crops.

HAUL A LOAD EACH WAY.

The farmer cannot plough while the ground is frozen, and neither can he prepare the ground for next year's crops. But he can do many things which he used to put off until the time when he might have been plowing or planting. He can mend the harness, repair the barns, cut next summer's supply of wood, fix the farm tools and do all the other odd jobs which will make him ready to take his place at the post as soon as Nature blows her whistle next spring.

He can market all of his surplus stock of corn and wheat and hay and potatoes. Sorting potatoes in the cellar is not a bad job when the thermometer is hovering around zero, but who wants to do it when the robins are singing outside the window. On the return trip from town he can haul his supply of fertiliser or feed or lime. There never was a farmer who cannot remember at least one time in his life when he had to unhook from the drill to go to town to get more fertilizer or more seed.

No man can afford this year to miss the chance of hauling when the roads are good. And the country roads are never quite as good for hauling as they are when covered with a good sledding snow. Any farmer who has had the doubtful pleasure of wallowing through a mud road when a ton seemed like a mountain to his team, knows how much more fun it is to ramble along with two tons on a good stout pair of bobs.

FERTILIZERS SAVE FARM LABOR.

"There is a patriotic phase to the fertilizer situation. The farmer is short of labour more than any other class of people. Fertilizers properly used on the farm will more than make up for the scarcity of farm labor. To this extent, from a purely patriotic standpoint fertilizers may be advised—for they enable the farmer to do his bit in the great work of food production. Fertilizers necessarily cost more now, but the increase in price has not been in the same proportion with the advance in farm product prices."—Inland Farmer.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY.

A successful farmer once said that he made the most money in years when the conditions were unfavorable for crops. "For," he said, "any man can grow a good crop during a favorable year, and the price is always low. On the other hand it takes careful fertilizing, cultivating and harvesting to make a good crop in a poor year. But for that very reason, because supply is low, any farmer who can make a good crop in a poor year is assured of good profits."

This truism will be borne out this year as never before. Fertilizers, machine seeds and labour will be harder to get next spring than ever before. Even if the season is good there will be small chance for ordinary methods to bring through a fair crop. To begin with ordinary crop growing methods presuppose a plentiful supply of cheap labor.

Important parts of the Krupp munitions works at Essen have been placed underground as a precaution against damage by allied air raids. According to F. C. Murdock, a representative of a Brooklyn electrical concern, who has been in Holland the past eighteen months, and who was one of the first passengers allowed ashore. He said reports to that effect reached him while in Rotterdam. He added that deserters from the German ranks are continually coming over the border.

Some Fine Points Cleared Up In Canada's "Heatless" Puzzle

Drug Stores Must Close, But Barber Shops May Remain Open on Saturday—Other Problems Solved

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—The question as to whether merchants who will have to close their stores Saturday and Monday in conformance with the regulation of the fuel controller, can keep them open late on Friday evening, seems not to have been decided. It is understood that Assistant Fuel Controller Peterson is of the opinion that merchants affected should be allowed to remain open. In the most of cities, however, they will have to close in order to meet the municipal by-laws.

Mr. Peterson stated yesterday that small fruit stores would be regarded as food establishments within the meaning of the order. Drug stores, however, must close, except for the sale of drugs and newspapers. Barber shops will be allowed to open on Saturday, because, if closed, the business lost by the barbers could not be recovered. The question of baking sufficient bread to last over the heatless days has not yet been answered.

GRAIN MARKET

The weather map indicating higher temperatures yesterday over all points, the experts immediately got busy predicting huge receipts and the melting away of all premiums on cash oats and other grains. As usual, the market went exactly the other way, and prices went up instead of down. Cash oats are again quoted 1-2c. to 3-4c. higher. Lack of cars also prevents a freer movement of crops.

Manitoba wheat— No. 1 northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10, including 2 1-2-cent tax, in store Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 90 3-8c.; No. 2, 85 1-8c.; extra No. 1 feed, 84 3-8c., store, Fort William; No. 1 feed, 81 1-8c.

American corn—No. 3, kiln dried, $1.90, track, Toronto.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 91c. to 92c, nominal; No. 3 white, 90c. to 91c.

Barley—Malting, $1.58 to $1.60.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, $2.22, basis in store, Montreal.

Peas—No. 2, $3.70 to $3.80, according to freights outside.

Buckwheat—$1.63 to $1.65.

Rye—No. 2, $1.96 to $1.98.

Manitoba flour—War quality, $11.10, Toronto, new bags.

Ontario flour—War quality, $10.60, Toronto-Montreal, $10.60, new bags.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $40; bran, $35; feed flour, per bag, $3.40; middlings, white, $45 to $46.

Hay— Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $16 to $17; No. 2, $14 to $16; mixed, $13 to $16; straw, car lots, $8.50 to $9.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards —Receipts 20 cars, with 164 cattle, 53 calves, 667 hogs, and 144 sheep and lambs.

Receipts at the Cattle Market are still so light that business may almost be said to be at a standstill. With only 164 fresh cattle offering this morning, there was not enough for buyers to get excited about, so, as on previous days this week, trade was very listless, prices remaining practically unchanged.

Even the hog buyers were indifferent, and two or three purchasers were allowed to divide the 667 hogs among them. Swift Company taking 300 at $18.50 to $18.75 fed and watered.

Sheep, lambs and calves were in steady demand at unchanged prices.

14. Verse 22: What real reason had these scribes to say that Jesus was possessed with the devil and that he cast out devils by his power?

15. Verse 22: What is that subtle power in human nature which enables a man to believe anything in the line of his interests or prejudices?

16. Verses 23-26: These scribes admitted the fact of Christ's wonderful miracles; why, therefore, and by what power, were they performed?

17. Why is it that so many men, in spite of the fact that Christ's claim is so well established, continue to make such foolish attacks on Christianity?

18. Verse 27: What does Christ propose to do with the devil ("The Strong Man") in so far as the individual Christian is concerned?

19. Verses 28-30: If a man sins against light and knowledge, and continues to reject the only way of salvation, why is it impossible for him to be forgiven?

20. Verses 31-35: What would you say, that Christ's mother and his brethren wanted of him?

21. Which relations are the holier and happier, and why, those after the flesh or those after the spirit?

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair, which is so attractive, use only this old time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart colour and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

"You say this poem was composed on the spur of the moment?" asked the editor. "Yes, sir," replied the proud author. "It struck me all of a sudden, and I dashed it off." "Permit me to offer you a word of advice." "Certainly." "The next time a poem strikes you, put on a gym suit and run it off."

Bills Introduced at Washington to Enforce Regulations at Hotels Cafes, Etc.

An Atlantic Port, Feb. 8.—For the first time in the history of this port a spy search on board an arriving passenger ship in trans-Atlantic service was conducted yesterday when the Nieuw Amsterdam, of the Holland-Amerika Line, reached her dock here. Federal authorities in charge declined to recognize customs and barred zone passes at the pier where the Nieuw Amsterdam was berthed; and an examination, which may not be concluded until to-day, was begun of the passengers and their baggage.

Agents of the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department met the vessel down the bay last night. The ship was the first neutral one to arrive in America since the European war started that had not been subjected to a search, such as yesterday, either at Halifax or at Kirkwall.

Kirkwall was abandoned as a port of examination after Germany inaugurated unrestricted submarine warfare a year ago; and the Nieuw Amsterdam did not put in at Halifax.

Even steamship and dock employes were barred from the pier. The only passengers permitted to land were Augustus Phillips, the new Minister from Netherlands to the United States, and his suite.

The Nieuw Amsterdam brought about 900 passengers. These include some Dutch officials on their way to the Dutch West Indies. The baggage of the official is bonded, but even this is being examined, together with all other baggage. All letters found in passengers' and crew's possession are being seized. These are being placed in envelopes, sealed, and turned over to American censors for examination. The owners are given receipts, and mail which is harmless in character will be restored.

The precautionary measures were considered necessary because of the fact that the Nieuw Amsterdam came from Holland direct. Government officials declined to say whether disclosure of anything specific in the way of spy activity was anticipated.

AS CHARLIE SAYS:

"It isn't what you pay for an ARABELA Cigar that accounts for its success. It's what you get."

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"But the case is not over. You know, ma'am, the inquest was only adjourned." McCarty reminded her. "Of course, we understand your motive in trying to prevent your friends from being dragged into this, when they have had nothing to do with it. That was why, when Inspector Druet and I saw you after the murder, you pretended not to know who the Jack was that sent the roses to Miss Collins—"

"I tell you I don't know!" she protested.

"I'll not ask you that, Mrs. Foxe. I'm a special officer on this case and I am working independently of Terhune. If he finds Miss Collins first, he'll bring her back here, and put her through the third degree with his little machines, like he did with us last evening. But if I can locate her I'll want only to get a statement from her as to the truth of what she saw or did not see the night she went away and then she can stay hid, if she's got private reasons of her own."

"Oh, I don't care who finds her, so long as she is found!" Mrs. Foxe put her hand to her head. I am so worried I can't sleep or even think! If only you could discover where she is—"

"Then suppose you 've the other address?" suggested McCarty.

"I—I don't know what you mean!" the lady faltered.

"The one you kept back at the inquest. You gave the coroner the addresses of the people you'd communicated with, because you guessed that he would have them traced anyway; but you hesitated over one you hadn't tried yet." He paused and then went on persuasively:

"You know that until Mr. Terhune gets wind of the missing girl, your mail and telegrams will be watched, you will be followed on the street and your telephone messages will be recorded. You haven't a chance of getting in touch with her yourself, but I could. Now, all that I want is a statement from Miss Collins, and all you want is to know where she is? Why can't we work together, and nobody the wiser?"

Mrs. Foxe sat for a long minute, with her head buried in her hands. Then they dropped to her lap, and she straightened herself with an air of resolution.

"I'm willing! I've got to do something to end this suspense, or I shall go mad!—Ivy, I don't know much about her private affairs, as I told you, in spite of our long friendship, but I know there's one person above all that she would go to if she were in any trouble. He was in love with her, but after she threw him down he did not grow bitter and ugly. He told her if ever she needed him to come or send for him, that he would be waiting, and he's the kind to keep his word.

"Ivy had treated him dreadfully. I'm not excusing her! She is a dreadful flirt. She has a passion for stringing people along until they are desperate, and then laughing in their faces; but this one took it like a man, and she told me only lately that he was the truest friend she ever had.

"His name is Joseph Pangborn, and he is a commission merchant, with an office in Van Buren street, near the Board of Trade. That's all I know, and I meant to try and reach him somehow. If Ivy isn't in trouble, why should she disappear like this? In any case, I feel that she would have let me hear from her unless something had happened to her, and I am frightened!"

"Why should you be, ma'am?" McCarty asked quickly. "What could have happened to her"

"I don't know." Mrs. Foxe looked away as she spoke, her breath catching in her throat. "I've been thinking—this murder seems so mysterious—so terrible—that if Ivy did see anything that night, in the halls, I mean, on her way out, maybe the people who are responsible for it have got hold of her and are keeping her out of the way."

McCarty smiled.

"I wouldn't worry about that, ma'am. They couldn't have tackled her on the train, and she changed her plans before ever she reached Chicago."

"Nevertheless, if Joseph Pangborn doesn't know where she is, I'm sure that something is wrong. Oh, if you find her, you'll let me know?"

"I will that." McCarty signalled with his eye to Dennis, and rose. "There's no other trouble, I suppose, that you are fearing for Miss Collins Nothing apart from this in her own affairs?"

"Certainly not." She moved toward the door. "Ivy is not the kind to borrow trouble and she has none of her own. She is the lightest hearted girl in the world."

When the front door had closed behind them, Dennis asked excitedly:

"What do you think of that idea of hers, Mac? Do you suppose the one that killed the other girl has got this one hid away to keep her mouth shut?"

McCarty shook his head.

"Nothing to it. She's worrying about the girl because of something else entirely, and she turned it off quick when I caught her. Terhune can have the man behind Mrs. Doremus's glass closet but I would like to lay my hand on the girl that walked out of here before Marion Rowntree had hardly breathed her last."

"Well, you're through here, ain't you?" Dennis made for the elevator. "Let's go and have a look at those copies you got from Terhune—"

"Not yet. You mind that list I made out of what the witnesses in this case failed to do; that start of an elimination chart? Well, I want another talk with the open-faced young fellow in here, who made friends so easy with the aviator at the inquest, and who didn't even look up from his book on the night of the murder when Mrs. Doremus shrieked to wake the dead."

McCarty pressed the bell of Apartment B.

"'Tis not the ones that's secretive from the jump I have my eye on so much as those that'll bend all their energies to hide just one thing. The more a man has to keep to himself, the more he'll be frank about things that don't matter to throw you off the track."

"Maybe he's at the college to-day," Dennis suggested, after a somewhat lengthy pause. "You said that he was taking a course here."

McCarty rang again, but at that moment the elevator shot up and stopped, and the boy, Alfred, stepped out.

"No use ringin' for Mr. Antonio, boss," he said, grinning. "He's done gone."

"Gone where?" McCarty wheeled about sharply.

"I didn't ask no questions, boss. He's gone clean awa ; that's all I know. He went this mornin', and he took all his books and contraptions with him."

McCarty and Dennis looked at each other. Finally the latter remarked: "Terhune'll be having him trailed, anyway."

McCarty shook his head.

"He don't think the lad's any importance in the case! Lord! if I had only been on the job sooner! I'm not saying he done it, Denny, but you mark my words, one that could give us the key to the whole damn business, has slipped through our fingers."

CHAPTER XV.

Tony.

McCarty was still fuming over the young inventors untoward departure as he and Dennis made their way back to his rooms. The fact that he had had nothing definite in mind in seeking the interview, beyond a general intention to pump the occupant of apartment B in a casual way, did not mitigate his disgust; and only his companion's confidently expressed belief that Mr. Antonio's present whereabouts could easily be traced restored his equanimity.

Reaching home he produced the copies of the test papers and spread them out upon the desk.

"There's not much to be gained from these, for, of course, Bassett—that's Terhune's assistant — couldn't imitate their writing," he remarked. "To tell you the truth, I didn't get anything myself from the originals. Terhune is the lad that can tell your past history from a pen-stroke! They all looked like ordinary, normal writing to me except Mrs. Doremus's, when toward the end she got into a panic. But here's what tells the tale!"

He placed beside the slips of paper an elongated roll of parchment marked off in minute squares, with a series of broken zig-zag lines running down in numbered brackets.

"What the devil is that?" exclaimed Dennis. "Sure, it looks like a weather report!"

"'Tis the feelings of each one of us, by the pulse-beats in our wrists on that padded cushion I was telling you about, put down on the contrivance behind the screen."

Dennis shook his head.

"Do you mean to tell me that Terhune can make anything out of those crow-tracks?" he demanded.

"Sure he can. Look here," McCarty bent down and pointed with a horny forefinger. "This is how he put it to me. If you're calm and undisturbed, the line would run down almost straight, with a little curve into the next square at regular intervals, for the beat of your pulse, but if you got a shock the beats would come more quick and hard and the line would jump out in a sharp point, like what's here. Every square is a degree. The break in the line is where the pens lifted between each picture, and the numbers at the top of the whole thing correspond to the different seats at the table, so you can tell whose each record is."

"Well, it may be all clear to Terhune," Dennis drew a deep breath, "but it looks like magic to me, and no jury of honest voters would put a man away on any such heathenish evidence as this. You can't make head or tail of it!"

"Take this line, number nine; that's Mary's. She's a cool hand, all right, she only showed a little start at the seventh picture. That was the one of the barred window, and if it meant a jail and she happened to think of the brooch in her trunk, you can understand it. Here's Mr. Allen, number one; his pulse went up a little at the third picture, the wedding party, which is not to be wondered at, with the wife that he hadn't seen for years right under his nose."

"Who's this one, number seven?" asked Dennis, with absorbed interest. "That line is crooked all the way through, but near the middle it takes two big jumps and at the end it goes crazy."

"It's Mrs. Doremus's, and right here is something queer. What made her pulse leap at the fifth picture, the one of the mad-woman being held by nurses, and again at the sixth, the will? At the end, of course, when she saw her glass chest, and then the finger-marks on it, she went all to pieces."

"What would the mad-woman signify, anyway?"

"Terhune wouldn't tell me. I could dope out the meaning of all the rest for myself except the second, with the long-haired cat, and the books and candy and ring. Terhune said it was a collection of the presents given to the dead girl by that young Sturtevant, the ring being for the engagement which didn't come off."

ALL AT HOME SHOULD PREPARE FOR WAR

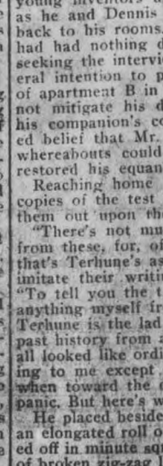
The first test a man is put through for either war or life insurance is an examination of his water. This is most essential because the kidneys play a most important part in causing premature old age and death. The more injurious the poisons passing through the kidneys the sooner comes decay—so says Dr. Pierce of Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., who further advises all people who are past thirty to preserve the vitality of the kidneys and free the blood from poisonous elements, such as uric acid—drink plenty of water—sweat some daily and take Anuric, double strength, before meals.

An-u-ric is a discovery of Dr. Pierce, and can be obtained at drug stores. For that backache, lumbago, rheumatism, "rusty" joints, swollen feet or hands, due to uric acid in the blood, Anuric quickly dissolves the uric acid as hot water does sugar. Send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce for trial pkg.



Thorold, Ont.—"I think Anuric is the best I have ever taken. My kidneys had given me trouble for some time. I would suffer from backaches and also swelling of the limbs. I took Anuric and it has entirely cured me of all my backache and has strengthened my kidneys so I feel safe in recommending it to others who suffer."—Mrs. C. A. Clarke, Box 1179.

Toronto, Ont.—"For the last eight years I have suffered with kidney trouble and rheumatism. It began with pains in my back and finally left my back and went down into the legs. It developed into a chronic case. I tried every medicine I could hear of and consulted some good doctors, but still I kept on suffering. About a year ago a friend advised me to give Anuric a trial, and am happy to say I am today a well man—never feel any traces of my ailment no matter what the weather conditions may be. Anuric is a real kidney medicine in every sense."—E. P. Garrison, 5 Matilda Street.

Palpitation of the Heart and Nerve Troubles
WERE CURED BY
Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

When the heart begins to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beat fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm and the least excitement or exertion seems to affect it.

Many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable through this unnatural action of the heart.

To all sufferers from heart troubles we would advise the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which by their action in strengthening the heart and regulating the beat remove all the distressing conditions, and impart vigor and vitality to the system.

Mrs. Thomas Davidson, Mount Brydges, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer in the past with nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart. I tried several remedies, but without any good results. My son came in one day and advised me to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. After using one and a half boxes, I am fully recovered, and am in a perfect state of health, thanks to your valuable medicine."

For Aching Feet.

For burning, swollen feet soak them every night in a solution of soda water. Put a handful or more of bicarbonate of soda in the foot tub with sufficient very hot water to cover the feet. Keep adding more hot water as needed. After this, rub well into the bunion and other sore joints ichthyol ointment. Wrap feet in cloth, or put old stockings on to protect bed. Use some kind of foot ease in your shoes.

Origin of Pig, Buffalo, Horse.

Asia mainly furnished the pig, remarkable by its archaic type, which is very close to the Sus palustris, notes a writer. Through Turkestan arrived the buffalo, which adapted its body from its surroundings—becoming smaller and more alert. The Caucasus also owes the horse to Turkestan; we find neolithic remnants of the domesticated horse at Anau, while the animal is not found in Creta before the bronze age.

Counted by Sixties.

The Babylonians counted not by tens and hundreds as we do but by sixties. This was because they had found that the radius of a circle is contained within the circumference just six times. This "system of sixty" persists to the present time in clocks, where sixty seconds make one minute, sixty minutes make one hour, while there are twelve hours a day and twelve of night.

No Woman Auctioneer.

Although there is no record that a woman has ever been an auctioneer, it is on record that in May, 1912, the mayor of New York, Mr. Gaynor, answered an inquiry addressed to him by a woman by saying that there was nothing in the law to prevent a woman from becoming an auctioneer. Strange enough, it was a milliner who made the inquiry.

To Cut Paper.

When you lose your knife or do not have a pair of scissors at hand for cutting the paper a common pin or needle of any kind serves the purpose admirably, says Popular Science Monthly. If it is a single sheet from which the clipping is to be removed, lay the part on another paper, hold the pin slantwise so that the point will follow around the clipping, just as if tracing its outline. Pass back over the scratch with the point in the lead and you will be surprised how smoothly the pin cuts the paper.

Such a Name!

A college professor in California has discovered a mineral hitherto unknown to science, which he has called "crestmoreite," because it was found at Crestmore. We are told by way of description, says the Providence Bulletin, that it is "a new hydrous basic of orthosilicate, containing small amounts of other oxides in place of silica," which leaves us altogether in the dark as to whether we shall soon be using crestmoreite as an improved stovepipe material or wearing it as a watch charm.

BIG MOUNTAIN GAME

ROCKY Mountain goats, who contend with the eagles for the kingship of the peaks and who give way grudgingly only to the grizzly or the mountain sheep, are to be found on most of the heights of the western Canadian mountains. The ranges through which the Canadian Pacific Railway runs on its way to the Pacific Coast are peopled with them. Clear up to the Yukon, wherever the grey crags lift their weather-scarred sides above the timber line the mountain goats range. They are a source of kingly sport for hunters. No eye is more sharp, no ear more keen for danger than the goats. They live in the inaccessible ledges, and their hunting includes not only thrilling shooting but equally thrilling mountaineering. The accompanying photograph is a photograph of winter-killed goats from the country to the north of Ashcroft, B.C. They were shot by a party of hunters and trappers who were hardy enough and strong enough to brave the perils of deep winter hunting in the peaks. The easiest hunting season for these animals is in early fall before the big snows come, but the winter-killed goats undoubtedly, as shown in the photograph, supply the finest robes. The Indians on the Naas River, in upper British Columbia, weave blankets, clothing and ropes from the silky hair of the winter-killed mountain goat.—L. V. K.

Save food

IF you cut down your food by one-fifth how can you still obtain the same amount of nourishment as before? The problem looks impossible, but it is not so in fact, for if you get more nourishment from the food you do eat you will solve it.

Take a concrete instance. If there are 5 units of nourishment in bread when you buy it, you expect to get 5 units when you eat it. As a matter of fact you do not get that at all, because a good deal of the nourishment is not absorbed by the body. To take a rough and ready simile. If you put coal on a fire in the evening, and leave the fire overnight, you will find that a good deal of the coal is unburnt in the morning when the fire is out. This is much what happens to food in the body, and the "unburnt" food is wasted.

There is a simple way to reduce this loss, a way tested and approved by the highest scientific authorities. It is to take Bovril.

It has long been an accepted fact, proved by independent scientific investigation, that Bovril has a body-building power equal to from 10 to 20 times the amount taken. This is now confirmed in a very striking way in the following report from the "Medical Times":—

"The addition of a small teaspoonful of Bovril to the diet as a peptogenic before meals leads to more thorough digestion and assimilation and thus saves food.

"The diet may be then cut down from ⅓ to ¼ and the body still be adequately nourished."

Extract from the review by the "Medical Times" of the investigations on Food Economy conducted by Dr. J. Campbell, while Food Expert to the Metropolitan Campaign for Food Economy.

Help to save the Nation's food and still keep yourself well fed by taking a cup of Bovril as soup before meals, or by using a little Bovril in your cooking.

Limestone Continues in Favor.

Pulverized limestone continues to be in favor as a soil sweetener or fertilizer, according to the United States geological survey. Since the figures of production were first compiled in 1911 the industry has steadily increased, and the output for 1916 of 1,066,376 short tons, valued at $1,146,582, represents a gain of 512 per cent in quantity and 460 per cent in value for the six years.

Almost Like Birds.

It is a little known fact that flying fish, encountered in the tropics, actually flap their wings the same as birds. It is commonly supposed that the fish merely volplane, sail, after getting a good start with rapid swimming. The flapping of their wings, however, is so easily seen that it can be detected with the naked eye. Also, flying fish are delicious for the table.

Don't Diet Yourself
TO CURE DYSPEPSIA
IT ISN'T NECESSARY

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food, is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little he does eat causes such torture, and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good.

What dyspeptics need is not dieting, or artificial digestants, but something that will put their stomach right so it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and curing severe cases of dyspepsia and indigestion that other remedies were powerless to reach.

It restores the stomach to a normal healthy condition so that the food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated, and goes on its way making rich, red blood.

Mrs. Henry Shaw, Campbellton, N.B., writes: "I was for five years troubled with a weak stomach, and could not eat any food that would agree with me. I tried different medicines, but could not get cured. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles, and now I am in perfect health."

MARBLES OF ITALY.

Most Famous Source of Supply for Art and Building.

Italy is one of the world's most famous sources of supply for both art and building marbles. Marble, granite, and building stones are the common materials used for buildings. Venice is a fireproof city, built of stone of Istria and marble and the foundations and first courses at least of all palaces, public and municipal buildings, government and business edifices are of these materials. They are used more than brick and wood, the use of the latter being confined almost entirely to interior finishing.

Venice is immediately adjacent to famous marble quarries with an inexhaustible supply of raw material, worked by cheap labor. The Istrian stone, which is quarried just across the Adriatic, reaches this market by the cheapest forms of water transportation, being loaded on sail barges at the quarries and is embarked at the exact point where it is to be used. These Istrian quarries are now temporarily closed to Venice as a source of supply, but the demand for such material has also temporarily ceased and substitutes, even for Istrian stone, are in easy reach within a few miles.

The most important quarries in the Venetian area at and near Verona, the Verona red and yellow marbles having been favorite building stones since the time when the Colosseum at Verona was constructed. For building they rank next to the stone of Istria in popularity and are true marbles, while the stone of Istria is not a true marble, although a very hard limestone that is much used in Venice, because it resists the action of salt water and sea winds.

Besides their value for construction the Veronese marbles are in great demand for decorative work. Among the names of the several varieties of Veronese marbles are: White nembro, coral pink, white peach, partridge eye, yellow snail, yellow azure, and paradise.

A few years before the war a number of famous structures were built or decorated with Veronese marbles. In Vienna the palaces of the exchange, the municipality and the parliament were adorned with the red, white, and yellow marbles of St. Ambrogio and with stone of Incatfi. The postal palace at Verona vied the red nembro of St. Ambrogio and the facade of the postal palace of Zurich is adorned with the red and yellow marbles of St. Ambrogio. The Duke of Brunswick's monument at Geneva is made of red marble from Valpentina. Vienna in recent years has made extensive use of Veronese marbles for decorative furniture.

The marbles are of excellent quality and are variegated in hue from the light yellow of alabaster to dark yellow, from ashy to gray, from pale skin-colored pink to blood red and vermilion, and are also speckled, shaded, spotted, girdled, streaked, veined, piebald, and mottled. They combine lightness with solidity and are well adapted to the uses of sculpture.

The production of the granular stone in the Verona district in the year 1913 was about 6,000 tons, equal to that of 1912 and about 1,000 tons less than the production of the year 1911. This loss was largely due to the building crisis and curtailment of all but necessary construction works. Granular stones serve not only for pavements, but for the construction of baths and basins, ornamental columns, flower pots, blocks of artificial marble, etc.

The second marble quarrying district in importance in the Veneto is that of Vicenza, which produces the various sorts of "Pietre di Valdisole." Large quantities of building stones and marbles were shipped to the United States a few years ago by the Industria Marmi Vincentini of Vicenza.

The Genoese marbles are very beautiful, but are used only for decorative work, as they crumble easily. The Belgian black marble is often used for making the table surface of ornamental carved woods, desks, and for other art uses.

The Carrara marbles of the finer quality for use of the sculptors vary greatly in price, according to the dimensions of the block required, as a flaw would often spoil an entire block. Fine quality, white aCrrara often costs 800 to 1,000 lire ($154.40 and $193) and more per cubic meter.

Many of the marbles of which Venice is constructed and with which it is decorated come from the Orient, and the sources of supply have been exhausted or lost.

Paving stone in Venice is neither marble nor granite, and is procured almost exclusively from the Monselice in this district in slabs approximately one to two feet square and two inches thick.

The Istrian stone comes largely in rough blocks and is cut or sawed here. The dimensions are irregular and vary greatly.

Venice imported from Austria in 1913, 255,245 tons of building stone, almost exclusively stone of Istria. In 1915, prior to the outbreak of the war, it imported from Austria 340 tons of building stone. There were no other imports of stone or marble. These figures are from statistics furnished by the custom house at Venice.

Useful as a Snake.

Little Peter is a good boy as well as a boy of great originality in his notions, but he has the serious fault of being extremely forgetful. One day after having gone on an errand, and forgotten what he was sent for, he exclaimed bitterly to his sister:

"Oh, dear! I wish I was a snake!"

"You wish you were a snake!" said his sister, horrified.

"Yes, and a great long one—as much as six feet long."

"Why, what for, Peter?"

"So I could tie knots in myself to make me remember things."

HAVE A LESSON IN FRENCH

Family and Friends of Young Indianapolis Officer Learn the Meaning of "Sans Origin."

The son of a prominent Indianapolis business man recently received a commission and was called for service in France, relates the Indianapolis News.

The family and many friends of the young lieutenant were anxious to learn of his safe trip across, and the father received many inquiries about his son's welfare during the weeks of silence following his departure.

Finally a cablegram was received and the word was passed around that the soldier boy had landed safely. Someone thoughtfully inquired just where the cablegram came from, and a close inspection of the message revealed what was thought to be either the port of landing or the headquarters of American troops. It was written plainly enough, across the top of the message—"San Sorigin." Speculation was rife; office associates brought out atlases; maps and encyclopedias were consulted to find out, if possible, whether the young officer was near the scene of activities, at a port, or in the south of France. Finally someone with a knowledge of French spoiled all the fun by informing the eager group that "Sans origin" was the French equivalent to "somewhere," or, literally, without origin. The cable operator who had copied the message had merely divided the letters in the two words at the wrong place.

To Remove Insects.

Insects sometimes crawl into the ear and cause pain. The best way to remove the offender is to pour a few drops of sweet or olive oil into the ear to clog the wings and stop their fluttering; then, with great care, syringe the ear with warm water, holding the bowl under the ear so that it will press the ear gently back, while the sufferer's head should incline a little over the bowl. After the insect is removed, saturate a bit of cotton with the oil and insert in the ear, to remain for a day.

Colds Settle On The Kidneys

Hence the Backaches, Rheumatic Pains, and Lumbago — Relief Comes When the Action of the Kidneys is Aroused.

Kiltarlity, N.S., Jan. 11.—It is not only the lungs that suffer during the cold, damp seasons. The kidneys are almost equally susceptible to sudden changes of temperature, and many a serious case of kidney disease has its beginning with a cold, which settles on the kidneys.

Persons working out of doors are most likely to be victims of such trouble and suffer from backaches, lumbago, rheumatism, and crippled, aching limbs, but anyone is liable to sit in a draught or expose his back to a current of cold air.

Cold settling on the kidneys causes congestion, a clogging of these filtering organs and consequent derangement of the whole digestive and excretory systems. The liver fails to work, the bowels become totally cured. I therefore heartily recommend these Pills to all who suffer from rheumatism, and anyone who doubts this testimonial may write me as proof to the contrary."

Because of their direct and combined action on these organs, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are of most prompt and most lasting benefit for such derangements. They are positive in their effects and are backed by the experience and integrity of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kiltarlity, N.S., writes: "I am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone who is suffering from rheumatism. For about twenty-five years I was bothered more or less with this affliction. I was treated by doctors all over Nova Scotia, and when on business in New York, had an opportunity to consult one of the greatest specialists there; but I never gained more than temporary relief. In an effort to get rid of the accumulating development of the disease, I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and when I had taken eight boxes, I was, to my astonishment,

SAYS SHARK MEAT IS GOOD

Writer Declares Flesh Looks and Tastes Much Like That of Young Pig, but is Not as Juicy.

A good many people do not know how shark's meat tastes when it is cooked. There is some talk of a government investigation of this matter, observes the Hartford Courant, so that everybody may get the taste as second hand. The writer of this paragraph, owing to the fact that he was a good deal of a seashore man at the time, has tasted cooked shark for himself. The flesh of the shark, when a Southern cook presides over the kitchen, looks very much like the meat of a young pig, and tastes very much like that meat. The main difference is that the flesh of the infant hog is a trifle more juicy.

When one reflects that part of the shark family was created with a relish for human flesh, or has been brought to this liking by some millions of years of evolution, it seems odd that man, when he gets the chance, should also like to eat the shark. It goes to show that in the general scheme of existence nothing is wasted.

The shark can get a good dinner out of a man, and the man can get a good dinner out of a shark. It all depends on which one gets the other first. In either case it is fair eating for the one who gets the dinner.

Old Friends Meet.

This world is not such a big place after all. Recently, at Forty-seventh street and Fifth avenue, writes a New York correspondent, one of our boys in khaki met an Italian soldier with one sleeve of his coat tucked in. "Why," gasped the American. "Bien," returned the Italian. The two had met in Florence, Italy, three years ago. On the lapel of the American there was a small nickel-plated model of the Statue of Liberty, enfolded in an American flag. The Italian asked if he might have it for a keepsake. "Some day I'll come to your land," he said, smiling, "and I'll bring it back to you." And when the American and Italian came face to face the man from the sunny climes still wore the emblem of Liberty on his breast. "And must I return it?" he asked. "Well, hardly," returned the American. "You have earned it a thousand times. Your sacrifice has been for what it represents—liberty and justice." "That is right, yes, but is it not worth the sacrifice? Yes, worth it ten thousand times."

DEFECTS IN "CANNED" SONGS

Vocalists Do Not Break Down on Top Notes and No One Shouts "Amen," Comments Countryman.

He was a plain, old-fashioned countryman "without no frills," as he often proudly boasted. He lamented the passing of the old cottage organ, earbobs and coal oil lamps and contended that persons in these days are not nearly as happy as those of a half century ago. The other day he came into town from his country home nearby, relates an exchange, and stopping at his son's home was entertained by his daughter-in-law with music on the phonograph. Knowing his fondness for old religious music, the daughter-in-law put on the records containing old-time hymns sung by the world's great artists of song. The old man was plainly thrilled and sat in rapt attention as he heard his old favorites sung with such sympathy and meaning as he never had heard them sung in real life. At the conclusion of what she called her "sacred concert," the young woman asked, "Well, father, weren't those old hymns sung as beautifully as you have ever heard them in the old days?"

"Emmy, they mightn't be so bad," he reluctantly conceded, "if that Madam Human Shank or whatever you call her, had only broke down on the top notes like they used to in church, most always, and somebody'd only said 'Amen' right out loud when they got through singin'."

SEPARATE PEACE MUST BE ON NO ANNEXATION BASIS

Russian Delegates at Brest Livotsk Determined to Adhere to Their Original Position--Will Continue Policy of Deepening the German Revolution---Arabs Score Big Victory Over Turkish Army.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 8.—(By Jos. Shaplen)—Increasing German internal dissatisfaction is responsible for the change in the tone of the Russian delegates at Brest Litovsk peace conferences. Hope is daily strengthening the Hussians. There is no retreat from their original position, and they the Russians. There is no retreat from their original position, and they without annexations to the Western front. Brest Litovsk conferes wired that negotiations had been renewed with German Foreign Minister Von Kuchlmann, insisting on German terms, but with a softened tone.

They declared there could be nothing more dangerous than a compromise. Just as the Russians have burned their internal bridges behind them just so must they resist each concession demanded of the Russian revolutionists, the delegates said. The Russian conferes must firmly declare that they will agree to a separate peace only if no other is possible, but only then if such peace is based on no annexations and policy of self determination, according to their present attitude. There will be that kind of peace or no peace, they assert.

The Znamia Trude, the organ of the Social Revolutionaries of the left, said to-day that the Germans would hardly dare break off negotiations now, and "we must continue our policy of deepening the German revolution."

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 8.—The police have been called upon to shoot a number of dogs this week by citizens who stated that they would have to part with the canines owing to the fact that they could not afford to pay for their keep in view of the high cost of living. ## PRODUCTION DRIVE IS TO BE STARTED BY THE GOVERNMENT

Aim of the Food Controller's Department is Not Only to Conserve Food But to Encourage Greater Production

PREMIERS TO MEET

Special to The Toronto Star and the Peterboro Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—The government is mobilizing all available forces for a great increased production drive. An order-in-council is in preparation, whose purpose is to co-ordinate all loose end departments, commissions and agencies in a harmonious whole and to bend their energies toward the goal desired. In a country so large, but so sparsely populated, it is realized of vastly greater importance than conservation of foodstuffs. Therefore, the aim of the Food Controller's Department is not only to conserve food, but to encourage greater production. That also is the aim of the Department of Agriculture and its various branches. In the campaign which is to be launched the activities of these two organizations are to be co-ordinated. It is likely that very considerable re-organization will be undertaken. The scope and function of the Food Controller's Department are to be more definitely defined. In the campaign which is to be started soon, the Provincial government will give strong co-operation. The whole question will be discussed at the conference of premiers to be held here on the 11th.

More Details Of Fuel Order Announced

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 8.—Under the new fuel order, which becomes operative to-morrow, drug stores may keep open for the sale of drugs and for emergency business, but must not sell candy, cigars, cigarettes, stationery or any other commodity, which is not distinctly connected with the apothecary's trade. Owing to the fact that foodstuffs are purveyed by them, however, soda water fountains may be operated in the drug stores. Retail bakers may keep open until one o'clock. Bakery plants, however, can run without interruption on heatless days. The question of selling newspapers is one which is a bit complicated. News stands are exempted from the working of the order. Drug stores may sell papers and cigar stores which sell papers may keep open for that purpose, but for no other.

COAL FAMINE IN PETERBORO

Every Yard Was Closed To-day and the Only Sales Were Those at the Police Station—Mayor Goes to Buffalo

MUST CONSERVE SUPPLIES

Every fuel yard in the city was closed to-day and the supply of coal was practically exhausted. The scarcity, which has been rising and falling for months, improving with the receipt of supplies and approaching the danger line when the bins ran low, actually reached a rather alarming crisis this morning.

The only coal sold was one car load delivered to Mr. Wm. Scott. It contained 54 tons, and by half-past eleven the last "black diamond" had been disposed of. The allottments to citiens averaged 300 pounds, and the number of orders filled was slightly under 400.

Mayor Duncan and Mr. Robt. Hicks have gone to Toronto and Buffalo in an endeavour to obtain new supplies. The seriousness of the situation may be realized in the statement to-day that all the yards were refusing to take orders. The Hicks Company will not re-open until Mr. Hicks returns, it was stated. Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald is reported to have 11 cars of coal somewhere in Ontario, but evidently it is impossible to get them moved.

In the meantime householders are advised to husband whatever coal they have on hand. It should be used sparingly, remembering that the hopes of receiving new shipments in the city are none to bright to-day.

On the other hand the railways have declared an embargo on all freight except food for the allies and coal, on Feb. 9, 10 and 11. This should facilitate the movement of coal, and probably release many cars that have been sequestered on sidings.

Fire, Water And Light Committee Will Meet To-night

A meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee will be held this evening, when matters pertaining to the improvement of the fire fighting resources of the city will be discussed. A hose tower is among the additions suggested, also a by-law compelling merchants to instal a sprinkler system in the cellars of their stores.

SMALL CONCERNS ARE SEEKING TO EVADE RULING

Peanut patriotism characterizes a number of local places of business, who since the recent fuel order have done everything in their power to evade the law. All day long the Police Department has been pestered with enquiries from many places of very limited importance. The enquirers in nearly all cases are seeking a favourable interpretation of the regulations which will permit them to remain open throughout the heatless period. This is not characteristic of the larger concerns, who have, without exception, accepted the ruling, and in many cases have agreed to reimburse their employees for the time that will be lost.

HUN SPY SYSTEM RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SINKING OF THE "TUSCANIA"

Belief in London That Germans Had Information of the Arrival of Convoy—Many Stories of Bravery by Sailors and Soldiers on Lost Vessel.

THE SEARCH FOR BODIES

(By Ed. L. Keen.)

LONDON, Feb. 8.— That Germany had information of the coming of the Transport Tuscania and other vessels with important personages aboard was the belief expressed to-day by passengers on the ships which accompanied the torpedoed transport. A distinguished personage from another ship who witnessed the attack said three torpedoes were fired at his own vessel later Tuesday night. He declared his belief that the U boat commander was acting upon information obtained through the German spy system.

Scores of British naval and fishing craft continued their search for the bodies of victims. They were aided by the coast patrol, which searched the bays and inlets of the Irish and Scottish shores in that vicinity. Hope of finding other survivors has been practically abandoned.

The Admiralty is making a careful check of casualties. The missing, according to the Admiralty's figures, included probably 145 American soldiers. Circumstantial stories told by British naval officers to-day indicated that at least the German submarine probably was destroyed during the attack.

Tales of bravery of soldiers and sailors aboard the Tuscania were legion to-day. One of the most vivid concerns a stewardess of the transport.

The lifeboat in which she sat was crowded when it pulled away from the steamer. Despite this, several others who were swimming about in the icy waters were pulled aboard.

With a little craft crowded to capacity, another soldier swam alongside. There was no room for him. He was too exhausted and numb from cold to cling to the gunwale unaided.. The stewardess leaned far over the side, at the risk of falling overboard, and clutched his hand. In this strained position she held the soldier's head above the water for half an hour. When they were picked up it was discovered that she was clutching the hand of a corpse.

A medical officer from the Tuscania declared that most of the deaths occurred among the men who jumped overboard when she was first struck. The transport began to list immediately, he said, and there was no way of picking them up until the lifeboats were lowered. By that time many of them had succumbed to exposure.

THE BOLSHEVIKI GOVERNMENT IS CONSIDERED SAFE

Social Revolutionaries of the Right Convinced it is Impossible to Overthrow Bolsheviki and Tchernoff Accepts a Seat

NEW PAN-SOVIET NOW

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 8. — That the Bolsheviki government is permanent, was the interpretation placed to-day upon the formation of a new Pan-Soviet of 300 members. It included 160 Bolsheviki, 125 Social Revolutionaries of the Left and the remainder Social Revolutionaries of the Right.

Included among the latter is Victor Tchernoff, President of the late Constitutional Assembly. His acceptance of a seat in the new central governing body of Russia created the greatest sensation. All factions accepted it as meaning that the Social Revolutionaries of the Right, convinced it is impossible to overthrow the Bolsheviki, have determined to concentrate their efforts on boring into the present government. The Nash Vesk, the leading paper of the Cadet Party, admits the Bolsheviki are near victory in Russia.

It outlines the Bolsheviki strategy, whereby the Don Cossacks and Ukrainian uprisings are separated. The railway junctions at Bilegorod, Charkoff, Lozovay and Alexandrovik were captured, isolating Ukrainia.

The one problem is to hold Kieff by clearing the nearby country of Ukrainians. Gen. Verhoviky, Secretary of War under the Kerenesky regime, has been arrested here on suspicion of starting a counter revolution.

The latest advices received in London, were that Kieff had been retaken by the Ukrainians.

BROCK STREET RINK SKATING TO-NIGHT

Band Saturday Afternoon, Saturday Evening and Monday Night —New Music

Under the Fuel Controller's order the Brock street rink can remain open to-morrow and Monday, but for the balance of the season, commencing Monday, February 18th, there will be no skating.

The programme for the next few days will be a good one. To-night there will be skating with the band. To-morrow (Saturday) afternoon, the Band will be on hand, as well as in the evening, and on Monday night, the last Monday's skating of the season. Thursday night will be another big one, when there will be skating until 10.30, with the ice cleaned at half time and a big band. Don't forget skating Saturday afternoon with the band.

SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE MONDAY

The Public Schools of the city will close on Monday, by order of the Board of Education, in accordance with the spirit of the Fuel Controller's heatless day regulations.

TO ASK BELLIGERENTS NOT TO USE POISON GAS

GENEVA, Feb. 8.—The International Committee of the Geneva Red Cross unanimously decided at a meeting held yesterday to address an energetic appeal to the Governments of belligerent countries not to employ poisonous gases in warfare. The text of the appeal will shortly be published. Swiss military circles are of the opinion that the appeal is too belated to have any vital effect on coming battles.

AUSTRIAN PREMIER AND CABINET HAVE RESIGNED POSITIONS

Action is Due According to Vienna Despatch to Opposition of Polish Deputies Against the Provisional Budget

SITTINGS POSTPONED

Canadian Press Despatch:

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 8.— Dr. Von Seydler, the Austrian Premier, has tendered the resignation of his entire Cabinet to Emperor Charles, according to a despatch from Vienna.

The resignation of the Von Seydler Cabinet, it is understood in Parliamentary circles in Vienna, is due to the opposition of the Polish deputies against special debates and the provisional budget. The opposition of the deputies makes the majority for the budget doubtful.

President Gross, of the Lower House, in announcing his resignation, said that according to the constitution it was necessary to postpone temporarily the sittings of the House.

The Cabinet of Dr. Von Seydler, which was formed last June, was also reported to have resigned during the recent labour crisis in Austria-Hungary.

Probabilities Say Rain To-morrow

If a Soft Spell Comes How About the Manholes?

With everything covered with snow, rain and sleet is predicted for to-morrow, and if the thaw, when it comes, amounted to anything, the manholes to carry away the water, are feet deep with snow. The city could not begin to clean them all out in a day, but it might be wise to be as well prepared as it is possible to be.

Separate School Will Co-operate In Food Production

A deputation representing the local Council of Women waited on the Separate School Board on Wednesday night to enlist its co-operation in the production and conservation campaign the Organization of Resources is getting under way.

The Board promised to give every assistance possible, but pointed out that the school curriculum was so heavy that the co-operation desired must necessarily be restricted in order that the public may pursue the studies upon which their examinations will be based. It was felt that some authority to make a change or a compromise should come from the Department of Education. It was also stated that last year the children at St. Peter's and the Immaculate Conception School conducted gardens with results that won the commendation of the Inspector. This year it was stated every effort would be made to extend the work.

USE OF GAS IS RESTRICTED

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 8.— The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board issued an order to-day respecting the use of natural gas in Western Ontario. Effective noon Feb. 11 the restriction is placed on the use of natural gas from the Kent gas fields until April 1, 1918, to other than domestic consumers. Churches, schools and public buildings are brought under the category of domestic consumers. If after the expiry of ten days from the date of order becoming effective, it is found there is an excess of gas over domestic requirements, the Board may permit gas to be used by such manufacturers as it may nominate and in such quantity as it may direct.

THE WEATHER

The thermometer is at its old tricks once more. For several days we have had comparatively mild weather (at least in comparison with the weather prevailing this winter, although the temperature went down to almost zero each night.) Last night it took a tumble to 16 degrees below zero. At daybreak this morning it stood at 11 below, but the air was calm and dry, and the cold but little felt.—W.P.

WIDEN THE ZONE.

A citizen represents to the Examiner that the fuel saving process might be extended beyond shops and factories, without more proportionate hardship or sacrifice of interests. The fuel situation is so serious—when we see women of advanced years, as was seen this morning, bending under the task of drawing home a sack of coal on a handcleigh—we can form some idea of the narrow margin between suffering and comfort, and gain an appreciation of the necessity of the adoption of extreme measures of coal saving in order to distribute to those who are in dire need or real danger of suffering. Coal is an absolute necessity to keep households going and to meet this it is argued that every coal-using place that is not absolutely necessary should be closed or restricted to conserve coal for distribution or to make the scant available supply go further.

The citizen referred to, who represents scores of other thoughtful citizens, maintains that there are places that would suffer less than stores and factories by ceasing to use coal for a short period. Among those places are mentioned clubs, pool rooms and the Public Library; and the churches might, by greater combination of services, and the dropping, pro tempore, of all services not essentially religious, do their bit.

Then, though it is perilous ground to take, the schools, which are large consumers of coal, might close for the intensely cold period—for a time—and make up the loss by continuing classes during the Easter holidays, and part of the summer holidays. It is argued that teachers cannot secure children's attention, and do their best teaching in hot weather. This may be so; but banks, business offices and the whole world of action have to keep things going in the hottest weather, and no very serious injury would be inflicted upon children's educational interests by the adoption for one short period of measures to which the whole community besides must, or should submit.

One can't see why the government authorities persists in their necessary restriction orders in "making two bites of a cherry"—taking half measures, with result of loss of effectiveness and creation of initiation by discriminating in their orders against certain classes of industries or interests. When all are affected by weather conditions and fuel conditions, all should be willing, or be made willing, to comply with regulations that, being intended to be of general advantage, should apply equitably to all.

The same principle that applies to military service, should apply to the military service implied in keeping our people fit. There should be no exemption except inability and superior claim of other duties of service. Adherence to this principle, of course, involves sacrifice; but in this time of war, sacrizce is the common lot, and should be shared in common.

The Toronto public schools are observing heatless Monday.

DOING AND DALLYING.

When everybody is suffering in mind and shivering in body over the coal shortage, it is natural that the subject should be uppermost in everybody's thoughts. Those who know, assure us that as bad as the fuel situation is this winter, it is sure to be worse next winter, unless remedial and auxiliary action is taken, and taken promptly.

The people cannot of themselves, except in a limited and inconclusive way, take the required action. It, therefore, becomes the business of the governments the people provide to do their business, and, moreover, their duty, to take action, not talk action.

We are told and we know that there are immense deposits of peat, the raw material for millions of tons of fuel, scattered throughout the province of Ontario. We know that there is near Kirkfield, on the line of the Trent Canal, and the Halburton railway, an enormous peat bog. We know this, because these deposits have been tried and excellent fuel manufactured; but the output failed from lack of the capital and organization that the government can supply. We are also told that at Lily Lake, two or three miles out of Peterborough, on the line of the Grand Trunk Railway, there are important deposits of peat. This, if true, concerns us nearly, for we have close by with rail communication, a fuel yard waiting to be exploited. Besides the line of the Seymour Power Company passes these bogs; and we have both transportation and power ready for creating a supply of peat fuel; all that is lacking is the will and initiative of the government.

In the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the Ontario Legislature the government made a hazy promise in regard to taking action to develop our peat deposits. The government intimated that explorations would be made and experiments conducted to determine the practicability of making peat as a commercial article of fuel.

This is temporizing and dallying with the question. There is no need for experiments. The experiments conducted by the Dominion Government at the Alfred peat bogs, demonstrated that the conversion of bog peat into good fuel was both a manufacturing and commercial possibility. The machinery and equipment are no doubt yet in existence at Alfred, and there is needed only a little oiling and tinkering and a little energy to put them at work in producing the sorely needed fuel, potentially existent in millions of tons in the peat bogs of the country.

One sometimes loses patience with the dallying character of governments, which "consider" and pigeon-hole instead of doing—which waste so much precious time in "scoring" before they "get off to a good start."

But governments can get away from these things as was shown in the legislature on Wednesday, when not only parliamentary but slow-coach government precedents were smashed. The outrage was even committed of interrupting "talk" to do something. The speeches on "the motion in reply" were interrupted to rush through legislation to relieve the fuel shortage in the natural gas region of Essex. The Lieut.-Governor was on hand to give the royal assent. Thus important action was taken in "record time"—law "made while you wait"; and something that needed prompt action got the benefit of prompt action.

Similar prompt action is demanded in dealing with the peat fuel problem. If the government is in earnest in mentioning the matter at all, it should get into motion. The prospective fuel situation, the elementary principles of business counsel, urge action. After this winter's experience with fuel shortage, the people demand that every means possible should be used to prevent or lessen a recurrence of fuel hardships next year.

The public seems to be in earnest about the matter of peat production. The town council of Brockville has petitioned the Ontario government to take steps to work a large peat area near the town, which government examination has shown to contain large quantities of peat fuel material.

On second thought the Fuel Controller decides that his heatless day orders apply to wood and oil used as heating materials.

DISASTER DUE TO DISORGANIZATION.

The Examiner deserved little credit for prescience, when it forecast the fact that the Union government, being composed of human elements, would develop things that made it worth watching by an interested public, as well as by an alert Opposition.

In many things, especially in regard to the evil of patronage, the government has been guilty of shortcomings that bring the most bitter censure from newspapers that helped with all their power to return the Union government.

The Halifax disaster is quoted as the result of a deplorable disorganization and official ignorance of conditions. The Ottawa Journal-Press, a strong supporter of the government, exercises the privilege of the candid friend as follows:

"The calamity was the result of a state of disorganization in Halifax harbour that the evidence has shown long antedated December 6. Pilot MacKay, Captain Lamodec, and Captain Wyatt were only the accidental victims of that disorganization, though all three may have been party to it. It is inconceivable that such a rotten state of affairs as has been revealed should have been allowed to continue for months without action from Ottawa. Responsible heads at the Capital must have been either living in a fool's paradise or deliberately closing their eyes to conditions in the most important British port on the Atlantic placed in their charge.

The harbour organization and administration seems to have been honey-combed with dry rot, the legacy of the inept administration and patronage criminality of the Borden government. It is letting down the government, in one way, to say that the patronage system that retained in office inefficient and careless and perfunctory officials, is largely responsible. And now the personification of the application of the patronage system by the Union government, Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, whose place was purchased by the gift of the fat job of customs collector of Montreal, as a reward for resigning the Conservative candidature in Mr. Ballantyne's favour—he has a splendid chance to show that the patronage system is not, as far as he is concerned, as bad as it is represented.

THE NECESSIT ORF HOLDING ..

Canadians can always heartily say "Hear! "Hear!" when their fellow-countryman, Mr. Donald MacMaster, K.C., speaks, either from his place in the British Parliament or on the public platform, on any question of Imperial politics. In the British House of Commons he worthily represents the Chertsey Division of Surrey, and, on occasion, expresses faithfully the sense and sentiment of his native land.

In a speech he recently made before some of his own constituents in support of the war savings movement Mr. MacMaster touched on the German peace proposals that are being discussed a Brest-Litovsk. There is no doubt that the German Government looks beyond the immediate object of a settlement with Russia. Not only does it calculate that the elimination of Russia as an adversary would strengthen its hands in dealing with other Entente Powers, but also it entertains the idea that the Bolshevik principle of "no indemnities and no annexations" might then be forced on its other adversaries. Mr. MacMaster sounded a warning against the giving of the smallest consideration to that principle on the part of Britain. To Germany, of course, the principle means no reparation for the awful wrongs suffered by Belgium, Serbia, Roumania, Montenegro, or for the outrages committed on the soil of France, for the U-boat piracy and the killing of women and children in England. It would mean the retention of territory conquered by Germany and the giving up of territory conquered by Britain and her Allies. Mr. MacMaster reminded his hearers that this war is being fought with the whole might of the British Empire, and that the overseas Dominions have a voice in the disposal of the colonies wrested from the enemy. He was confident, he said, that the Dominions would never consent to the returning of the conquered German colonies.

Napoleon said that Antwerp was a dagger pointed at the heart of Britain. Were Tsing-Tau in China to be restored to Germany as a naval base it would, as Mr. MacMaster well says, be a dagger pointed at the heart of Canada and at the heart of the United States. Of course, Japan can be depended on to see that Tsing-Tau is not returned to Germany whatever else may be. New Zealand, Australia, and South Africa will be solidly against any proposal to give back their conquests. The Imperial Cabinet is to meet again next summer, when it will be found by the British Government that the will of the Dominions is very strong on this point.—Mail and Empire.

Why Referendun Re Return of Alasce-Lorraine to France?

The question of the return of Alsace-Lorraine is perhaps the fundamental one to be settled by the present war. If Alsace-Lorraine be returned, then is the principle of self-definition sustained, and that of forced annexation rejected by the world. That Alsace-Lorraine was returned would signify beyond a doubt, the failure of military power, and the rise of international right. Then would the world have arrived at a point where nationality, and not strategic frontiers, the rights of the people and not the desires of a nation of sword wielders, would hold as the basis for the settlement of international disputes.

There has been some talk of a referendum on the question of the retention or return of Alsace-Lorraine. Why? Was a referendum taken when Alsace-Lorraine was seized by Germany and annexed to Prussia? Did Germany ever offer the Alsatians or Lorrainers a referendum after they had had, say, ten years of German rule? Were the inhabitants who were driven out and replaced by German emigrants officially induced to leave their homes in other parts of Germany to displace the former French citizens, offered a referendum as to whether they approved of such action? Were the Alsatians who were forced to fight for Germany on the Russian front offered a referendum? Did Germany offer a referendum to the people of Belgium as to whether they desired to be slaves of the Teuton military power?

Alsace-Lorraine has been a thorn in the German flesh since 1870. Despite all the efforts of the Germans to suppress the French language, as well as the dialects of these two provinces, despite the substitution of German officials, minor and major, for those of Alsatian birth or descent, despite the Zabern incident, and scores of other like atrocities, Alsace-Lorraine has remained firmly entrenched in the love of its people for France. But many thousands of the natives have been driven to other countries, no less than 30,000 fleeing to France in 1914, where they joined the French army, although they knew that capture meant death as "traitors." Would these be given a vote in a referendum? Would the Germans sent to the left bank of the Rhine under the policy of substitution, be fairly entitled to vote

The "lost provinces" have demonstrated in every possible way that they are heart and soul with the French. They have every right to be able once more to take their oath of allegiance to the tri-color. For the regaining of the lost provinces France with joy entered the conflict. Despite the loss of three million soldiers on the field of battle, France is not the less determined that they shall be returned. And who shall say her nay? Not the Allies. Germany? Her purpose is to retain them for further commercial and political and military purposes; but if democracy is to rule, Germany's purpose will be set at naught. Alsace-Lorraine must be returned by the despoilers.—Brantford Expositor.

"MEAT!" CRY BELGIAN WAIFS

Hungry Children March Through Streets Shouting for Food—Fed by the Red Cross.

The desperate condition of the civilian population of Belgium and northern France, who are being repatriated, and the work of the Red Cross in restoring them to normal health is graphically described in a report to Red Cross headquarters from Ernin, where repatriates are received. These destitute people are returning to their land at the rate of 1,000 a week. 60 per cent of them children. Their hardships have been so acute that of the adults who return 30 per cent die the first month from exhaustion.

"There arrived recently," says the report, "a train loaded with Belgian children, 680 of them, thin, sickly, alone, all between ages of four and twelve, children of men who refused to work for the Germans and of mothers who let their children go rather than let them starve. They poured off the train.

"They had come all the long way alone. The children poured out the station, marched along the street, shouting, "Meat, meat, we are going to have meat," to the Casino, where they were given a square meal, the first in many months."

The Cent Comes Back.

Our smallest coin, the cent, is emerging from the low position in public esteem which it has occupied for many years, says the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times. Under the operation of the new revenue law it will achieve the favor which it deserves at the hands of thrifty people. Prosperity brought the copper coin into contempt. Now that we are to cut out extravagance and waste, the cent will be respected like every other necessity. One may not care to burden himself with a fistful of the erstwhile despised "nearmoney," but we are entering upon an era of odd prices which makes the one-cent piece essential to the commonest transactions of the day. The prosperous may escape the annoyance of over-many coppers by buying such quantities they can make payments in multiples of nickels and dimes, but even that resource may fail them. The public will soon look askance upon the citizen who buys more than enough for immediate needs. "Hoarders" are not in favor, thanks to the warnings issued by the food and other administrators of necessities. So the people generally may as well make up their minds to carry "pennies" and make and receive odd change whenever they buy.

"Americans Have Brains."

Col. T. H. Goodwin of the Royal Army Medicine corps of England, told physicians in the training camp at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, that the Germans fear the effects of the entry of America in the war.

"A German captain who had been captured was asked what he thought about our much-prized shell fire," said Colonel Goodwin.

"'Your artillery is no better than ours' the German replied.

"Surely you will admit we excel in aviation," we told him.

"'No,' the German replied, 'you are not better than us anywhere.'

"Finally we asked him what he thought about America entering the war, and he answered:

"'That is different—we've got some brains to fight now.'"

Cultivate Your Aspirations.

Very few people are satisfied with the work they are doing. Many of them have aspirations for something better, more congenial. If you have any natural leaning toward a higher grade of work, says Physical Culture Magazine, don't strive to put it out of your mind, but try to keep it very much in your mind. It may indicate a field for which you are especially gifted. If you have any ambitions, cultivate them. It is only those who dare to follow the guiding star of destiny by encouraging and cultivating these aspirations who ultimately move forward to their realization.

The Dream of a World Court.

The thought of an international court or conference for the settlement of international disputes is not new, writes Oscar Hallam in Case and Comment. Grotius suggested it nearly three hundred years ago during the Thirty Years' war.

William Penn, in 1693, proposed the establishment of a European diet, parliament, or estates for the maintenance of perpetual peace.

Rousseau, Kant and Bentham followed. Sumner devoted himself to the question of disarmament, the establishment of a congress of nations, and the abolition of war by means of an international court of justice.

Algerian Wines Taken for Army.

In conformity with the instructions of the minister of general supplies, one-third of the wine crop of Algeria has been requisitioned for military purposes, says Consul Arthur C. Frost, Algiers. Each wine producer is required to turn one-third of his vintage to table wine for army consumption. The wine furnished must be of good quality and equal at least to the average quality of each producer's vintage.

JACK ADAMS NOW WITH TORONTO PROS.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.— Jack Adams, the former Peterborough, St. Patrick's and Sarnia amateur star, and one who is touted as a marvel in the O. H. A. ranks, reported to the Torontos yesterday, and will play for them in the second series. Adams turned out with St. Patrick's last night for a practice, and seems to have recovered from his recent illness. He has youth and ability, and should make a place in the Blue Shirt line-up. He will be taken to Montreal Saturday night to play against Canadiens, and will make his debut there, but will also be started on Monday night here when the Ottawa club come to the Arena for their second battle of the second series. Rusty Crawford of the Senators wired last night that he would be here this morning; and he will also be used both Saturday and Monday. With this pair the Blue Shirts will be greatly strengthened, while Sprague Cleghorn, the former Wanderer star, may yet be induced to come here.

Curlers Arrange Bonspiel For The Heatless Week-end

The executive of the Curling Club decided this morning to hold a local bonspiel on Saturday and Monday in view of the fact that the closing of the factories and stores on those days will leave many of the curels unemployed. The rinks will be just as they are formed in the scheduled games, and the first draw will be at 9.45 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, with the second draw at 11. The games will continue during the afternoon and evening and into Monday.

Each member will contribute twenty-five cents and the proceeds will be given to some patriotic organization.

Vest Pocket Submarine Fighters

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.— The keel for the first of the fleet of "vest pocket submarine fighters" Henry Ford is making for the navy was laid yesterday, Ford wired Secretary Daniels today.

"This contract was let only a few days ago," said Secretary Daniels, "so you see Ford is losing no time in getting under way." Daniels said the Ford boat has not yet been named, but that whatever name was given it officially, probably would be popularly replaced with a nickname.

Barbers May Open All Day On Saturday

Special to The Examiner,

TORONTO, Feb. 8. —Barbers may stay open all day on Saturday, but must close their shop all day on Monday.

Provincial Fuel Controller Harris received this definite word from Ottawa to-day.

Flour Is Scarce In Many Towns Nearby

The scarcity of flour in Belleville, reported yesterday also exists in many of the smaller towns and villages of this district. Port Hope, Colborne, Campbellford, Sterling and many other places have telephoned to Peterborough urgent orders for immediate supplies. It was even stated that some of those communities had actually exhausted their last reserves. The reason for the flour shortage is due to the extreme difficulties that have crippled the freight service of the railways.

Batiste promises to rival voile for lingerie blouses.

ENCOURAGE CO-OPERATION IS THE PLAN

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner)

OTTAWA, Feb. 8.—The Food Controller's Department has no intention whatever of undertaking a scheme of co-operative delivery in the matter of grocery and other establishments. "The impression has been created," said Food Controller Thompson this morning, "that we intend to take over deliveries and make a co-operative system out of them. We have no intention of doing anything of the sort; we do not contemplate the outlay of a cent of money for that purpose. But we are endeavouring to encourage co-operation wherever it will cut down the overhead expenses of the store. Co-operative delivery would do that. Every decrease in overhead charges is to the advantage of the consumer since it enables the retailer to sell his goods cheaper."

HOW DR. GRENFELL BEGAN HIS WORK

The following tells how Dr. Grenfell began his work—Peterborough will get an opportunity of hearing him on Monday:

I can remember as well as yesterday when I went out to a big tent meeting in the East-end of London. I was then a medical student. I had not any interest in religion—I thought it was effeminate, that it did not do any good, that it was all right for old ladies, that it was the kind of thing that "didn't get anywhere," as they say in America. As I stood impatiently by the door, someone was praying, and he went on praying quite a long time—an elderly man who did not know that he was boring the congregation. Suddenly somebody got up and said, "Let's have a hymn while this brother finishes his prayer," and they began to sing. I have often laughed over it. I laughed at the time—that is why I stayed. And I went out with the determination that my life was not worth while, or my religion; but, infinitely better than that I went out with the hope that it might be made good. That was D. L. Moody. Well, what would you do if you wanted to serve Christ as a medical student? I cannot say what every one of you would do, but I will tell you what I tried to do—to begin with boys. They gave me a Sunday School class. I had never taught in a Sunday School. I didn't know anything at all about it. It was in Bethnal Green. The boys did not seem to listen to what I said a bit. They were very unruly. They did all sorts of things they ought not to do. That went on for two or three Sundays. Then I thought I would teach them something I did know. I asked them to come round on Saturday to be taught boxing. And after that I was turned out, and my class, all because it did not appeal as a method of preaching the Gospel. That was twenty-five years ago. Yesterday I had a letter from one of the boys, now the father of five children, who says the appeal to him was one he never forgot.

I do not say these things to make you laugh. I say these things because that is the way I look at the service of Jesus Christ. I think it is full of fun being in Labrador. Of course, you do not dress like people do here. That does not matter—you dress to keep yourself warm, instead of dressing for other people to look at you. You do not eat exactly what you eat here because you cannot get the food, but you have a great deal better appetite for what you do get when it comes along. You do not have so many opportunities of getting things, but you have a great many more opportunities of giving. And that ought to be the sweetest thing to a surgeon, to know that his patient really needs him. He is really giving him life.

FUNSTON AS STRIKE BREAKER

Used Rifle as Persuader to Induce Indian Packers to Proceed on Journey.

In 1893 Frederick Funston set out for Alaska on a commission to collect botanical specimens. Today the trail over Chilkoot pass is familiar, but at that time it was known only to Indian guides and a few daring miners who had followed its devious ways. Funston with two companions went up the pass and over to the Yukon, says the Youth's Companion. One incident of the trip he describes in his own picturesque language as follows:

"The Indians carried the loads while we dragged the empty sleds. The snow fell incessantly for five days, and it lay along our route from 5 to 50 feet deep. Day after day we wallowed and struggled on as we worked our way gradually upward to the summit of the range. One cheerful little diversion occurred on the second day. The low browed chief packer who seemed to have charge of the other Indians threw his load into the snow and announced that unless their pay was materially increased he and the other packers would get themselves back to the village, and thus leave us in a pretty pickle.

"My temper had been at white heat all day, and without thinking what might be the consequence of such a move, I shoved the muzzle of a cocked rifle into the face of the advisory committee of that strike, and the way the Most Serene Grand Master of the Amalgamated Order of Chilkoot Salmon Biters reshouldered his sack of beans and tugged along through the broad expanse of the beautiful snow shows that it is sometimes a good thing for every well-regulated family to have a gun in the house."

Use the Egg Beater.

An egg beater is of great advantage in lightening daily tasks. If in making cream sauces, soups, etc., the mixture becomes lumpy beat with egg beater and it will become smooth and velvety. In cooking potatoes for soup or apples for a puree if they are well cooked, then beaten with the egg beater, the same result will be obtained as though they had been put through a strainer, and it will be much less trouble.

The Bath Habit.

In the eighteenth century the bath was a season's event, and soap was almost a thing unknown. It was scarcely ever used, or at least infrequently. It was by no means an indispensable toilet necessity. And most of us can recall the time, muses an exchange, when Saturday night was religiously dedicated to the weekly bath. That is why we all appreciate the story of the woman who wrote her friend, "We just moved into a new apartment. It has the cutest bathtub. I can hardly wait until Saturday night."

Understanding Hearts.

If you see a man smiling to himself in a crowd don't imagine that he is crazy, says a writer. Usually such are the sanest of individuals and possess an enviable appreciation of themselves. They do not need to be influenced by exterior conditions and circumstances in order to call forth that spirit of gladness which lies deep within the soul. It is far more profitable to try to imitate such persons than to mock at or to pity them.

Without Military Honors.

The Sunday school teacher had read the 73d Psalm. "What do you think," she asked a little boy, "the words mean, 'I saw the prosperity of the wicked. For there are no bands in their death!'" The boy paused, and then replied, "Why, teacher, it means that wicked men mustn't have military funerals."

CARTRIDGES IN COAL AT HALIFAX CITY HALL.

Halifax, Feb. 8. — Eight cartridges of varying calibre were found in the city basement coal stack, at the city hall yesterday. The police are inclined to think that the explosives came there accidentally, but the popular opinion at the city hall was that they were put there by design. Experts say that there would have been quite an explosion if the cartridges had been shovelled into the furnace all at one time.

ORGANIZED EFFORT BY THE GOVERNMENT NEEDED AT ONCE

If Production Is To Be Increased Mr. R. R. Hall Points Out —Mr. Burnham is Urged to Wake Up and Do Something

It was apparent to well-informed men over a year ago, that in less than one year there would be not enough food to supply the wants of our Allies.

It was well known then, that so many men had been withdrawn from food production throughout the world, that we would be face to face with food shortage.

No one appreciated that this shortage of food would arise better than Sir Robert Borden, himself. He was so informed by many public men both here and in Great Britain.

Two of his own chief supporters in the Dominion Senate pointed out the way whereby such shortage could be overcome. These supporters were Hon. Senator Frederic Nicholls, head of the Canadian General Electric Company, and the Hon. Senator H. W. Richardson of Kingston, head of the largest grain exporting company in Canada.

They pointed out in the Dominion Senate that Canada had millions of acres of land in the North West Provinces all ready for the plow, rich and fertile and convenient to the railway.

They urged the Government to organize the resources and man power of the nation to bring at once a large part of this land under cultivation during 1917, and to prepare the land to grow large crops of wheat and other cerals during the year 1918.

But they talked and urged in vain. Nothing was done by Sir Robert Borden and his Government to produce one single bushel in 1917, nor to take one single step to prepare the land to produce one single bushel more in 1918.

During the spring of 1917, a Food Controller was appointed to advise the people to save, and an unorganized effort was made, urging people to produce more. It was all empty, hollow, and shallow talk so far as the Government was concerned. There was no action and assistance on the part of the Government.

Hence we had less wheat produced in 1917 than 1916, and a large falling off in food production of all kinds.

They adopted that policy of inaction and indecision that breeds want, and invites disaster; and it is admitted on all hands that the great danger that confronts Great Britain to-day is the risk she and her Allies daily run of being starved into subjection to Germany.

Now, every one is not merely asked to save, but forced to eat less food, as indeed we should and must, in order to assist Great Britain and her Allies to escape from a perilous situation which might have been largely avoided by a far-sighted and progressive Government in Canada.

But I will do the Government of Sir Robert Borden the justice of saying that he and his Government, both old and new, were industrious sowers of seed. It is needless to say it was not grain. It was the seed of racial and sectarian hate and distrust.

They and their reptile press worked overtime to fan the passions and prejudices of the people and made the electorate believe that our great menace came or might come, from Quebec. The works of our dreadful enemies in Europe were forgotten and the desperate food situation of Great Britain and her Allies was deliberately concealed.

Many thousands of people are impatiently waiting to see some announcement made of some definite forward policy of increased food production in Canada on an extensive scale. We have the land in the North West. We can get the machinery if it is ordered in time, and the labour can be obtained to plant and to harvest. Valuable time is daily passing and no action is being taken to prepare to produce.

Every one who voted for such slothful servants owes a duty to themselves and others who must suffer for their neglect, to urge Mr. Burnham, M.P., to wake up and do something. A little, plain criticism from him would help some.

R. R. HALL.

PUBLIC LIBRARY WILL BE CLOSED 3 DAYS A WEEK

Meeting Was Held Last Evening —Only Limited Supply of Coal on Hand

At last night's meeting of the Library Board it was decided to close the building on Sunday, Feb. 9th and on Monday, Feb. 11th; also beginning on Monday, Feb. 18th, the Library will be closed on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week until further notice.

This course was considered the best possible one to adopt under the circumstances, as the Library Building is the headquarters for the Red Cross work. Five organizations are engaged in Red Cross work in the rooms of the Library, and there is no other available place for this very necessary work. It is hoped that the ladies may be able to so arrange their sessions that their work may not be seriously impeded by the closing of the building on the days specified.

The Library has but a very limited supply of coal on hand.

DEFER ELECTIONS UNTIL AFTER WAR

Life of Ontario Legislature Extended Until Soldiers Return From Front.

There will be no election in the Province of Ontario until the war is over and the soldiers are settled again in their ordinary pursuits. In the Legislature last night Sir William Hearst, in the course of an eloquent address, accepted a proposal made by Wm. Proudfoot, K.C., the Opposition leader, that the life of the Legislature should be extended and that a truce should be declared in party politics until the Empire has come safely through the great crisis facing it. The necessary legislation will be passed by the Ontario House, which has power to deal with it without reference to any other Parliament, Federal or Imperial, and within a short time bye-elections will be held in the ridings now without membership. These vacant seats will be filled without opposition, according to the party affiliation of the former member.

The announcement of an extension came as a general surprise. It was known, of course, that extension was being discussed, but the first intimation the House had that a definite decision and agreement had been reached was when Sir William spoke. In the afternoon a hint of what was coming was given by Mr. Proudfoot in making a straight request to the Government for an extension, suggesting at the same time that an extension would have to be long enough to carry the country not only through the war, but to a date considerably after the conclusion of peace, long enough to tide the province over the period of readjustment.

College Paper Refers To Death In France Of Peterborough Boy

Driver J. Millard Brooks, son of Mr. J. M. Brooks, Dalhousie Street, who recently died in France, was for some time a student at the Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y. A recent issue of the Syracuse Daily Orange, the University paper, contains a splendid photograph of the dead soldier, with several references to him. The Daily Orange says: "Driver J. Millard Brooks, ex-'17, died Jan. 26th, after a short illness with pneumonia, at the 18th Casualty Clearing Station, in France. Brooks was a member of the class of 1917, of the College of Applied Science, and he is the first Syracuse man to die in France. He enlisted in the Canadian army in the fall of 1916, and was a member of the 74th Battery. He will be buried in the Canadian cemetery on French soil."

"Pte. Brooks is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brooks, of Peterboro, Ont., three sisters, Mrs. Edward Lyman, of Syracuse, N. Y., Miss Anna Brooks a member of the American Nursing Corps, at Jacksonville, Florida, and Miss G. L. Brooks, Peterboro, Ont., and two brothers, L. M. Brooks of Montreal, Que., and Fred Brooks of Peterboro."

Speaking editorially of Gunner Brooks' death, the Orange says:

"A third Syracusan has died in the service, J. Millard Brooks, of the College of Applied Science, class of 1917, died Jan. 26th, in France, from pneumonia contracted at the front. Being a Canadian he enlisted in the Canadian Field Artillery in September, 1916. The news of his death, following so closely upon the death of Smithers, '18, brings the war ever nearer to Syracuse University.

Grant For Care Of Parks Should Be Made This Year

The Horticultural Society will make a strong recommendation to the City Council to provide at least the usual grant for the care of the parks. The Parks committee, with Mr. S. Jordan chairman, was instructed by the society on Wednesday night to impress the Council with the need of maintaining the work.

The personnel of the Parks Committee is Messrs. Jordan, Kennedy, Kennett and Young.

As it was impossible to distribute fall options, the Society promises options this spring that will make up for the absence of the former. A committee has this question in hand. The lawns and gardens competition will be held as usual, and this committee will also arrange for a competition for which the cup donated by Mr. Adams of Toronto, will be the prize.

The Society will take an active part in the Greater Production movement this year and if possible a distribution of seeds for flowers and vegetables will be made among the schools of the city.

Mr. Ernie Brumwell was elected to the directorate of the Society.

REMARKABLE CAREER OF PHYLLIS NEILSON-TERRY

It is doubtful if any young actress has achieved success more rapidly than has Phyllis Neilson-Terry, who will display fine art to theatre-goers at The Grand next Thursday, Feb. 14.

As everyone who is at all familiar with stage history knows, Miss Neilson-Terry can claim a heritage unusually rich in the best traditions of the English theatre. She is the daughter of Fred and Julia Neilson-Terry and the niece of the famous Ellen Terry. Therefore, it is not altogether surprising that she has accomplished so much in a comparatively short space of time.

Her parents, proud of their art, gave her every possible assistance and her education was carefully planned with the view of fitting her for a stage career. Languages, music and the study of literature occupied her time, together with gaining a practical knowledge of the Theatre, with the result that at seventeen she had the distinction of being leading woman in the company of Sir Herbert Tree.

Miss Neilson-Terry's most conspicuous successes have been i nthe characters of Shakespeare, and she has won a place as one of foremost exponents of Shakespeare now before the public.

Her remarkable ambition, however, did not permit her to confine herself to any one line of work. She required an outlet for her extraordinary versatility and entered the field of modern drama with equal success. Perhaps her most notable achivement in this line was her portrayal of "Trilby" in the famous all-star revival of that play.

This season she has again departed from her usual line of work to appear in a delightful modern comedy by Edward Peple, entitled "Maggie," and which will be presented here under the management of George C. Tyler.

Those who have watched the exceptional progress of this distinguished young actress will be interested in the forthcoming production, as it gives her a splendid opportunity to demonstrate her art in a different way.

"A GREEK SLAVE"

When the Peterborough Operatic Society produced Sydney Jones' musical comedy, "A Greek Slave," on Empire Day last spring, the completeness of the success with which it was presented seemed to leave no room for improvement, considered as an amateur effort. Last night's performance at the Grand Opera House, however, surpassed in many respects the excellence of the previous work, and Mr. R. J. Devey revealed the perfection which can be accomplished by the enthusiasm of an organisation that is essentially non-professional, but in certain respects worthy of professional rank.

An evidence of the appreciation remaining from the former production and of the expectation of renewed pleasure was found in the large audience present last night. There should be another big house to-night, probably the last opportunity for years of enjoying the most finished and elaborate production that has ever been attempted by a Peterborough organisation.

"A Greek Slave" may be confidently and warmly recommended to the public for the meritorious work of the Peterborough Operatic Society, and incidentally for the reason that the proceeds will be devoted to the furnishing of the War Veterans' Club.

Beyond question, Mr. Devey deserves every congratulation in his newest success. It was evident that he had received the fullest co-operation from the society to the last member, and that he had been supported by able assistants, and a splendid caste of principals; but as director and conductor the bulk of long and detailed preparation fell upon his own shoulders, and he manifestly gloried in the work as a labour of love.

Some of those who have closely followed Mr. Devey's accomplishments in amateur theatricals, as they may be termed, will refuse to displace "The Geisha" from the highest place in their memories, and to give the honours to "San Toy" or "A Greek Slave"; but it should be remembered that there are striking differences in the music and the character of the first and last mentioned musical comedies. Those who manifest their continued interest by comparisons will find more than satisfaction in the fact that the standard has been uniformly sustained. There has been unmistakable progress, and above all, there is the element of permanence that guarantees future pleasures. The Operatic Society is a big happy family, the individual members of which should feel that the final success has been reached through their contributory efforts.

Last night's performance was another triumph for Mrs. D. B. Nicholls. Scarcely two weeks ago she was the charming Cinderella of the musical fantasy at the Grand, and as Maia, beloved of the Greek Slave, she delighted the large audience by her unaffected and clever acting and by her pleasing voice, which was heard to fine advantage in "The Golden Isle" and an aria in the second act, also in her duet with Mr. Fred Hartshorn. The latter as the Greek Slave won fresh laurels in the title role. His stage presence is graceful and his acting shows a nice restraint and comprehension of his part. His singing was a feature of the evening, his best numbers being "Let me be free" and "Girl of my heart."

The other principals, Miss Leila Smyth, Miss Annie Jordan, Miss Dorothy Fenwick, Mr. W. H. Barry, Mr. Herb. Frost, and Private Vernon Dredge gave the leads most effective support. Private Dredge has had no recent practice as Heliodorous, and his talent as a funmaker was demonstrated by his continuous drollery. He never missed a line in the exacting role upon which the humour of the piece depended. Miss Jordan is the only newcomer among the principals. With only two weeks' rehearsals she had a considerable share of the work, and accepted it admirably, especially in her singing and dancing.

A word is due to the eight patricians. Their octette "Topsy-Turvey" was a rollicking number, and in "Here at Baiae on the Bay," opening the second act, their voices blended with nice effect.

As the sculptor Archias, Mr. Frost was new to the caste, taking the part that was so well filled by Mr. James Liddell last spring. Mr. Frost proved a hapy choice in this role, which demands many speaking lines and a considerable share in the support to the principals. His best opportuniy comes in the Saturnalia scene, in which he projected a spirit of the revels that carried the chorus to convincing gaiety.

Mr. Barry's topical verses in his song, "I Want to be Popular," greatly amused the audience and won repeated recalls.

Miss Betty Burnham's interpretive dancing was a delightful interpolation. Her work, if possible of any improvement, shows little subtleties of expression that come with maturing ideas. In every respect it was a charming variant in the entertainment features. Miss Bickersteth's dance was also well received.

But beyond the very capable work of individual members of the caste stood out the singing of the chorus. No amateur production has equalled in volume, balance, precision of attack and shading the present development of the Operatic Society's ensemble singing. Without any disparagement to the principals, it may be commented that the chorus was so completely satisfying that it stood out as a feature of the production. The Invocation Scene and the finale of the second act disclosed the beauty and power of the chorus in a degree of perfection that calls for unusual praise. Rich in sopranos, with a nice balance of altos, tenors and basses, sonorous and posessing remarkable tonal depth, the chorus was a dominant feature of the presentation, and by the public's appreciation should be encouraged to continue the achievements, which, under Mr. Devey's leadership, comprise an extremely creditable list.

The Caste:

Melanopis (Head of Slaves), Miss Dorothy Fenwick.
Nepia (Attendant), Miss Annie Bickersteth.
Roman Patricians, Miss Zoe Doyle, Miss Francis, Miss Coughlin, Miss Eason.
Iris (A Greek Slave), Miss Annie Jordan.

SAYS HOT WATER WASHES POISONS FROM THE LIVER

Everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it, before breakfast.

To feel as fine as the proverbial fiddle, we must keep the liver washed clean, almost every morning, to prevent its sponge-like pores from clogging with indigestible material, sour bile, and poisonous toxins, says a noted physician.

If you get headaches, it's your liver. If you catch cold easily, it's your liver. If you wake up with a bad taste, furred tongue, nasty breath or stomach becomes rancid, it's your liver. Sallow skin, muddy complexion, watery eyes all denote liver uncleanliness. Your liver is the most important, also the most abused and neglected organ of the body. Few know its function or how to release the dammed-up body waste, bile and toxins.

Every man and woman, sick or well, should drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, to wash from the liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, the poisons, sour bile, and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening, and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Limestone phosphate is inexpensive; any pharmacist will sell you a quarter pound, which is sufficient for a demonstration of how hot water and limestone phosphate cleans, stimulates, and freshens the liver, keeping you feeling fit day in and day out.

To Free Your Skin Of Hair or Fuzz

(Boudoir Secrets.)

No toilet table is complete without a small package of delatone, for with it hair or fuzz can be quickly banished from the skin. To remove hairs you merely mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the objectionable hairs. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when it will be found free from hair or blemish. Be sure you get genuine delatone.

CONSUMPTION OF FISH.

Editor of The Examiner:

It has given me much pleasure to read a copy of the letter issued by the Fish committee of the Food Controller's Dept., in your issue of Thursday, Feb. 7th, and the campaign to educate the public to eat more fish will undoubtedly succeed if efficient supervision is paid.

From personal experience it is not just a question of cultivating the interest of the public, through the local papers, by calling attention to the fact that grain and other foodstuffs are not consumed by fish, as is the case with hogs, sheep and cattle. To my mind the main point is to ensure that the fish is sound and fresh though frozen, when it is offered for sale. I know that Peterborough is at a great disadvantage by being such a long distance from the seaboard, and it is always the case that the fish is frozen—in summer to preserve it and in winter unavoidably.

Fresh cod, haddock, etc., are enjoyable as a food and make a splendid substitute for beef, bacon, etc., and I was delighted when some months back efforts were made to boost the sale of the so-called coarser grades of fish, but whoever was responsible for supplying the fish absolutely killed, or nullified, the interest, by forwarding parcels or lots that should have been condemned before shipment.

It will be necessary to see that the fish is sound, not withered and spent, though frozen, and then I am sure the public will not need a lot of printers' ink to convince them that the food is good. I sincerely trust that if the fish is right that the Food Controller will not confine me to one pound per week.

Yours truly,
Harry Goodwin.

Found Pills In A Drawer

Unusually Sad Circumstances About Death of Little East City Child

The funeral of Margaret Elizabeth, the three-year-old daughter of Sergt. and Mrs. John Godfrey, Caddy Street, East City, took place to-day from Comstock's undertaking parlours to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Exceedingly sad circumstances surround the death of the little one. An aunt, Mrs. Mary E. Godfrey, died a few days ago, and relatives from Toronto who arrived for the funeral brought candy for the little girl. Mrs. Godfrey, the child's mother, took the candy from the child and put it in a dresser drawer. The little girl, in seatching for the hidden candy, came across pills, which also were supposedly placed out of reach, and ate them. Convulsions immediately followed, and the distracted mother sent her to the hospital, where all that medical skill could do was powerless to save the child.

KEPT HAWAIIAN FLAG FLYING

Natives Smeared Pole With Thick Coat of Grease When French Frigate Threatened to Capture Fort.

How the Hawaiian flag was kept flying at great odds is the subject of a story told recently, says the New York Herald. It relates to an incident in 1840, when the commander of the French frigate Poursinvante threatened to capture the old fort. The French admiral demanded the return of about $6,000 which had been paid to the Hawaiian government by the French government for an unlawful seizure of ten years before.

When the fort and Honolulu were threatened with gunfire, R. C. Wyllie, a British subject, advised Kamehameha III that the French could not sink the earth, and so the French money was buried in the public square. Also that while the fort might succeed in sinking the French war vessel, it would be best for the safety of his people not to make armed resistance.

Wyllie then visited the fort, where he conferred with Colonel Mahuka, who was in command. He told the colonel to call all his men in line and then asked for the best seaman among them. From out of the lines stepped a former whaleman who was ordered to climb the flagpole with a grease pot and tie the flag securely to the staff. Then as the whaleman descended the pole he smeared it plentifully with grease.

After this there was an honorable retreat to a point of safety, while the French marines were put ashore to enforce the demands of their commander. However, as none of them could climb the greased pole, the Hawaiian flag continued to fly, and, as the French money was safely buried, they finally had to depart empty handed.

Peanut Hay as a Forage.

The peanut produces not only food for man but grain and forage for stock. Peanut hay is equal to clover and alfalfa as a forage, while hogs are fattened on the nuts which they harvest themselves, making as high as 400 pounds of meat to the acre.

Captain Rintelen Gets Eighteen Months And The Maximum Fine

Kaiser's Relative and Ten Co-conspirators Receive Limit Seutence In Steamship Plot—Term of Imprisonment Will Not Begin, However, Till Other Sentences Are Served

COURT IS REGRETFUL

NEW YORK, Feb. 9. — Captain Franz von Rintelen, relative of the Kaiser, was found guilty in the United States District Court of conspiracy to destroy a British steamship in the spring of 1915 by placing fire bombs in her hold at a time she was moored at a pier in Brooklyn.

Ten other men of the total of sixteen named in the federal indictment also were found guilty. Judge Harland B. Howe sentenced each of the defendants to the maximum provided by Congress—eighteen months' imprisonment at hard labour, a fine of $2,000 and costs of the prosecution.

In passing sentence Judge Howe said:

"In the case of one Rintelen, whom I regard as the leader, There is no doubt he is more guilty than the rest. He came over here with the express purpose of committing crimes. If he was sentenced to life, if not to forfeit life, the punishment would not be too severe."

Judge Howe also said he regretted that the punishment provided by law was so small, remarking that it had been put upon the statute books merely to force shippers of combustibles to mark their wares properly so that the masters of steamships would know what was going aboard their vessels.

Von Rintelen First One Sentenced.

Captain von Rintelen was the first hadan ng to say, and he was apdefenda... called to step forward to be sentenced. The clerk asked him if he parently on the point of launching forth in some speech, when his counsel, George Gordon Battle, whispered to him. He remained silent. Judge Howe told him in plain language he regretted that circumstances did not give him power to deal out adequate punishment.

Time spent by von Rintelen in prison for the fire bomb conspiracy is be distinct from that for other crimes for which he has been convicted. When brought to New York city to stand trial he was serving a term in the Westchester County Jail for conspiracy to destroy munitions plants by inciting strikes and blowing up factories. When this is completed he will begin a sentence in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta for posing as an American so that he could get a passport. When he has completed this he will begin to serve the new sentence.

Other indictments also are hanging over von Rintelen's head, according to James W. Osborne, Jr., Assistant United States District Attorney, who prosecuted the cases.

That von Rintelen is in custody is due to the British Secret Service. He was caught on a Dutch steamship, where he was posing as an American citizen, having forget a name to get a passoprt to return to Germany.

Otto Wolpert, formerly superintendent of the Atlas line, a subsidiary of the Hamburg-America Steamship Company, was sentenced after the case of Von Rintelen was disposed of. The others were Captain Charles von Kleist, formerly master of a German steamship and already convicted of conspiracy in another plot; Eugene Reister, manager of a lyceum in Brooklyn where the fire bomb plotters were charged with conspiring; Joseph Zeffert, who acted as messenger for the plotters; Bonford Boniface, who kept tabs on sailings of Entente vessels; Walter Uhde, another alleged carrier of bombs, and the following members of the one-time German setamship Frederich der Grosse, where bombs were made; Ernst Becker, electrician; Frederick Karbade, George Praedel and Wilhelm Paradies, assistant engineers.

CATTLE MARKET

For the second time since Christmas the cattle and beef trades have suffered an almost complete tie-up as a result of the unusually hard winter. Storms and extremely low temperatures have so completely demoralized traffic conditions on the railroads and blocked up the country roads that the movement of live stock has been possible only under the most difficult conditions. Fortunately the storm of last Monday was just late enough in arriving as to per it of the shipment of a moderately fair run of stock to market. After that no further shipments beyond an odd car or two could be shipped in for the next couple of days. In the meantime business was practically suspended, for, while cattle cou.. not be shipped in, neither could beef be shipped out. The result has been that packers have not been in so urgent need of fresh supplies of cattle, and business was slow even for the new belated cattle that have been drippling in to the market during the latter part of the week. Prices in consequence have been inclined a little on the down grade, marking an average decline of about 50c from the week before, holding about steady at that decline during the latter part of this week.

It is hardly likely that there will be any sharp return to the recent activity and general strength of the market until a freer outward movement in the beef trade sets in, and that will be as the weather moderates and railroad traffic gets back to normal conditions.

The extremely light offerings of sheep and lambs has prices for this stock steady to firm.

The hog situation was very unsettled during the week, and exact quotations were out of the question. High prices were paid for a few cars, but the market failed to hold firm at the top at the week end.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts for the week, 340 cars, with 4,137 cattle, 409 calves, 8,741 hogs, 794 sheep and lambs and 378 horses.

City Cattle Market—33 cars, with 654 cattle, 75 sheep, 178 hogs, 36 calves, and 7 horses.

Should Keep Time With Feet.

The wrist watch has been made popular by the boys in khaki. It is much more convenient they find to turn up their sleeve and note the time than it is to dig in their jeans to discover it. But, according to a facetious member of the camp at Van Cortlandt Park, it looks as if the cherished fad will be sent to the discard. "The old man," meaning, of course, the colonel, he said, "is very much up in the air about wrist watches. What he wants mostly is for rookies to keep time with their feet."

The Results of 1917

The Thirty-first Annual Report of The Manufacturers Life Insurance Company shows a record of growth unsurpassed by previous achievements.

The new assurances amounted to the large sum of $16,485,403, and the Insurance in Force, $98,128,631.

The gain in insurance, $9,010,272, was the largest in the history of the Company.

The increase in Assets was $1,891,348. The Assets now total $24,585,783.

The Income exceeded $5,100,000 and also established a new record.

The mortality was again very favorable, despite the extra claims imposed by the war, being more than 25% below that provided for.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Company made large purchases of War Bonds during the year, the average rate of interest earned was 6.52%.

The Surplus, exclusive of Special Reserve, now amounts to $2,530,054.54. This Surplus, compiled under the Canadian Government Standard, would amount to $3,670,589.54, showing a gain over the previous year of $226,805.69.

THE RUSSIAN LOSSES WERE COLOSSAL

Army Did Its Duty and Perished Eight Times Over in Doing It—After Ten Months' Conflict the Official Casualties Were 3,800,000.

PEACE DESIRE UNIVERSAL

LONDON, Feb. 9. — Prof. Bernard Pares, who taught Russian history and literature in the University of Liverpool, and is the official correspondent of the British Government on the Russian front, contribute an interesting and impressive article to the Daily News, on "The Tragedy of Russia." Writing with an intimate knowledge of Russia's early part in the war, and of the causes that led to the debacle, he says that one can understand nothing without a knowledge of the colossal Russian casualties and also a lively sense of their inevitable bearing, and on this he says: "The Russian army has done its duty, and has perished eight times over in doing it. It's for us to understand the position thus created. The sin was the sin of autocracy, as are three-quarters of the troubles from which Russia is now suffering, but the inevitable result is that overwhelming war-weariness which, for the now emancipated millions of Russia, blurs out almost everything else in a universal longing for peace."

Enormous Losses.

Of the enormous losses of the Russian army, he writes:

"After 10 months of war the the Russians, according to statistics given me then by their War Office, had lost 3,800,000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners. In the drive into Galicia, in 1915, through most of which I went, and, also, through the retreat, the loss of men which the Russians acknowledged, was far less than their real loss. The army owned to the loss of 150,000 men out of 350,000, but more often than not, I found a company of 250 reduced by casualties to 40, and that was only-half way through the retreat. One cannot forget the wholesale nightmare of men sent up, untrained and without rifles, and returning as cripples two days later. On the Warsaw front a whole division was sent under shrapnel without rifles, and men who had no helmets, tried, as elsewhere, to cover their heads with spades. As a result of this lack of equipment, enormous numbers of cripples for life were spread wholesale over villages where they were, often, almost the only men left.

Allies Helped.

"Meanwhile War Minister Sukhomlinov refused all offers of munitions from factories not run by the Government. It was the general and chief of staff of the army and the director of artillery in Petrograd that urged me to beg for them every possible help from England, and this I did on reaching London in a memorandum, in which I represented a revolution, and also chaos as inevitable. I was in this supported by the military knowledge and conspicuous ability of Gen. Knox, who, before and since, almost exclusively devoted himself in supplying the tragical needs of the Russian soldier.

"Lord Kitchener and Lloyd George both did all that was humanly possible for the Russian army—as much as the most devoted Russian Minister could have done under the conditions.

"However, the criminal incompetence of the Russian Government continued, and with the same results. In May, 1916, I was present at a Russian offensive on Lake Naroch, of which no news had reached the public, and hardly any reached even our representatives at Russian Imperial headquarters. We had now some artillery to concentrate at a given point. With this we attacked for a month, advanced a mile and a half and lost 50 per cent. of our men. Practically all our artillery and aeroplanes were taken from us. The Germans fell on us a day or two later, and it was sheer butchery, conducted systematically, with full knowledge of our impotence. Of our troops, which had again been brought up to full strength, all the battlements in the front line were reduced by nine-tenths without our being able to inflict any loss in reply.

Shortly before the break up of the army I found that the average units, with whom I lived, had been renewed entirely between eight and ten times. Please realize the numbers of the Russian army and then tell yourself that every place has been filled eight or ten times over. As one soldier said: 'It is not fighting; it is slaughter.'"

Not Old Enough.

Alice was not greatly interested in the approaching Halloween party and when her older sisters tried to enthuse her with the subject she answered sadly: "Oh, what good is Halloween to me? I am not old enough to see my future husband's face in a mirror."

HOLDS A "PLAIN DOG" SHOW

Philadelphia Is Originator of Novel Contest in Which Canines of All Walks of Life Enter.

Hungry dogs, clipped dogs, thin dogs, fat dogs, blind men's dogs—anything from a cheese hound to a sky terrier—gathered themselves together for the third annual "Plain Dog" show, held under the auspices of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, says the Philadelphia North American.

The dog for which Mother Hubbard made her epochal trip to the cupboard was there, hobnobbing with Old Dog Tray.

Taking them by and large, tail for tail, the wistful eyed congress of curs was shy on blue blood, but long on faithfulness, vagabondry, lovableness and all the other traits that have won for them a "place in the sun" or behind the stove, so far as young America is concerned.

Philadelphia originated the idea of a "plain dog" show, and this year it was enlarged to accommodate other pets, such as monkeys, goats cats, ponies, horses, pigeons and chickens.

Gerard's Use of German.

A correspondent of the Westminster Gazette sends to that paper his impression of American Ambassador Gerard's use of the German language as it sounded to him in Ruhleben. "Heard from the back of the room," he writes, "the speech did, no doubt, sound like American, with variations; but listeners in the foreground declared that both grammar and vocabulary were accurate. The sentences were, for German sentences, rather short. One was not kept waiting anxiously for the verb, as for a difficult catch in the long held; nor was the verb announced, in the German style, by the premonitory rumblings of semi-detached propositions. But the flow of words was easy, and all the points were made, and the only effect of the peculiarities of the ambassador's accent was to inspire the deputation with fuller confidence in his good-will and Anglo-Saxon sympathies."

Watterson's Appetite.

Col. Henry Watterson's appetite has long been the envy even of men far younger than himself. A fellow-journalist tells of his experiences in trying to keep the colonel company: "I was invited to dine with him at a club in Louisville one time. At that time I would eat with anybody anything at any time, so I followed the colonel through a long list of fancy dishes. At dessert he ordered two cantaloupes and filled them with vanilla ice cream and sprinkled the cream with paprika. I followed him that far, but then he ordered two cucumbers and sliced one over the cream in his cantaloupe and offered me the other. I did not take it, and that is the reason why I am giving this interview today."

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

"Here's his record, and you can see the start he gave when he saw it, as well as at Marion Rowntree's photograph. The bridal party and the funeral, too, hit him hard, but the worst shock he got was at the picture of the mad-woman. Now take Edwards, the aviator. He went up in the air too at the crazy picture, and he got a little excited over the view of Manhattan Bridge, and the closed cottage, but the rest didn't mean anything to him."

"Where's Quimby's record?"

"This one. He showed only the least bit of surprise at the girl's photograph, and then he took hold of himself, but the crazy scene and the will got to him, and so did the picture of the glass closet. The finger-prints didn't for a wonder. Grafton Foxe was the fellow that had himself under control, though. He never slipped once beyond the slight general nervousness all through, that any one would have had."

"Maybe he's the least concerned," suggested Dennis thoughtfully. "How about Mrs. Foxe?"

"The picture of the open window gave her a start, and the railroad train, and the one with roses and the card marked 'Jack,' but that was all."

"And who, in the name of the saints, made this record?" Dennis cried. "'Tis like forked lightning!"

"That," replied McCarty with dignity as he gathered up the papers, "was me. I'd no reason to be thinking of myself and hiding my feelings, and 'tis only natural the whole business would give me a turn."

"When a man reaches your age, Mac, to say nothing of the weight you've put on in your case 'tis no time to be taking chances," observed Dennis sententiously.

"Is that so!" McCarty slammed the drawer. "'Twas surprised I was, by Terhune's little game, as any one would be!"

"Well, look out that he don't surprise you into apoplexy," advised his friend tactfully. "What are you going to do in the morning?"

"To-morrow I am going for a walk in the park by myself," announced McCarty, with bitter emphasis.

"The park is it?" and what far?"

"For my health! To keep myself calm and take down the weight that is giving concern to my friends."

And he was as good as his word but not precisely for the reason his indignation had prompted him to offer to Dennis. His course was a devious one and took him first to the Grand Central station where by judicious inquiries of not too important officials and a liberal distribution of small change he managed to find the porter of the train upon which the girl Ivy Collins had left for Chicago on that eventful night.

This individual proved to be an unctuous, urbane negro, with a jovial face and twinkling eyes. He remembered the lady with gratifying promptitude from the description of her attire which McCarty had previously gleaned from the police notes.

"Lots of folks have been enquirin' about dat lady," he remarked. "I thought to myself dere was somethin' queer in her actions."

"Who else has been asking?" demanded McCarty.

"Tall thin gentleman, with kind of stooped shoulders, he come twice." (Terhune, thought McCarty.)

"Then some other men, and then a lady," went on the porter. The lady, she seemed real excited, too."

"What did she look like?" McCarty allowed the yellow back of the bill he carried to show between his fingers.

"Well, sir, she was jest grand-lookin', with sort of yellow-brown eyes, and she walked like a queen! She asked me about a hundred questions, an' dat's why I remember the young lady we carried along dat night so well."

So Mrs. Foxe's anxiety has brought her here! McCarty had not troubled to look over the later police reports, or he would have been prepared for this information, since she had doubtless been shadowed. He reverted to the porter's initial remark.

"What did you mean by saying the lady acted queer?"

"Well, when she first got on the train she seemed daed like, an' she had no more'n got to her section when she called and asked if she couldn't have a compartment to herself. Say she felt sick, an' she cert'n'y looked like it, white as a ghost and shiverin' with her eyes jest a-starin' out of her haid. The compartments on all the sleepers was taken, howsomever, an' she had to stay where she was.

"I asked should I see if there was a doctor on board an' she say 'no' an' seemed kind of scared. I went down the aisle past her section after evrythin' was quiet, an' seemed like I heard her groanin' an' sighin'. I wasn't real easy in my mind, sir, believe me! 'Long about two hours after, her bell rung, an' when I answered I see she hadn't undressed, jest took her hat off, an' her shoes. She asked me to send a telegram for her at the next stop, an' I gave her a blank. She done try to write, but her hand was tremblin' so she couldn't n't, an' she got me to put it down for her."

"Do you remember the message?"

"Lawdy, I do, sir! I don repeat it to everybody dat come 'round makin' inuiries about her. It was to L.Platt, 1281 Leavitt Street, an'' said: 'Plans changed. Not coming to you. Will write an' explain,' an' signed 'Ivy.' She seemed to rest quiet after that, but sure looked like a walkin' corpse in the mornin'.

"I brung her some coffee first call from the diner but it didn't hearten her none, an' I thought she would break down altogether befo' we got in, but she done pull herself together somehow. After her section was made up, she jest set there starin' out of the window as if she was lookin' at a ha'nt. It done give me the creeps to see her, sir. Dat young lady was in trouble, sure 'nuff."

"Did she notice any of the other passengers?"

"No, sir, I don't believe she even saw 'em. She seemed daed like I told you as if she didn't rightly know where she was. She tried to eat but she couldn't an' when we pulled in to Chicago I looked to see her drop in her tracks gettin' off the cyar, but she did't. She stepped out real strong an' so fast dat she seem to melt right into the crowd."

"Was she dressed the same on leaving the car as when she boarded it here in New York? Long tan travelling coat, tan shoes, green linen dress, and red hat with a white veil?"

"I didn't notice the shoes, sir, but she had changed to a dark blue silk dress and pot a black veil all over her hat, instid of the white one. That tan coat had a plaid lining and she carried it folded inside out over her arm."

"And you lost sight of her in the crowd?"

"Well, sir, seem like she went toward the ladies' waiting room, but I couldn't be sure. Dat's all I knows. Thank you kindly, sir!"

McCarty left the station and walked rapidly up Madison Avenue, and through to the entrance to the park. That he had a definite time and place in mind was evident, for he glanced at his watch more than once and headed directly to the Mall.

Purchasing a bag of peanuts from a vendor he descended the steps at the north end of the Mall to the sunken plaza with the huge fountain in its centre. No one was in sight but a trim nurse deep in conversation with a policeman, and playing about listlessly at quite a distance from the couple, a little boy in a white sailor suit with a black band upon his sleeve and another about his hat.

McCarty permitted himself a grin of satisfaction and seated himself upon a bench which was screened from the preoccupied nurse by a tall flowering bush but in full view of her charge.

He scattered some peanuts invitingly about at his feet and before long two sharp little eyes peered out at him from a neighboring tree, and with a flirt of a gray bushy tail, a squirrel approached, and then another.

The little boy watched as if fascinated and step by step drew near until he perched himself shyly on the opposite end of the bench.

"Here, sonny, don't you want to feed 'em? They won't bite." McCarty held out a handful of the nuts and the small boy slid confidently along the seat to his side.

He was a thin little fellow, with blue veined temples and shadows about his great, wistful eyes.

"I'm not afraid!" he announced. "We've got a lot of tame chipmunks up at our country place. Sister and I used to feed them——" he stopped suddenly and then turned his face away.

"Does your sister come out here with you and feed these little rascals, too?" McCarty asked without glancing at his small companion.

"No. She has gone away."

"The only boys that father ever lets me play with have gone to the country, and Annie don't know how to play." He looked with pitying disdain in the direction of the delinquent nurse. "She just talks to the policeman every day. Tony and I used to have lots of sport, though."

"Who's Tony"

"Father's chauffeur. He was a—a crackerjack! He said we were real pals and he used to open up the long thing in front of the car and show me how the cylinders worked. He let me drive, too, sitting between his knees, when we were alone in the machine and the road ahead was all clear. Gee! It was great to have the wheen and just feel that you are making the car go! Tony let me have it all myself only with my hands ready, you know, in case of anything happening."

McCarty looked down at the eager little face, flushed now, and bright with happy memories, and his honest heart went out to the lonely child, but his purpose remained uppermost in his mind.

"That must have been great," he agreed enthusiastically. "And where is Tony now?"

"I don't know." The little boy's face clouded. "He went away, too. Father sent him."

"Too bad!" McCarty thrust some more peanuts into the child's hand. "Didn't your father like him?"

"I guess he did at first, but father's awful cross, most all the time. Tony was with us since last summer, but ah of a sudden father got mad at him and he had to go. There was a fierce row—but then there often is at our house."

The unconscious candour was illuminating and McCarty made the most of it.

"Rows are bad thigs," he observed, "but maybe this Tony wasn't smart."

The boy shook his head.

"I don't believe that was what was the matter. Only the day before he left, father told Aunt Pauline he was the most com—com——"

"Competent?"

"That's it! Most competent chauffeur we'd ever had. And Tony knew an awful lot; more than father, I guess! He 'vented something all by himself—something to help make the automobiles go."

McCarty dropped the bag of peanuts precipitately. Tony! Had he stumbled upon a more significant clue tha he had dreamed of finding? Could there be any connection between the dismissed chauffeur and the young inventor, Mr. Antonio?

Those figures have a vital significance to you.

Think for a moment of the exact temperature at which water boils.

Below that you have merely hot water—above it, part of the water becomes steam.

In years of motor car production on a gigantic scale, the Maxwell builders have learned:

(1) That, in building a car to sell for less than $1045, while materials cost what they do today, they would have to sacrifice something—efficiency, durability, economy, comfort, beauty, or standard equipment, all of which the Maxwell possesses.

(2) That, in building a car to sell for more than $1045, they could give you no more practical value—but only increased size, weight or luxurious trappings.

They have found the point of definite motor car value, as fixed as the boiling point of water.

Think that over before you buy a car costing either more or less.

Sir Charles Waldstein Tells of Odd Interview With Prussian Kaiser

SIR CHARLES WALDSTEIN, the well-known professor of the history of art at Cambridge University, has recently published a book with the title, "What Germany Is Fighting For," in the course of which he gives an interesting account of conversations that he himself had with the Kaiser upon the occasion of his last visit to England. He writes as follows:

"The Kaiser was most emphatic in his protestations of peace and of friendship toward England. With all the manifestations of sincere emotion he confessed to the deep pain which England had brought to his heart. 'Every word and every act of mine is misconstrued or misunderstood. Whatever I do for the good of both countries and for a peaceful understanding between them, so that they may co-operate for the good of the world, is mistrusted and misinterpreted as selfishness and aggression. I am wedged in between two great powers, Russia and Great Britain, with France ever ready at my flank, and I really do not know which of you hates me most—I really believe you do. And with all this agitation without, I must struggle to keep my people quiet at home; and you never help me to do it.'

"These words sounded deeply sincere. Who can ever fathom and justly balance the complexities of the human heart and mind?"

At a dinner in London, the Kaiser put to Waldstein the question that he put to every one he met in England, "Have you read Houston Chamberlain?"—referring to that Anglo-German author's well-known book, "The Foundations of the Nineteenth Century." Sir Charles replied that he had "bought the book some years ago and tried to read it to the end, but could not stand a work of such superficial and grossly unscientific overgeneralization. It is," he added, "moreover, one of the most mischievous books of modern times." "What," exclaimed the Emperor, with all signs of horrified dissent, "it is the greatest book of modern times." "I fear we shall never agree," was Sir Charles' rejoinder.

Easy to Make This Pine Cough Remedy

Thousands of families swear by its prompt results. Inexpensive, and saves about $2.

You know that pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several peculiar elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine is famous for this purpose.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain granulated sugar syrup. Nothing better, but why buy it? You can easily make it yourself in five minutes.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-oz. bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—more than you can buy ready-made for $2.50. It is pure, good and very pleasant—children take it eagerly.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous the world over for its prompt results.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

dig: He compares favorably with any of the famous youthful heroes of the French revolution.

Freyberg had enlisted in General Villa's army in Mexico, when the world war broke out. He had no money for his passage to Great Britain, but earned it as a professional sportsman in the United States. Upon his arrival at the other side he was commissioned as a subaltern. Without losing a day he went to Antwerp, afterward being sent to Gallipoli. From the very first day he rendered himself famous for his intrepid exploits. Together with a comrade he landed in the Bay of Bulair one night. By lighting fires and firing rockets and imitating the sounds of an army preparing to attack he kept part of the Turks at bay, while at another point the British army approached the coast. When the success of his ruse was assured he jumped into the sea and swam about for six hours before being picked up.

Some time afterward he was fighting on the Somme, always in the thick of the fray. In the dreadful hours of Beaumont-Hamel (he was a lieutenant-colonel then) he inspired his men to such incredible deeds of daring that the astonished officers asserted that he had taken Beaucourt-sur-l' Ancre practically single handed. This unparalleled gallantry is coupled with astonishing intelligence and activity. He learned strategy and tactics as if they were mere child's play. He was seriously wounded five times and each of these mishaps inspired him with fresh courage. Tall, of fine athletic build, with flashing eyes and face and neck covered with cicatrices, Gen. Freyberg impresses his troops and has perfect command over them. As Napoleon would have said, "He is one of those generals who come out of Nature's hands perfectly molded."

Ban on Linen Goods.

According to the Frankfourter Zeitung, the exportation of linen goods extends to all bed, house, and table linen (used and unused) in inns, travelers' rests, private hospitals, including convalescent and rest-cure homes, hotels, public houses and restaurants, passenger boats, sleeping carriages, and in leading businesses. It applies to all white and colored articles used on or for covering beds, or in use in restaurants and kitchens, in waiting and dining rooms, viz., bed coverings, sheets, and coverlets, bath gowns and towels, hand towels and napkins, tablecloths and covers, pantry and scouring cloths. Articles made exclusively of paper yarn are excepted.

The Maelstrom.

The greatest whirlpool in the world is the maelstrom off the coast of Norway. It is an eddy between the mainland and an island, and when the current is in one direction and the wind is in another no ship can withstand the fury of the waves. Whales and sharks have been cast ashore and killed. The current is estimated to run thirty miles an hour.

"Would advise all sufferers from Rheumatism to try Gin Pills."

"I recommend Gin Pills to everyone suffering as I did."

Utilize Relics of Battlefields

BY permission of the War Office we are able to publish for the first time details of a big army enterprise which has been built up by the department at Dewsbury, and by which discarded uniforms and other articles of clothing collected on the battlefields overseas and in home camps are dealt with in such a way as to save the nation hundreds of thousands of pounds, says the Yorkshire Post. The consignments of condemned and surplus part-worn clothing gathered abroad are packed into sacks and sent into convenient ports for shipment to England. At Dewsbury arrangements are made for the receipt of the goods. They come directly into the railway sheds at the three local stations, which have been taken over by the Army ordnance officials. Immediately the railway trucks arrive, the bales of clothing are run on handcarts direct to the sorting platforms, where are employed experienced women sorters. The bags are ripped open, and the contents spread out among the "pickers," whose nimble fingers and trained eyes quickly discover which garments should be set aside for renovation, and which are only fit for disposal to rag merchants, and others who put them through their special machinery, preparatory to their being made up again into Army cloth in the local factories.

The sorting places are veritable hives of industry, especially when the consignments of clothing received are very heavy, as often in the case. As many as 90 truck loads have been received at the Dewsbury stations in a single day. Organization and discipline, however, rise superior to all difficulties. No slapdash, hurry-and-scurry methods are employed. Everything works with the smoothness of a well-oiled machine. The women sorters—of whom about 350 are employed—do their work so thoroughly that nothing is wasted. The garments which are beyond repair are carefully scrutinized and sorted into woolens, linseys, Angolas, etc. All the articles capable of being restored are sent to a local firm of dyers and cleaners, by whom they are cleaned. Then they are repaired and re-issued to the troops, or for the use of German prisoners of war.

With the very highest standard of efficiency and large turnover, the cost per article, including large repairs, is very low—about 1s. 1½d—as compared with 9s. 6d., which represents the two-thirds value of a new one. If the garment was not salved, its value in the rag market would be about 1s. 6d. In this way £60,000 worth of uniforms, etc., have been saved up to the present, in Dewsbury. In ten months the total value of produce received and disposed of at Dewsbury was £656,650, while the two-thirds value of garments recovered for reissue at all depots was £340,502, a total of £999,153 at a total expenditure, including enlisted men's pay, civilians' wages, cleaning and repair expenses, etc., of £67,308, showing a net credit balance of £931,844. At present the average disposal price is about £66 per ton, on an annual turnover of some £1,800,000.

Some of the rags recovered form a very valuable raw material to the woolen-cloth manufacturing industry. The rags are carefully classified and packed into bales, and they are then taken from the packing sheds to storage warehouses to await purchasers. The system on which this branch of the organization is worked is as perfect as human ingenuity can make it. Labor-saving appliances are used where possible and the bales are so arranged in stacks that it is possible to reach any quality and deal with any quantity without confusion or loss of time. The rags dealt with in this way are reconverted into their original raw state by special machinery in the district and used again in the manufacture of new clothing for the army. Some are sold in open market at the local rag auctioneers' warehouses, but the great bulk are issued at fixed prices to local woolen manufacturers who are making cloth and blankets for the troops. The price is fixed and settled by the contract departments so as to keep down the cost of the cloth and blankets ordered by them for the forces. As an instance, trousers are issued at £84 per ton and jackets at £74 per ton, but the price exceeded £100 per ton when offered in the open market. In addition all cuttings from woolen materials used in the making up of garments for the troops are returned from Army clothing factories to Dewsbury and are similarly issued at fixed rates below market value to manufacturers of army cloth. Up to the present these sales to merchants and manufacturers in the heavy woolen district amount to over £1,000,000, and this amount would have been much greater if all had been sold by auction, which, however, has not been advisable as any increase in the price of rags would have automatically raised the price of the cloth, etc., into which they are converted for the army.

To the lay mind the fact that up to the present 40,000 tons of rags have been handled at the Dewsbury centre may not convey anything extraordinary, but if it is pointed out that in peace times the total British imports of woolen rags amounted to 50,000 tons a year, a better impression of the importance and extent of the business carried on at Dewsbury may be obtained. At present about 1,200 tons of rags are being received and dealt with every week. Some of the bales of rags are worth from £20 to £30 each, according to the weight and quality of the material.

Skin On Fire With Eczema

The Most Torturing of Skin Diseases —Few Doctors Have Satisfactory Treatment to Offer, But This Ointment Cures.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 12.—Eczema's itch is torture. the skin seems on fire with the burning, stinging humour; at times it becomes almost unbearable, and in desperation you could tear the skin to pieces. You dare not exercise for fear of aggravating the itching, neither can you sleep, for no sooner does the body become warm than the trouble begins, and instead of restful, refreshing sleep, it is scratch, scratch, scratch all night long. There is scarcely a moment's respite from this maddening malady at any time. Of course you have tried nearly all the washes, salves, lotions and medicated soaps, but, like thousands of others, have been disappointed and disgusted.

Mrs. Alex. Perry, 18 Ross St., St. Thomas, Ont., writes: "I cannot recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment too highly, as it cured me of a very bad case of eczema. For six years I was ashamed to go near my door when anybody called, my face was so affected with this terrible disease. I consulted several doctors, but they could not help me at all. When I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment being good for eczema, I tried it, and before I had used two boxes I could see it was helping me. Now, since my face is entirely healed, they want to know how I was cured, and I certainly recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment. I cannot speak too strongly in its favour, as I paid out many dollars for doctors' medicines, but did not get any relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment."

You may be skeptical regarding the ability of Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure you. Most people are, after trying in vain to get relief from a host of remedies, but Dr. Chase's Ointment will not disappoint you. You will be surprised at the marvellous control which it has over all itching, burning inflammation of the skin, and the wonderful healing powers which it possesses. It takes time to thoroughly cure eczema, but Dr. Chase's Ointment will do it. You will find relief after a few applications, and gradually and naturally the cure will follow. Besides being a positive cure for eczema, Dr. Chase's Ointment comes useful in a hundred ways in every home for every form of skin irritation and eruption, chapped skin and chilblains.

READY!

In the newspapers there recently appeared articles telling of the arrival of the American fleet at Queenstown—telling how the Officers of the English Navy had gone to Vice-Admiral Sims and asked him when he would be ready for action. Every American thrilled with pride at his answer—

"WE CAN START AT ONCE."

"READY TO START AT ONCE"—What a wonderful motto for every man, and yet how many of us realize that at any moment we may suddenly be called away from Business, from Home and Friends, from this world of ours to pass in to the Great Beyond.

Are you Mr. Reader, "READY TO START AT ONCE?" Have you made provision for those dependent on you should the call come?

"READY TO START AT ONCE." No man can do more—we cannot afford to do less.

If your loved ones are not already protected against such an emergency you had better act while you have the opportunity. To-morrow may be too late.

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada will protect your Dependents providing you do your duty while the opportunity is yours.

Newbro's Herpicide

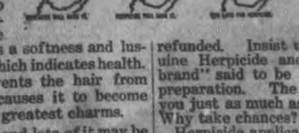
Aids Nature and Keeps the Scalp Clean From Dandruff

Reasonable care and effort are all that are required to enable almost any woman to have good hair. When the hair falls out and is stringy, uneven, dry, brittle and generally unsightly, the condition is nearly always due to dandruff.

Before the hair will grow naturally and luxuriantly, the scale-like accumulation must be removed and the dandruff eradicated. That is what Newbro's Herpicide does. It is an aid to nature. Herpicide keeps the scalp clean, adds a softness and luster to the hair which indicates health. It not only prevents the hair from falling out but causes it to become one of woman's greatest charms.

Beautiful hair and lots of it may be the reward of every woman willing to devote a little personal effort to the use of the First and Original Germ-Remedy for Dandruff. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp. It has an exquisite odor.

You can obtain a trial size bottle and booklet telling all about the hair by sending ten cents in postage or silver to The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich.



Your dealer sells Herpicide in two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00, and guarantees satisfactory results or money refunded. Insist upon having genuine Herpicide and not some "off brand" said to be "just as good" preparation. The substitute costs you just as much as the real article. Why take chances?

Herpicide applications obtained at the better barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

SQUIRREL'S PLAN IS HALTED

Little Pet Persisted in Carrying Away Doctor's Winter Supply of Carefully Hulled Walnuts.

Billie, one of the pet squirrels in Fletcher avenue, became very indignant recently, relates the Indianapolis News. The doctor had burned considerable gasoline in visiting the country and gathering walnuts, until he had three or four bushels for winter use. Billie watched the doctor hull the nuts, put them in a basket and set them in the sun in the back yard to dry. The nuts looked good to Billie and when the doctor was called away Billie got busy and began laying up his own winter store. The squirrel had carried off and buried about half a bushel of the nuts when the doctor returned and put the little thief to flight.

Billie returned the next day and found the doctor had spread the nuts on the roof of his garage and covered them with wire screens, but this didn't daunt the squirrel, which at once gnawed a hole in the wire and pulled out the nuts with its paws. It was busy burying them in neighborhood lawns and gardens when the doctor discovered that more of the nuts were missing.

"Shoo, you little rascal," the doctor said, as he made a threatening motion.

"Get out of my way," retorted Billie in squirrel chatter as the little animal made a dash for another nut.

"Not one more," replied the doctor as he attempted to close the rent in the wire screen, but the squirrel did not budge an inch and attempted to scratch and bite.

Finally the doctor pushed the squirrel off the roof and threw a nut at it, which was promptly buried with the others that had been stolen. Billie then sat on his haunches with tail curved upward and chattered all manners of unkind things till the owner of the nuts had packed them away in the cellar.

Only Two Colleges.

"You have a great many universities and colleges, but England has only two, of practically only two, Oxford and Cambridge," said Lord Reading at a dinner in New York. "Oxford and Cambridge are so drilled into the English schoolboy that, if you ask him what air is composed of, instead of answering that it is composed of oxygen and hydrogen he's apt to say: 'Oxygen and cambridgen.'"

GREATEST RULE OF HEALTH

With all their differences in regard to disease, its cause and treatment, doctors are of one mind in regard to the one greatest rule of health, viz: "Daily movement of the Bowels." Unnumbered thousands of people suffer almost continuously as the result of constipation who could be readily cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

WREATH FOR ENEMY AVIATOR

Scotch Flyer Who Brought Down German Delegated by Royal Flying Corps to Deliver Flowers.

A true incident that reveals the respect shown by allied aviators for the memory of a daring enemy flyer is told in "Tam o' the Scots," by Edgar Wallace, writing in Everybody's.

Tam, an intrepid Scotchman, was told that the man he had brought down the day before was a well-known German aviator named Von Zeidlitz, and on behalf of the Royal Flying corps Tam was selected to take a wreath to the funeral.

"The wreath, in a tin box, firmly corded and attached to a little parachute, was placed in the fusilage of a small Morane—his own machine being in the hands of the mechanics—and Tam climbed into the seat. In five minutes he was pushing up at the extreme angle at which a man can fly. Tam never employed a lesser one.

"Evidently the enemy scout realized the business of this lone British flyer and must have signaled his views to the earth, for the antiaircraft batteries suddenly ceased to fire, and when, approaching Ludezeel, Tam sighted an enemy squadron engaged in a practice flight, they opened out and made way for him, offering no molestation.

"Tam began to plane down. He spotted the big white-specked cemetery, and saw a little procession making its way to the grounds. He came down to a thousand feet and dropped his parachute. He saw it open and sail earthward and then someone on the ground waved a white handkerchief.

"'Guid,' said Tam, and began to climb homeward."

JONES HAD A POOR MEMORY

Husband Blamed Wife for Not Turning Off Gas in Stove—Forgot He Shut Off Meter.

Speaking at a dinner, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska referred to the beauty of having a good memory, and fittingly related this story:

At eight o'clock in the morning one day last summer the Jones' took trunks, grips and suitcases, and hustled for the railroad station. Twenty minutes later a taxicab dashed up to the Jones house and out jumped Jones.

"What's the matter, old man?" asked a kindly disposed neighbor. "Forget your railroad ticket?"

"No," answered Jones, showing symptoms of peevishness. "My wife left a kettle of water boiling on the gas stove. Didn't think of it until we reached the station. You can always depend on a woman to have a memory like that."

So saying, Jones unlocked the door and hastened into the house. In about two minutes he came out again with his features puckered into a peculiar twist.

"How did you find it?" cheerfully asked the neighbor. "Sizzling to beat a locomotive, I suppose."

"No," guiltily answered Jones, "I had forgotten that I had turned the gas off at the meter."

Seattle Becomes Island.

They have been making Seattle look something like New York, only in the process Seattle gets a water front of more than 130 miles as against New York's 43 (that is, Manhattan's), says Boys' Life. This winter you will "bound" Seattle like this: "Seattle is bounded on the east by Lake Washington, deep fresh water about 25 miles long and three to five wide; on the south and west by Puget Sound (salt); and on the north by the new deep water lock canal, completed at a total cost of nearly $5,000,000, to say nothing of the cost of regrading the streets, building new bridges, and doing other things to adjust the city to the change." The change includes the dredging of the new waterway to Lake Union in the very heart of Seattle. The two lakes named are nine feet above the waters of the sound at high tide. The new canal will take the largest merchant ships afloat, which is doing enough, for it's only the ships afloat that count.

Decidedly Unusual.

A Wisconsin man's defense against his wife's divorce suit was on the ground that she refused to speak to him and compelled him to buy a phonograph for company.

Pneumatic Shoulder Pads.

To aid men to carry heavy burdens on their backs an Englishman has invented pneumatic shoulder pads, the air they contain being equalized by a central reservoir.

Habits.

It is astonishingly easier to get into a bad habit than to get out of it. It is like the difference between sliding down a mountain slope and climbing up it. Therefore, when you find an undesirable habit growing on you, climb back, before you have gone down too far.—Change.

Sea Coast Sand Binder.

Californians say there is no sea coast sand binder that surpasses in effectiveness Ammophila arenaria, sea bent grass. It has done more to hold the shifting dunes of Golden Gate park, San Francisco, than any other agency.

FOE SIGNS SEPARATE PEACE WITH UKRAINIA

TEMPTING OFFER IS ALSO MADE TO ROUMANIA

UKRAINIAN REPUBLIC SIGNS PEACE PACT WITH GERMANY

Austro-Hungary Also Likely a Party to the Agreement--Permanent Cessation of Hostilities Would Mean the Opening of a Great Source of Food Supplies to the Central Empires--Germany to Offer Roumania a Slice of Russian Territory as Peace Bribe.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 9.—A peace pact between Germany and the Ukraine Republic was signed at Brest Litovsk at 2 a.m. to-day, according to an official announcement issued in Berlin.

Austria-Hungary probably was also a party to this pact. "Ukraine, formerly a part of the Russian Empire, embraces part of the territories of the old kingdom of Poland. It is traversed by the Dnieper River, and is one of the most fertile lands in Europe. The fact that Ukraine originally is a great wheat producing region may account for the anxiety of the Central Empires to arrange a separate peace. Permanent cessation of hostilities with the Ukraine would open a great source of food supplies to the Germans and Austrians." There have been two rival delegations representing the Urkraine at Brest One—composed of the middle classes—represented the newly declared Republic; the other—representing the proletariat—was loyal to the Bolsheviki Government. It is probable the pact was signed by the former.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 9.—Germany will offer Roumania a slice of Russian territory as part of the peace terms the Central Powers are about to proffer the Balkan State, it was learned to-day.

Copies of the Essenger Allegaine Zeiugn, the Krupp organ, received here to-day, carried the following statement: "The Roumanians, by renouncing all claims to extension westward, can secure compensation in the southwest corner of Bessarabia. Bessarabia is the southwestmost province of Russia, lying between the Danube and Pruth Rivers and the Dniester River. It contains the important city of Kishineff. Such an arrangement would give Roumania complete control of the mouth of the Danube.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 9.—Berlin reports that a peace agreement has been signed between representatives of the Central Powers and the Ukrainian Rada. It is not likely that this will be recognized by the Bolsheviki Government.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BELFAST, Feb. 9.—Irish troops quartered in this city gave American soldiers from the torpedoed Tuscania a typical reception. About one hundred survivors arriving at the City Station from ports, were met by a Battalion of the Royal Irish Rifles, headed by a band, vociferously cheered, and taken into homes.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—More fighting between the Americans and the Germans, on the Western front has resulted in the wounding of two more of Pershing's men, to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Arab tribesmen, under the Shiek of Mecca operating in Arabia, in the region southeast of the Dead Sea, are continuing their advance northward, an official war report stated to-day.

Following closely upon the victory over the Turks between Kersk and Tafile, the Sheik's forces captured Elmazras, an important Turkish town on the shores of the Dead Sea, the report stated.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 9.—At a conference held in Capetown for the purpose of discussing the question of encouraging recruiting, a resolution was passed that German Southwest and German East Africa should, under no circumstances, be returned to Germany.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 9.—(Official)—Enemy patrols were active in the sector north of Lens. In other districts there is nothing to report.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Ed. L. Keen)

LONDON, Feb. 9.—British trawlers and Coast Guards were conducting a thorough and apparently hopeless search for the bodies of forty men still missing from the torpedoed transport Tuscania, early to-day. Revised Admiralty figures to-day showed 2,235 saved, 166 missing, and 126 bodies recovered. The bodies recovered are believed to be included in the 166 classified as "Missing". The missing are believed to include 145 American soldiers, according to details available early to-day. Survivors' stories, wired from Belfast, to-day, continued to emphasize the sangfroid of the American soldiers while facing death.

PETERBORO' OBSERVES FUEL CONTROLLER'S EDICT TO CLOSE

Grocers Were Open in the Morning —Many Left the City

Peterborough's business and industrial activities came to a full stop to-day with the exception of the grocers and other who, according to the Fuel Controller's order were permitted to retail food supplies. On Friday evening the merchants turned the key in the lock, and with the exception of the retail food stores, will remain closed until Tuesday morning, when the embargo will be raised. To the clerks and other employees the Fuel Controller's edict will be welcomed, but a long wail will go up from some of the five and seven dollar a day munition workers.

The order was well observed. Grocers refused to sell soap, matches and other articles that do not come within the category of foodstuffs. Early this morning a half a dozen women congregated in front of a George street store and wondered why the store was not open until it dawned upon one of them that this is the first of the three heatless days.

Passenger trains out of the city carried more than the usual number of passengers. A large number of people took the opportunity of spending a three day holiday on the back forty, providing the Storm King does not intervene and hang them up between the high banks on a branch line.

On Monday the food stops will be open until twelve o'clock, when a rush may be expected.

REV. J. R. WEBB IN MONTREAL

Rev. J. R. Webb left to-day for Montreal, where he will preach tomorrow in the Baptist Temple. The Temple is the church which has recently called Rev. C. G. Smith, of Belleville, to the pastorate. Mr. Smith begins his ministry in Montreal on 1st March.

The Murray Street people will be ministered to on Sunday by Rev. J. A. MacKenzie and Mr. Joseph Wearing. The soldiers at the Armouries will parade to Murray Street Church for the morning service.

PRACTICALLY ALL "E" COMPANY MEN ARE GOING EAST

All A 2 Men in the Detachment at the Armouries Have Been Ordered to Leave For Kingston on Monday Morning

WILL LEAVE 30 MEN

All the A2 men in E Company 1st Depot Battalion of the Eastern Ontario Regiment, at the Armouries, are to leave on Monday morning for Kingston, according to orders received yesterday by Major Watt. This will mean that practically all the local garison will move east, the only troops being left behind being the cooks and other men not in A Category and the members of E Company who are in hospital. Altogether the draft on Monday morning will consist of about 160 men, and will be in charge of Capt. H. Dodds and Lieut. Mark.

This is the second quota to leave E Company. The first draft of thirty-five men, which went east about three weeks ago, are now in England. Monday's draft will leave on the 8.10 G.T.R. train.

It is thought that the moving of the men eastwards is to make room for the next draftees to be called out.

Live Stock Conference At Ottawa

A convention has been called at Ottawa for Monday, Feb. 11th, by the Live Stobck Commissioner for Canada.

Representatives from each live stock market and each live stock exchange in Canada are requested to be present.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy and Mr. W. J. Neely, of Toronto, were appointed representatives of the Toronto Live Stock Exchange. Mr. Fletcher, manager of the Union Stock Yards, Toronto, represents the Union Stock Yards Co'y.

The Edmonton Stock Yards Limited, is represented by Mr. J. H. Ashcroft, manager, and the Edmonton Live Stock Exchange is represented by Mr. T. J. Kelley, manager for H. P. Kennedy Ltd., of Edmonton.

The Montreal, Winnipeg and Calgary markets will also be represented.

Crisis To-day For Roosevelt

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.— Col. Roosevelt is expected to pass to-day through the crisis of his illness at the Roosevelt hospital here. Declaring he had passed a satisfactory night, surgeons said if he did as well to-day as he has been doing there will be no need for further operations.

LIKE A SUNDAY

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—The first "heatless" day was like a Sunday in Toronto except for the newspapers publishing, the barbers being busy, the food and drug stores being open until noon and the amusements going on as usual.

It was a big day for the theatres, the movies, the billiard rooms, and consequently the eating places. The fact that over two hundred thousand workers have no work to do, gave them a chance to amuse themselves, and the weather practically drove them into the playhouses. There was no other place to go except home, so they went to places of amusement to-day.

With confidence in the ability of the railway companies, not altogether shared by the officials of the companies themselves, that they would be returned to Toronto in time for business on Tuesday morning, thousands of the city's army of industrial workers left for country homes last night. Most were headed for points north and west in Ontario.

STILL TALKS DOES KAISER

German Emperor Refers to His Twenty-Six Years of "Peace Efforts", and Speaks of the "Proudest Days of German History

A BIRTHDAY DECREE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 9.— Emperor William's decree in which he thanks those who addressed congratulatory messages to him on his recent birthday, is published in the Berlin Reichs Anzeiger. In it, the Emperor, according to the summary telegraphed from Berlin, dwells upon "the relations of confidence between the Crown and the people." His "twenty-six years of peace efforts," and the progress of the German people.

The Emperor recalls with gratitude "the proudest days of German history at the outbreak of the war" and Germany's subsequent "world historical successes" and he lauds the "self-sacrificing perseverance, the enormous labour and the achievements of the people at home, by which, with God's help, the nation may look forward to a good peace."

SALARY INCREASES FOR THE FIREMEN

Increases Range All the Way From Twenty-five to One Hundred Dollars

At a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee held last evening, Fire Chief Grange was burdened with an increase of $100, which brings his total salary up to $1,500. The assistant chief will receive another $50, and the captain and lieutenant will each receive $25 more a year. Chief Grange asked for a salary increase of $200.

Ald. Jones contended that Chief Grange was doing good work and was entitled to a reasonable increase.

"He might come back next year and ask for $1,800,' cautioned Ald. Dobbin.

"Let next year look after itself," countered Ald. Jones.

What threatened to be a long drawn out discussion was brought to a close when Ald. M. McIntyre moved that the increases enumerated be granted. This was seconded by Ald. Saunders, and endorsed by the committee.

The total salary increases for the officers of the Department amounts to $200. The new schedule, as compared with last year's salary list, is as follows:

| | 1917 | 1918 |
|---|---|---|
| Chief .. .. .. .. | $1,400 | $1,500 |
| Asst. Chief .. .. | 1,100 | 1,150 |
| Captain .. .. .. | 1,050 | 1,175 |
| Lieutenant .. .. | 1,025 | 1,050 |

The estimates or the year will be in the neighbourhood of $25,000. This is an increase of $5,000 over last year.

NEW SNOW OFFENSIVE HITS THE RAILWAYS

Trains Late and at Least One Line is Again Blocked.

Every day brings fresh troubles to the railways. Last night's sleet followed by snow, blown by strong winds, packed into many of the cuts. The G.T.R. train, due here at 9.15 last night, came to grief in the no-man's land around Agincourt, and the line west of Lindsay hadn't clocked in a train up to a late hour this afternoon, and there were none in sight.

This morning the regular train arrived from Belleville; another left for Port Hope at 9 o'clock, and didn't reach there until noon. One hour is the scheduled time for this trip. There was a train down from Lindsay and the regular left for Belleville at 1.30. The timetable has relapsed into the uncertainties of midwinter storm periods.

The noon C.P.R. train was two hours late. With all their difficulties, the railways are giving as good, if not better, service than might be expected.

DEPUTY FIRE MARSHALL J. W. POINTON INVESTIGATES CONDITIONS IN PETERBORO'

Finds That the Local Fire Fighting Resources Are Lacking in Many Respects--More Hose Wanted and An Aerial Truck--Cause of the Neill Fire--Salvage Corps Suggested--Pumping Station is Peterboro's Best Protection

A NUMBER OF RECOMMENDATIONS

Four additional men at the Fire Station. Two to be added to the regular force and two to comprise a Salvage Corps.

Salvage apparatus consisting of a small motor driven truck and from thirty to forty water-proof covers to shelter goods in stores and other places during fire.

One thousand feet of hose in addition to the two thousand feet already purchased.

Improvements to the hose-drying tower at the Central Fire Station. This would consist of sheeting in the tower so as to conserve heat and dry the hose out in a couple of days, instead of five or six days, as at present.

An aerial truck to reach sixty or seventy feet and equipped with an observation tower.

Four-way hydrants at the corners of George and Charlotte, George and Simcoe, George and Hunter, and George and Brock streets.

Additional hydrants at other points throughout the city.

The foregoing represents a number of suggestions made last evening to the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council by Mr. J. W. Pointon, Deputy Fire Marshal, acting for the Provincial Fire Marshal of Ontario. Mr. Pointon was sent to Peterborough to investigate local conditions concerning the recent fire, and also to look into the fire fighting resources of the city. The possibility of an increase in the insurance rate of this city is something that is uppermost in the minds of the property owners, although, judging by the manner in which the Committee sought to reduce the estimates last evening, prior to the arrival of Mr. Pointon, such a thing as an insurance rate might not represent anything more than a figure of speech. The estimates had been reduced to $25,143.08, when it occurred to Ald. Taylor that the Committee might just as well lop off the odd dollars and cents, leaving an even $25,000. The aldermen thought this was an excellent suggestion, and immediately proceeded to give it effect. It was in this mood that the Committee greeted Mr. Pointon as he entered the Committee room.

FACILITIES INSUFFICIENT.

Mr. Pointon said he had been instructed by Fire Marshal Heaton to come to Peterborough and take a general survey of conditions existing and make suggestions that might result in the prevention of fire loss or might accrue to the advantage of Peterborough as a growing city. Mr. Pointon inspected the Fire Hall and concluded that with a little addition, Peterborough would have the facilities to meet any demand. At present the facilities are not sufficient. There is not sufficient hose even with the two thousand feet recently purchased. There is always a possibilty of two fires breaking out simultaneously and for this reason the stock is insufficient, assuming 5,000 feet of hose to be in use at one fire, as was the case in the last big fire.

DRYING THE HOSE.

The hose-drying facilities are very inadequate. At present it takes from five to six days to dry the hose, which time should not exceed two days with the proper facilities. With open landings in the hose tower much of the heat is wasted. Hose, before it can be placed in commission, following a fire, must be thoroughly dried out. The installation of a small boiler with a steam pressure capacity of ten or fifteen pounds, should be installed at some point where the heat could be diverted into the hose tower. At present charcoal is used to dry the hose.

SALVAGE CORPS.

Four additional men should be added to the strength of the Department. Two of these men to be named as a Salvage Corps, whose duty it would be to get to the fire as quickly as possible and cover the goods with water-proof covers. In this way thousands of dollars worth of goods would be saved. This is the experience of other cities throughout the country, and in all cases the saving effected more than justified the expenditure. During the month of January in Ontario alone the fire loss was over two million dollars.

PUMPING EFFICIENCY.

Mr. Pointon congratulated the Committee upon the efficiency of the pumping station and also referred to a number of tests he had made. In one instance the pump pressure was raised from the domestic pressure of seventy pounds to one hundred and fifty pounds in the short space of thirty seconds, and in fifty-seven seconds the pressure was up to one hundred and twenty-two pounds. "That is good enough for any demand," observed Mr. Pointon. If you did not have an ample water supply with which to deluge the fire the whole of the block might have been destroyed in the recent fire. Seven millions, eight hundred gallons of water was used during the twenty-four hours of the fire. Had a second fire occurred at the same time the pumping facilities would have been adequate, but the same could not be said of the hose supply.

AERIAL TRUCK.

Mr. Pointon also suggested the purchase of an aerial truck in preference to a hose pipe. With a hose pipe the water is directed from the ground and with an aerial truck a man directs the water from the top of the apparatus. This is a superior way of fighting fires in the upper stories which cannot be successfully fought from the roadbed. "A water tower," said the speaker, "is not equal to an aerial truck because the former is operated from the roadbed, and the latter has an observer stationed on top of the tower."

SUB-STATIONS WANTED.

With three miles of an area to cover, Peterborough should have Sub-Stations in at least the South and East Wards. All fires are about the same size when they start, and the rapidity with which the firemen reach the fire is very essential.

In connection with the fire at Neill's store it has been asked why the fire was not fought from the roof of the adjoining building. On looking over the situation it was found that the adjoining roof had an angle of forty-five degrees and the men could not stand on it even if they could stand the heat. An aerial truck would overcome such a difficulty and keep the men clear of the buildings and possible danger.

FIRE ESCAPES WANTED.

While in the city Mr. Pointon found a number of places where wire netting was placed over the windows. This netting should be fitted so that it would open out in case of fire. Fire scapes should be placed on the Isolation Hospital. In event of a fire breaking out on the first floor the patients on the second floor might be cut off. Mr. Pointon referred to a hotel which is being converted into an apartment house in the city, and expressed the opinion that fire escapes should be placed on this building, both back and front.

MORE HYDRANTS WANTED.

Another hydrant should be placed near the C. P. R. Freight Sheds, and additional hydrants should be placed on George streets and other streets

FUEL CONTROLLER'S RESTRICTIONS ARE GENERALLY OBSERVED

"Heatless Day" Order Carried Out Well in Ontario and Quebec—Amusement Places Do a Record Day's Business in Toronto

MANY LEAVE THE CITY

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 9.—Early reports received this morning from many of the areas of Ontario and Quebec affected by the "heatless days" order of the Canadian Fuel Controller, indicate very general observance of restrictions imposed on this part of Canada.

In some specified municipalities, such as the far northland of Ontario, in the neighbourhood of New Liskeard, exemption was granted by the Fuel Controller, as coal is little used there, and the wood fuel supply is brought in on Saturday.

BROCK STREET RINK SKATING TO-NIGHT

Also Monday Afternoon and Evening—Don't Miss It

Don't miss the skating at the Rink to-night. Skating until 10.30 o'clock. Ice cleaned at half time. Fine new musical programme.

Then on Monday afternoon and evening there will be skating. The last Monday skating at the Rink this season.

SERVICES AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

The congregation of St. Paul's will worship to-morrow in the Sunday School Hall. This decision was arrived at owing to the acuteness of the coal situation. It was felt by the congregation that they ought not to consume coal at the church services which should go to needy families, if it could be at all possible to worship in the Sunday School Hall. The pastor will preach at both services to-morrow. In the morning he will preach on the Letter to the Church of Philadelphia. In the evening he will take as his subject: "Are we nearing the end of the age?"

DOGS MENACE SHEEP.

And Monaghan Farmers Are Anxious For Adequate Protection.

Monaghan farmers are showing a keener interest in the control of dogs which, wandering around the township, are a menace to the sheep industry. At a recent farm sale eighteen sheep sold for $710. Six of them were lambs and the remainder about two years old. It is stated that there are many useless dogs kept by persons living near the city and the poorer the house holder the more dogs he harbours. If there is no other protection for sheep, farmers declare that they will adopt the summary action of shooting on sight every dog that wanders about the township.

LATE DELIVERY.

The Union government has at last got to a "fifty-fifty" basis in the matter of Senate appointments, the two latest are the filling of two Senate vacancies for Alberta, with one Conservative, Edward Michener, of Red Deer, a retired Methodist minister, and one Liberal, a telegraph operator of Edmonton. This looks like fair dealing in the distribution of senatorships. But it will take a long time, at this rate, to overtake the partisan disparity of senate membership caused by Sir Rober Borden's wholesale pitchforking of Conservative ex-members of Parliament into the senate upon the eve of his assuming the head of a Union government, which was to inaugurate a reign of non-partizanship and patriotic dealing with the personnel of the machinery of administration and government. Sir Robert so thoroughly, so shrewdly, not to say, dishonourably, exhausted the resources of senate appointments that partizanship can smile at the slim chances of Liberals getting a fair deal in the matter of Senate appointments.

Sir Robert's "goods" of fair play and non-partizanship, are a little slow in delivery and when delivered are a good deal like the late Sir James Whitney's "skimpy chicken."

It is somewhat a compensation that so many of us are hot over the government's heatless days.

THE MIGHT OF LITTLE THINGS

Those who don't think far enough ahead are inclined to be impatient or resentful of the restrictions imposed by the Government in the matter of food and fuel saving. They fail to take into account the great aggregate results of a multitude of small savings. The Food Controller estimates that the daily waste of one ounce of bread for every inhabitant of Canada—something doubtless below the actual loss—assuming the population to be 8 millions, amounts to a total of 1,750 tons a month, and that in a year it would amount to seventeen ship loads. A corresponding saving would, of course, amount to a great increase of our total of wheat or wheat products available for shipment to Britain and her Allies.

The same reason applies to the fuel saving order. Our shopkeepers, who dislike the interruption and disturbance of business by closing two days in order to stve fuel, should remember that the few pounds of fuel saved, added to similar or greater savings of hundreds of thousands of shops in Canada and the added saving by the closing of all factories (and amusement places every Monday) will result altogether in the saving of hundreds of thousands of tons. In food and fuel saving, ounces count; and we should be all the more willing to meet these requirements and economise when we reflect that with all the saving demanded we have a general abundance of food, in gratifying contrast to other countries, where the people have to submit to rationing or stand in the bread line as in Great Britain; where the scarcity of food of all kinds and the need of economy makes it impossible for even people of plenty of means to procure as simple a thing as a pound or a few ounces of tea.

Quebec may have been a little behind in recruiting, but she is ahead in providing good roads for route-marching.

WHERE QUEBEC LEADS.

A good many of us people of Ontario are ready to throw stones at Quebec, as if we were sinless, and that province a conspicuous sinner. But in some ways Quebec can show a spirit of superior progress. A few days ago the Examiner mentioned that Quebec, out of its own provincial resources—its own money—has constructed the third greatest storage reservoir in the world—a mighty important thing when we remember the growing importance of electric power.

Now Quebec has shown the way in a new way—in the matter of highway development, a department of national progress in which she has been conspicuous before this new departure. Quebec's latest forward stride concerns the construction and maintenance of highways and has shown a spirit of progress that even Ontario, with its special cult of highway improvement, might well imitate. The object and details of this movement is thus described by the Montreal Gazette:

It provides that when the Minister of Roads considers that any road, owing to agricultural or industrial interests of the region through which it passes, or to the traffic passing over it, is a main communication road, he may either order whatever may be necessary to be done for making, repairing, improving or maintaining the road, or have what he considers necessary done at the expense of the municipality interested. The minister is given all the necessary powers for seeing that such roads are repaired. Municipalities which are ordered to make repairs are given necessary powers of expropriation without the restrictions that apply under the municipal code. Speed is to be used on the part of the interested municipalities, for it is enacted that the municipality getting an order to make repairs must call a meeting of the council within at least seven days, and decide whether it will do the work itself or allow the Provincial Government to do the work at its expense. If the municipality, after deciding to do the work itself, does not show what the Minister of Roads considers is proper diligence, the minister is empowered to do the work himself at the expense of the municipality. If the municipality neglects to pay the account rendered in proper time, the Provincial Treasurer is empowered to recover it by an ordinary action. Municipalities are given an option in the matter of subsidies. Instead of benefiting by the ordinary subsidies, a corporation may, with the consent of the Minister of Roads, pass a resolution binding itself to pay to the province the interest at three per cent. per annum for forty-one years on the amount that the work costs, or on such portion of that amount as may be agreed upon between it and the Minister of Roads, and benefit to that extent by the Good Roads Act. In simpler words, the Minister of Roads will have the power of giving more or less assistance to the municipality according to the nature of the work.

When a municipality, in its desire for good roads, is willing to contribute for the maintenance and repair of the roads outside of the municipality it is permitted to do so with the permission of the Minister of Roads, but such contribution must be approved of by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

Quebec has been reproached for its hostility to recruiting, but here we have a measure that has a direct and compulsory character that even smacks of the military demands that war has forced upon our country.

The central feature of Quebec's road measure is that it forces the hands of backward municipalities and prevents them "holding back the proper construction and maintenance of a road that may thus become a weak link in a chain of good highways." The measure prevents an unprogressive minority, in a municipal group, from becoming a stumbling block in the way of the progressive majority. On theory every municipality is supposed to know its own business and to have a right to be as progressive or backward as its representatives may see fit to permit. But in Quebec, by this new measure, the government assumes a power of control, that, though it may seem autocratic is, in effect, only an advanced application of the principle of the greatest good to the greatest number.

The spirit of progress exhibited by the government of Quebec is commended to the attention of the county council of Peterborough; and it might be permitted to have a bearing upon consideration of the special report on good roads, that will come before it in June. Peterborough county, in the matter of the good roads movement, seems to be rather too near the tail end of the procession.

It's going to be "blue Monday" after this for the amusement seekers.

LENGTHENED LEASE OF LIFE.

The acceptance by the government of the proposal of the leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature to extend the term of the provincial parliament, is to be regarded with satisfaction if Ontario is to do her best in helping in war winning operations. Conditions are more strenuous than they were a month or two ago, with a probability of greater demand for united concentration of effort, which would be gravely interfered with by the distraction of a political contest.

The entente between the two parties will be strengthened, and their united capacity for effective service in the public interests will be immensely promoted, if Sir William Hearst, as head of the government, will agree to the full proposal of Mr. Proudfoot, which involves a party truce; and a party truce involves the prompt and utter abolition of the patronage system to the end that appointments to the public service shall be made with a view to securing the highest quality of public service, and not with a view to rewarding service in the interests of a party. Sir William Hearst has an opportunity to show Sir Robert Borden how a provincial government need not take months to throttle the dragon of patronage.

The Horticultural Society, being a propagandist of production, should not have its capacity for its missionary and educative work hampered by withholding of civic funds.

A RECORD YEAR.

In its thirty-first annual report, the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company beats its own record; that is, the report shows a greater growth than in any previous year. The gain in insurance in force, $9,010,272, is the largest in the company's history; while the insurance issued and reinstated amounted to the large total of $16,485,403. Premium income amounted to $3,672,513, an increase of $203,015; an increase of $150,543 in interest income brought the total of this income to $1,463,496, making the aggregate income $5,109,010. The mortality, in spite of war losses, was 26 per cent. below what was anticipated. The company's rate of interest earning upon its assets was 6.52 per cent. It is to be noted that of the investments of the company, 93 per cent. consist of government, municipal, rural telephone, school boards, first mortgages and cash. The surplus for the year amounts to $2,630,054, after strengthening policy reserves, increasing the special reserve and setting aside $367,[illegible] for dividends payable to policy holders.

The management, the policy holders and the general public interested in life insurance, have reason to be gratified at the evidences of prosperous and sound condition and careful management, the annual report of the Manufacturers' Life discloses.

We shall have the homeopathic principle applied if one kind of rain puts an end to another reign that has lasted too long already.

AUSPICIOUS KITCHENER.

The city of Kitchener is very much on the map, and seems bound to stay there, if the enterprise and merit of its manufacturers can keep it there. The "Kitchener Manufacturers' Association of the British League" has issued a splendid "message from Kitchener." If the subject of the message—the manufacturers of Kitchener—is as meritorious as the bearer of the message, Kitchener has reason to be proud of her manufacturers, and their products. The "message," or its medium, consists of a magnificently printed booklet—a veritable triumph of the printer's art—"made in Kitchener." It is nearly all "business," the pages mostly consisting of advertisements of the fifty odd manufacturing industries of the city, manufacturing 150 different articles. These pages profusely and artistically illustrated with photogravures and illuminated text, are strikingly attractive either as advertisements or works of art. One cannot go through this beautiful book without being convinced of the substantial character of the interests of the Manufacturers' Association, and feel fully guaranteed of "quality and service in buying Kitchener-made goods."

From what the booklet reveals of the enterprise and "live-wire" qualities of the Kitchener Manufacturers' Association and its objects, a similar association would be a fine thing for Peterborough. The object of the Association, as expressed in its constitution, is, among other things, "to foster British sentiment and uphold British tradition—to aid in promoting patriotic service, to promote the industrial and commercial prosperity of the city; to provide facilities for social intercourse among the makers, and provide mutual information for its members, bearing upon their interests—and many other things that must promote the industrial, commercial and civic inersts of Kitchener. One closes with reluctance the admirably compiled "message from Kitchener" with a keen sense of the enterprise and public spirit of the Manufacturers' Association, and a feeling of pride in the industrial capacity of a Canadian city.

Years ago "dusky diamonds" was a figure of speech. Now, in the matter of price and elusiveness, "diamonds," applied to coal, has a good deal of literal meaning.

FUEL CONSERVATION RESTRICTIONS HARD BUT NECESSARY

Coming at a time when the country from which we import our coal is in the throes of a fuel famine involving great suffering, the fuel conservation order issued by the Canadian Cabinet last night is a measure of necessity and wisdom. When some time ago American Fuel Controller Garfield took drastic steps to avert disaster through fuel famine in the United States, The Journal took occasion to humbly submit that under the circumstances Canada could not with honour continues coal-begging pilgrimages to Washington. What has since taken place in the country to the south of us has tended greatly to strengthen that view.

To-day, in the United States, the fuel situation is a very serious one, great suffering is being endured, industry is threatened with disastrous paralysis, transportation is imperilled, and vital war effort seriously jeopardized. It is true that despite all of this, the American Government has shown no disposition to treat Canada in any niggardly fashion in respect to a sustained supply of fuel—on the contrary its spirit has shown American character at its best—but, in our opinion, it would be less than manly for Canadians to continue an unrestricted hauling of coal from a people whose generosity to other nations has brought suffering to themselves.

Of course it may be argued that, from a strictly conservation standpoint, the order is not necessary, that the United States Government has already made ample provision for Canadian fuel needs, and that all that remains to be done is to get the coal from the border to the Canadian consumer. In ordinary times and under normal conditions that contention would have merit and force, but, under existing circumstances it fails to take account of an irresistible factor; it neglects to reckon with public sentiment in the United States. The American people are aware that Canada is dependent upon the United States for a coal supply. What would be the effect produced upon them if, at a time of fuel famine and great suffering in their own country, they realized that Canada possessed ample coal and made little or no effort to conserve it?

We think a fair answer to that question involves admission that even if the order be not absolutely called for as a conservation measure, it is essential as evidence of a desire on the part of the Canadian people to share in sacrifice with their splendid neighbours to the south.

The measure will impose inconvenience and, we suppose, in numerous cases it will impose hardship, but, nevertheless, it will be obeyed. After all, we here in Canada have been singularly and happily free from the trials and sacrifices which war has laid upon other peoples, and reflection upon that alone should prohibit grumbling at the comparatively small measure of sacrifice now asked of us. —Ottawa Journal.

SPECIALIST SAID HE MUST OPERATE

She Took "FRUIT-A-TIVES" Instead, And Is Now in Perfect Health.

MME. F. GAREAU

153 Papineau Ave., Montreal.

"For three years, I suffered great pain in the lower part of my body, with swelling or bloating. I saw a specialist, who carefully examined me and gave me several tonics to take, which did not help me. Then he told me I must undergo an operation. This, I refused to permit.

I heard about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the wonderful results it was giving because this medicine is made from fruit juices, so decided to try it.

The first box gave great relief; and I continued the treatment, taking six boxes more. Now, my health is excellent — I am free of pain and swelling—and I give 'Fruit-a-tives' my warmest thanks".

MME. F. GAREAU.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A Unique Suggestion.

A constable in a Vermont town recently rounded up a number of hobos. "Come along," he said to them, "you have all got to have a bath."

This announcement was, of course, received with considerable perturbation, especially by the idest of the men. "What!" he exclaimed. "A bath! A bath with water?"

"Sure thing," said the constable.

"Look here, Mr. Constable," said the apprehensive one, "Couldn't you manage it with one of them vacuum cleaners?"

STUFF HEROES ARE MADE OF

Young South Dakotan Gives Up Business and Family of Four Youngsters to Join the Army.

The Charlotte Observer is in receipt of a letter from a gentleman in South Dakota, inclosing a check and asking that the Observer be mailed to him as long as the South Dakota troops are at Camp Greene, as he has a son in the One Hundred and Forty-seventh field artillery. The father wrote:

"I have a son in the One Hundred and Forty-seventh field artillery, Forty-first division, Camp Greene. You will also see his name on the heading of this letter. I miss him very much, as I depended very much on him in the business and expected in my declining years to turn the whole business over to him. But his country called him. He was a West Pointer, but had resigned to help me. He has a wife and four little ones at home. Look him up and give him my love. Give us all the Camp Greene news you can of his regiment or battery."

He has a wife and four little ones, but his country called him and he heard and heeded. It is of such stuff that heroes are made.

To Put It Mildly.

There was a crash of glass out in the hall, and we went out to see what had occurred. When we arrived, the glass was there, some innocent bystanders were there, but there was no visible victim.

"What happened?" we asked.

"Bill was coming along the hall, and his foot slipped, and he plunged forward and stuck his head right through that glass door!"

"Well, where's Bill?"

"In the next room being plastered up."

"Was he cut much?"

"Well, his face wore an injured expression."

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms. It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE AUTHOR OF "CRANFORD."

Popular Novel Written by a Minister's Wife.

Mrs. Gaskill was buried in the old churchyard belonging to the ancient, beautiful Unitarian Chapel of Knutsford when she died, after a long life if one measures by achievement rather than by years, for she was only fifty-five. But she had written many books and stories, she had been married and had borne seven children, managing her home perfectly and giving her husband, a cultivated and distinguished minister of the Unitarian Church, a perfect companionship. He, too, was well known in his day for his literary work, most of it connected with his profession. She had countless friends and was a delightful hostess. Her life flowed full-tide, and at her death she left a novel unfinished. "Wives and Daughters," a fine book that reflected a vigorous maturity rather than any hint of coming death. All over England she was known and loved and she was admired by the greatest literary men of the day—Dickens, Landor, Carlyle, and among women, the famous Bronte sisters were her friends and intimates. Later she wrote their biography. It remains one of the best and most readable biographies in the language, as undying as "Cranford" itself.

"Mary Barton" was Mrs. Gaskell's first novel, written in a time of great grief after the death of her baby, her only son. Up to that time, 1844, Elizabeth Gaskell had written nothing of value; a poem done in conjunction with her husband, a sketch printed in a book written by William Howitt on "Remarkable Places," in which she described Clopton Hall, Warwickshire; nothing else. But now she turned to writing with all the energy of her being. Three years she worked on the book, also publishing a few short stories in the interval. Finished at last, it was sent to a publisher and returned unread. Again it was sent out, this time to Chapman & Hall. For a whole year nothing was heard of the manuscript. Finally Mrs. Gaskell began to make inquiries. It developed that the book had not been looked at. The habits of publishers in those days were leisurely in the extreme.

Stirred to action, the manuscript finally got read, and was immediately accepted and printed, Mrs. Gaskell receiving five hundred dollars for the copyright.

The book was published anonymously, but it was not long before its astonishing popularity broke the secret, and the name of Mrs. Gaskell was famous.

Hardy Tepary Bush Beans.

The cultivation of tepary beans is something new in the state of California. This legume came up from old Mexico and has been popular in New Mexico and Arizona for years. Because of its hardy habit, it is capable not only of standing extremes of temperature, but doing well under exceptionally arid conditions. It is a hardy bush bean with a high nutritive value.

Name Made No Difference.

A little miss was visiting at a home where two elderly women were stopping. One had a name easily remembered, but the other had an unusual one. Upon being presented to the the little girl looked pensive for a moment, but she quickly solved her difficulty by saying: "How are you, Drama B and Dranma More?"

Ridicule and Rumor.

The chief difference between ridicule and genuine humor is that ridicule is cruel and humor is kind. Ridicule shows lack of understanding and consequent lack of tolerance. Humor, by means of understanding, becomes tolerant. The really great humorists are great humanitarians.—Exchange.

Talent, Dexterity, Enterprise.

What passes in the world for talent or dexterity or enterprise is often only a want of moral principle. We may succeed whether others fail, not from a greater share of invention, but from not being nice in the choice of expedients.—Hazlitt.

HEADACHE OVER THE EYES? - LOOK FOR NASAL CATARRH

Catarrh Never Stops in One Place—It Spreads Rapidly—Often Ruins Health Completely.

In this changeable climate it is the little colds that drift into Catarrh. Unless the inflammation is checked it passes rapidly from the throat or nose to the bronchial tubes and then to the lungs. You can't make new lungs any more than you can make new fingers or toes, but you can cure Catarrh.

The surest cure consists of breathing in the healing balsamic essences of CATARRHOZONE, which is simply a medicated vapor so full of rich curative properties that every trace of Catarrh vanishes before it.

The soothing piney vapor of Catarrhozone is the most powerful medicine I ever used," writes Mrs. Edmond J. Christine, of Saskatoon. "Every breath drawn through the Inhaler sends a grateful feeling through the air passages of the nose and throat. Catarrhozone cured me of frightful headaches over the eyes, relieved me of a stuffy feeling in the nose, and an irritable hacking cough that had been the bane of my life for a year. My general health is greatly improved, my appetite and digestion are, considerably better than before. Catarrhozone has been the means of giving me such health as I always desired, but never possessed."

Even though catarrh has a firm hold on you, and affects your throat, nose or ears, you can thoroughly cure it with Catarrhozone. Large size, guaranteed, costs $1.00; smaller size, 50c.; sample size, 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

NO Premiums Now—

A bigger bar for you now

because we are withdrawing all Premiums—due to the impossibility of getting good ones in the face of war conditions. This will be great news to many thousands who bought Comfort Soap because of its sheer merit and never saved the wrappers for premiums.

To other thousands who got Comfort premiums we honestly say we simply could not ask you to accept the kind of premiums now being made. The value isn't there! But the value is in the bigger, much bigger, Comfort Soap bar—at the same price.

Why do we prefer to give up premiums? It pays you in war time

We'll wait until after the war, anyhow, and see how the premiums are then. In the meanwhile, of course, all present Comfort wrappers and coupons now out in the stores will be redeemed as formerly, but understand the wrapper on the new big Comfort bar is not good for premiums.

The new, bigger bar of the same old Comfort will be at your grocer's maybe to-day—but either size will give you equal value.

TOPICAL ALLUSION IN MR. BARRY'S SONG

Following are the verses of the "Popular" song as sung by Mr. W. H. Barry as "Marcus" in "A Greek Slave" at the Grand last night:

A person who holds an official position
Your pity may very well claim;
The praises of men are his highest ambition,
And yet he gets nothing but blame.
A brand new position I think I will take on
To make me a favourite strong;
If I bring down the cost of butter and bacon
Oh! shall I be popular long?

Chorus:

Oh, I want to be popular, popular, popular,
Worshipped by women and men;
If Sir Joseph Flavelle
I should send down to—well,
Oh, shall I be popular then?

Supposing that after much careful reflection,
And many long talks with my wife,
I decline any more to put up for election
And bring to an end all this strife,
If I find you a man who possesses the talent
Of being a leader of men,
Who will wave the old flag like a patriot gallant
Oh, shall I be popular then?

Chorus:

Oh, we want to be popular, popular, popular,
Honoured on land and on sea;
Reinforcements we'll send,
Play our part to the end;
Oh, won't we be popular then?

Will people regard me with less of aversion,
Supposing a measure I pass
Interning all Germans who live in our midst,
And the firms who employ them I'd gas?
Our Parliament Buildings, our factories and stores,
And Halifax down by the sea,
Would ne'er have been lost if we'd counted the cost
Of allowing these Huns to be free.

Chorus:

Oh, I want to be popular, popular, popular,
Worshipped by women and men;
I'd intern all the Huns,
With their daughters and sons;
Oh, shall I be popular then?

Tho' fate from the honours of war may debar me;
I'm certain of making my mark;
I'd seek out the scoundrels who are hoarding up coal,
And have them confined in the dark.
And, when they're sent to an island in fetters,
If ever their friends make a fuse
I'll prove they are traitors by hundreds of letters:
Oh, shall I be popular thus?

Chorus:

Oh, I want to be popular, popular, popular,
Worshipped by women and men;
If I thus reach my goal
And we get lots of coal,
Oh, shall I be popular then?

THERE IS NOTHING FOR THE LIVER

SO GOOD AS

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels and will tone, renovate, and purify the liver, removing every result of liver trouble from the temporary, but disagreeable bilious and sick headaches, to the severest forms of liver complaint.

They are small and easy-acting, do not gripe, sicken or weaken like the old-fashioned, nauseating, griping purgatives.

Mrs. A. Kirk, 53 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have tried and tested Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and have received good results, for which I am very thankful. I took them for liver trouble. I came out of the hospital on May 3rd, last, after having had a serious operation which might have been saved had I taken your remedy sooner. I have given some to my sister for biliousness and sick headache, and she has found great relief. A lady who lives in my house has started to take them. I will do my best to recommend them to all my friends."

Price 25c at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Shoes Used in War.

The leather trade, owing to the fact that leather has so many uses in the production of accoutrement, harness, saddlery, and clothing, has always seen great activity in war time. Some idea of the immensity of the demand for footwear will be obtained when it is stated that since the beginning of the war to the end of May, 1917, 40,000,000 pairs of boots had been purchased. In addition to these, which included about 8,700,000 pairs for our Allies (7,000,000 for Russia alone), we supplied Russia with 6,000 tons of sole leather for repairing purposes.

The great majority of manufacturers of boots and shoes in the United Kingdom had had no previous experience of army footwear requirements, and were quite unprepared for the immense demand. It is, therefore, a matter of surprise that this particular branch of the leather industry has performed, so far, its gigantic task with so little dislocation of the civilian trade. Prices for footwear are certainly high in this country, but they are only about one-fourth the prices in Germany and Austria.—London Economist.

Waste of Coins.

By mere waste, caused by coins rubbing one against another, the civilized world loses one ton and a quarter of gold and eighty-five tons of silver annually.

SO EASY! LIKE ROLLING OFF LOG

Sore, touchy corns stop hurting, then lift right out with fingers

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezone applied directly on a tender, aching corn stops soreness at once and soon the corn loosens so it can be lifted out root and all, without pain.

A quarter ounce of freezone costs very little at any drug store, but is sufficient to take off every hard or soft corn or callus. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue or skin. After you lift away the troublesome corn or callus the skin underneath is as pink, firm and healthy as the palm of your hand.

The Starting Point Of Consumption

Lies in Weak, Watery Blood—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make the Blood Rich, Red and Pure

Weak, watery blood is the starting point of consumption. When your blood is in this condition your whole health declines. Your face becomes pale or sallow, your appetite fails, your heart jumps and flutters at the least exertion or excitement. You are always weak and wretched and you lose interest in both work and amusement. This is the point from which you may easily step into that hopeless decline that leads to consumption and the grave. What is needed to bring back health, strength and energy is the new, rich red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. In all the world of medicine there is no other tonic and blood builder like them, and all who feel weak, run-down or easily tired should lose no time in giving these pills a fair trial. They have transformed thousands of weak, hopeless men and women, boys and girls into strong, robust people. In proof of these statements may be given the experience of Mrs. T. Brennen, Charlton, Ont., who says: "Not only myself, but my friends think that had it not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I would have filled a consumptive's grave. My condition was most serious; my blood seemed literally to have turned water; I was as pale as a sheet and became utterly unable to do any housework or go about. I doctored steadily for a long time, but was growing weaker and finally the doctor held out but little hope for my recovery It was thought that a trip might help me and I was taken to New Ontario. Those who saw me while on my way did not think I would reach my journey's end alive. After I reached my destination a friend strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as of course I was anxious to regain health I did so. The pills were the first medicine I had taken which seemed to help me at all, and it was not long until I felt they were doing me good. I continued their use gladly, and began to feel hungry and soon after was able to move about the house. Next I was able go out of doors and to help in the housework, and from that time on my progress was rapid and in the end I was enjoying better health than I had ever done before. There are many people who can testify to the absolute truth of these statements, and I feel I would not be doing justice to your wonderful medicine if I did not make these facts known."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: Of the somewhat frenzied efforts to settle their military exemption difficulties that are being adopted by the government at Ottawa, the latest one is the simplest and the best.

The visit of the County Council to Ottawa has worked wonders. It will be seen by the following letter that the real time to appeal is after, not before being notified to report for duty.

The Minister of Militia as Commander-in-chief of the Army, can send soldiers anywhere, and amongst other places back to the farms. This is the only way in which the government can deal with the case. The Military Service Act and all the machinery and complications connected with it, were devised and made law by Parliament on purpose to prevent the possibility of governmental interference. That plan is not working well, as we know, and the government has found a way to interfere. I am going to Ottawa next week and anything in connection with the following letter addressed to me at the House of Commons will be brought before the Minister of Militia, who has control of the Leave of Absence Board, promptly.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Ottawa, February 8, 1918.

Sir.—In reply to your letter of the 4th instant, addressed to the Honourable the Minister, I beg to state that there is no special form of application for exemption of those engaged in food production drafted in error.

Any man who has been drafted, and considers that he should have been exempted on the grounds of being a farmer, should apply to his Commanding Officer in writing and state his case clearly, asking that it be considered by the District Leave of Absence Board. No formality whatever is necessary.

All such cases are dealt with by the District Leave of Absence Board, and any communication regarding men in Military District No. 3, should be sent to the General Officer Commanding Military District No. 3 at Kingston, in order that it may be referred by him to that Board.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant,

Captain D.A.A.G.,
Secretary, Military Sub-committee,
Military Service Act.
Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P.-Elect,
Peterborough, Ont.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithiawater drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

Speeding Up Lumber Business.

From log to lumber is a rapid transformation after the log is fished from the pond, hauled up the log slip and thrown on the skid, off which it rolls on to the carriage, where it is turned into correct position by the "steam nigger" fastened on the carriage, and cut into shape and form for use by the big saws, of which there are three kinds, band, circular and gang, a process which requires but a few minutes. Half an hour later the lumber is in the dry kiln, or, if timbers have been cut, they are waiting on the timber docks, ready for loading on freight cars.

Reports received at the offices of the Southern Pine association show that a majority of mills are now handling the government's war business on a six-day schedule. This is, within a week from the time a government order is received, the trees have been cut from the forest, hauled to the mill, manufactured, kiln-dried if necessary, placed on freight cars and delivered to points of destination.

Tobacco and Food Crops.

The cultivation of tobacco in the valley of the Connecticut river has been said to have "robbed the neighboring fields of half their growth." Many a farmer in western New England who, 40 years ago, relied on this district for his cattle feed, must now pay high prices for grain raised a thousand miles away. Incidentally the giving up of so much of the most fertile land in New England to the cultivation of a non-essential has materially contributed to the high price of milk. Now, however, the raising of tobacco in New England is on the decline, and this year many of the fields which were formerly given over to the cultivation of that product has been used for raising more useful crops.

Masters of the King's English

"The Toronto Globe the most powerful newspaper in Canada."
London Daily News.
January, 1918.

IN securing for its readers the most comprehensive cable service ever presented by a Canadian newspaper, THE GLOBE has added contributors who rank among the world's highest in literary as well as political and military attainments.

THE exclusive rights to all the cables of The London Times, London Chronicle, New York Times and Philadelphia Ledger, practically means that a score of famous writers have become staff members of Canada's National Newspaper. In addition, therefore, to the obvious advantages as to news, there is a distinct literary benefit from a daily reading of THE GLOBE—Canada's National Habit.

Who's Who in The Globe Cables:

Philip Gibbs

Philip Gibbs is described as journalist and author of many books; war correspondent with the Bulgarian army 1912, with the French and Belgian armies 1914, and with the British armies in the field 1915-17. After his entry into journalism in 1902, Gibbs was literary editor, successively, of The Daily Mail, The Chronicle and The Tribune. Becoming special correspondent and descriptive writer on The Daily Chronicle, he went to the Balkans in the war of 1912. In the present war Gibbs has become the most noted correspondent on any front.

George H. Perris

George Herbert Perris has been with the French forces on the western front since 1914, in the interests of The London Chronicle. He has been a newspaperman and author since 1883. For ten years he was on the editorial staff of The Speaker. Foreign editor of The Tribune 1906-7 and of The News 1908-10, Perris attained a wide reputation as a writer and speaker on international affairs. He is a member of the British National Peace Council.

Dr. Harold Williams

Russia has been such a storm-centre during the past two years that the eyes of the world are daily on Petrograd. For prompt news and reliable reviews of the situation there, the English-speaking peoples have been indebted for some time to Dr. Harold Williams, whose despatches appear simultaneously in America in The Philadelphia Ledger and THE GLOBE. A significant tribute from a correspondent in a rival service appeared in THE GLOBE on January 4, when the London representative of The New York Times, in a cable concerning the Bolsheviki, referred to Dr. Williams as "the most careful and best-informed of the independent correspondents in Petrograd.

Ward Price

Readers of THE GLOBE are familiar with the name of Ward Price as that signed to the very informative and reliable news from the Italian front. He is the correspondent of The London Times and has few equals among war writers.

Robe t Donald

The readers of THE GLOBE are frequently treated to the writings of the famous editor of The London Chronicle. Whether it is a review of the Irish situation or comment on England and the war, whatever he writes about is informative and of more than ordinary interest. A Scotsman by birth, Donald received his first newspaper training in Edinburgh. Then he took his post-graduate course, chiefly in Northampton, Paris, New York and London; and his work on The Chronicle has placed him in the very forefront of the Empire's journalists.

Arthur Ransome

A Petrograd correspondent whose work has attracted world-wide attention—his cables appear almost daily in THE GLOBE—is Arthur Ransome, who has spent most of the past three years in France and Russia for The London Daily News. He was the first man to announce the break between the Germans and the Bolsheviki at Brest-Litovsk. He is an author and contributor, his career having been entirely literary; prior to the war Ransome was professor of modern history and literature at the Yorkshire College, Leeds.

of the city. Had the Dominion Bank building fallen on to the street during the recent fire the four-way hydrant at the south-east corner would have been put out of commission. Hydrants should be placed at the opposite corners to offset such a potential handicap.

PROHIBIT MANSARD ROOFS.

All public buildings and stores should be inspected once a month by the Fire Chief or a competent officer, with a view to fire protection. The construction of mansard roofs should be prohibited. The destruction of the Dominion Bank was due to the mansard roof. "Where you have a fire wall have it a fire wall," counselled Mr. Pointon. A fire wall should not be pocketed for joists. If supports are needed for joists a separate wall should be constructed for this purpose. All ceilings above furnaces and pipes should covered with metal sheeting. In one place of business inspected by Mr. Pontoin since his arrival in the city the woodwork above one of the furnace pipes in the cellar was found to be quite hot. If the pipe became red hot the timber abouve would likely ignite. This, Mr. Pointon said, may have been the cause of the Neill fire, or it might haev been a case of spontaneous combustion. In any case it was not a boiler explosion. Mr. Pointon said he had been unable to determine the actual cause during his short stay in the city.

Greatest Theatrical Name In All England

Probably the greatest theatrical name in all England is that of Terry, and it will be welcome news to local playgoers to know that a worthy member of that illustrious family will be seen at The Grand next Thursday, 14th February, in the person of Phyllis Neilson-Terry, daughter of Fred Terry and niece of Ellen Terry. Miss Neilson-Terry, who last appeared in Canada in "Trilby," will be presented on this occasion by George C. Tyler in a new play by Edward Peple called "Maggie," which was first produced a short time ago in Montreal, scoring an immediate hit. In this new comedy the young English actress has a part, said to be exactly suited to her talents—that of an Irish girl, ignorant, but "thrue at heart," who suddenly comes into a fortune in England, and her endeavours to be at ease in society makes the comedy situations and the human interest.

Miss Neilson-Terry is supported by a competent English company of her own choosing, and her appearance here will no doubt be the dramatic event of the season.

COAL AT FITZGERALD'S.

To-day's Business Shifted From the Police Station to a Regular Office.

The coal shifted to J. E. A. Fitzgerald's yards to-day. With the exception of constant telephone calls, the activity at the Police Station had subsided this morning, and callers found a notice on the door directing them to the Fitzgerald yard, where it was stated two cars of coal were sold by noon, and orders for two others were received.

The other coal offices were closed, the yards empty, and a Sabbath calm pervaded them.

"A Greek Slave" Is Repeated Successfully

Second Performance by Peterboro' Operatic and Dramatic Society Even More Pleasing Than First and Delights Large Audience.

SCORED A TRIUMPH

A bigger audience and an even smoother performance than on the first night featured the second presentation of "A Greek Slave" by the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey, at the Grand Opera House last night. Last night's offering won fresh honours for principals, chorus and conductor, and the audience indicated their enjoyment in no uncertain fashion. The principal leads, Mrs. Nicholls, as "Maia," Mr. Fred. Hartshorn as "Diomed," and Pte. Vernon Dredge as "Heliodorus," the sooth-sayers added to their laurels by their finished performance, and almost professional sureness and confidence in their respective parts. The song numbers of Mrs. Nicholls and Mr. Hartshorn and their several duets were most artistically presented and enthusiastically received. All the other parts were in good hands.

Miss Leila Smyth, as the Princess Antonia, was a veritable patrician in appearance and bearing, and added to the successful acting of her part by her pleasing singing. Her two solos were rendered in excellent voice and with an expression and clearness of enunciation that were delightful, while her voice was heard to splendid advantage in the "Invocation" scene in the first act. Mr. W. H. Barry added much to the success of the evening by his presentation of the important part of "Marcus Pomponius," which he played with a sureness and skill that were most effective, while his "Ponula" song repeated its success of the previous night, and an encore had to be given. Miss Dorothy Fenwick, who, as was Mrs. Nicholls, was presented with a bouquet during the evening, was most successful in the part of Melanopis, the head of the slaves, the clearness with which her lines were read making her work most effective. Miss Annie Jordan repeated her triumph as "Iris." Her spoken lines were cleverly given, and her singing and dancing left little to be desired. She scored heavily in the numbers, "Dear Little Iris," "I Should Rather Like to Try," and "Naughty Girl." The octette of Roman nobles and patricians did splendid work again, and the four lute players, Miss Minnie Allen, Miss Ethel Sheppard, Miss Amy Rathbone and Miss Doris Rathbone, were most graceful and pleasing, and their singing was charming.

A part that had no spoken lines, and yet was most essential to the action of the play, was that of the statue of Eros, God of Love, which was cleverly posed for by Mr. Wilfred Hartshorn.

All the specialties were charmingly presented. Miss Betty Burnham's dancing repeated the hit made the previous evening, and the Tarantella dance by a number of the chorus was a pleasing novelty. Miss Annie Beckersteth, who prepared this number, contributed a graceful solo dance.

The chorus scored heavily throughout, notably in the Hail Antonia number and in the Invocation scene.

The pleasing work of the orchestra added to the enjoyment of the musical numbers.

A large measure of the success achieved is due to the work of Mrs. R. J. Devey and Mr. R. G. Sturgeon, who were stage managers, while Mr. Geo. Chandler did valuable work in "making up" the male characters.

Congratulations are due to Mr. Devey, his splendid company, and all who assisted in making the presentation of "A Greek Slave" a memorable event in the history of amateur productions in Peterborough. That he and his company may be able to present other musical works is the wish of all who saw last night's performance.

Famous Belgian Airman Is On Missing List

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner)

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Reni Vertongen, the most famous aviator in the Belgian army, has been missing for a period of five days and is believed to have been drowned in the North Sea, according to cable despatches received by the Belgian legation here. Vertongen, who has been flying continuously since the beginning of the war, was last seen disappearing in a cloud bank over the sea, the cable stated.

Telegraph Communication Demoralized

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—Heavy rains, in a freezing temperature, followed by a short snow storm, demoralized telegraph communication in Central and Western Onario this morning. Scores of wires are reported down, particularly in the neighbourhood of Toronto. In the matter of transportation, however, conditions were not nearly so bad as during the previous storms and cold spells this winter. Traffic was much delayed, of course, but the railway authorities reported things "moving."

DR. GRENFELL'S LECTURE AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

He is Rightly Recognized as One of the Greatest of Modern Missionary Heroes

Dr. Grenfell is rightly recognised as one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of modern missionary heroes. His name has almost become a household one throughout the American continent, as well as the British Isles, because of his work for the people of Labrador, now spreading over a quarter of a century. Colleges have delighted to do him honour by conferring upon him degrees in appreciation of his work. In 1907 the University of Oxford conferred upon him the honorary degree of medicine, and in the preceding year the King, when bestowing his Birthday Honours, made him a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. When the war broke out he was among the first to offer his services to the British Government. He has spent considerable of his time in Britain during the war.

His lecture in St. Paul's on Tuesday evening promises to be a great treat. He will not only be able to tell us the wonderful story of the fisher folk of Labrador, but of the heroism of some of these fisher folk on the field of battle.

The arrangements for Dr. Grenfell's coming have been made by the Ministerial Association, who requested the use of St. Paul's Church for the occasion because of its suitableness for the use of the lantern which Dr. Grenfell will use to illustrate cision of the session to close the cision of he session to close the church on account of the coal shortage, it is due to the public to explain that Dr. Grenfell's visit is under the auspices of the Ministerial Association, and that the Association has been able to furnish the congregation with the coal necessary to heat the building for the lecture; and as soft coal is being used, which is unsuitable for stoves, no one need suffer thereby.

An offering will be taken for Dr. Grenfell's work on Tuesday evening at the close of his address. Mr. T. F. Matthews will act as chairman.

Discover New Mountain of Minerals.

KITSELAS MOUNTAIN, BRITISH COLUMBIA.

This mountain is expected to play an important role in the mining world in the near future. It overlooks the Skeena River, in British Columbia, at a point 107 miles east of Prince Rupert, and is near Usk on the Grank Trunk Pacific Railway. Veins have been found assaying 9.3 ounces silver, .38 ounces gold and 23.4 per cent copper, and many claims have been staked. Practically all the copper found in the district contains gold values, and as the surrounding country has been scarcely scratched from a mining standpoint, the prospects are considered excellent.

Normal School Reception Was Big Success

Over 300 students and their friends attended the 10th annual reception at the Normal school last night when a most successful and enjoyable evening was spent by all present. The entire school was thrown open to the visitors, who were greatly interested in the different departments of the building. In the teachers' room, Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm, Dr. and Mrs. Park and Mr. Godfrey, assisted by a number of students, received the visitors and a social hour was spent.

The Programme.

A splendid programme, supervised by Miss K. Kennedy, was presented, including a speech by the President of the Literary Society, Mr. Godfrey, chorus by the students, recitations by Miss Winnifred Parker, violin solo by Dr. Park, solo, "Nancy Lee," by Mr. Douglas Carlisle, all of which numbers were heartily encored. Miss Rannie accompanied the different numbers.

After the programme, dainty refreshments, under the supervision of Miss McVannell, were served. Special mention may be made of the dainty and tasteful Valentine decorations which were due to the ingenuity of Miss Alicia McDonald. During the refreshments and the hour following, promenades through the school were held. The evening closed with God Save the King, the pupils returning home with the heart congratulations of all who attended.

Mr. Scott McLean, East City, a millwright with the Quaker Oats Co., met with a severe accident when a chisel he was working with fell out of the handle and badly cut his foot just at the instep. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is at present progressing favourably.

Children Had Whooping Cough

Whooping cough, although specially a disease of childhood, is by no means confined to that period, but may occur at any time of life. It is one of the most dangerous diseases of infancy, and yearly causes more deaths than scarlet fever, typhoid or diphtheria, and is more common in female than male children.

Whooping cough starts with sneezing, watering of the eyes, irritation of the throat, feverishness and cough. The coughing attacks occur frequently, but are generally more severe at night.

On the first sign of a "whoop" Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup should be administered, as it helps to clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phlegm.

Mrs. George Cooper, Bloomfield, Ont., writes: "It is with pleasure I can write and tell you that there never was a better cough medicine made than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Our children had whooping cough last winter, and that is the only thing that seemed to help them. It loosens up the phlegm so that they could raise it easily. I will never be without it."

"Dr. Wood's" is 25c. and 50c. a bottle; put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

Bonspiel Work Keeps Curlers Warm And Occupied During The Official Heatless Days

The curlers' schedule rink bonspiel was a happy and a warm idea. Mr. W. D. Campbell, president of the club, threw himself into the arrangements, which were suggested only yesterday afternoon, and this morning everything was working without a hitch. The curlers would have been idle with the rest of the citizens, but to-day's and Monday's games filled what might otherwise have been two monotonous days, for the bonspiel in the primary and consolation series will not be concluded until late on Monday.

The only heat at the rink was self-induced by sweeping and working in the games. The club-room upstairs was scarcely warmer than a barn, to use a common standard of coldness, and "Number 8" was just as heatless. Hence the appeal of the games was all the more pronounced.

Instead of selecting new rinks this problem was avoided by using the rinks drawn for the scheduled games.

There are no prizes for this bonspiel, but every player is taxed 25 cents, and the sum realized will be given to some patriotic organization.

Only ten ends are played, and snappy, and there is plenty of action for everybody.

The result of the first draw was as follows:

A. W. Archibald won by default from Geo. Benore.

R. P. Best 6, T. Brightman 10.

J. H. Ferguson 9, D. Eason 4.

H. F. Foote 11, P. D. Fitzgerald 6

11 A.M. Draw.

W. H. Denham 5; W. M. Lang 6.

W. J. Thompson 7, J. H. Metheral 8.

J. W. McDermid 15, Jas. Skinner 11.

W. J. Oke 3, W. G. Morrow 17.

E. G. Patterson 2, Dr. Wightman 16.

A. C. Kay, 14; J. A. Cameron 4.

R. G. Sturgeon 9, D. Davidson 5.

2 P.M. Draw.

Dr. Greer vs. G. H. Giroux.

A. W. Archibald vs. T. Brightman.

J. H. Ferguson vs. H. F. Foote.

W. M. Lang vs. J. H. Metheral.

J. W. McDermid vs. W. G. Morrow.

Dr. Wightman vs. A. C. Kay.

The next games will begin at four and again this evening.

Private Wins The Decision Over Zbysko

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

DES MOINES, Iowa, Feb. 9.—Earl Caddock, of Anita, Iowa, a private in the National Army, was awarded a referee's decision over Zbyszke, the Polish wrestler, in their match here last night, after each participant had won a fall.

London Dressmakers.

An organized effort is now being made by the dressmaking, ladies' tailoring, and millinery establishments centered in the West End of London to attract more young girls into the workrooms. Greatly improved conditions have been adopted by over 60 of the leading firms, and a booklet setting forth the advantages which the trades now offer has been prepared for circulation among the parents of girls, when the latter reach the age for leaving school. During the past few years the London dressmaking establishments have experienced a steady decline in the number of girls entering the dressmaking workrooms as learners, and the matter of securing a sufficient number of employes has become one of considerable difficulty since the outbreak of the war, when munition work and other similar occupations have attracted such a very large percentage of the available supplies of female labor.

A standard commencing wage is now offered by the dressmaking trade, with an advance after six months. A 48-hour week has been decided upon, with payment for all Bank Holidays and also during a week's summer vacation. It is stated that intelligent girls can qualify to become forewomen, earning $1,200 or more per year. Girls between the ages of 14 and 16 will be required to attend the London County Council Trade Training School for three hours a day on two days a week during business hours, and such attendance will count as part of their employment.

These new conditions have been approved by the London County Council education authorities and by the Ministry of Labor, and it is thought that the advantages offered will lead to a solution of the difficulty now experienced in obtaining labor in these trades. Workrooms are also being made more attractive and the newer establishments now have modern, well-lighted, and well ventilated rooms.

Beware of It!

There are two kinds of ignoble old age. One is decrepit, leery, tottering to the grave. It is the kind which moralists can use as a warning and a test. The other is the infinitely more dangerous kind. It reveals a sound constitution beneath the rags and defilement. It cannot be used as a text, for it works the other way. It seems to show that a man may drink, lust and otherwise transgress, and yet keep going physically.

A STUDENT IN ARMS.

Some Maxioms of a Noble British Soldier.

The true wisdom is that in which all knowledge is subordinate to practical aims and blends into a working philosophy of life.

The world judges a man by his station, inherited or acquitted. God judges by his character. To be our best we must share God's viewpoint.

The true wisdom is that it is not what a man does, or has, or says, that matters, but what he is.

This must be the aim of practical philosophy—to make a man be something.

To the world death is always a tragedy unless a man has been a contemptible character.

Religion is the widening of a man's horizon so as to include God.

It is in the nature of a speculation, but its returns are immediate.

True religion means betting one's life that there is a God.

Its immediate fruits are courage, stability, calm, unselfishness, friendship, generosity, humility and hope.

Religion is the only possible basis of optimism.

Optimism is the essential condition of progress.

One is what one believes oneself to be. If one believes oneself to be an animal, one becomes bestial; if one believes oneself spiritual, one becomes divine.

Faith is an effective force whose measure has never yet been taken.

Man is the creature of heredity and environment. He can only rise superior to circumstances by bringing God into environment of which he is conscious.

The recognition of God's presence upsets the balance of a man's environment and means a new birth into a new life.

The faculties which perceive God increase with use, like any other perceptive faculties.

Belief in God may be an illusion, but it is an illusion that pays.

If belief in God is illusion, happy is he who is deluded! He gains this world and thinks he will gain the next.

The disbeliever loses this world and risks losing the next.

To be the center of one's universe is misery. To have one's universe centered in God is the peace that passeth understanding.

Greatness is founded on inward peace.

Energy is only effective when it springs from deep calm.

The pleasure of life lies in contrasts; the fear of contrasts is a chain that binds most men.

In the hour of danger a man is proven. The boaster hides and the egotist trembles. He whose care is for others forgets to be afraid.

Men live for eating and drinking, passion and wealth. They die for honor.

Blessed is he of whom it has been said that he so loved giving that he gave his own life.—Lieut.— Donald Hankey, killed in action.

Idolatry on the Decline.

It is becoming a custom among non-Christian Chinese of Borneo to go to the Methodist chapel for their marriage ceremony. Because of the influence of the mission, idolatry among them has practically ceased.

Concrete Railroad Tie.

Italian steam and street railroads are experimenting with a concrete tie that rocks slightly, affording uniform elasticity and a more perfect alignment of track than wooden ties.

Much Peat in Ireland.

Ireland possesses 25,000,000 acres of peat bog—one-seventh the total area of the Island. Much of this peat is concentrated in the centre of the country, in the Bog of Allen, but there are also large tracts in other localities. To utilize this peat, not merely for domestic use, but also for power purposes, is a problem which has exercised the minds of prominent Irishmen for many years, and the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research has now appointed a committee with Sir John Griffiths of Dublin as chairman, to investigate the whole question. Some successful attempts have already been made in Ireland to deal with the substance on a commercial basis, but any efforts to utilize the deposits must always have regard to three circumstances—that peat contains and retains a large amount of water; that, compared with other fuels, it has a low calorific value; and that it is extremely bulky, involving a high cost of carriage.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Persian Bread.

Native bread to-day in Persia is very little different from that of a thousand years ago. The oven is built of smooth masonry in the ground, and many of them have been used for a century. The dough is formed into thin sheets about a foot long and two feet wide, and pressed quickly against the side of the oven. It bakes in a few minutes.

Montenegro.

Montenegro is a small independent country in southern Europe, area about 3,600 square miles and bordering partly on the Adriatic sea. It is a hereditary monarchy, the present king being Nicholas I. It is a very mountainous country, the Italian name Montenegro signifying Black mountains, as does also the Turkish name Karadog, but the mountains are not black and the Montenegrins are brave mountaineers, poor, industrious and patriotic. At the beginning of the present war Montenegro took part with the allies and later it was overrun by the Germans and Austrians and is still held by them.

The Uncertain Future.

"Of course," said the girl who had accepted him, "it is a serious thing for a girl to trust her happiness to a man."

"Well," replied Claud Reginald; "I'm taking some chances myself. It's a serious thing to quit sending around flowers and candy and matinee tickets and start a conversation about groceries, house rent and furnace coal."

Nothing Like Internal Bathing For Constipation

If people only knew what Internal Bathing is doing for thousands of others there would be fewer Pills and Laxatives swallowed and very much less suffering from Constipation and the accompanying Stomach and Nervous troubles resulting from it.

Mrs. Cave, 841 Ellery Street, Victoria, B. C., writes:

"Before using the 'J.B.L. Cascade' I suffered constantly from Constipation and frequent bilious attacks and sick headaches. Since beginning your system of Internal Bathing with the 'J.B.L. Cascade' four months ago I have not had one attack and feel stronger and better in every way. My only regret is that I did not get a Cascade sooner."

By the proper application of Nature's cure, warm water, by means of the "J.B.L. Cascade" the lower intestines are kept free from all poisonous waste, Drugs force Nature. Internal Bathing assists her.

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, a specialist on Internal Bathing, invented and perfected the "J. B. L. Cascade," which has done more during the past 20 years in restoring health and lessening disease than all other means combined. Ask the Warne Drug Co., Peterboro, for Booklet, "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." They will also be pleased to show and explain the J. B. L. Cascade to you.

Mock Sausage.

Soak one-half cup of raw Lima beans overnight. Boil in same water until soft. Drain and force through a colander. Combine one-third cup of breadcrumbs, three tablespoons of artificial lard, and one egg with the bean pulp. Season with one-eighth teaspoon of pepper, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, and one-half teaspoon of sage. Form into sausage and fry in deep fat. Serve with salted apples.

A NEW FRONT

While investors have remained out of the stock market, the technical position of securities has strengthened twofold. This is especially true of Porcupine gold companies, because prices of these have work down to exceedingly low levels, and mean while the physical status of leading properties has materially strengthened.

Of these gold issues we recommend Davidson stock most strongly at this time, because the mine is about to go on a producing basis, it is a large property with extensive bodies of good commercial ore, it has a small capitalization, no debts, and can be bought, if purchased immediately, at between 33 and 35 cents per share.

We advised the purchase of this stock a week ago, when it was offering at 30 cents. We advise its purchase now, because we believe that the upward movement of the issue has just commenced. Liberal investment orders continue to come in.

Wire us your order for Davidson. You will make greater profits by doing so immediately.

Solve this Great Moving Picture Mystery Over $1600.00 in prizes To be given FREE

IN THIS particular Moving Picture Theatre the names of the famous players who would soon be appearing in the pictures were each night flashed on the screen. On this particular night the operator, wanting to play a little joke on his audience, took the names of the players and so mixed up the letters in each name that they spelt out the funny sentences you see above.

Time and time again this film was flashed on the screen only to be demanded back. Many of the audience are still trying to solve the mysterious names. Can you help them?

FREE ADVICE ABOUT YOUR

Manly Strength

TO MY READER:

Whether or not you lack an abundant vigor here is a free offer which will surely interest you, and through which you may easily profit from now on to the end of a ripe, healthy, advanced age. I have compiled a little treatise for self help (book form) which I am pleased to send absolutely free by mail in a perfectly plain, sealed envelope to any man anywhere who writes for it. Over a million copies have already been thus distributed to those who wrote for the mfrom all over the world. There is no obligation whatsoever involved in this offer, nothing which you are required to buy, either now or in the future. It is just simply an out-and-out free proposal. In this little book of 72 pages, 8,000 words and 30 half-tone photo reproductions, I have endeavored to give a straight-forward talk to men, young and elderly, single and married, a concise compendium for self-reference, a perfectly plain discourse upon those important, personal matters relating to vital strength of men, the preservation of virility, its possible self-restoration, its legitimate uses and its wanton abuses. Every man should be in possession of this book. One part describes a little drugless mechanical vitalizer which I make and distribute, but whether or not you wish to use one of these vitalizers is for you yourself to determine.

IT'S THE MAN NOT THE CLOTHES THAT COUNTS.

However, aside from anything it contains in reference to my vitalizer, the book should be read by all for its real worth. Therefore, please use free coupon below.

SANDEN, Author.

Reader, the whole world is to-day alive to the importance of a better general understanding of sex hygiene. The much discussed science of eugenics is teaching the great mass of people that strong, healthy, rugged parents beget equally sturdy children.

Manhood, no matter where or in what condition of life we find it, is the single power that most fascinates both men and women. The one who radiates this manly influence, this result of a vigorous, sturdy nerve force, is the one who forges to the front, while weaker people stand aside.

It is my opinion that any man may hope for a complete restoration of his manhood and vigor if he but make up his mind that he WILL conquer himself. Of course I do not include the man of extreme old age, or the one who is incurably diseased. Lost vitality is not, according to my theory, an organic disease. It is more a sick condition of the mind and the nerves and a lowered state of the whole body all combined. My free book tells you just what you may do.

The vitalizer referred to above, which I make and distribute, is a little appliance that men who desire to restore lost vitality are using everywhere to-day. The book in one part fully describes it. You wear this vitalizer comfortably upon your body all night. It weighs but a few ounces, and apparently pours a great, gentle stream of FORCE or VITALITY into your blood, your nerves, your muscles and organs while you sleep. Men say it drives away the nervous weakness or pain in small of back, that vigor is restored in 60 to 90 days. With special attachments, my vitalizer is also used for rheumatism, kidney, liver, stomach, bladder disorders, etc. It is a wonderful little appliance and generates and sends out a marvelous force. Possibly you might want to use one of these vitalizers in your own case. If so, you can, after reading the free book, let me know and I will make a special proposition whereby you may have one. If you live in or near this city I should be pleased to have you call and get a free demonstration of the vitalizer, otherwise write. Hours, 9 to 6. Satisfaction guaranteed in every case.

Let Us Send You This Book FREE!

Fill in the coupon; let me send you at once my free booklet in plain sealed envelope; it is profusely illustrated with half-tone photos; keep it in your pocket for ear reference; read the chapter on Vitality; read the chapter on Debility; read the chapter on those subjects which interest every man, young or old, who would be strong in manly vigor. It is a word of hope, a carefully written, interesting booklet, which should be in everyone's possession. Therefore send to-day.

Better Business

IN 1916 there were 1785 failures among retail merchants in Canada. Most of these failures were due directly to one cause—unsystematic business. Most of the merchants who failed were apparently doing a big business. But they didn't know the details of their business. They had no system. They lost money through mistakes, through forgotten charges. They lost customers through disputes. A store with an annual turnover of $40,000 should net at least $4,000 profit, on a conservative estimate, yet that profit is easily eaten up by such losses.

A National Cash Register System insures against loss due to mistakes, forgotten charges, etc., and insures each retail merchant that he will get all his profit all the time—whether he is in the store or not.

The price of a National Cash Register is insignificant when the amount of information it gives is considered.

Deep Breathing.

To maintain good health you should try to inflate your lungs to their normal capacity at all times, declares a physical instructor. The proper purification of the blood through oxygenation requires ample breathing. Drop your shoulders forward and then try to take a full breath. You will find it is impossible to do so in that position. Breathing is only partially accomplished with the shoulders forward and the breastbone depressed. The lower portion of the lungs cannot be emptied and instead of receiving a supply of fresh air they remain filled with residual air.

Favors Early Motherhood.

Doctor Bell writes in the Journal of Heredity, Washington, D. C., with the statistical proof that young women unquestionably make better mothers than those who have postponed the responsibility of maternity until after thirty years of age. He favors early marriages and youthful motherhood on the ground that, contrary to popular opinion, the offspring of young mothers have a finer vitality and are the peers if not the superiors intellectually of children born of older parents.

Stove-Heated Garden.

The garden of James Swartz of Holter Dam, Mont., is heated by a stove from the inside, and is protected on the outside by a curtain which is lowered about it on a frame. The garden is seven feet square and consists of a series of terraces built around a hollow center to a height of ten feet. Mr. Swartz believes this arrangement will permit a longer growing season.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

He remembered Quimby's involuntary pause on entering the door where the inquest was held, his quick startled glance at the group of waiting witnesses, the whisper to Miss Beckwith and her sudden faintness. Then, too there was that incomprehensible look of hatred and menace which had flashed down into the same group, when the banker on the stand had sworn that he knew of no enemy who would have harmed his stepdaughter.

The little boy picked up the peanuts but there were only a few left, and McCarty brought his mind hastily to bear on the present issue.

"Did your sister like Tony as well as you did?" he asked artfully.

"Oh, yes. She cried awful when he went. You see, he used to take her out in the car every day and I guess she missed him. They were pals, too. She gave me letters to take to him out at the garage and one time when I did he hugged me just like a bear. Oh, I'd love to see Tony again!"

"Well, maybe you will."

"No." The small voice was infinitely dreary. "Father told him never to dare let him find him anywhere around."

"And what did Tony say?"

"He said that he'd come back for what belonged to him. Perhaps father had something of his and wouldn't give it up."

"Your father wouldn't do that," sonny."

The boy sighed deeply.

"I don't konw. He had something of Marion's, that's my sister. Before she went away she asked him for it. I don't know what it was but he would not let her have it."

Maybe when she comes back he will."

The sensitive little face twitched.

"She isn't coming back, ever. Aunt Pauline told me. She stayed down in the drawing room for two days before she went, but they wouldn't let me go in and talk to her; they said she was asleep. She couldn't sleep all that time, could she. Then they sent me up to the country with Annie for the day, and when we got home she had gone!"

He lifted hurt puzzled eyes to his new friend's face, and McCarty asked quickly:

"Didn't your aunt tell you where she went?"

"No; and she never did go anywhere before without saying 'good-by' to me. I thought perhaps she went away somewhere to get well like the time before when the aeroplane fell with her, but Aunt Pauline only cried when I asked her."

"To get well!" McCarty repeated. "Was she sick, then, before she went away?"

"Father said so, but I don't know. I thought she was as well as anything, but perhaps she had had another accident because father told her there must be something wrong with her head. That was just a few days before she went away. I was all by myself in the library fast asleep, when they came in and woke me up but I kept as still as a mouse and they didn't know I was there. Father was awful angry and I did not want him to catch me."

"I should think not!" McCarty bent forward ingratiatingly. "And what was the row about; did you hear"

The little boy glanced up again, this time in quick apprehension and he drew shyly back.

"No, I—I don't know. I guess I'll have to go back to Anne now, she'll be mad——"

"Wait a minute, sonny. Maybe I know your pal, Tony. What does he look like? Would you know him again if you could see him?"

"I just guess I would! He's only been gone since last spring. He was awful tall, and his shoulders were as wide as this——" the little arms then stretched to their utmost, in unconscious exaggeration. "He walked real quick, and he seemed to be laughing with his eyes all the time, as if everything was just fun."

"I guess he's the lad," remarked McCarty. "What color were his eyes, do you remember?"

"They weren't blue, like yours." The child stared critically. "They were sort of gray, I think. Oh, if you know him, please give him my love, and tell him that Steevie wishes he would come back!"

McCarty promised solemnly and rose as hasty footsteps sounded along the path.

"Oh, Master Steevie, this is quite too bad of you!" The nurse appeared and pulled her charge quite unceremoniously off the bench. "I've been looking for you everywhere, and you know that you are not allowed to talk to strangers. I never saw such a child! Turn my head away for a minute, and you are off!"

"Hello, Mac!" Her erstwhile companion, the park policeman, had sauntered into view, and blandly disregarded McCarty's warning signal. "Been tackling the kid, eh? Annie, this is McCarty, the man who found——"

"McCarty!" The girl gasped, her eyes round with consternation. "Whatever would Mr. Quimby say? Come along at once, you bad boy!"

Dragging the child, she vanished precipitately around a bend in the walk, and McCarty turned upon his fellow officer in disgust.

"Larry, you blundering fathead!—Why couldn't you keep your mouth shut?"

"Sure, 'twas surprised I was to see you! Whatever were you trying to pump the kid for? You'll get nothing out of him."

"No!" returned McCarty sarcastically. "I'll thank you to stick to your trespassers and park bums, Larry, and not be butting in on my game."

"Your game, is it?" The other glowered. "Since when are you back on the force?"

"Since——" McCarty pulled himself up with a sheepish grin. "You have got the suspicious mind! What should I be trying to worm anything out of the kid for? The Rowntree matter is nothing to me, and the two of us were only feeding squirrels!"

But as he walked away his brain was a-tingle with what he had learned. More than one phase of the case which had been obscure to him was clearing before his eyes.

The picture of the insane woman which Terhune had projected upon the screen in his test and which had so obviously impressed not only Quimby himself, but Mrs. Doremus, Edwards, the aviator, and the dead girl's former admirer, Charles Sturtevant, loomed up now with a significance almost menacing.

Stephen Quimby had asserted that there was something wrong with his stepdaughter's head. There was but one interpretation to put upon it, although a question remained. Did he believe it himself or was it a part of a diabolical plot, a plot which reached its climax in that shattered body on the pavement?

Upon one thing McCarty was determined; now more than ever, was it imperative that Mr. Antonio be found.

CHAPTER XVI.

MISS BECKWITH INTERVENES.

Early in the afternoon, McCarty went down to headquarters, and held an earnest consultation with Inspector Druet.

Nothing was known of the young inventor's departure, and no request had come in from Terhune to have him shadowed, or his present whereabouts ascertained. At McCarty's earnest solicitation, however, the inspector promised to put a man or two on "Mr. Antonio's trail," and Mr. McCarty returned to his rooms in no very satisfactory state of mind.

That an affair of some sort had existed between the dead girl and her stepfather's chauffeur there was no possibility of doubt. She had employed her small brother to carry notes between them and had wept when the man was finally turned from the door.

There was nothing to show that she had ever been particularly interested in her former admirer, Charles Sturtevant, nor would her stepfather, from motives of self interest, have encouraged any attachment which would have removed her from his direct influence. According to Steevie, however, there had been boundless opportunity in their daily intercourse for an acquaintanceship to have overstepped the social barrier and ripened into romance between the chauffeur and the lonely girl.

If there was any truth in McCarty's suspicions, and Tony the chauffeur, was in reality Mr. Antonio, the inventor, vast fields of conjecture would be opened up, and a new and startling interpretation placed upon the event of her death. Could it be that these two apartments in the fourth floor of the Glamorgan had harbored people who in ignorance of each other's presence and purpose, were equally and vitally connected with the tragedy of the night?

The proprietor of the antique shop peered eagerly from his door as McCarty halted, fumbling for his keys. He was a grizzled old Frenchman, lean and stoop shouldered, with the face of a savant, and small avariciously twinkling eyes.

He laid a finger across his whithered lips and sidled quickly over to the steps.

"You have a caller, my frien'! An old lady, a grande dame, tres distinguee. She arrive in ze auto, it is an hour."

"What's that, Girard?" McCarty paused. Did you speak to her?"

"But yet. She ask of me when you will return." He gesticulated over his shoulder. "She is here."

"In your shop?"

McCarty went hastily to the door, and stopped. Amid the cluttered disarray of dusty ornaments, dingy draperies and rusty armour, set a figure wrapped heavily in mourning. He drew off his hat and stepped inside.

"Were you looking for me, ma'am?" he asked. "I'm McCarty."

"Oh, yes!" a fluttering voice answered breathlessly from beneath the veil. "I want to see you privately. I have been waiting——"

"Well, ma'am, if you care to come up-stairs to my rooms we will not be disturbed."

The lady rose at once and prepared to follow McCarty, who led the way in a daze. What was the purport of this self-sought interview? And why had he been selected instead of Terhune?

He threw open the door of his living room and wheeled forward a capacious arm-chair, so that the light from the late afternoon sun would strike athwart it.

"Sit down, Miss Beckwith, and tell me what I can do for you."

She started slightly at hearing her name but dropped into the chair and with a sudden movement tossed back her crape veil as if it stifled her. Her face was paler even than at the inquest and the marks of mental sufferings more deeply drawn. Her voice shook and her hands twisted nervously as the words rushed from her lips:

"Mr. McCarty, why did you question my little nephew in the park this morning? What could you have thought to learn from him I understand that you are no longer connected with the police force—what possible interest have you in our trouble?"

"A very natural one, ma'am, seeing as it was me that the poor young lady——"

"Oh, I know." Miss Beckwith shuddered. "But it is insufferable that we should be so hounded in our grief. I have tried to keep the shadow of this terrible thing from little Steevie; and now you, who are in no way concerned, must arouse his already alert sensibilities and create anxiety in his mind. Have we not sorrow enough?"

(To be Continued.)

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

ASHAMED TO GO OUT

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by unsightly pimples, blotches, flesh worms and various other blood diseases.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted as well as pain and regret to their friends.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mould of beauty have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost and their possessor rendered unhappy for years.

Why, then, consent to rest under this cloud of embarrassment?

There is an effectual remedy for all these defects.

It is Burdock Blood Bitters. This remedy will drive out all the impurities from the blood and leave the complexion healthy and clear.

Mrs. Katherine Henry, Port Sydney, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my face was so covered with pimples I was ashamed to go out at all. I tried several remedies, but they were of no use. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle and by the time it was used I could see a difference. I then got two more, and when I had used them the pimples were completely gone. I can highly recommend B.B.B."

A College Education.

A story not new, but worth repeating, is once again going the rounds in England. Two bootmakers, whose establishments faced each other in the village high street, were very distinctly rivals. One of them had a son at college and, in the first week of his vacation, there appeared in the shop window the motto: "Mens Conscia Recto." His rival over the way was for some time a little nonplussed, but within a few days he arose to the occasion and there appeared in his window a card bearing the legend, "Men's and Women's Conscia Recti."—Christian Monitor.

Telltale Eyes and Toes.

The eyes tell the story of guilt when all the other muscles are controlled. This you will learn in the eleventh chapter of Darwin's book. Sometimes, when the face is controlled, as in the case of natives of India, other muscles are uncontrollable. Sir Henry Maine declares that in India the judge can tell when a native is lying by watching his toes. He keeps his face perfectly straight and his eyes expressionless, but his toes begin to wiggle as soon as he begins to lie.

Men of Rare Value.

"I weigh my words when I say that if the nation could purchase a potential Watt, or Davy, or Faraday, at the cost of a hundred thousand pounds down, he would be dirt-cheap at the money. It is a mere commonplace and everyday piece of knowledge that what these men did has produced untold millions of wealth, in the narrowest economical sense of the word."—Huxley.

Corn Lice by Trillions.

There is a tiny louse which lives on the roots of young corn and sometimes destroys a whole crop in one locality. It does this by the rapidity of its reproduction, from 11 to 22 generations having been counted in one season. It is estimated that each louse hatched in the spring leaves in the ground at the end of the season 319,000,000,000 descendants and 3,000,000,000,000 eggs.

Seeing Ahead.

There is always room for a man of force, and he makes room for many. A feeble man can see the farms that are fenced and tilled, the houses that are built. The strong man sees the possible houses and farms. His eye makes estates as fast as the sun breeds clouds.—Emerson.

Paths to Happiness.

It is the most beautiful truth in morals that we have no such thing as a distinct or divided interest from our race. In their welfare is ours, and by choosing the broadest paths to effect their happiness we choose the surest and the shortest to our own.—Bulwer Lytton.

Minister a Linguist.

Four languages were used last year in the preaching of Rev. Paul Burgess, Presbyterian missionary in the Quezaltenango field of Guatemala, according to the Guatemala News. He spoke in Spanish, English, German and Cakchiquel.

Strongest Wood.

Lancewood is said to be the strongest wood known; its tensile strength per square inch is 23,000 pounds—that is to say, that weight is required to tear asunder a piece of it one inch square.

Getting to the Top.

To succeed take hold of the first thing that will lift you up and then take hold of the next thing available to lift you still a little higher. Thus you will go to the top with reasonable rapidity.

Injuries and Insults.

Injuries may be atoned for and forgiven; but insults admit of no compensation. They degrade the mind in its own esteem and force it to recover its level by revenge.—Junius.

Decolorizing Carbons.

English experimenters have at least partially discovered the secret processes used in the manufacture of German and Dutch decolorizing carbons for the sugar industry.

Webster on Opinion.

Inconsistencies of opinion, arising from changes of circumstances, are often justifiable.—Daniel Webster.

Questions.

The most simple questions are generally the most lucid.

Nerves On Edge Feared the Future

Twitching of the Nerves Made Sleep Impossible—Had Nervous Headaches and Indigestion—Is Cured Now.

Mrs. C. French, 104 Lansdowne St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervousness, sleeplessness, frequent headaches and indigestion. For many years I was troubled with a twitching or fidgetty feeling about my limbs after retiring, causing me much loss of sleep. If wakened up out of my first sleep, even had I been asleep only five minutes, I would lay awake for hours and could not get asleep again. Any sudden noise or a door slamming would set my nerves going and I would fear that something dreadful was going to happen. I had tried different remedies for this trouble, but without success. A friend asked me one day why I didn't try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I thought I could at least give it a trial. I secured some and commenced using them, and found they benefitted me so much that I have taken fully a dozen boxes. My nervousness or fidgetty feeling in the limbs is entirely cured. I can now eat and sleep well. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food strongly, and would advise anyone suffering from nervous trouble of any kind to use them according to directions."

"If you have been reading the reports published in this paper from day to day of cures effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you will have some idea of the great good it is accomplishing.

In fact it cannot fail to benefit, even in the most extreme cases, because it works hand-in-hand with nature, and cures by supplying the elements from which rich blood and new nerve force are created.

This building up of a depleted and worn-out nervous system must necessarily be slow, and for this reason a little patience and perseverance is necessary.

A condition which has been months or years in development cannot be overcome in a day, but you need have no doubt of the final results if you use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly and persistently. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.75, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Beware of substitutes, as they only disappoint.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss Flo Kelly, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

U.S. FUEL SITUATION BETTER.

"Heatless Monday" Off for All States South of Virginia.

Washington, Feb. 8.—With the total abandonment of heatless Monday throughout all the states south of Virginia today, Fuel Administration officials were hopeful that continued warmer weather and improvement in railroad traffic would permit relaxation of the order all over the United States after next Monday.

As Saturday will be observed generally as a half-holiday, and as next Tuesday is Lincoln's birthday anniversary, there will be a three and one-half day shut down. Officials believe this will go far toward relieving the situation. The original programme called for the last heatless Monday on March 25.

TORTURING, ITCHING ECZEMA

Mrs. J. B. Horth, Pispebiac, Bonaventure Co., Que., writes:—"Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that this was little short of a miracle."

New Vegetable Wax From Ecuador.

From prehistoric times the Indians of Ecuador have utilized a wax found on certain species of tall palms for making candles, says the Scientific American. This wax occurs on the tree trunks in granular form, each tree furnishing about fifty pounds. The trees grow in great numbers on the mountains along the coast. Samples of this wax were sent to France and Germany, from which countries favorable reports and an offer of 19.5 cents a pound were received.

Monkeys Use Fists.

Brachm, in his "Thierleben," tells how certain kinds of monkeys emphasize their feelings by striking with their fists. When angry or excited they bring their fists down upon the ground with all their might. They are not quite as foolish as the man who hammers the table with his fist. They have this excuse: the are looking for a stone or stick with which to crack the skull of their dissenting fellow-monkey.

Long-Distance Talkings.

Eighteen miles is said to be the longest distance on record at which a man's voice has been heard. This occurred in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, where one man, shouting the name "Bob" at one end, was plainly heard at the other end, which is 18 miles away. It is recorded that at Gibraltar the human voice has been heard at a distance of ten miles.

Self-Pity; Self-Praise.

Half the world is gnawed by the beast Self Pity and the other half is bitten by the beast Self Praise. It is better to chain both these animals and go out free and unconcerned about self. All this concern about self is the misfortune which dogs the man who has not related himself to the one universal law.

SUFFERED WITH NERVES
COULD NOT KEEP QUIET

Diseases of the nervous system are very common.

All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and worn out by household duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with their nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy, or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the shaking nerves, strengthen the weak heart and build up the entire system.

Mrs. F. Bailey, 221 Earl St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "I was suffering very much with my nerves, so much so that I could not keep myself quiet at all. I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I bought three boxes, and I must say I have derived much benefit from them, so much so that my friends have all noticed the change in me."

INDIA IN THE WAR.

Part Taken in Struggle by Wealthy Empire.

From time to time vague reports have come that Great Britain was training and equipping a great army in India, to be used on the battlefields of Europe. Ruling a country which contains almost one-fifth the total population of the world, it was considered likely that Great Britain would not overlook the opportunity of drawing upon so great a reservoir of man power. That a huge Indian army did not make its appearance either in France or in Turkey was puzzling to those unfamiliar with the difficulties which the British faced in India.

Recently, when the Indian imperial legislative council met at Simla, the extent of Indian participation in the war was announced, and the figures given will serve to set at rest any rumor of a horde of warriors from India. Since the war began 276,000 combatants and 40,000 noncombatants have been recruited in India, and of the fighting men 155,000 came from the British province of Punjab. When it is considered that the population of India is more than 300,000, it will be seen that the force is really very small.

At the outbreak of the war the 75,000,000 Mohammedans in India were restless at the difficulties which their co-religionists faced in Turkey. Germany, with the purpose of starting a holy war throughout Islam, sent spies and secret agents to foment trouble. These efforts were notably unsuccessful, and generally India was loyal. In the United States German agents, working with discontented Indian natives, undertook to lay the ground-work for an Indian mutiny, and the trials of the offenders are now in progress.

We are accustomed to refer to all natives of India as Hindus, which is due, perhaps, to the fact that the great majority of Indians practise that religion. The term Hindu serves to distinguish natives of India in name from the North American Indians. The Hindus are as distinct from the Mohammedans as the Christians, and there are not fewer than 217,000,000 of them in India.

As a fighting man the native of the northern provinces of India, and particularly of the Punjab, has no superior in the world. Undoubtedly, if Great Britain found it expedient to arm several million Sikhs or Hindus whose loyalty could not be questioned, the effect on the war would be enormous. The Turks in Mesopotamia and in Palestine would be rolled back and quickly put out of the war. However, judging from results so far attained, the difficulties and dangers are insurmountable.

Arming India's millions doubtless would be a desperate undertaking, which will be reserved only for the remote crisis when it appears that Germany will have its way in ruling the world. The fact that only 276,000 Indian soldiers have been recruited indicates that Great Britain does not wish to invite further trouble when the present war is ended. This is to be the last war, and it is considered unwise to arm and train a great force which later might be directed toward disturbing the world's peace.

The First Coffee House.

The first coffee-house really deserving to bear that name, which was opened in the metropolis, was established in 1652 by Pasqua, in Newman's Court, Cornhill. Pasqua, a Greek, was servant to Mr. Edwards a Turkey merchant, and the taste for the new beverage increased so rapidly that coffee-houses became common in London at the date of the Restoration of Charles the Second. It is recorded in "Evelyn's Diary," on May 10th, 1637, that "there came in that year to the College of Balliol, in Oxford, one Nathaniel Conopios, out of Greece, who was the first that ever I saw drink coffee which custom came not into England until about thirty years later."

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Crews of Hun Submarines Cannot Carry Weapons, As Officers Fear Revolt

LLOYD GEORGE'S declaration that on a single day recently five of the Kaiser's submarines had been destroyed is a thrilling piece of news. To the mothers and fathers of Canadian boys who must sooner or later cross the Atlantic this statement of England's premier must bring immeasurable relief, although the record to date shows not a single transport successfully attacked by these devils of the sea.

Not more than six months ago the problem of successfully combatting the submarine seemed well nigh hopeless. But to-day the captains and crews of allied ships are breathing more easily.

Last June the character of the problem and the pathway to success were indicated by an expert along lines which events have strikingly confirmed. A reproduction of what was then printed is now most timely:

"The remedy for the submarine is so simple that it is most remarkable it was not applied almost from the beginning.

"The submarine is an egg-shell and it can be crushed like an egg-shell, and that is what is being done with them. At first they were netted. Then net-cutting apparatus was supplied to the submarine and the netting device quickly became ineffective.

"Then airplanes and submarine chasers co-operated. In clear waters the submarine can be detected from an airplane at a depth of more than 100 feet. Submarine chasers studied surface bubbles and surface indications. Locating a submarine, groups of destroyers and chasers were summoned to the spot and then the territory for miles around was covered as by spokes from a wheel.

"Now a submarine location on being discovered is netted most effectively. It is circled by bombs lowered under water over a wide area. The simultaneous explosion of these mines by electrical devices will crush any underwater craft.

"Water is, of course, incompressible. The entire ocean weight, millions of tons, resists and the explosive power must effectively crush everything nearby that is not as solid as the ocean itself.

"Without waiting for U-boat activities the destroyers now fish for and crush them just as effectively as a piece of dynamite is used in a pond by a poacher to stun or kill all nearby fish.

"We are also informed that so successful has been the campaign against the submarines that the German admiralty is now finding the greatest difficulty in securing crews for them. The men are not lacking in ordinary courage and are perfectly willing to go into the first-line trenches exposed to the normal dangers of war, but there is a natural horror of imprisonment and death under water with no fighting chance."

Now the accounts from Germany are the U-boat crews are not allowed to carry even knives aboard—for fear of mutiny and surrender.

Hotel for Seamen.

There is a church close to the London docks that has a ship on its steeple. It is the Seamen's Church, where sailors who have landed for a brief spell worship, and right next to the church is the Sailor's Home, where the seamen of the mercantile marine may live and enjoy all the comforts of a real home when on shore.

The inmates of the home are made up of all races. There are men from Lapland and Iceland, and men from the South Sea Islands. Black men and yellow men, colonials and Europeans, and men born at sea. Since it was first opened back in 1835 the home has sheltered 623,116 seamen, and this year by day and by night, from the Mediterranean, from the North Sea and channel ports crews of mined and torpedoed ships have arrived at the home.

For the sum of a pound a week each man is given a separate cabin, fitted with electric light, wardrobe, writing table, and tiny bookshelf—and four substantial meals a day.

The home is a little town in itself. There is a great kitchen where huge joints of meat are being placed in the enormous oven from which a pile of loaves and cakes have just been taken.

There is a bank, a barber's shop, a mission hall, a navigation school and a cookery school, and a department where a seaman can buy anything he wants from a toothbrush to a suit of clothes, which he can even have made to measure if he likes.

In the laundry, where clothes can be washed in a couple of hours if necessary, a laundress is busy ironing garment after garment.

A couple of Japs are playing a game of billiards in the billiard room. The lounge is full of boarders, and so is the reading and smoking room. In the library an old salt sits at a table crocheting a beautiful piece of lace. He has been an inmate of the home for years.—London Tit-Bits.

Cause of Rainfall.

Rainfalls are governed by the law of repartition of the temperatures in the atmosphere, and to break the equilibrium and bring about rain requires so great an energy as cannot be attributed to such a feeble cause as that determined by the local vibrations produced even by the most intense firing of cannon.

Musical Stones.

Walter B. Smith of Bangor, Me., has dug from the river bank musical stones which are thought to have been fashioned by prehistoric man. These stones are from one and a half to two inches thick and from eight to twelve inches long. When struck they emit musical tones.

WAS NATURAL POET.

Paragraphs From Dickens Read Like Blank Verse.

Thousands of admirers of Charles Dickens can perhaps recall passages —particularly in scenes where pathos was required—which, as they read them, had all the charm of poetry. Few persons, however, I venture to believe, ever realized that in reading them they were actually perusing blank verse. Printed in the form of prose, these examples of descriptive work did not reveal their rightful claim to be considered poetry.

It is quite possible, indeed probable, that the wording of such passages was the result of harmonious accident, and that Dickens himself, neither realized nor became conscious later that he was writing blank verse of irregular meter and rhythm, such as Southey and Shelley and some other poets occasionally adopted.

But look now at the following description of "Little Nell's funeral, taken from "The Old Curiosity Shop," when merely reset in the familiar form of blank verse:

And now the bell—the bell
She had often heard by night and day
And listened to with solid pleasure,
E'en as a living voice—
Rung in its remorseless toll for her,
So young, so beautiful, so good.
Decrepit age, and vigorous life,
And blooming youth, and helpless infancy,
Poured forth—on crutches, in the pride of strength,
And health, in the full blush
Of promise—the mere dawn of life—
To gather round her tomb. Old men were there
Whose eyes were dim
And senses failing—
Grandfathers, who might have died ten years ago,
And still been old—the deaf, the blind, the lame,
The palsied,
The living dead in many shapes and forms.
To see the closing of this early grave!
What was the death it would shut in,
To that which still would crawl and creep above it!
Along the crowded path they bore her now.
Pale as the new-fallen snow
That covered it; whose day on earth
Had been so fleeting.
Under that porch where she had sat when heaven
In mercy brought her to that peaceful spot,
She passed again, and the old church
Received her in its quiet shade.

The above is a literal transcription from the novel, with the exception that two unimportant words — "in" and "its" are omitted, and that the word "granddames" is substituted for "grandmothers," and the word "e'en" for "almost." All the rest is exactly as in the original, not a single word transposed, and the punctuation the same to a comma.

And, again, if we reset the concluding paragraph of "Nicholas Nickelby" we get the following lovely bit of blank verse:

The grass was green above the dead boy's grave,
Trodden by feet so small and light
That not a daisy drooped its head
Beneath their pressure.
Through all the spring and summer time
Garlands of fresh flowers, wreathed by infants' hands,
Rested upon the stone.

"PRISONER OF HAM."

The Story of Louis Napoleon Recalled by Prisoners.

A great many of our German prisoners now in England come from a region at the front famous for its association with one of the most noted prison-escapes in history. This was the Chateau of Ham in Picardy to which Louis Napoleon, the "Man of Destiny," was consigned by the Government of Louis Philippe for his insane landing at Boulogne in 1840, in order to supplant the then French monarchy with a premature Empire.

"You are condemned to perpetual imprisonment, monseigneur," said a high official to Prince Louis on entering his cell.

"How long does perpetuity last in France?" asked the Prince, with a cynical smile. He himself was to furnish the reply to this question in little more than five years' time. His father was dying in Switzerland, and he begged Louis Philippe to let him out on parole for the purpose of visiting his moribund sire; but his request was refused. So he determined to take French leave of his jailers. A lucky opportunity soon presented itself. Some workmen had been admitted into the fortress to repair the dilapidated rooms and staircases. After studying carefully the habits of these workmen, the Prince determined to impersonate one of them. So this he did by donning a coarse shirt, blue blouse, and a pair of blue trousers, with an apron and a pair of sabots. As his face was naturally pale he colored it wtih some dye, which gave him a ruddy complexion. He also painted his eyebrows and put on a black wig, which completely covered his ears.

"Shortly after 7 a.m.," wrote Dr. Conneau, his accomplice (whose son or grandson, is now a great airman), "he shaved off his thick whiskers and moustache, and, I declare, I should not have recognized the Prince, well as I know his person." With a plank on his shoulder to screen his face from the sentry, "the Prince advanced towards the gate; the guard opened the wicket, and, to my inexpressible relief, I saw him go forth"—to freedom and to England, the asylum of the politically oppressed in every land.

A few years later the "prisoner of Ham" got himself made Emperor of the French under the style and title of Napoleon III. But after Sedan he now became "the prisoner of Cassell" (in Germany), though it is just possible—perhaps even probable—that but for Bazaine's surrender of Metz his empire might have been restored. For this capitulation of Metz—with its 6,000 officers and 173,000 men—which was regarded by many Frenchmen as a base betrayal, Marshal Bazaine was three years later placed on trial at Versailles. A scapegoat was wanted for the failures of the war, and one was found in the person of the capitulator of Metz, who was sentenced to degradation and death, though this was commuted to 20 years' imprisonment on the fortressed Isle Ste. Marguarite, off the coast of Cannes, which had been the prison of many famous personages, including the "Man in the Iron Mask." But one fine night, after due preparation, he managed to give his jailers the slip, though some said they had not been particularly vigilant, while some of them were actually placed on trial for "winking the other eye." A chartered Italian ship, a boat which, Grace Darling-like, was rowed around the castled rock at night by the ex-Marshal's devoted wife and daughter, the mysterious co-operation of three English girls called Dickinson, and a Miss Charlotte Campbell with a rope, or a rope-ladder, and a few other stage accessories, and the thing was done. It was followed by the trial and sentence of several members of the prison community charged with complicity in the escape of the marshal, who fled to Spain, and ended his days miserably in a garret at Madrid, in receipt of a small pension granted him. I believe, by Prince Frederick Charles, the "Red Prince," of Prussia, to whom he had surrendered Metz!

He Was Unable To Work All Winter

Takes Tanlac and is Now on the Job Again—Troubles Are Overcome

"I'm speaking from experience when I say I believe Tanlac is the finest rheumatism medicine made and I now realize what a mistake I made by not trying it long ago." Otto E. McDonagh, who made this statement is a valued employee of the Toronto Ship Building Company and lives at 91 Broadview Avenue, Toronto.

"I couldn't hit a lick of work all last winter," Mr. McDonagh continued, "and I don't doubt but what I would be in the same fix yet if I hadn't taken Tanlac. The rheumatism started in my right knee more than a year ago, later my arms and shoulders became affected and I soon became so crippled up I simply couldn't do a thing. My knee joint was so swollen and stiff I could hardly move it and my arms were in such a fix that I could just barely raise my hands high enough to button my collar. My knee was swollen out on both sides terribly. I couldn't draw my leg up at all and if I happened to strike against anything it would almost paralyze me for a few minutes.

"I have tried most everything, it seems to me, but two bottles of Tanlac have done me more good than all the other medicines combined. I have just started on my third bottle and I have never seen or heard of anything knocking on rheumatism like it has mine. The swelling and stiffness has almost disappeared entirely. I can raise my leg up and down without a bit of trouble and can use my arms any way I please. In fact, I haven't noticed the rheumatism at all since I finished my second bottle of Tanlac. All the men where I work know how it has helped me, for I can work every day now, and have told them what brought me out. I bought a bottle of Tanlac just the other day for one of the boys who has rheumatism and I believe it will help him. These are just plain facts and I will be glad to tell anybody who wished to come and see me just what Tanlac has done in my case."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Lt., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.

Aviators Covet Fighting Pilot's Job.

"The no plus ultra of the air service is the pilot of the combat machine," according to a leading American authority, Henry Woodhouse, who reminds us in Everybody's of Lord Kitchener's dictum that "a well-trained aviator is worth an army corps." "The daily life of such a pilot," continues Mr. Woodhouse, "consists of a series of duels with Boches. The gunners of large bombing machines have an equally adventurous life, as they are usually attacked whenever they go on raids over German territory, but most aviators prefer to pilot combat machines and go hunting Huns. Now that the use of large machines with two gunners, a pilot, and an operator for photographing and directing artillery fire is becoming general practice, every man stands a chance of showing how good a marksman he is from an aeroplane, and a good record leads to transfer to the combat squadron. This is the work which, through the sheer thrilling adventure and the natural gallantry and courage which go with it, has gathered in the finest flower of daring from all the fighting countries."

African Rain Tree.

A tree known as the rain-tree—Pithecollobium Saman—is found in the drier parts of South America. This tree grows to the height of 60 feet, and its leaves have the peculiar property of condensing the moisture from the atmosphere. So copious is this condensation that a continual shower falls from the leaves and branches until the surrounding soil is converted into a veritable marsh. Places that would otherwise be barren desert are by this means covered with the most luxuriant forests. Many years ago the Government introduced this tree into India to counteract the aridity of certain portions of that country.—Family Journal.

W. A. A. C. in France

ALONG the lines of communication in France, stretching from the bases to within earshot of the guns, women's camps have sprung up like shacks in a mining town. They have been built, and others are in course of building, to house the women who have come out to set men free, hitherto employed at the base, to go up the line and strengthen the fighting unit, says Mary O. Kennedy in a London paper.

In May, 1915, the colonel in command of the vast Ordnance Department at one of the bases—a man who controls an organization that is the Whiteley's of the Army, supplying such diverse commodities as howitzers and brooms, cycles and boots, and with advanced branches near the activities of the different armies—first startled the War Office by suggesting that women could be used in many departments of his work. Shortly after a commanding officer of Engineers diffidently and independently suggested that women might be employed in the several branches of Signals. And also on or about the same time the Women's Legion was started as a voluntary organization to supply motor drivers and cooks in great numbers for the home commands.

The innovation of women at the bases in France seemed at first sight too stupendous, and it was not until the excellent work done by Lady Londonderry's voluntary organization and the obvious conclusion that carefully selected women would not prove an unsettling influence, that the suggestion bore fruit.

During the time of trial, Ordnance and Signals grew and grew as the army grew and made insatiable demands for skilled men for the bases, and it became evident that permanently unfit men sent down from the front could not entirely replace Category A men who were needed for the line. The office work at the bases had to be done and efficiently done; the men in the great mileage of camps had to be fed and efficiently fed; and yet it seemed an anomaly that fit men should be clerking and signalling, doing warehouse work and cooking under conditions varying little save in matters of discipline from civil life. Ordnance and Signals (kept up their cry for women, and then, like Minerva leaping full-armed from the head of Jove, the formation of a Women's Army was suddenly and unexpectedly announced on Feb. 27 of this year.

Already they have done well. In a journey round the bases that ceaselessly feed our armies with materials of war, I heard how they did their part in the recent great battle of the mud. When our men performed feats that have never been equalled in this war or in any other that history can tell, wading to their objective, fighting waist-high in the mud. Signals, the whispering gallery of the great armies, with its many khaki women wearing the blue and white brassard of their service, stood staunchly by them. From the General-in-Chief of the great armies has come fine praise of their recent work at wire and telephone, in the official words "equal to that done by the men whom they relieved." From the officers commanding the fighting units has come equal praise for the women in the great camp kitchens who rise long before dawn to feed the men going up the line, knowing there is "little between a man's best and worst but a platter of food."

The Queen, on her recent visit to General Headquarters, inspecting the wonders of the bases, said to the General in Command: "I don't think the people at home know the wonderful work you are doing at the base." "No, ma'am," said the General, "and very few at the front, either."

The women who have already come out to France have been absorbed into the Army in a wonderful spirit of equality and fraternity. In many offices I saw sergeants and corporals initiating the rank and file of the women into intricacies of Army domuments and records; at every camp and hostel I was told of the kindly welcome of commanding officers to the administrators of the different women's camps, and of the efforts to make things easy for them by giving them every facility to understand the working of a discipline to which they would have to instruct their women to conform.

Here is an interesting excerpt from the orders of the day on the arrival of some hundreds of women into a vast camp, which was the most homely and perfect of its kind I was allowed to see in France. It tells more of the spirit of the officers and men (who hardly needed its fatherly admonitions) than I could easily describe:

"The Officer Commanding Base Depot wishes to draw the attention of all ranks to the following points in connection with the Domestic Section of the Women's Auxiliary Army, which is employed in this depot:

"These women have not come out for the sake of money, as their pay is that of a private soldier. In nearly every case they have lost someone dear to them in this war, and they are out here to try and do their best to make things more comfortable for the men in regard to their food.

"It therefore is up to all ranks to make their lot an easy and not a hard one during their stay in France. If any man should so forget himself as to use bad language or at any time to be rude to them, it is up to any of his comrades standing by to shut him up and see that he does not repeat this offence.

"To the older men I would say: Treat them as you would your own daughters. To the younger men: Treat them as you would your own sisters."

Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force; that thoughts rule the world.—Emerson.

One-Ton Walrus.

The average-sized Alaska walrus is as big as an ox and often weighs more than a ton. A walrus was killed by some whalers near Point Barrow whose head weighed 80 pounds and skin, including flippers, 500 pounds. The animal had a girth of 14 feet, the skin was from half an inch to three inches in thickness, and the blubber weighed 500 pounds.

Need Energy-Yielding Foods.

Persons who are doing heavy physical labor and very active children need more energy-yielding foods than those engaged in mental work or light physical labor. Some of the principal energy-yielding foods are cereals, bread and butter, corn breads, white and sweet potatoes, cream, and other wholesome fats, and sweets.

Manchurian Footgear.

In order to withstand the extreme cold of winter in eastern Manchuria the natives wear a moccasin of cowhide sufficiently large to permit the feet to be swathed in long strips of cloth and then to have a soft, dry grass packed around them. The shoe appears clumsy, but is warm, soft and almost water tight.

Topping Potatoes.

Attempts at removing the green tops of potatoes on the assumption that they detract from the tuber development have proved it a poor plan, and in the majority of cases where records were kept, the topped potatoes produced the poorest tuber crop weight, though in some instances the potatoes were larger.

He who first shortened the labor of copyists by device of movable types was disbanding hired armies and enslaving most kings and senate and creating a whole new democratic world; he had invented the art of printing.—Life of Frederick the Great.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headache of any kind, is caused by auto intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drunk before breakfast for awhile, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

Russian Floors.

The finest floors are said to be seen in Russian houses. For those of the highest grade, tropical woods are exclusively employed. Fir and pine are never used, as in consequence of their sticky character they attract and retain dust and dirt, and thereby soon become blackened. Pitch pine, too, is likely to shrink, even after being well seasoned. The mosaic wood floors in Russia are often of extraordinary beauty.

Ben Davis Origin Unknown.

The Ben Davis is sometimes thought to have originated in Indiana, but horticultural writers say its origin may never be known. It is supposed to have come into the world about the middle of the last century. It was well known in Civil war times, and it is related that it migrated westward from Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee. It yields well in a vast territory from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

For Tried Directions.

A pattern album is useful to the woman who does much crocheting and knitting. As far as possible a sample of each piece worked is fastened into a large blank book, with the directions written beneath or opposite. A note of any improvements that the worker finds might be made is a useful addition to the directions. Such a book would prove a valuable gift.

Portrait of Wesley.

The portrait of John Wesley is now in the possession of an art collector in Philadelphia. The picture is one of the finest that came from the brush of the famous George Romney. In this connection it is interesting to note that for the portrait, measuring 30 inches by 24 inches, and its frame, the artist charged but 40 pounds.

NOTHING CAN COMPARE WITH IT

Mr. Fred Adams, New Ross N.S., writes—"I have tried many medicines for coughs and colds but never found anything to compare to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We have had the greatest never fails to relieve a cough and loosen satisfaction with this medicine for it it up."

An ancestor of the duke of Norfolk who was banished by King Richard II., and died and was buried in Italy, Thomas Mowbry, got from Shakespeare one of the finest epitaphs in literature and thus became a personage of great interest to his descendants," observes a writer in London Tit-Bits. Two and a half centuries later the exile's bones were claimed by his family from the authorities of Venice, and brought to England, but the tombstone was left behind, and only a few years ago was discovered doing duty as a paving stone!

Freak Newspapers.

One of the most remarkable freak newspapers ever printed was the Luminara, published in Madrid. It was printed with ink containing phosphorus so that the paper could be read in the dark. Another curiosity was called the Regal, printed with non-poisonous ink on thin sheets of dough, which could be eaten, thus furnishing nourishment for body as well as mind. Le Bien-Etre promised those who subscribed for forty years a pension and free burial.

Empress Owned a Train.

One of the most luxurious royal trains in existence belonged to the Empress Marie of Russia, mother of the ex-czar and sister of Queen Alexandra, says the London Observer. During her majesty's visits to our shores this palatial train used to wait for her at Boulogne at a heavy expense, and was ready at a few hours' notice to convey her across the continent when her visit to England was ended.

Build Moonshades.

Mountain campers who scorn tents and sleep "in the open," have devised "moonshades" to shield their eyes at night, so that their slumbers may not be disturbed by the brilliant reflected light from the earth's satellite. The shade consists of a square of canvas stretched between the upper ends of two pointed stakes, which are driven into the ground in any desired position.

Why a Rostrum?

The word rostrum is of Roman origin. The rostrum was a platform, or elevated place, in the Roman forum from which orations, pleadings and funeral eulogies were delivered. It was so called because it was adorned with the rostra, or beaks of the ships taken in the first naval victory gained by the republic.

RUSSIA DEMOBILIZES HER ARMIES

DECLARES STATE OF WAR IS AT AN END

Russian Armies On All Fronts Are Ordered To Demobilize

Bolsheviki Are Not Signing a Formal Peace Treaty But Declare a State of War To Be Ended With Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria--Successful Raids Are Made By Belgian and Australian Troops.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 11.—Russia has declared a state of war to be at an end, and has ordered the demobilization of the Russian forces on all fronts, according to a despatch received here to-day, dated Brest Litovsk, on Sunday.

The President of the Russian delegation at to-day's (Sunday's) sitting stated that while Russia was desisting from signing a formal peace treaty, it declared a state of war to be ended with Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria simultaneousyl giving orders for the complete demobilization of the Russian forces on all fronts.

AMSTERDAM, Fb. 11.—"May this be the first of a series of blessed conclusions of peace," declared German Foreign Minister Kuelmann, just before the separate peace pact with Ukraine was signed, it was learned today. We cherish the best wishes toward Ukrainians in the future," he concluded.

Replying, the President of the Ukraine delegation said: "We are firmly persuaded honourable, democratic peace will contribute toward the general termination of the great war." German Sunday newspapers received in Zurich from Stuttgart to-day, reported an "imminent rupture of Russo-German peace negotiations at Brest Litovsk. This may indicate that Trotsky, to save Russia from threatened invasion, and in face of what evidently amounted to an ultimatum from the Central Powers, ordered complete withdrawal of his country from war. While minor factions favour the continuance of the fight, and may still give the Teutonic armies some trouble through a guerilla warfare. The Bolsheviki control is so overwhelming that if the Amsterdam report is true, Russia, apparently is through as a factor it, the conflict.

Austria, German, Bulgarian and Turkish troops will be released in large numbers for other fronts. A drive on the Saloniki front may be expected as the next German move if Roumania is forced to yield. Greece, already demoralized by German intrigue, according to official cables, received here from Premier Venizelos, might, it is feared, break from the Allies under the strain.

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The peace pact signed between Germany and the rich agricultural country—Ukrainia—makes the situation of Roumania, already under severe German pressure, the most criti l of the war.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 11.—The death, yesterday, of Abdul Hamid, former Sultan of Turkey, from inflammation of the lungs, is announced in a despatch received here from Constantinople by way of Vienna. A state funeral will be held.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Active artillery fighting on the Aisne and Verdun fronts is reported in to-day's official communication.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 11.—A successful raid was carried out last night by the Australian troops against the German positions southeast of Messines. In addition to other casualties inflicted upon the enemy, twenty-eight prisoners were captured on Saturday night. A Belgian patrol successfully attacked a hostile post on the Merckem sector, killing the garrison and capturing machine guns.

ARTILLERY ACTION IS INCREASING.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—In France the violence of artillery action is daily increasing on both sides of the Meuse, and in the Vosges region the French and Germans are engaging in an artillery duel, while frequent enemy raids on the French positions are reported. The most recent in the region of Bourcuilles having failed. As on other fronts, big guns are bearing the brunt of the work in Italy. On the Asiago Plateau and west of Monte Grappa artillery duels are reported to be lively. Advanced Italian posts repulsed two enemy raids south of Daone Chieae.

Family Overcome By Coal Gas From Kitchen Stove On Sunday

In spite of Chief Grange's oft-repeated warning through the press on the danger of sleeping in a building with the doors and windows closed, and a coal stove burning, another serious case of gas poisoning came before him yesterday morning.

At 2.20 on Sunday morning, Mrs. Arthur Leal, 334 1-2 Water Street, on awakening felt a dry choking sensation in her throat. She attempted to awake Mr. Leal but was unable to do so and in crossing the floor to get a drink of water, fainted.

Fortunately at that moment Mr. Leal regained consciousness, although fully overcome by the poisonous fumes of the gas stove, he managed to crawl to the door where the fresh air partially revived him. He staggered to the police station and told Sergt. Reid of the plight of his family, all of whom were sleeping, for the conservation of fuel, in one room.

Mr. Leal almost collapsed in the police station but was able to return to his home across the street. Sergt. Reid called Dr. Harvie and Chief Grange who arrived promptly with the pulmotor, which was required to restore Mrs. Leal. The family recovered quickly but were very ill from the effects of the gas. Before going to bed Mr. Leal had put coal on the kitchen fire and shut the damper tight. As a result the gas had no free outlet except into the kitchen where the family was sleeping.

A FOOD BOARD FOR CANADA HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED

Food Controller H. B. Thompson Will Be at Its Head as Director of Conservation—To Encourage Production and Secure Farm Labour

TRACTORS TO BE USED

OTTAWA, Feb. 10.—As part of the Government's campaign for greater food production the Government has instituted a Canada Food Board composed of a Director of Conservation, a Director of Production, and a Director of Agricultural Labour.

It is understood that the office of Food Controller will be abolished, and all powers now vested in that office transferred to the Canada Food Board. The present Food Controller, Mr. H. B. Thomson, becomes Chairman of the Board and Director of Conservation.

It is understood that Hon. Charles Dunning, Provincial Treasurer of Saskatchewan, has agreed to accept the position of Director of Production, and that Mr. J. D. McGregor, of Brandon, will be appointed Director of Agricultural Labour.

The Board will in effect be under the direction of the Department of Agriculture and under the Ministerial control of Hon. T. A. Crerar.

It is anticipated that there will be a great increase in the development of agriculture this year. Hon. Mr. Crerar has been devoting much attention to this problem ever since he returned to Ottawa after the New Year. The conferences with the Ministers of Agriculture from the various Provinces three weeks ago, were in furtherance of these plans, and it is understood that the conferences of Provincial Premiers to be held this week are also for the object of furthering this Dominion-wide campaign of greater food production.

In view of the scarcity of labour, it is believed that arrangements are being made to use large numbers of farm tractors and other farm machinery generally in a greater degree than ever before.

The new Board will involve a general reorganization of the Food Controller's staff, and a proper systematizing of the inter-related tasks of stimulating production along the lines most needed, preventing waste, and securing the most economic methods of marketing.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday was not a particularly spring-like day, but it was, nevertheless, the warmest day since the day before Christmas. February, however, has always made such a record for treacherous weather that no dependence can be placed on any long continuance of its mild spells. After the middle of the month, while severe cold dips are common, they usually do not last long. A year ago this morning it was 14 degrees below zero, and the following morning 20 below. Two years ago it was 7 degrees below. Some of the most severe weather last winter was experienced along about this date. To-day had a temperature above the freezing point.—W.P.

RECOVERY FOR ROOSEVELT PREDICTED

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. — Colonel Roosevelt to-day faced the hardest part of his convalescence. The doctors have ordered "absolute quiet and rest" for the strenuous one. While suffering acute pain, the Colonel is reported gritting his teeth and bearing it. Surgeons predict a full recovery. They say no further operation is necessary.

BAD FOR ROUMANIA

Peace Pact Signed Between Germany and Ukrania Makes the Situation in the Balkans the Most Critical of the War

NEW DRIVE IN EAST

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—The peace pact signed between Germany and the rich agricultural country, Ukrainia, makes the situation of Roumania, already under severe German pressure, the most critical of the war. That the Kaiser sees hope of clearing away the "near east" danger by gaining, through diplomacy, or forcing by arms, a separate peace with the Balkan powers, is indicated by the developments of the last few days.

Since the outbreak of the war the greatest German worry has been in the Balkans, where the "backbone" of German alliance was constantly menaced. With Roumania virtually forced to a separate peace by her complete subjection to Germany, the whole situation as regards Greece, Serbia and Italy becomes increasingly dangerous for the Allies.

Few Industries In Toronto Are Open To-day

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 11.—Toronto is to-day enduring its third heatless day, and doing so with considerable sangfroid. To-day is even "tighter" in its closing than was Saturday. The banks kept nearly all of their staffs on duty Saturday morning, but to-day they are getting along with furnaces damped and a minimum of their staff working. There is one large plant open in Toronto to-day, the Massey-Harris Co. It is working on the making of seeders and tractors for Britain and Western Canada, and this is work that the Fuel Controller admits to be one requiring speed. The Verity Plough Co., a branch of the Massey-Harris concern, is also open. The Brantford works of the Massey-Harris Co., is making binders and reapers, and therefore is closed.

Up to noon the food shops and dry goods stores did a lively business. Many a household had not laid in enough provisions for a three day period, and had to restock to-day. Some of the grocers were open and ready for their customers as early as 6 o'clock, whereas their ordinary hour of opening is about 8. The rush came early.

PRESENTATION TO MR. W. A. HASLAM

Vincent McCabe Also Honored by Members of Knights of Columbus

The Peterborough Knights of Columbus assembled in their Council Chambers on Saturday evening to honour and at the same time say farewell to two of their officers, who are removing to larger spheres of work, namely, Deputy Grand Knight Wm. Haslam, who has been given charge of the Windsor District by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and Financial Secretary Vincent McCabe, who has been called to the colours to fight for his country. Grand Knight J. E. Sullivan, in a few well-chosen words, commended the gentlemen for their untiring zeal in all the good works with which they were entrusted by the Order, and predicted success and honour for them in their new fields. J. J. Doris and Henry Hickey, who made the presentations, in neat speeches, lauded the brothers for their energetic work and true Christian lives. Although taken completely by surprise, Messrs. Haslam and McCabe rose to the occasion and gracefully thanked the members for their expressions of goodwill and tokens of esteem.

After some singing the members individually expressed to the departing brethren their sorrow of losing them and their hopes for many happy re-unions in the future.

MUST HAVE PEACE SOON OR MASSES WILL FORCE THE HAND OF FOE'S GOVERNMENT

LABOUR PLEDGES ITS LOYALTY TO ALLIES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Workers of Great Britain and America, through their spokesmen, at a great loyalty mass meeting, at the Century Theatre, last night, pledged their united and unswerving effort to the defeat of Germany. The workers of America spoke through Secretary of Labour William B. Wilson, and officials of the American Federation of Labour. The workers of Great Britain spoke through Charles Duncan, M.P., head of the British Labour Mission, which arrived in this country yesterday. Pacifists were pilloried by the speakers, and when Hugh Frayne, representative of Labour on the War Industries Board, asked that firing squads be called to deal with the Kaiser-branded seekers after peace, he was cheered to the echo.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC SEND-OFF FOR DRAFT FROM "E" COMPANY

Hundreds of People at the Grand Trunk Station This Morning to Say Good-bye to Local Soldier Boys Off For the East

DRAFTEES CHEERFUL

The members of E Company, 1st Depot Battalion, Eastern Ontario Regiment, were given an enthusiastic send-off this morning, when they left via G.T.R. for Kingston. The majority of the departing soldiers were residents of Peterborough or of the immediate vicinity, and their friends were out in force to say good-bye, while the boys whose homes are elsewhere had made many acquaintances during the time they have been training here and they were on hand to wish them God speed.

The draft, which was in charge of Capt. H. Dodds and Lieut. Mark, left the Armouries just before 8 o'clock, headed by the band of the Salvation Army, playing "Onward Christian Soldiers." They found a big crowd waiting at the station for them, and there were some tearful good-byes before the train pulled out. It was well after 9 o'clock before the draft finally left, and in the interval the Temple Band enlivened the proceedings with the rendition of many soldier songs, including "Tipperary," "Pack All Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," and "The Long, Long Trail," winding up with "Auld Lang Syne" at the train left.

The soldier boys were all in good spirits and cheered lustily as the train drew out of the station. Three hearty cheers were given for Major R. P. Watt by the men.

Major J. C. Davidson, who is acting as chaplain without salary to the local detachment, marched with them to the station.

Large Attendance At Memorial Service

The memorial service to Martin Spenceley was held at the S. A. Temple last night. It was a capacity house and the service was taken part in by Mrs. (Adjutant) McElhiney, Bandsman William Payton, Secretary John Cunningham and Mrs. Lloyd. The Songsters sang their splendid selections and the Band played the Dead March in Saul, and Promoted To Glory. Adjt. McElhiney piloted the meeting and gave the final address, paying tribute both to the departed comrade and friend as well as to the God who saved and kept him for thirty-two years.

FAMILY PRAYERS ARE ADVISED

At St. John's church yesterday Rev. Canon Davidson reminded his congregation of the advisability of holding family prayers during the Lenten season to take the place of the public services which had to be abandoned because of the fuel shortage.

FUEL CONTROLLER SATISFIED WITH RESULTS SO FAR

Heatless Day Order is Being Observed to the Letter and Controller Has Had No Complaints of Any Infraction of the Law Anywhere

CAN'T ESTIMATE SAVING

Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—The Fuel Controller's Department is well satisfied with the results so far of the heatless day regulations put in force in Central Canada. From communications received the law was observed to the letter everywhere, and complaints calling for action by the Fuel Controller have been absolutely lacking. In the neighbouring province of Quebec the law has been observed. Snowshoers who on Saturday visited the little village of Gatineu Point, across from Ottawa, complained that there the law was observed beyond the limit and that not even a hot drink or a sandwich could be obtained in the restaurants. The Fuel Controller is unable to even give an approximate estimate of the saving so far effected by the regulations. "One of the things we desired to do, and which I believe we will have succeeded in doing," said Assistant Fuel Controller Peterson this morning, "is to accumulate sufficient stores of coal in cities and towns to permit of the delivery of ton or even half ton quantities to consumers and to do away with the delivery of hundred pounds or quarter ton lots which add to the overhead charges and to the cost of fuel to consumers."

Whether there will be further heatless days will depend upon the weather conditions and future conditions regarding supply.

Flight Aviator Instantly Killed

Cadet Frank E. Fisher was instantly killed at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon when his machine crashed to the ground about four miles west of the Armour Heights Camp. The aviator was nineteen years of age. He was flying at a height of about five hundred feet when the machine banked. When the airplane struck the ground Fisher fell forward, striking his forehead on the engine and fracturing his skull. An officer who was with Fisher was fatally injured. Cadet Fisher was a nephew of Mr. Peter Campbell, of this city. His home is in Petrolia.

The Royal Flying Corps officers of both Armour Heights and Leaside Camps refused to give any information whatever concerning the fatality.

McNaughton is Found Guilty

Ernest McNaughton was found guilty of indecent assault on Saturday afternoon and was remanded for sentence.

Domestic Conditions in Both Austria and Germany Are Appaling—Austria is Threatened With Disruption—People Tired of War and Are Hungry.

ILLNESS IS RAMPANT

William Philip Simms, United Press Staff correspondent, who has been on the battle fronts in Europe since the war began, was recently assigned to make a personal investigation of the actual state of affairs in the Central Empires, through the best possible services of accurate information. His report, cabled from Zurich, Switzerland, will appear in the Examiner in four despatches, of which the following is the first:

(By William Philip Simms.)
(Copyright 1918 by the United Press.)
Special to The Examiner:

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 11.—An ominous unrest is growing daily throughout the Central Empires.

Germany and Austria must have peace or go under. The people of both countries demand it.

If the Allies stand pat on the Wilsonian programme and make a stone wall on the western front, the end of the war is in sight.

This sums up the situation, as seen from here, at this time.

It doesn't mean that Germany is on the brink of a revolution. But it does mean that the people are tired of war and opposed to the pan-German policy of conquest.

They are angry over privations at home and the losses of their men folk at the front. At the same time they believe President Wilson is sincere in his statement of war aims.

There is no doubt but that the German masses are beginning to see the light. Only diplomatic blunders of the Allies have kept them true to the war party this long.

For instance, Philip Schiedemann, eighteen months ago threatened something little short of a revolution unless the Junkers changed their tone. Shortly after this the Allies published an intimation that the war would not stop until the Central Powers were destroyed.

Whereupon, Schiedemann and his followers automatically lined themselves with the government. Like rats in a corner they meant to fight.

On the Right Track.

Judging from what everyone fresh from Germany is saying, the Allies are now on the right track, in that they only continue the war until the German war party gives up its ambition for world conquest, when they are ready to make an equitable peace. But until then they will fight relentlessly.

To-day the masses in Germany and Austria are in a mood to listen to reason.

From the most dependable sources I have learned that domestic conditions in both countries are appalling.

Austria is threatened with disruption. Long processions of women and children are common, marching through the streets of the cities, demanding bread.

The recent strikes broke out spontaneously because the people desire peace and are hungry.

Death Rate is Mounting.

Illness is rampant. The death rate is steadily mounting. Deaths from consumption alone are sometimes higher than the birth rate. A strange malady popularly called the "bread disease," is taking off multitudes.

The coal shortage is severe. There are many deaths from cold.

Milk is impossible to procure, even for babies. It is the same with butter and fats.

HOW THE WAR HAS HELPED.

The war has created unsettled conditions in the industrial and commercial outlook of Canada. But it has its compensations. In agriculture and soil production in all branches, we have had an increased appreciation of the importance of food production, and popular interest has been generally excited in home and vacant lot gardening; and though the individual results are comparatively small, the aggregate result is a very important addition to the food total of the country, and the influence will probably continue after the urgent need for greater production shall have happily passed away.

In the industrial domain the benefits of the development of process and mechanical skill will be even more far-reaching and permanent and of greater national utility when the period of after-war re-construction shall make demand upon all our resources— of material as well as of skill. Canada's fulfilment of munition orders, while of practical help in war-winning has, in the process, tremendously stimulated the metal and other industries. Necessity has brought interesting development in steel production, the raw material for shell-making; and, incidentally, and, perhaps, more important result has followed. We have received great benefit from the standardizing of methods and processes, and there has been a great development of the skill of our mechanics, required in the making of products that are gauged to within one three-thousandth part of an inch and check-gauged to a ten-thousandth part of an inch. The fact that more than 250,000 mechanics have become more highly skilled in such processes, and in the more expert use of tools, cannot but have an important improving effect upon the mechanical equipment of our industrial operations. We shall have gained more highly skilled workmen, who will have become better fitted for general manufacturing production.

Financial experts predict that long before the shortest-term bond matures the value of Victory Loan bonds will be above par.

UNION OR CAMOUFLAGE.

Both the Dominion government and the government of Ontario have appointed, or contemplate appointing, purchasing commissions, whose duties it will be to buy all government supplies required, including, in the case of the Federal government, war supplies. In the press announcements of the appointment of these commissions we see in the heading the statement that patronage is to be abolished, which if true, will form the amplest justification of the establishment of purchasing commissions; but we find no evidence in the text of the statement.

But we have had so many "false alarms," so many fair-sounding promises in regard to the abolition of the party patronage system, that we must have a little fulfilment before we can take the promises made, at par.

In regard to the proposed purchasing commissions, a good deal of the bona fides of the government will be revealed or concealed by the constitution of these bodies. If they are mainly composed—principals and assistants—of members of the dominant party at either capital, we shall still have suspicions that the party spirit remains predominant—something that cannot consist with administration supposed to be lacking in the element of party patronage.

The Union government, as its name implies, is supposed to be a non-partizan in character; a combination of both parties, where neither one nor the other is supposed to have (theoretically) numerical superiority of party representation, or in fact any party distintcions at all. On this understanding the government was formed. Many Liberals cut loose from their old party affiliations, and sacrificed life-long associations in order to become members of a government whose sole object was to give effective administration with the object of helping win the war. In fact it was asserted that without complete fusion of party in a government designed to represent all parties in Canada, without reference to parties, but to patriotism alone, the war could not be won as far as the national cooperation of Canada was concerned. On this understanding the Union government was overwhelmigly sustained.

This understanding has not been quite lived up to; and we have yet to see any evidence that the party spirit of the numerically dominant section of the Union government has been eliminated. It appears that Sir Robert Borden cannot break away from the traditions of the late government, which frankly, in effect, was controlled by the spirit that "to the victors belong the spoils." This domination of the partizan spirit was perhaps the chief thing that prevented Sir Robert, during six or seven years of opportunity, from freeing the civil service from party as a controlling influence. He did not even live up to the spirit of the civil service reform provided by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1908, whereby appointments to the inside civil service were to be made in the recommendation of a commission on the basis of the merit of capacity alone.

When the office of chief architect of Canada became vacant, Sir Robert weakly permitted Hon. Robert Rogers to take the work of appointment out of the hands of the commission, and appoint a Winnipeg partizan favourite to a most important position—not because his "pet" was fitted for the position, but because he had the party pull, to override an act of parliament in the interests of the party patronage system; and a competent authority declares that "it wil take twenty-five years" for the department "and its interests," to recover "from this misuse of official power."

The shadow of the patronage evil of the Borden government falls upon the Union government still. Not to speak of the outrageous abuse of patronage, consisting in Sir Robert Borden on the eve of his becoming head of the Union government, filling a score or more of important offices with his partizans, we find him as head of the Union government still working the partizan patronage game. The appointment of Mr. H. A. Musgrove, Conservative M.P.P. of North Huron, to the Postmastership of Wingham, looks very like rewarding, with permanent office, a partizan who did not relish the idea of facing his constituents in an election that, till, a few days ago, was considered imminent.

The parties of Ontario, in parliament have agreed to a party truce and upon an extension of the life of the legisature. The idea involved in this is entire elimination of party in all the details of administration and legislation. If the abuse of patronage is continued, the spirit of the agreement to extend the legislative term and the life of the government, will not be observed, and all the fine talk about sinking party and uniting in patriotic endeavour becomes as "sounding bras sand a tinkling symbol."

By the capture of Quebec by prohibition, King Alcohol is driven out of his last stronghold in Canada.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY ST. PAUL.

If any living man, by virtue of zeal and service and sacrifice for fellow men deserves this characterization, it is Dr. Wilfrid Grenfell, the apostle of the gospel of healing and help to the Labrador fishing folk. And, moreover, Dr. Grenfell's life and experiences do not greatly differ from those of St. Paul. He can say as St. Paul said to his congregation in Corinth:

"In journeyings oft, in perils of waters . . . in weariness and painfulness, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. . . Besides these things that are without, there cometh upon me daily the care of all the churches".—

The care of all the interests of the Deep Sea Mission, of all the suffering, sick, needy fishermen and their families. There needs no details to impress the Pauline parallel, Dr. Grenfell and his greatly noble work are well known— "familiar in our mouths as household words"— and held in reverence and practical appreciation of all whose hearts have been touched by the stories of devotion, sacrifice, health-giving, gospel giving and indescribable benefaction that link Dr. Grenfell's name and personality with the magnificent fulfilment, among the scanty and yet hardy inhabitants of the bleak Labrador coast, of the mission of Dr. Grenfell's divine prototype, who "went about doing good." Whoever helps the work of the Labrador Deep Sea Mission is working hand in hand with the divine providence that watches in the fall of a sparrow— and are not the fishing folk of Labrador worth many sparrows?

Another coincidence is the fact that the man who is like St. Paul, is that he will speak in St. Paul's church Tuesday night in the interests of sustaining the work of the Deep Sea Missions, a simple fact whose knowledge should fill the church.

The United States railways have 17,000 borrowed Canadian freight cars, If they will send only half of them back, loaded with coal, "no questions will be asked."

BOURASSA STILL "KEPT."

Bourassa says the Allies are beaten —and many Unionist papers send the glad tidings from coast to coast. Even such a super-Unionist as the Ottawa Journal-Press retailed Bourassa's words to its readers. That is just what Bourassa wanted.

Many months ago a publisher named Smith at Sault Ste. Marie printed a statement which riled the censor at Ottawa. Smith was clapped into jail and his paper was locked up.

Every month since war began Bourassa has been the Government's pet in Quebec. He has shot the germs of his disloyalty into the air, and the French-Canadians have breathed them. They knew the Borden Government in 1911 as Bourassa's creature. It is still hard for them to get the notion out of their heads. Before the election there was talk of what would be done with Bourassa. But he still appears to be "kept" by the Government.—London Advertiser.

A NON-PARTIZAN AND EFFECTIVE PURCHASING COMMISSION

Since the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's purchasing department was placed at the disposal of the British Government for placing orders in Canada for war needs the sum of $59,000,000 has been expended, a very considerable sum that has been put in circulation in this country through a variety of industries. At the present time most of the contracts have been filled, and it may be that with the British Mission operating on this side of the water that little more may be purchased through this connection. In the earlier days of the war, particularly, it afforded a trusted avenue for securing business to Canadian firms that otherwise might have gone elsewhere.

The totals of the different groups have been made up for THE FINANCIAL POST, and at the top stands foodstuffs amounting to $36,000,000. These goods were apart entirely from bacon and other similar lines that were sent over by the packing houses, and have figured in a recent investigation. The goods bought through Edward Fitzgerald at first and later through K. K. Donnelly, both of whom were "loaned" by the C. P. R., included foods, such as pork and beans, corned beef, dried vegetables, oatmeal, rolled oats, macaroni. In sugar alone over $10,000,000 in orders were given to Canadian refineries. Nothing has been sent across since last fall owing to the scarcity of raws. As an international commission is handling the sugar situation for the Allies now, it is improbable that any more orders will come through this channel.

In iron and steel manufactures there were included barbed wire, axes, saws, various kinds of tools, etc., exceeding in value $3,000,000.

In woolen and cotton goods there were sweaters, socks, underclothing and other articles over $2,500,000.

It is a long time since any orders were received for socks, or underwear or sweaters. The British firms have been attending to these, as the War Office has exercised a control that resembled a commandeering of the industry. It was felt too, that as the supplies of wool and yarn were over in England, and that orders filled in Canada would imply the importing of these, with the long haul over here, and a return one with the manufactured goods, that it would not be advisable to be dependent on mills here or in the States.

The list as tabulated under different headings is as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Food stuffs | $ 36,000,000 |
| Sugar | 10,700,000 |
| Miscellaneous manufactures of iron and steel | 3,400,000 |
| Woollen and cotton goods | 2,600,000 |
| Leather and rubber goods | 1,500,000 |
| Miscellaneous supplies | 4,800,000 |
| | $59,000,000 |

SOME OFFICERS WILL BE UNABLE TO GET THE WAR BADGES

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—The system of granting the War Service Badges issued by the Dominion Government as recognition of the patriotic impulses of men who have volunteered for service has brought out the interesting fact that a trip overseas does not in itself constitute a just claim for such a recognition. As a result of recent regulations issued from Ottawa for the granting of badges, there have been a number of cases discovered of late where some officers of the higher commands, who did not get past England, have been refused any war service badge, and where privates who even got to France do not come within the list of those who are entitled to the country's recognition of service. A number of instances have been recorded of late where wearers of the uniform, though as high in rank as major or lieutenant-colonel, who reached England with conducting drafts, and who were later returned to Canada, have applied for "B" grade badge, and where they have been refused as not entitled to it. In this connection, it must be remembered that the "B" badge is a replica of the British badge of the same grade, and that it has to be issued in Canada under exactly the same conditions as it is being issued in England. The conditions governing it state that a Canadian, to be entitled to "B" badge, must have reached England with a Canadian unit, and that he must have been discharged as unfit for further service, owing to old age, wounds, or sickness which disqualified him for further active service. It will be noted that the three conditions quoted do not include the long list of Canadian officers who went to England with battalions or other units, who did not get appointments with the Canadian or British Expedotionary Forces to France, because they did not, or were not, permitted to revert in rank, and who have since been returned to Canada as surplus in rank to their establishment. Many officers of this class, including some of the higher commands, have applied for the "B" badge, believing their arrival in England entitled them to it, but the ruling has been made that they must not be granted such distinction.

Some Privates Quit.

In the case of any of these officers who set foot in France, either for a long or a short period, the badge is issued. The privates who have seen service in France, who are not entitled to the "A" badge, which is the common recognition for service in France or at any of the fronts, are those who were signed on for special duty, with special pay, such as cooks, etc., and who, owing to the nature of their engagements, were permitted to quit the service before being incapacitated by sickness or wounds. In such instances, it is regarded that the men quit their jobs before they were finished, and so are not entitled to recognition. Also, the man who quit and secured a discharge on compassionate grounds, is not considered as eligible for any overseas recognition. Any man, however, who got to England or France, and who, for any reason, is not entitled to the "A" or "B" badge, unless the reason is a dishonourable discharge, is entitled to the "D" badge upon returning to Canada. The "C" badge is issued generally to men who saw three months' service in Canada, and who have been discharged for old age, injuries or sickness, and who are regarded as unfit for further service in Canada. This condition has already resulted in a large number of men being refused the "C" badge as some have become fit for service in Canada since being discharged. In the case of men who saw service in Canada, but who were discharged through physical unfitness under three months, the "C" badge is issued when the applicant submits to another medical examination and is placed in category "E." The "D" badge mentioned above, to which some overseas men are entitled, signifies that a man volunteered for active service prior to August, 1917, was rejected as unfit, and is still unfit.

It is stated that one of the reasons for tightening up on the issuing of these war decorations is to prevent any man securing a badge when he retains any degree of physical fitness which might render him liable for active service later on. Great activity has been displayed among men who are entitled, or who feel they are entitled, to one or other of these badges, as already something over five thousand badges have been granted for this military district, and there is now a daily average of 150 badges passing through the local issuing office.

BARTLEY SUSPENDED FOR ASSAULT ON VENINI

The Peterborough Juniors will have to play the return game in Oshawa to-morrow night without the services of Leith Bartley, the left-wing player. Bartley has been suspended by the O. H. A. for his assault on Venini, right wing of the Oshawa team in the game here last Wednesday night. The action of the O.H.A. was undoubtedly based on Referee Waghorne's report of the incident. There will have to be a shift in the Peterborough team and Hagerman will likely play left wing, with Park at centre and Williams at right, while Cherrett will form the defence with Girard.

24 HOURS TO MAKE TRIP FROM ORILLIA

All the trains are running to-day on the railways through Peterborough, but have not yet reached the regular time-table. Officials expected that the service will be back to normal this evening. Twenty-eight hours on the way from Orillia to Peterborough was the unusual experience of a party of Peterborough men who came home for the heatless week-end. They left Orillia on Saturday morning with a double-header, but were delayed during the day and night by snow-drifts that held them for hours. Finally they reached Lindsay on Sunday morning, and were informed that the train had been ordered to proceed no further. A snow-plow came through about that hour, and the wanderers piled into the caboose, but on reaching Reaboro were turned loose by a message directing the plow to return to the Orillia line. The bleak prospect of a long Sunday in the Ops clearing was relieved by the arrival of a way freight going east, which arrived in Peterborough about nine o'clock.

In many places along the northern route the snow drifts are as high as the coaches. They had been shovelled out since the previous storm, but filled in again on Friday.

It is reported to-day that the movement of freight was much improved by the concentration of effort on coal and war materials, and substantial results should be experienced at once.

The Thimble And Trinket Fund

The Ontario W. C. T. U. is endeavouring to raise a fund of $25,000 for free tea, coffee, cocoa and lemonade.

The National Y.M.C.A., whom the Ontario W.C.T.U. is aiding, will need $50,000 to cover their free drinkables.

The W. C. T. U. has already sent to France, mainly for this purpose, about $11,000; but the need grows more insistent.

In addition to the free drinkables, the Ontario W. C. T. U. has become responsible for the cost of printing a weekly leaflet of cheer and spiritual help, which is being sent through the mails to all the soldiers in the forward trenches who express a desire to receive it. The appreciation of the men this bit of comfort can be judged by the fact that in one division alone and within one month after the issue began, 15,000 soldiers asked that their names be entered on the "Pay-book Leaflet" list—the leaflets being so named from the fact that they are designed to fit into the soldier's pay-book.

To aid in raising the necessary funds, the W.C.T.U. of this city will hold a Silver Thimble and Trinket Days on 18th, 19th and 20th of February, when they will ask every citizen to look throughout their possessions for broken, useful, unwanted bits of gold and silver trinkets, discarded jewellery or table silver, solid or triple-plated. Any of the following articles will be thankfully received, and the proceeds of their sale used for the above purpose:

Old gold or silver thimbles.
Br... ts.
Brooches.
Rings.
Chains or links of chains.
Silver match boxes.
Scarf pins.
Old gold or silver watches.
Odd muff links.
Studs.
Gold or silver tops of canes or umbrellas.
Watch charms.
Broken spoons, forks, or toilet articles in sterling silver or triple-plate.
Coins in gold or silver, which have been monogrammed or punched.

All these articles will be melted down and the proceeds used to flood the forward trenches with the harmless drinks our boys so need.

Articles that would bring more money if sold than as scrap will be sold.

Wilson Replies To Foe's Speeches

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—President Wilson, addressing Congress in a joint session at 12.30 o'clock to-day, replied to the recent speeches by German Chancelolr Von Hertling, and Austrian Foreign Minister Count Czernin. Chancellor Von Hertling's statement, the President said, was very vague and confusing and leads to practically no conclusion. It was very different in tone from Count Czernin, which the President said had a very friendly tone..

The President drew a parallel between the pronouncement of Chancellor Hertling and Foreign Minister Czernin, and his hearers drew the conclusion that the President decidedly considered Czernin's utterances as being more favourable than Hertling's. Czernin seems to see fundamental elements of peace with clear eyes and does not seek to obscure them, said the President. Count Czernin, said the President, probably would have gone much farther had it not been for the embarrassment of Austria's alliances and her dependence on Germany. Again the President reiterated that the United States was in the war to the end and would put forth its whole strength in the war of emancipation.

The President reiterated that the United States had no desire to interfere in European affairs and "would disdain to take advantage of any internal weakness or disorder to impose her will upon another people."

MAJOR DAVIDSON'S ADDRESS TO DEPARTING SOLDIERS

Church Service Was Held For E Company at the Armouries—"Remember You Are Honourable British Soldiers" is Chaplain's Message.

SOME TIMELY ADVICE

An impressive church service was held for the members of E Company, 1st Depot Battalion, E.O.R., at the Armouries yesterday morning, conducted by Major J. C. Davidson. Major R. P. Watt was in charge of the parade.

The service was short and pithy. The company was drawn upon a square, and the service was begun with the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee." Afterwards the men joined in the Lord's Prayer and the Creed.

In his address, which was couched in soldierly language, Major Davidson dealt in a direct and practical way with the life that lay before the men. He urged them that they should give up the use of such words as conscripts or draftees, and put out of their minds all thoughts of them. The country had called out for service, and in answer to that call they were taking their places as honourable British soldiers to maintain the traditions of the British Army, and of the Canadians in particular.

Basing his remarks on what he had seen overseas, Major Davidson said that looking forward to the life before them there were certain definite points to which they should pay attention. He urged them to make a point of writing regularly once each week at the very least, and oftener if possible. It was also advisable to keep a brief diary.

The great experience before them, probably the greatest in all their lives, was one that would have a powerful effect upon their future and would either tend to degrade or develop their characters.

The work could not help to have a degrading effect unless the soldier had a distinct line of duty and fellowship with the Almighty as being His agent in a world cause. He reminded his hearers that no soldier liked the terrible business on which he went forth, and only did it for a sense of duty. In so doing they would be acting as agents of their country which had called them out, and therefore the responsibility belonged not to them but to the country. They could therefore with a clear conscience give themselves up to do their work in a soldierly fashion.

There were certain habits that would sustain them. Among these he mentioned the systematic reading of a short passage in the New Testament and a brief earnest prayer, including the Lord's Prayer daily.

Speaking of bad language, Major Davidson said their life was a rough one, and rough words would be heard and used, but he gave them the urgent message to keep the name of the Almighty out of all connection with such language. His name was only to be used reverently. Obscene language was to be abhorred as lowering, unworthy and degrading.

The cause of the Empire and their important duties required that their bodies should be kept clean and pure. They must at all costs, and by self-discipline, refrain from sapping their strength by evil indulgence. Let them concentrate their thoughts on clean, healthy and pure objects, and enjoy healthy amusements and recreation, doing nothing of which they would need to be ashamed.

All this was quite possible if they would only set their minds on it from the start.

In conclusion, he urged the men to give the chaplains attached to their units encouragement and a chance to deal with them personally. Let them manifest in some way their willingness to receive advice and fellowship from them and meet them half way. The chaplains were intended to be the friends and counsellors and stand-byes of the men, and would be glad of an opportunity to keep up a personal contact with them. This largely depended upon the attitude of the soldier

In conclusion, Major Davidson advised his hearers to go forward with confidence and good cheer.

Major Davidson offered his services as chaplain to the local detachment without expense to the Government, and will continue to act in that capacity with the recruits who will be trained here in the future.

Limited Quarters For Crown Attorney

In a recent prophetic utterance, it was stated that the end of the war would come this year, and incidentally bring in its wake a long series of momentous events. No mention was made in the prophecy of the completion this year of the County Courthouse, but when such an event materializes it will be equally as welcome as the end of the world struggle. Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton gave the building a once over this morning together with several other local members of the bar. Should the Crown Attorney live long enough to witness the completeion, he will have reason to wonder why a larger office was not provided for his use at the county buildings. As it is the Crown Attorney's office is tucked away in one corner. It only needs bars on the windows to complete the resemblance to a cell. Reference to the other part of the building was made some time ago. The building will present a changed appearance when completed, and the Courthouse will be one of the finest in the country.

SWEDEN NEARS HUNGER LINE.

Food Supplies Running Short By Stoppage of Imports.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 11.—The food situation in Sweden is rapidly growing worse. Pork cards will be introduced and the extra bread cards, which formerly were provided for foreign diplomats, have been withdrawn, except one for each head of a mission.

The export of foodstuffs has almost entirely stopped, with the exception of meat, owing to the necessity of slaughtering stock because of the lack of fodder. Even meats show a large decrease.

The statistics of Swedish imports for the first eleven months of the past year, which are now available, demonstrate upon what short rations the kingdom has been put. The total imports of all cereals and flour were 143,601 tons, against 351,187 for the first eleven months of 1916. Coffee imports were 8,194 tons against 37,413, tea 98 tons against 480, all kinds of animal fodder, chiefly oilcakes, 33,416, tons against 77,272, and hard coal 11,300000 tons against 34,500,000 tons in the first eleven months of 1916.

"THERE SHE GOES"

"THERE SHE GOES," the newest musical comedy knockout, comes to "The Grand" next Friday, Feb. 15. The immense success is an extraordinary lavish and ingenious combination of music, spectacle and travesty. Besides Mr. Harvey Orr, the chief fun-maker, there are many others who contribute to the success of the comedy. There is a famous beauty chorus gorgeously gowned, whirling dancers, principals that can sing, and a musical setting from the pen of Louis Weslyn, one of New York's most prolific writers. The general opinion is that this latest offering is the most consistent, and best all around musical comedy produced this season, and the capacity audiences with which it has been greeted since the inception of the tour has amply proven that opinion. Martha Craven, a dainty prima donna, is considered one of the best singers in the lighter form of musical comedy. The dancing LeRoys are in a class by themselves and the chorus of twenty-five is shown to advantage in a dozen changes of magnificent costuming. Some of the whistling tunes are: "There She Goes," "Hawaiian Moon," "Some Girl in the Summer Time," "The Seaside Rag," "In Honolulu Town," "An Absent-Minded Man," "When You're Twenty-One," "Sometime if Dreams Come True."

The same company as seen here last season in "The Million Dollar Doll" will present "There She Goes."

Good Work Was Appreciated

Chief Grange received this morning the following letter, expressing the appreciation of Mr. Robert Neill on his efficient efforts to save his store in the recent fire:

Chief Grange:

Dear Sir,— Following up my conversation with you yesterday I hereby enclose $50, and would ask you to divide this up amongst your firemen. I am no desirous that this should go to what is called the Fireman's Fund, but would ask you to divide the same in cash and let the men do what they like with it. I wish to thank you and your associates of the Peterborough Fire Brigade on the splendid effort that you put forth at the recent fire to recover our premises, and have no doubt that if you had had a more favourable opportunity there would have been a large quanity of salvage other than a total loss.

Sincerely yours,
ROBERT NEILL.

PASHA BOLA WAS EXCESSIVE IN PRAISE OF HEARST

His Relations With U. S. Publisher Discussed—Attempted to Float a Loan While in the United States

TRIAL CONTINUES

PARIS, Feb. 11—At Saturday's session of the court-martial of Bolo Pasha on the charge of treason, several witnesses testified regarding the visit of the accused to the United States in 1916. The first witness was Mde. Buzenet, who told of attending a dinner in New York in company with a French captain named Verdier, and Adolph Pavenstedt, former head of the American Bank, said Bolo Pasha.

At the opening of the session, Col. Voyer, the presiding officer, announced that the court room would be cleared if Thursday's scenes were repeated.

Articles Praised Hearst.

Lieut. Prevost, of the French censorship department, testified that articles praising William Randolph Hearst repeatedly had been taken to Senator Humbert's paper, Le Journal, in which Bolo Pasha had purchased an interest, by Chas. F. Bertelli, the head of the Paris bureau of the International News Service, who accompanied Bolo to America and introduced him to Hearst.

The lieutenant said his attention had first been called to Bolo Pasha by a eulogy of Mr. Hearst printed in La Victoire, which also described Bolo Pasha's relations to the American press.

Lieutenant Prevost said he had been commissioned to translate several articles from the Hearst newspapers, after which the French censor had decided not to allow any further articles laudatory of Mr. Hearst to appear, because he considered him thoroughly Germanophile.

Hearst Never Germanophile.

Charles Bertelli began his testimony by making a protest at the report that President Voyer of the court-martial had said Mr. Hearst was Germanophile.

"Mr. Hearst is not and never was Germanophile," declared Bertelli. "He has always been a friend of France."

The witness then recounted Bolo Pasha's trip to New York, where he said Bolo had met Mr. Hearst only socially at a dinner at Sherry's, for which Bertelli sent out the invitations, but for which Bolo Pasha had paid. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. Hearst, Adolph Pavenstedt and Jules Bois.

Bertelli said that Bolo spoke like a true patriot, and that Mr. Hearst thought he was doing France honour by receiving Bolo, who he believed to be one of the distinguished citizens. The witness was cross-examined by President Voyer with more than usual interest.

Bertelli testified that Bolo had loaned him money which he offered to repay through Captain Bouchardon when he (Bertelli) heard that Bolo was under suspicion. Bertelli told the court that this money now was deposited at the sequestration office.

Attempted to Float Loan.

The witness described the meeting of Senator Humbert, who controlled the Journal, and M. Mouthon, editor in chief of the Journal and now a witness for the Government, which meeting was arranged at the instigation of Bolo and at which was discussed an exchange of news between the Journal and the Hearst papers. This proposed exchange, however, fell through because the minister of foreign affairs was opposed to the proposition, the witness said. Bolo attempted in America to raise a French loan, which had great prospects of success, Bertelli testified, and he added that he was urged by Senator Humbert to interest himself in this movement which, however, came to nothing.

The final witness for the state was Mme. Bolo Soumaille, the defendant's first wife. She became so faint while on the stand that the windows of the court room were ordered opened and the judge broke a precedent by allowing the men present to wear their hats.

Bolo Pasha was greatly affected by his first wife's testimony. Tears welled into his eyes and he cried openly and undisguisedly as his second wife, Mme. Bolo, appeared on the stand for him.

To the breathlessly interested court room, the witness denied stories published in French newspapers, alleging that Bolo Pasha had dissipated her fortune. He not only made plenty of money for himself, she declared, but augmented her fortune. The defendant wept harder than ever as his wife, who apparently is his sole remaining friend, testified at length to the efforts that he had made toward the rehabilitation of her estate.

She said he told her, on his arrival from America: "I'm glad to be safe in France. I was afraid the Germans would have me tortured."

Enjoyable Recital

The vocal and instrumental recital given on Saturday in the Conservatory of Music, by Miss Helen MacLaren's pupils proved a splendid success and was attended by about 75 friends of the little ones who took part. The performance was especially interesting on account of the extreme youth of the pupils, all of whom bore evidence of skilful and patient training at the hands of Miss MacLaren:

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH NEWS

Two most interesting and profitable sermons by the Pastor, were greatly enjoyed by large congregations yesterday. The morning sermon, dealing with the responsibility for the war, the speaker proving that all the nations engaged were not equally guilty. The evening sermon was on "Church Pews," the church being the House of God, the pews therefore were for the use of God's children.

On Monday evening, the Choral Class, led by Mr. H. C. Treneer, will meet as usual in the Guild Room. All young people are cordially invited.

Tuesday afternoon the Pastor will visit the members of the congregation living on Bolivar street, and on Wednesday afternoon those living on King street, west of Park. Wednesday evening in the Guild Room, there will be a meeting of the Board of Managers and members of the session. Thursday from 2 to 5, the ladies of the Red Cross Society will meet for sewing.

The Young Ladies' Mission Band have postponed their meeting until Tuesday, Jan. 19th.

Members of the congregation wishing to subscribe for the Presbyterian Record, which is 30c per year, are requested to place that amount in an envelope with their name on, and place on the contribution plate next Sunday.

Peterborough Boy Tells Of Hearing "The Messiah" At The Albert Hall

Mr. George Chandler has received an interesting letter from Pte. Geo East, formerly of the 93rd Bugle Band and now at Orpington, Eng. Pte. East, who was vice-President of the Peterboro Choral Society, describes a visit to the Albert Hall, London, where he saw a presentation of "The Messiah."

In part his letter is as follows:

"I had the pleasure of going to the Albert Hall and hearing the Royal Choral Society rendering The Messiah, Sir Frederick Bridge conducting. Believe me, it was a perfect treat. I had a good seat. One of the ushers told me that there were between nine and ten thousand people there, and I believed him.

"Of the chorus I counted 173 bass and 168 tenors, and with the sopranos and contraltos I was told there were close on 1,000 in the choir. The orchestra was only 75 strong, but were very fine. Just four pieces of brass, two trumpets, and two horns. The soloists were fine. Of course the bass took my fancy, and his rendering of "Why do the Nations?" got more applause than any other number. The people simply went crazy. Of the others the soprano was good and the contralto as well, but the tenor's voice was too weak for that vast building. Nearly every one had their copies with them, and it looked funny to see the vast audience nearly all of them looking at their books. Of the various chorus numbers the Hallelujah chorus ranked first. It was a most inspiring sight to see that vast audience standing and the choir rendering their number. It was—well, words fail me. I cannot write it down on paper, but you know don't you, what it would be like? "He trusted in God," was fine, too. Of course you know it was a favorite of mine, and believe me, the bass and tenor certainly gave those passages, "Let Him Delude Him," their full value. I should have liked to have been amongst the bass at that particular moment. Of the tenor solo I was disappointed. He was a lovely singer, mind you, but weak, and as I was sitting next to an old choral man he said the same thing. The contralto was a little better, but weak, too. I guess it takes a singer with a good strong voice to sing that class of music there.

"The Trumpet shall sound," the silver trumpet obligato, was splendid, and the last chorus, "Worthy is the Lord," and "Amen," was fine.

"We got out about 5.30, and I had to get back to Orpington and go on duty for the night, but although I was tired before the morning, felt that it was worth it all.

"We have had more cold weather here now. Had a fall of snow last night. We had a convoy of wounded in from France last night and believe me the boys were glad to sleep in a bed once more. I wish it were over so as to end all this suffering."

PHYLLIS NEILSON-TERRY in "MAGGIE."

Much interest is being evinced by theatre-goers in the appearance of Phyllis Neilson-Terry at The Grand next Thursday, Feb. 14. This star is well known in this city and those who have seen her work on previous occasions will doubtlessly welcome the opportunity of seeing her in an entirely new role.

The play selected for her and in which she portrays the title role of "Maggie," is a new comedy by Edward. Peple, author of "The Prince Chap," "The Littlest Rebel" and other notable successes.

The supporting company is composed entirely of English players and the production under the direction of George C. Tyler will be complete in every respect.

REPORT OF ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH PATRIOTIC SOCIETY

St. Andrew's Church Patriotic Society held its regular monthly business meeting on Thursday afternoon. Nursing Sister Bertha Mowry gave a most interesting talk on her work Overseas.

Those decorated were: Mrs. W. L. H. Rowand, Mrs. J. J. Cocks, Mrs. John Jamieson, Mrs. John Rae, Mrs. Thos. Emmerson.

St. Andrew's ladies are to be complimented on the splendid work they are doing for the Red Cross. During the month of January the following supplies were turned out: 48 bed pads, 48 grey shirts, 60 suits pyjamas, 30 many-tailed bandages, 18 stretcher caps, 100 pair socks.

MUST HAVE PEACE SOON

The rich still live well, securing their wants by bribery and stupendous prices, or by sending their families to neutral countries.

Masses Are Suffering.

But the masses are suffering horribly despite plenty of work at high wages. Even when they manage to fill their stomachs, the quality is so poor that the food fails to nourish. Their constitutions are so weakened that the slightest malady takes them off in a jiffy.

A crime wave is sweeping the country. People are robbed on the streets in broad daylight. Discontent is rife.

In the meantime two parties are struggling for mastery. One is the small, powerful plutocratic war party which, clearly seeing disaster ahead, is attempting to bullbait the masses to a point where they will support unprecedented losses in a terrific effort to drive through the Franco-British line. The other is the people's party, unorganied, but to which ninety per cent of the population at heart belong. They oppose another big offensive and call for conciliation and peace, claiming even the capture of Paris and Calais, were this possible, would not end the war, but, on the contrary, prolong it.

Dr. Dernburg, among others, is of this view.

One party says peace can only be secured by fighting. They promise an early peace if the people will follow them.

Germany's Last Card.

Thus, the offensive being prepared by Hindenburg and Ludendorff is positively Germany's last card. And only the promise that it will bring immediate peace do the people agree that it be played.

The French of Verdun, and the British of Ypres hold the trump cards behind them. America has a fresh hand.

I repeat, the Central Powers must have peace soon, one way or another, or the masses will force the government's hand.

It's up to France, Great Britain and the United States.

DR. GRENFELL WILL BE HERE TO-MORROW NIGHT

Noted Labrador Missionary Will Speak in St. Paul's Church

The coming of Dr. Grenfell to our city is being anticipated with peculiar interest. He is recognized as a peer among men, one who has given a practical demonstration of the principles of the Gospel, and who has done a work for his fellow-men which will glorify his name throughout coming generations. We honour, and rightly so, those who go to foreign lands as missionaries of the Cross, but here is a man who found in a people near at hand a fruitful field for Christian service, and by preaching, teaching, medical assistance and constant helpfulness he has lifted the dwellers of Labrador from the gloom which had enveloped them, into the brightness of a better civilization.

Peterborough citizens should rally in large numbers to hear this man, if for no other reason than to show their respect and admiration for him who has rendered such unselfish and valuable service.

But the lecture which will be given will, for its own sake, be worth the hearing. It will be illustrated by stereoptican slides and will be replete with such touches of humour and of interest as will make it most enjoyable. It is well for us to become more familiar with our own continent and the story of Labrador as told by one who has spent a quarter of a century among its people affords is an educational opportunity, which should not be disregarded.

Remember the place — St. Paul's Presbyterian Church; and the time—Tuesday evening at eight o'clock.

U.S. LIMITS BREAD FOR HOTEL PATRONS.

Two-Ounce Ration Ordered for the Restaurants.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A two-ounce bread ration was ordered by the Food Administration to-day for patrons of hotels, restaurants, and dining care. This allowance is about the same ts that now observed in Great Britain.

Not more than two ounces of wheat bread may be served to any rolls or bread made from corn, oatmeal or bran are served, and when one at any one meal except that when only one kind other than wheat bread is ordered a portion may consist of four ounces. Rolls may not weigh more than one ounce each.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre At Once

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

COAL MOVING FREELY.

Improved Weather Has Beneficial Effects in Pennsylvania.

READING, Pa., Feb. 8.—More than 1,000 cars of anthracite were moved from St. Clair last night. This is the largest quantity brought down the main line for many days. Because of the milder weather locomotives were able to haul nearly full tonnage. Conditions in the Schuylkill coal regions are much improved and the breakers are supplied with empty cars promptly. It is expected that the output today will be almost normal, or 1,400 cars.

Many Reasons Why Liquid Cough Mixtures Can't Cure Bronchitis

But the Healing Fumes of Catarrhozone, Which are Breathed to the Furthest Recesses of the Bronchial Tubes, Bring Quick Relief and Sure Cure.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs attacks the trouble at the source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhozone."

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

"I have been a chronic sufferer from catarrh in the nose and throat for over eight years. I think I have spent four hundred dollars trying to get relief. I have spent but six dollars on Catarrhozone, and have been completely cured, and, in fact, have been well for some time. Catarrhozone is the only medicine I have been able to find that would not only give temporary relief but will always cure permanently. Yours sincerely, (Signed) WILLIAM RAGAN, Brockville, Ont.

For absolute, permanent cure, use Catarrhozone. Two months' outfit costs $1.00; smaller size, 50c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

REAL FUEL SAVING OVER THE WEEK END

From the statement of a number of business men to-day there was a real saving in coal in the business district. Thanks to the co-operation of the weather man some fires were permitted to go out, and will not be rekindled until to-night, in an anticipation of a slight drop in the mercury. It is impossible to estimate the material saving of fuel from the three days' closing of the stores, but it is believed that the aggregate must be appreciable. Had the weather been extremely cold, there would have been slight efficacy in the regulation.

It is understood that in the near future the delivery of coal to consumers will be in half or full ton quantities to avoid the extra cost of delivery to consumers.

BRINGING UP FATHER ABROAD.

"Bringing up Father Abroad" paid a return visit to the Grand on Saturday and delighted two large audiences, who enjoyed the antics of Jiggs Mahoney, Maggie, and Dinty Moore. John E. Cain was a capital Jiggs, making the cartoon hero a most real personage, while Robert Rice, the elongated "Don Keller" of the play, added a lot to the amusement. The costumes of the chorus were a feature, while the musical numbers were pleasing, "Say a Prayer for the Boys Out There," making the biggest hit.

Heatless Day A Good Thing For "Jag" Carriers

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, Feb. 11.—Thirty-seven Torontonians, at least, rise to bless this "heatless" day. The 37 were persons charged in Police Court this morning with drunkenness, which in these boozeless days—legally speaking—is a very serious offence. When Magistrate Denison called for those alleged offenders in Court to-day, it was in frigid temperature of the heatless City Hall, striving to comply with the Fuel Controller's request. The Magistrate discharged the whole 37 without further ado.

GROCERS APPROVED THE EARLY CLOSING

Bulk of Business More Than Maintained in Short Session on Saturday.

Several grocers have commented upon the fact that their Saturday and Monday business was completed within the time prescribed by the Order in Council. This affords an argument, it was stated, that the regular business on Saturdays should be closed at 9 p.m., at least. It would simply mean that the public would have to file their orders earlier in the day or in the evening, and not straggle in at all hours as at present.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TO BE DISCUSSED

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Daylight saving is not likely to come into force in Canada until Parliament has been consulted at the coming session, despite the fact that there is a bill before the United States Congress at the present time.

Last session Sir George Foster introduced a Daylight Saving Bill in the Commons here, but owing to the fact that the bill was attacked from both sides of the House and that its sponsor was its only supporter, Sir George withdrew it, or rather had the debate adjourned, which had the same effect. Among those who strenuously opposed the measure were several Liberals, who are now members of the Cabinet. Probably no bill introduced by a Minister of the Crown ever received such short shift as did this measure last session. However, if the United States adopts daylight saving, one of the objections to it in Canada will be removed.

As a fuel saving device daylight saving is not considered here to be of any considerable consequence.

FIRE DAMAGE OVER QUARTER MILLION

A new and final estimate of the recent fires in the Dominion Bank block show that the former estimates were somewhat high.

The damage to the building is $61,500, contents $195,400—a total of $256,900.

This covers the Dominion Bank, Matthews-Blackwell, Neill's shoe store and the Royal Theatre.

Corns Lift Off

Doesn't hurt a bit to lift any corn or callus off with fingers.

No humbug! You truly can lift off every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses on bottom of feet without one bit of pain.

A genius in Cincinnati discovered freezone. It is an ether compound and tiny bottles of this magic fluid can now be had at any drug store for a few cents.

Apply several drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. Instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you lift it off with the fingers. You feel no pain while applying freezone or afterwards.

Just think! No more corns or calluses to torture you and they go without causing one twinge of pain or soreness.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle of freezone on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

Bill Hohenzollern Says Enemies Will Be Forced To Accept Peace

Kaiser Whines and Blusters and Invokes Divine Aid—The German Braggart Has Had His Fill of War

REPLY TO AN ADDRESS

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 12.— Germany desires peace, but before it can be attained her enemies must recognize that Germany has been victorious, Emperor William said in reply to an address presented by Burgomaster of Hamburg on the conclusion of peace with the Ukraine. The Emperor's reply, as given in a Berlin despatch, follows:

"We have gone through hard times. Everyone has had a burden to bear—anxiety, mourning, grief, tribulation—and not the least he who stands before you. In his were combined the cares and grief for the entire people in its sorrows.

"We often entered false paths. The Lord pointed out to us by a hard school the path by which we should go. The world, however, at the same time has not been on the right path. We Germans, who still have ideals, should work to bring about better times. We should fight for right and morality. Our Lord God wishes us to have peace, but a peace wherein the world will strive to do what is right and good.

"We ought to bring peace to the world. We shall seek in every way to do it. Such an end was achieved yesterday in a friendly manner with an enemy which, beaten by our armies, perceived no reason for fighting longer, extends a hand to us and receives our hand. We clasp hands.

"But he who will not accept peace, but on the contrary declines, pouring out the blood of his own and of our people, must be forced to have peace. We desire to live in friendship with neighbouring peoples, but the victory of Germany's arms must be recognized first. Our troops under the great Hindenburg will continue to win it. Then peace will come."

The American Press Comment On Tuscania Disaster

"MUST BE PREPARED."

Brooklyn Eagle: "This is the first considerable disaster we have sustained, but it is not likely to be the last. We must be prepared for other losses at sea, since our lines of communication are extraordinarily long and cannot be entirely protected against submarine attack. We must take care, but we must also take chances, and if we sometimes lose in the gamble with fate we must accept the calamity as among the inevitable consequences of war."

"THE HUN HAS SPOKEN AGAIN"

Lancaster (Pa.) New Era: "The Hun has spoken again. He has brought the war closer home to us than at any time since we entered the world conflict. The sinking of the big British transport which was carrying hundreds of our soldiers to the trenches in France is another grim reminder of the American people that they are face to face with the enemy. All glory to every American who through this disaster has given up his life as a sacrifice to make the world safe for his fellow men."

"WILL RENEW ITS DETERMINATION."

Hartford Courant: "The sinking of the Tuscania, with the loss of American lives, brings home to the United States the war against Germany, as it has not been brought home before. With the first real disaster to American troops, who have met death, not in the field, but by the "below the belt" blow which has characterized German warfare, the United States will continue its determination to continue the war until Prussianism has ceased to be a name to terrorize."

"WERE AMONG THE RISKS."

Philadelphia Inquirer: "There is little consolation in the reflection, but we may be sure that the disaster which has happened belongs to the category of misfortunes for which none is to blame, and which could not humanly have been prevented. Such things as this were among the risks which the country assumed when it went to war, and it will only be confirmed in its determination to carry the war to a victorious conclusion by the shock it has sustained."

"SOONER OR LATER."

Springfield Republican: "The disaster is what we had all been fearing and what with the utmost vigilance was almost certain sooner or later to happen. The risk was faced openeyed when the nation went to war, and the loss, grievous as it is, must be met with courage now."

"STILL GREATER EFFORTS."

Boston Post: "But even as the American people have reason to rejoice this morning over the comparatively slight loss of life in the Tuscania disaster, the even will serve to steel their arms and nerve their hearts to still greater efforts to bring victory to American arms."

"BUT ONE RESULT."

Newark Ledger: "This sinking of the Tuscania can have but one result. The American government and the American people will henceforth have but one goal—to crush an enemy whose tactics go counter to every decent consideration for human lives. War may be war but the sneeking torpedo seeks out its prey like a bandit striking his victim in the back."

"CRUELEST AND KINDEST."

New York Tribune: "There was ill luck in the Tuscania sinking. It was an extraordinary fortune which enabled a U-boat to make a killing in those waters under such conditions of convoy. It was hardly less extraordinary that a successful torpedo should leave two precious hours in which to remove the bulk of our troops and the vessel's crew. The whole episode was war at its cruelest and kindest."

DISHWATER IS SKIMMED AND RESIDUUM USED.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The salvage operations of the Adjutant-General's Department in Canadian camps in England resulted in one month in $22,000 being received for the sale of by-products, an increase of $7,000 over the previous month. Even dishwater is skimmed, the residuum being converted into fats. Ten thousand dollars' worth of salvage is now lying in a London depot.

GRAIN MARKET

Grain markets were quiet yesterday. To-day there will be the usual Winnipeg market, but no Chicago. Except for slight fractional changes in oats, cash prices are unchanged.

Prospects of milder weather, and consequently improved chances for a large increase in receipts, gradually gave an easier tone to the markets Friday. Although the demand for cash oats continues urgent and the immediate offerings very light, Manitoba cash eased off from 1-2c to 1 1-8c yesterday at Fort William. Oats remain steady at the recent sharp advance. Rye is offering a little easier yesterday's quotations being 2c to 3c below yesterday. Corn and barley unchanged.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards — Receipts for yesterday, 54 cars, with 672 cattle, 59 calves, 1,752 hogs and 264 sheep and lambs.

The unexpected happened yesterday when there was a regular market for cattle though a small one for a Monday amrket. It was announced that the railroads would lift no cattle during the 'fuelless' days. It happened, however, that a few cars of cattle had been lifted on Friday of last week, which the railroad officials ordered to be sent through. These were available for yesterday's market. It is not expected there will be any for to-day. Cattle prices were strong, but under existing circumstances are no criterion as to real market value.

WARRING NATIONS SEARCHING FOR STRONG MEN.

Even in the Midst of a World Dominated by the Military Caste, the Voice of Democracy Has Made Itself Heard in Forcing Changes Among the Rules and Military Commanders.

A REPORT that Lloyd George by means of a speech in London has allayed the resentment roused by a speech in Paris, and the suggestion that by means of oratory he can disarm his critics at home and secure his position in the Premiership might well be received with considerable reserve. The Prime Minister has severe critics in Parliament, and references have been made lately to a movement to displace him. Whether the oppositon is due to a belief that Asquith ought to be brought back, or whether it is due to a feeling that a man of Balfour's or Carson's type ought to be placed at the head of affairs is a point obscured by the censorship. Undoubtedly the return of Asquith would cause the gravest apprehensions in all parts of the Empire, even admitting his courtesy and fairness to Mr. Lloyd George since the latter succeeded him. But since there is no doubt that the British people are more determined than ever on winning the war, there can be little prospect of the political success of the group referred to disrespectfully as "the old gang."

There have been many shifts in leadership since the war began, and some of them surprisingly sudden. It seems a long time ago since Sir Edward Grey (now Lord Grey of Falloden) was Foreign Secretary. Yet when he was retired he had for a year or more been the only Foreign Minister then holding office among the belligerent nations, except Baron Sonnino in Italy, who had been in a similar position at the outbreak of the war. Germany has had three Imperial Chancellors since the beginning of the war, and there is a general idea that the present incumbent will not remain long in office. Even the German war machine, which was supposed to be the last word in efficiency in August, 1914, has had new chiefs for its army and for its navy. Von Kluck, for instance, who held the world's attention in the early months of the war, has fallen into obscurity, and one even forgets whether he lives or has gone the way of so many of his guard. Von Falkenhayn, formerly chief of staff, was retired, but is now engaged in building up a Turkish army. Hindenburg, Ludendorff, and Mackensen of the leading German generals alone continue high in favor.

The British army has had two chiefs; the British navy three First Sea Lords. A former footman has risen to be chief of the British staff; a former engineer presides over the Admiralty as First Lord. The French army has been led successively by Joffre, Nivelle, and Petain, and now there is a proposal to bring Joffre back again and give him supreme command of all the Allied armies. There have been hints, too, of a movement to retire Haig, which seems astonishing in view of the great achievements of the British armies under his command. Even the Canadian army has had three leaders in the field, Alderson, Byng, and Currie, while the Canadian militia has been presided over successively by Lieut.-Gen. Sir Sam Hughes, Sir Edward Kemp, and Gen. Mewburn.

The Italian army was under the supreme command of Gen. Cadorna from the beginning of the war until a few days ago, when Cadorna was put in relatively an inferior position and a new general appointed, assisted by a British and French officer. Of the changes in the Russian command it would be tedious to speak without the assistance of an adding machine, but in Russia the changes have been by no means for the better, and most people believe that Russia had her best general in her first, namely, the Grand Duke Nicholas, who, many maintain, was the most brilliant leader that the Allies have developed since the beginning of the war. Who is now in charge of the Russian armies, or what the Russian armies are in charge of nobody knows. Still less concerned is anyone over the Russian fleet, whose part in this war has been largely a thinking one.

Even in the United States the war has brought changes. Mr. Lansing is now Foreign Secretary because of the attitude his predecessor, Mr. Bryan, took regarding the war. Similarly Secretary Baker now presides over the War Department because Secretary Garrison disagreed with President Wilson over matters concerning his department. Both these changes were made before the United States became a belligrent. There have been other changes in the army and navy commands which would not have been made had the United States not entered the war, older men being replaced by those likely to stand better the arduous strain.

In France Viviani, Briand, Ribot, and Painleve have been war Premiers, and Georges Clemenceau has the task of forming a fifth Ministry. Clemenceau is a "tiger" on German intrigues, and Caillaux and Boloism will get short shrift from him, if his Ministry withstands Socialist pressure. The war will not lose in vigor by Clemenceau's acceptance of the French Premiership.

Growing Dishrags.

It has been discovered that the thick, spongy gourd of the luffa plant, which grows easily and requires but little attention makes the best kind of dishcloths and bath sponges. An Ohio woman is making a good living raising them. She sold over 1,000 to one garage company alone for use in the washing of automobiles. Cut into strips the luffa gourd makes a kind of lace widely used by milliners, and it is also admirably adapted to the making of flower baskets.

Favor Coarse Bread.

The refined white flour now generally used is a comparatively modern innovation, the process for its development having been perfected within the last half century. This flour produces bread highly pleasing to the eye and palate, as compared with the coarse brown bread of our ancestors, but there is a growing tendency on the part of dietetic students and physicians to denounce white bread as destructive of health and vigor.

Thought All "Steps" Cruel.

Nell's mother had been telling her the story of Cinderella, and the little girl was deeply impressed with the cruelty of the wicked stepmother. A day or two later, while playing with several other children, she heard Bobby's mother reprimand him severely for some misdemeanor. Rushing home she excitedly explained to her mother what had occurred and inquired breathlessly: "Is Bobby's mother step?"

Hardwoods in America.

More valuable hardwoods are found in North America than are native to any other region of similar area in the temperate zones. In addition to these the great range in minimum temperatures, ranging from Canada down to Florida, and the wonderful Pacific coast, also enables us to grow a greater range of foreign hardwoods than may be found introduced to any other similar area in any zone.

Kingdom of the Free.

Siam is called by its inhabitants Thai, or Muang-Thai, which means "free," or "the kingdom of the free." The area of the kingdom is about 195,000 square miles, about 45,000 being in the Malay Peninsula; that is, its total area is a little greater than half the area of British Columbia, but its population number 8,200,000, or about equal to that of the Dominion of Canada.

Ideal Guestroom.

The guestroom need not be the best and sunniest room in the house, but it should be light and airy, and be so decorated and furnished as to be informal and homey. The ideal is to have a guestroom a little detached from the rooms which are occupied by the family. The bed should be the most comfortable bed procurable. If possible have twin beds.

The Lever Principle.

In laying carpets and rugs, heavy furniture may be raised, with astonishing ease, by the use of a bed slat or something similar; a broom handle will answer for lightweight articles. Place one end of the slat under the furniture; put some solid object under that end. Then press down on the other end.

"Coon-Cats" of Maine.

The so-called "coon-cat," which is common all over Maine, is held by natives to be a cross between the cat and the raccoon. Biologists ridicule this belief; nevertheless many half wild cats in Maine have the typical raccoon tail with short forelegs, pointed snout and long hair.

Was No Slacker.

A story is told of a lady whose son had served during the Spanish war, in which she told of the different battles and engagements he had been in, and she finished up by saying that she knew all about war, as her son had fought in the Battle of Vanille in the Halloween Islands.

"English as She Is Spoke."

The wife of a workingman in the Midlands (England) was describing a quarrel between two other women, and her final comment was as follows: "If 'er'd said to 'er what 'er said to 'er 'er'd 'ave killed 'er or 'er 'er'd!"

Reduces Ice Bill.

Mix equal parts of cement and sifted sand with water, stiff enough to spread so you have a smooth surface, and have it one-third of an inch thick, or thicker if you wish. Let stand a few days to dry out. You have a good ice chest, keeps your ice longer and saves quite a bill.

She Is the Rose.

Doctor's Advice.

"The doctor says he will let me know in a week whether I am going to live or not." "And what does he expect you to do in the meantime?" "He told me to take a complete rest and above all not to worry about anything."—Life.

LET CONVOY PASS TO ATTACK DUMMY.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Apropos of the story printed in The New York Times of the exploits of the British dummy naval vessels, which has been republished here and read with much amusement and interest, Reuter's Agency is informed of one authenticated case of a valuable convoy proceeding to the Dardanelles, followed by a "cruiser."

A German submarine that was in the neighbourhood allowed the convoy to pass and reserved its energies for the "cruiser." The Germans must have been greatly surprised when they saw the big guns from the supposed warship floating away from the wreck.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"I told him nothing, ma'am." The significant emphasis in his words made her fix her burning eyes on his, and for a moment there was silence. Then she burst out impetuously:

"Why did you approach him at all? Mr. Terhune, I believe, has the investigation in charge and he and the authorities are considerate enough to leave us alone in our bereavement, now that they know all that we can tell them."

"Do they so?" asked McCarty quietly. "Of course, as you say, ma'am, it's nothing to me; but wouldn't you think that they will soon begin to wonder, just as I do, why, knowing so little about how your niece came by her death, you've no desire to know any more? Wouldn't it seem strange to anybody—I put it to you straight—for a fine young lady like that to be murdered in cold blood and them that's nearest to her not raising a finger to find out the truth"

"We—we have every confidence in Mr. Terhune," she faltered.

"Before Mr. Terhune ever came into the case, ma'am, Mr. Quimby announced that he'd offer no reward, and he showed plainly as far as he was concerned, he wanted no investigation."

"But you should be able to understand that!" she cried eagerly. "The shock and the hideous notoriety——" McCarty shook his head slowly.

"If you'll excuse me for saying so, ma'am, you look like a tender-hearted woman, and you couldn't have brought the young girl up and been the mother to her you have without having some small affection for her. Would you stand by, calm and collected, and let her murderer go free without a wish to stop him unless you thought that you knew pretty well who it was and there was a good reason for hushing the matter up?"

Miss Beckwith buried her face in her thin hands.

"That is what is killing me" she moaned. "If I could only be sure—but what am I saying? I—I should never have come here!"

She started wildly to her feet, but McCarty laid a reassuring hand upon her arm.

"Whatever you're saying, ma'am, will go no further. Remember, I am no longer on the force and it's Mr. Terhune that is working for the authorities. You've an idea about her death, but you are not certain if it's the right one; isn't that it?"

"It's the only possible thing. Stephen must be right, and yet, somehow, I cannot force myself to believe it. When I remember how she clung to life, how defiant and strong willed she was, determined to have her happiness in her own way, I cannot feel that she would do such a thing."

"Commit suicide, you mean?" McCarty's voice was carefully controlled.

"No more she did, ma'am. Your niece never killed herself. You can be sure of that."

"But she must have." Miss Beckwith sank back in her chair. "No one would harm her. No one had an interest in her death. The people in that house were all strangers to her——"

"Are you sure of that?" interrupted McCarty. "Were they all strangers to you, too, those that you saw at the inquest?"

"Why, of course." She held her head erect, although her chin trembled and her eyes did not meet his. "How could we ever come in contact with people of their social position?"

"That young man, for instance, Mr. Antonio," pursued McCarty, ignoring her question. "Didn't he remind you of any one you know?"

"Mr. Antonio?" she repeated. "I don't remember such a person. Who is he?"

"The young man who has the apartment next to Mr. and Mrs. Foxe, on the fourth floor. He testified to hearing Mrs. Doremus scream, and then going back to his books. Are you sure that you never saw him before, ma'am? It seemed to me that you made away with herself." Miss Beckwith declared coldly. "You may be sure that neither my niece nor any member of our family is acquainted with a single occupant of that house."

"Then how do you account for Miss Rowntree going there and that not once, but twice? Why should she choose that particular place to die if what you seem to think is true, and why should she kill herself, anyway?"

"I don't know; I cannot imagine, Mr. McCarty. I do not believe for a moment that she was ever there before that night; the hall boy was surely mistaken. An ignorant hysterical boy is not to be believed; and my niece's costume was not distinctive——"

"Distinctive enough for you to recognize the body, ma'am, without ever seeing the face," McCarty interposed. "With all those questions in your mind you are willing to let the matter rest?"

"But there is no question to me. I—I'm quite sure that my poor niece made away with herself." Miss Beckwith looked up at him imploringly, but McCarty's jaw was set.

"Quite sure that she went to a certain house just by blind chance, without knowing any one there, and killed herself, with no reason? You can not mean that, ma'am. You couldn't expect anyone to take that view of it."

"It must be true!" She leaned forward across the desk. "Mr. McCarty, I would not have the newspapers and the public learn of this for anything in the world; but I believe you are to be trusted, Mr. Quimby would never forgive me for telling it if he knew, but I must satisfy you and ask you to leave us all in that peace we can find. It is because my poor niece had no reason to go to that house or to—to kill herself—no sane reason—that I am convinced it was her own act. She must have been overcome with madness!"

"Is that what Mr. Quimby thinks?" McCarty demanded. "Was anything wrong with her mind?"

Miss Beckwith bowed her head.

"We have thought so for some time. Indeed, Mr. Quimby was sure of it. This is a family secret; but her own father, my sister's first husband, died insane and Marion suffered an injury a little over a year ago from which we do not believe she ever fully recovered. She has been subject to peculiar moods ever since and has done things for which we can account in no other way."

"Many a girl falls in love with a chauffeur without being crazy," observed McCarty in an elaborately careless tone.

"You—you know that?" A faint flush appeared in the cheeks of his visitor. "It was unfortunate, but it was a mere passing fancy, and she soon forgot all about it. It would be exceedingly distasteful to Mr. Quimby if such a report got about, Mr. McCarty, and a reflection on my poor niece which she would be the first to repudiate now if she were alive. It was in other ways that her malady manifested itself; but we hoped that with careful treatment she would recover in time. Surely we never dreamed that she would do anything violent."

"And that is why you watched her so closely and never left her out of your sight?"

"Yes."

"Was that why you stopped her from communicating with her friends so that she had to bribe the little seamstress, Miss Wilkinson, to take her letters"

"No, no." Miss Beckwith looked down at her twisting hands. "That was because of the other matter; we did not want her to do anything foolish."

"You said, just now, ma'am, that you did not believe Miss Rowntree ever went to the Glamorgan before the night of her death. Where else do you think she went, then? The time of her first visit, according to the hall boy agrees with the time she gave you the slip in the dressmaker's."

Miss Beckwith's trembling lips tightened.

"I have no idea."

"The afternoon before her death, too. Why did she run away from you and go to the bridge to meet the young flying fellow?"

"She didn't. That was merely an indication of her diseased mind. She had wondered away and young Mr. Edwards came upon her by chance. The very fact of her leading him upon that long, aimless journey out of the city is proof of her mental condition."

"Don't you think, ma'am, that her excuse afterward was pretty glib for a lunatic?" McCarty asked slyly.

Miss Beckwith winced.

"I have heard that those who are afflicted in such a manner are wonderfully cunning,' she replied somewhat uncertainly. "Really, this has been such a frightful shock that I have been unable to collect myself sufficiently to analyze every detail."

"That's what I'm trying to do now," said McCarty gravely. "Have you stopped to think about her dying words to me—her reference to the flying man?"

"Don't you see that is the crowning proof of her insanity!" Miss Beckwith exclaimed. "The injury to her side and head was occasioned by a fall from an aeroplane, and Mr. Quimby says that it must have been on her mind ever since."

"It seems to me," remarked McCarty deliberately, "that it is Mr. Quimby who says all this and you that tries to believe it against your better judgment, ma'am. You're forcing yourself to accept it because you don't dare to think of any other answer to it."

"What other answer could there be?" She rose and faced him. "Who would want to take Marion's life? I must believe it; I must, if I am not to go mad, too!"

"But you are not finding it any too easy to convince yourself, are you? Miss Beckwith, you want the truth, don't you? You would rather know than have to just believe blindly, no matter what the outcome of it is? It's your own sister's child that's lying dead. Doesn't that mean more to you than a bit more notoriety on top of what you've had already through this case, if notoriety is all you fear?"

The last words struck her like a blow and as if in a feeble, instinctive effort at self defence she dropped the veil once more over her face.

"Mr. McCarty," she said quietly, "I came here and confided a distressing family secret to you, hoping that you would accept the truth as we do as we must, and stop these useless attempts to probe further into our affairs. Mr. Quimby did not offer a reward for the discovery of my niece's murderer because he knew that no such person existed.

"She was of unsound mind; her death was self-inflicted, and he had no wish to prolong this unnecessary investigation and keep us all continuously in the public eye, nor do we want the truth to become known and cloud poor Marion's memory with such a shadow. Others besides ourselves knew of her infirmity, but they will not speak.

"Then, too, Mr. Quimby knew what zealous activity a reward would promote on the part of the police and he had no desire to see suspicion fall on some innocent person in their mistaken efforts to prove a case. I hope when you think this matter over you will realize that ours is the only possible solution, terrible as it is, and that you and the authorities will not distress us by any further intrusion on our grief."

After she had taken her departure McCarty returned from seeing her to her motor car and, seated in the chair she had just vacated, he gave himself up to troubled thoughts. Miss Beckwith's motive in seeking him out was not definitely clear in his mind.

Suffered Great Agony
FROM PAIN IN STOMACH
FOR OVER 5 YEARS

Most of the misery and ill-health that humanity is burdened with arises from disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. If you are feeling out of sorts, have pains in the stomach, especially after eating, bilious spells, headaches, sour stomach, coated tongue, sallow or muddy complexion, specks floating before the eyes, you should take a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and note the change.

Miss Ida Hogan, Dunrobin, Ont., writes: "For over five years I have suffered great agony from pains in the stomach. I tried several remedies but got no relief until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I started with two vials and before I had one quite used, I found much relief. I continued until I used four vials, and they have completely cured me. That was fourteen months ago and I have not had the slightest return since. The best praise I could give them is not enough."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Food System The Source of Life

Any Derangements of Liver or Kidneys That Interfere With Digestion and Assimilation of Food Rob and Deplete the Body.

St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 15.—It matters not how good your appetite, how you relish your food, or how much you eat, so long as there is anything to interfere with proper digestion and assimilation of the food by the body, strength and vigour will gradually decline and weakness and debility take their place.

The most frequent cause of disordered digestion is sluggish action of the liver, kidneys, and bowels. The whole alimentary canal, through which the food passes on its way through the body, becomes choked and clogged, and the system is poisoned and diseased.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been wonderfully successful in exactly this class of disease, principally because they act directly on the kidneys, liver, and bowels, regulating and invigorating their action, and restoring them to health.

Mr. John Nayes, 224 Munro Street, Peterborough, Ont., states: Having used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with success, I can strongly recommend them. For considerable time I was a sufferer from kidney disease and constipation, and besides being tortured by the shooting pains through the back put up with the other annoying and often distressing symptoms of kidney disorders. Sometimes I would go three or four days without a motion of the bowels and could get no relief.

"After using a few boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I am well again and feeling fine. This treatment seemed to be exactly what I needed, and promptly brought relief and cure."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Hot Water Drinking.

A stomach cleansing treatment is often just as important as a rest for the organ, says Wm. Eastman in Physical Culture. The best ordinary method of stomach cleansing is the drinking of a considerable amount of hot water. Not too hot. Just hot enough so that you can drink it with fair rapidity and take a considerable amount into the stomach in a short time. If you will drink a cup of hot water every five minutes until two quarts or more have been consumed, the result will be unfailing.

Soap Berry Tree.

The jaboncello or soap berry tree grows in the humid parts of western Ecuador. It attains a height of about fifty feet and has wide-spreading branches and immense quantities of fruit of the size and shape of cherries. The nearly transparent yellowish skin and pulp surrounding the round black seeds are so saponaceous as to be used instead of soap by many people of Ecuador, being equivalent to more than fifty times their weight of that material.

Sir Edmund Allenby,

"The Hero of Jerusalem,"

Has Had Notable Career

THIS is the psychological moment for some genealogical sharp to produce an authenticated family tree of Lieutenant General Sir Edmund Henry Hyman Allenby, K.C.B., latest conqueror of Jerusalem. To fit the romance of the occasion it should date back at least as far as the crusades and should show that one of General Allenby's ancestors stood beside Richard Coeur de Lion on one or both of the two occasions when that doughty but unlucky warrior-monarch viewed from afar the walls of the coveted city which he was destined never to enter.

Allenby, is a name with a Norman ring to it, and it is possible that one of Sir Edmund's forbears did actually 'squire the impetuous Richard Yea-and-Nay, but the modern conqueror is too recent a figure in the war limelight for any biographer to have yet dug up such interesting facts. For the present General Allenby will have to be content with the honors that he has won for himself—and these seem ample. Of his ancestry the world knows only that he is not the descendant of a hundred belted earls, but merely comes from what the English are given to calling a "good family." All that he has achieved in the profession of arms has been through his own ability and by his own efforts.

As military ages go in these modern wartimes, General Allenby is not a young officer. Born April 23, 1861, he had passed the age when military geniuses of history gained their greatest laurels long before his name was known outside British army circles. As a matter of fact, probably no one would be more astonished than Sir Edmund himself if, because of his success in Palestine, the world should now acclaim him a military genius. All he has ever pretended to be is just what he was called at the Horse Guards when the war began and a very responsible duty was thrust upon him—a good officer, one who executes a task, whether easy or difficult, with as little fuss and in as short a time as possible.

He was a good officer when, upon leaving Halleybury College, an excellent but unrenowned English secondary school, he entered the Inniskilling Dragoons as a subaltern. He was a good officer, his superiors said, when he served in the Bechuanaland expedition in 1884-85. He was a good enough officer to be made adjutant of his famous regiment in 1889, and so good an officer in the Boer War that he was twice mentioned in dispatches and rewarded for his services by being made a Companion of the Bath. Later, as commander of the Fifth Cavalry Brigade, 1910, he continued to merit the trust and confidence of his superiors. "Allenby is dependable," they said at the Horse Guards. "A good officer," every one agree.

It is little wonder, therefore, that in the dark hours of 1914 the British War Office, seeking a good officer to take command of the cavalry expeditionary force, that forlorn hope that was to grapple with von Kluck's Uhlans, turned to Brigadier-General Allenby. No small part of the credit that is now freely given Britain's "contemptible little army" for the part it played at Mons belonged to Allenby and his troopers. It was, however, at best a losing fight, though glorious in its gallant stubbornness, and the world is always inclined to withhold from losers the garlands it lavishes upon those who actually achieve victories.

We know how that General Allenby, as commander of the Third British Army, continued to prove himself a good officer on the west front during 1916, particularly in the battle of Arras, that began on Easter Sunday of that year. That the British gains in that action were not commensurate with the losses suffered was probably not his fault. That was British strategy then. But until he was transferred to the command of the British forces in Egypt in June last Allenby's name was as wholly unfamiliar as that of Byng itself.

That Sir Edmund is a cavalry officer by preference and by training should occasion no surprise. So far as the British army is concerned, this is a war in which the cavalry has had little to do, but in which cavalry leaders nevertheless have won distinction. Haig himself is a cavalryman, and so was his predecessor, the less aggressive Viscount French. Byng, the man who set things popping at Cambrai as they had not popped since the German Crown Prince sought the glory due a future Emperor at Verdun, had always been in the cavalry arm of the service before the big war and for some time after it began. Since cavalry officers have made good in the trench fighting in France and Flanders, small wonder was it that one should have been chosen for the command in Egypt, where bodies of horses could be used to advantage.

Things had not gone well for the British in Egypt in the early days of the war. It will be recalled how in November, 1914, a Turkish army got within striking distance of the Suez Canal. The Anzacs had their hands full in defending the great waterway, but by December, 1915, the tide had turned and the Turks had been driven back as far as El Arish, 85 miles east of the canal. Then followed a lull of six months, then another Turkish advance, which met with a decisive defeat. The British had driven the Ottomans across the border into Palestine before Allenby's arrival at the front, so that he found affairs in better shape, though far from running smoothly, when he took command. An advance upon Jerusalem had reached a point only about fifteen miles south of that city, while along the coast another column had gone as far as Gaza; but there the campaign lagged until new life was infused into it by the good officer from the western front. Since November, when he struck north, he has taken Beersheba, then Gaza, afterward Jaffa, and now Jerusalem—pretty good evidence of efficiency and enterprise.

Now that General Allenby has once more proved himself a good officer by winning Jerusalem for the British and for Christianity, the question arises: How much real importance should be attached to his success. From a purely sentimental point of view the fall of the shrine of Christendom looms big. Doubtless it has much political value also; even the German press admitted this when the capture of the city was announced.

In the minds of many persons Allenby's drive into the Holy land is associated more or less directly with the progress of that other British expedition up the valley of the Tigris beyond Bagdad. The prospect of there being any co-operation between these two forces is to be considered. From Jerusalem to Bagdad is more than 400 miles as the crow flies, supposing that any crow would have the temerity to cross the Syrian desert without carrying a commissariat. Should Allenby push further along the coast .. is barely possible that the Mesopotamian expedition might endeavor to strike westward and form a junction with him.

Even as it is, the Turks, relieved of the fear of invasion through the Caucasus, may yet decide to throw a far larger force into Syria and Palestine than they have hitherto had there. To Turkish eyes Mecca and Medina are prizes worth having and keeping. In that case Allenby may be called upon to fight harder than he has fought before to retain his conquests. But his British friends and admirers will remain confident that whatever further problems he may have to meet he will continue to prove himself a good officer.

England is Doing Her Share.

The persistent attacks of the Germans and anti-English Irish among us on Great Britain since the beginning of the war have also been directed toward making France, Canada, the United States, and every one else possible dissatisfied with Great Britain's share in the war.

The facts do not substantiate this charge.

Great Britain has 45 million population, in contrast with 39 million for France, 36 million for Italy, 175 million for Russia, and somewhat more than 100 million in the United States.

This 45 million has furnished a far larger proportion of the naval strength and shipping than any other nation, and has done this from the beginning of the war. This has also necessitated bearing most of the odium attached to the blockade which was for the general benefit of all the Allies as well as England.

From the beginning, also, they have furnished more money than any other nation.

In the first two years of the war they did not furnish as many men as either France or Russia, but at present the British army in France is about as large as the French. The British have, besides, an army in Egypt, another at Salonica (as have also the French) and another in Mesopotamia. Moreover, the British Isles have furnished as many men in proportion and suffered as great losses as any of their overseas dominions, besides putting forth an extraordinary industrial effort.—The World's Work.

Youthful Peers at Eton.

Eton College has a larger proportion of nobility among its scholars than any English school in history. The youthful peers at Eton are largely boys who have fallen heir to their titles through the death of their fathers in war. Lord Longford's father was killed at Gallipoli, Lord De la Warr's father was also killed in the army. Other pupils who will take seats in the House of Lords as soon as they reach their majority are Lord Brecknock, Lord Kinnouil, and Lord Ridley.

Prince Henry, the King's third son, is a classmate of Prince Leopold, of Belgium and Prince Sarbjit Singh, son of the Sirdar of Kapurthala. Other students include Lord Carmarthen, Lord Worcester, Lord Clydesdale, Lord Castlereagh, Lord Cardigan, Lord Ashley, Lord North, Lord Knebworth, Lord Hastings, Lord Cholmondeley, and Lord Balniel.

Valued Tablet.

A Babylonian tablet believed to have been written between 600 B. C. and 300 B. C. when translated at the University of Pennsylvania museum some time ago, proved to be one of the missing parts of the epic of Gilgamesh, regarded as one of the oldest and noblest poems in the world and said to have been to the Babylonians what the Iliad was to the Greeks.

Greatest Hoax of War.

Probably the greatest hoax of the war—one which millions believed for a time at least—was the story that from 100,000 to 200,000 Russian troops had arrived in England from Archangel. These troops, so the early stories ran, were moved by night across the United Kingdom in cars with the shades drawn down, and at any moment were likely to appear on the western front with the troops of Great Britain, France, and Belgium.

The story was first printed in New York. It spread throughout America, and was cabled abroad and doubtlessly sent by wireless to Berlin. The English censorship offered no official denial or affirmation of the story, but for a time every steamship from New York brought some individual who imagined he had seen the trains.

Kitchener let the hoax run without doing anything to stop it. Whether it had any effect on the Germans it is hard to tell, but amateur strategists conducting the war from office chairs saw great possibilities in it to stop the great German drive on Paris.

Pope's Income $1,400,000.

The Pope's income is $1,400,000 a year, one-seventh of which is guaranteed by the Emperor of Austria; another seventh comes from vested interests and the remainder is derived from Peter's Pence.—Keokuk Daily Gate City.

You Can't Brush Or Wash Out Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completey dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky, and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Sanitary Fountains.

An investigation of drinking fountains at the University of Minnesota, carried out by the state board of health, led to the rather startling result that the 77 fountains in use at the university, most of which belonged to various supposedly "sanitary" types were found to be improperly constructed to prevent contamination by the consumer, according to the Scientific American. The principal defect was the vertical discharge of the water, making it necessary for the consumer to place his mouth directly over the point of discharge. It was found that the majority of persons drank with the lips touching the nozzle. The investigators devised a new type of fountain in which the discharge is at such an angle that there is no possibility of water falling back from the mouth upon or near the orifice.

TROUBLED FOR YEARS WITH BRONCHITIS
Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup GAVE INSTANT RELIEF

Bronchitis is a disease which is very prevalent during the late winter and early spring, when there are sudden atmospheric changes. It is a condition of inflammation of the bronchial tubes which produces mucous or phlegm. This irritates the throat and causes you to cough in order to get rid of it. The cough may be tight or loose according as to whether this mucous is sticky and hard to remove, or soft and easily expelled.

Bronchitis is not really dangerous but the complications which are liable to follow makes it necessary get rid of it at the first sign. This you can do by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A remedy that has been on the market for over 25 years.

John D. McFarlane, Jr., S.W. Margaree, N.S., writes: "I was troubl for years with bronchitis, and cou not find any relief. It was especia bad on a damp day. I went to a dru gist, and asked him for something stop the constant tickling in m throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which found gave me instant relief. It is best remedy for bronchitis I know and I now take care that I alwa have a bottle of it on hand."

The Intolerable Rooster.

The hen is not at all proud-spirited. She differs in that respect from her rooster spouse. Whether her marriage vows bind her to love and obey him and to drudge and lay for him, I am not ready to state, but it would seem very much that way by the haughty air chanticleer assumes toward her ladyship. Married roosters are far more selfish than husbands of the human tribe. A man, even though he detests housework, will sometimes condescend to carry a scuttle of coal or turn the wringer washday. But you'll never find a rooster willing to interfere with a hen's domestic affairs.—Zim in Cartoons Magazine.

Habits of Crayfish.

The crayfish may be described as a fresh water lobster, and usually lives a purely aquatic life, keeping to the river-bed. Some of the crayfish found in Australia, however, have forsaken the water and excavate burrows in damp soil. The tunnel leading to the heart of the burrow is free from water, but water is always present in the chambers at the end where the crayfish lives. They do much damage to artificial watercourses in the mining districts by riddling the banks and dams.

It Was Ever Thus.

"The fair defendant will be acquitted, of course?" "I expect so," replied the prosecuting attorney. "As soon as she mounted the witness stand and smiled at the jury, nine out of the twelve began to fumble with their neckties and slick down their hair."

Donald's Idea.

Having been taken through the steerage on an ocean voyage, and knowing there were several "classes" on a ship, Donald, in his first conversation with the new English cook, asked, "Did you come over storage?"

Born Together.

Boldness and power are such inseparable companions that they appear to be born together; and when once divided, they both decay and die at the same time.—Henry Venn.

A True Pioneer.

Felling trees which he helped to plant eighty years ago is the unique experience of a man in Devonshire who is within three years of reaching the century mark.

Bible Mention of Ebony.

There is only one reference in the Bible to ebony. It occurs only in Ezra 27:15, as one of the most important commodities imported into Tyre.

Ouija Board.

The so-called ouija board has no more intelligence than any other piece of wood and its movement or action in the supposed answering of questions is controlled or imparted to it either consciously or unconsciously, innocently or fraudulently, voluntarily or involuntarily, by the operator. It is practically the same thing under a new name as the planchette board, which had such a great run in the early days of the spiritualism craze. —Exchange.

Mouth Decorations.

It is amazing how ideas of beauty vary with latitude and longitude. In Japan, the professional beauty loves to appear with golden teeth, in India she prefers them stained red, but in certain parts of Sumatra no lady who respected herself would condescend to have any front teeth at all. They are removed the moment they appear, and strictly suppressed if they should try again.

Utilizing Our Time.

We all need recreation, but we would indeed be acting most unwisely were we to give up all our spare time to the pursuit of pleasure. An evening now and then devoted to worthwhile study, or again utilizing a spare hour to the reading of a humorous story when we feel out of sorts, will without a question, prove a gilt-edge investment.—Exchange.

Waterproofing Concrete.

To stop leakage through concrete, such as tunnel walls, clean the walls thoroughly and paint with a solution consisting of eight and three-quarter pounds of zinc sulphate dissolved in a gallon of water. The zinc sulphate will act on the lime in the cement, forming insoluble calcium sulphate and zinc hydroxide, which fill up the pores in the concrete.

Important Discovery.

It has been discovered that large quantities of the dust that accumulates in certain portions of the apparatus used in making pig iron from iron ores—that is, in the blast furnaces—contains appreciable quantities of potash. The amount found depends on the kind of ore used in the blast-furnace charge.

Origin of Collie's Name.

The collie's name appears to be shrouded in mystery; but there seems to be a fairly reasonable foundation for supposing that it is from "coll" or "collar," on account of the broad white mark round the neck which is seen in the majority of these dogs.

The LOGICAL Treatment for RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA, Lumbago, Constant Headaches, Urinary Derangements, and all Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

Grinding Wheels.

In the manufacture of the modern automobile the grinding wheel plays an important part. In one typical plant, for instance, the grinding wheel stock room contains an elaborate system of sacks for the wheels, and the statement is made that there are now in use 54,941 grinding wheels.

Meaning of "Manger."

The word signifying "manger" occurs in the New Testament only in connection with the birth of Christ. The word in classical Greek means a crib or feeding trough. According to some commentators it signifies the open courtyard attached to an inn.

Good Forage Ground.

In the antipodes stock rangers find that territory covered with some dwarf species of acacia makes splendid forage ground. One of the best species is A. aneura, a shrub sparingly grown in California as an ornamental.

ADAMS BLACK JACK

The Canadians first introduced chewing gum into the trenches and now there's scarcely a soldier on the west front who doesn't consider a good gum like Adams Black Jack a necessity. A stick a day keeps nerves away. Every time you buy it for yourself, buy it for a soldier.

Humor in the Trenches.

The laughable truth is out concerning the fur coats which were supplied to the British soldiers two winters ago in France. Ian Hay, in his new book, "All in It," the continuation of "The First Hundred Thousand," describes these coats and the way in which they were received by the men.

"There has been an issue of so-called fur jackets, in which the Practical Joke Department (officially the Army Ordnance Department) has plainly taken a hand. Most of the garments appear to have been contributed by animals unknown to zoology, or a syndicate thereof. Corporal Mucklewame's costume gives him the appearance of a St. Bernard dog with astrakhan forelegs. Sergeant Carfrae is attired in what looks like the skin of Nana, the dog-nurse in 'Peter Pan.'

"Private Nigg, the undersized youth of bashful disposition, creeps forlornly about his duties disguised as an imitation leopard. As he passes by facetious persons pull what is left of his tail. Private Tosh on being confronted with his winter trousseau observed bitterly:

"'I jined the Airmy for tae be a sojer, but I doot they must have pit me doon as a mountain goat!'"

Marriage Question.

Man sometimes wonders whether or not he wants to get married; with a woman her chief concern is whether or not a certain man is the one she wants to marry.

Economy Tooth Powder.

Equal parts of salt and soda sifted together makes a very good tooth powder. It preserves the teeth, makes them feel nice and smooth.

The Furrow of Life.

In plowing the furrow of life straight, you may plow some flowers under, but you'll plow lots of vermin out.—Exchange.

Humility.

To practice humility look into the sky and remember what thou knowest not.—A Chinese proverb.

On Bidding Adieu.

Let us leave the world wiser and better than we found it, and we shall leave it happier.—Shuttleworth.

Soul's Longing.

The soul's longing is the heart's privilege.

BUYING TITLES IN ENGLAND.

The Check in the House of Lords—A Distinct Gain for Democracy.

It was a sign of the times in which we live that Earl Loreburn's resolution aimed at the purchase of honors and titles in England was adopted with immaterial amendments by the House of Lords. The evil had been growing with the rankness of a fungus. The rush for privy councillorships, knighthoods, baronetcies and seats in the House of Lords suggested the bargain counter. It is a fact that, while the distribution of "honors" by the king upon the recommendation of his prime minister grew steadily in volume, hundreds of aspirants were disappointed. Since the war "to save democracy" began a considerable number of democrats in Great Britain and the Colonies have been ennobled or raised to envied social distinction. And, of course, there were resentment and heart-burning among the applicants who did not see their names on the illustrious scroll, that is to say, in the Gazette. There could be no doubt that, while some of the successful had served the State honorably, others simply wrote checks. It had been so before the war, when political funds yawned for the little scraps of paper, and needs for money have greatly multiplied during the last three years. Serving the state by giving money to carry on the war was highly creditable to the donors, but it should not have borne them into the House of Lords, or into the most exclusive circles, on a flood tide—that was indecent in the circumstances.

Reports of the debate in the House of Lords must have had readers who usually find themselves bored stiff by the "proceedings of Parliament." They are usually dull enough. In fact, all England was interested in the subject. It is curious to note the sensitiveness of some of the members of the "hereditary chamber." They are not disposed to believe that titles and distinctions had been sold; of course, the prime minister knew nothing of the abuse, for he merely submitted his advisers' recommendations to the King; anyhow, where was the direct proof? But prime ministers are not so unsophisticated; they are familiar enough with political ways—and means.

The doubting Thomases had their guns spiked by the evidence of the Earl of Selborne, Earl Loreburn, and other plain-spoken critics of the scandal. One illustration will be sufficient, though many were given. Friends of Mayor George Holman of Leeds, a most public-spirited citizen, thought his name should be in the Gazette and they approached the party Whip. "Yes," said he, "this is a clear case for an honor. What is your friend prepared to give?" Mayor Holman declared that he wouldn't give a penny; his language was stronger. Could the honor be obtained strictly on merit? "Why, no," said the Whip; "an honor he shall not have unless he contributes to my party fund."

The influence of Sir James Gildea, founder of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Families Association, was solicited by an applicant for a title who offered to give $100,000 to that charity for a baronetcy. Sir James flatly refused to have anything to do with the traffic in titles. The Earl of Selborne, who has fought it for several years, declared in the debate that "the abuse was a menace to the purity of public life and was doing great damage to the prestige of the Crown."

The holder of one of the greatest titles in England, the Marquess of Salisbury, struck the popular note when he said that the House of Lords must "speak to the democracy in broad language which could not be misunderstood." In the end the resolution, adopted "without a division," required that "the Prime Minister, before recommending any person for any such honor or dignity, should satisfy himself that no payment or expectation of payment to any party or political fund is directly or indirectly associated with the grant or promise of such honor or dignity." This covers the most flagrant cases, and another paragraph, which calls for "a definite public statement of the reasons for which it [the honor or dignity] has been recommended to the Crown shall accompany the notification of the grant," should exclude the common herd of tuft hunters. It will be more difficult in future to add to the "Beerage" and to translate purse-bursting nonentities to the sacred inclosure of the House of Lords. Democracy is marching on in England.

Bishop of Jerusalem.

Not counting any Turkish troops who may have taken refuge in the city, the population of Jerusalem is about 50,000. These include 30,000 Jews.

Prussia and England three-quarters of a century ago instituted a bishopric of Jerusalem. This step, as "excluding sympathy with the Roman Catholic faith," was one of the reasons for Newman's loss of faith in the Anglican Church. There were three successive bishops.

Alexander, a converted German Jew in Anglican orders.

Gobat, a German Swiss, member of the London Missionary Society, appointed by Prussia.

Barclay, named by England.

The last named died in 1883, and no successor was appointed. Prussia withdrew from the agreement, and the bishopric became a missionary bishopric of the Church of England.

Wales Has Mineral Wealth.

Wales is the richest part of the kingdom in mineral wealth. England produces annually about £2 to each acre; Scotland a little less; but the product of Wales is over £4 per acre.

Thawing Frozen Meat.

Experiments are under way in England with a method for thawing rozen meat without bursting its issues so that it will compare favrably with fresh-killed meat.

Where Happiness Is Found.

Somebody says that happiness is always where we find it, but seldom where we look for it. This may be a good epigram, but not good philosophy for the farm. There we find happiness where we look for it.—Exchange.

As Wise as Anybody.

After Aunt Funny had vainly striven to convince Walter that he was in the wrong she exclaimed: "Walter, I guess I know a few things!" "So do I," was his answer. "I know as few things as anybody."

New Thermometer.

Thermometers have been invented by a Kentucky physician on which the scale begins with zero at the freezing point and is divided into 100 parts until the normal human body temperature is reached.

Just Pork Chops.

Donald often goes to the store with his mother, who is a frugal buyer. One day he went alone to the butcher's. "I want free pork chops," he said, "but no bones or fat or lean."

Etiquette.

There is an ancient saying that "One should never speak of a rope to a man whose father was hanged," and there is a great deal implied in those few words. In effect, is meant that subjects of conversation should be carefully introduced where persons present are not known to a certain extent; that is, that nothing untoward has happened, publicly, at least, that would make any unusual subject apply too openly to anyone especially.

A Huge Shadow.

Shadows, naturally enough are of various sizes, and one can imagine that mountains throw very large shadows indeed. It is said that the peak of Teneriffe, on the largest of the Canary Islands, throws such a huge shadow that it stretches as far as 50 miles across the water, partly overlapping some of the other islands.—Christian Science Monitor.

Made a Hit.

A stenographer has devised a novel way of making a hit with her employer, displaying genius that promises great success for her in the business world. When the boss dictates a letter containing a word she does not know how to spell she does not make the usual guess at it. She looks it up in the dictionary.—Kansas City Star.

Feed Two Oceans.

While making measurements of river flow in the upper Mississippi river basins and in the Hudson Bay recently, the United States geological survey discovered that some of the rivers under investigation empty into the Arctic ocean during certain seasons and into the Atlantic ocean at other times.—Popular Science Monthly.

Useful Palm.

In the lowlands of the delta of the Orinoco river the natives build huts suspended between trunks of Mauritia flexuosa, a palm. They also eat its fruits, its farinaceous pith, its saccharine juice, and use the fibers of its leaf stems for making ropes, hammocks, etc.

Tablets of Stone.

The library of the School of the Sons of the Empire, an ancient Chinese university which, it is said, was in existence a thousand years before Christian era, comprises 182 tablets of stone, whereon are carved all the "13 classics," the essence of Chinese culture.

Mushroom Is Old.

The antiquity of the mushroom's establishment in history may be read both in the Bible and the treaties of the Talmud. The manna that saved the Israelites has been identified as a mushroom of commerce, growing in its natural wild condition.

When Nerve Is Necessary.

"One of my ancestors signed the Declaration of Independence." "That took courage." "I think so." "True enough, but you ought to see the lease I signed this year."

What Friendship Is.

Friendship is the transfiguration of service; the creation of a new motive; redeeming life from its drudgery, and sending the pulse-beat of joy into the most trivial task.—Donald Sage Mackay.

Chance for a Genius.

His System.

Van Speederley—I'd like you to meet my wife, old top. I think that a bold, dashing fellow like you could get her away from me.

Experimenting.

On entering Milliken's room one day his friend, Pingley, found him thumping the piano with all his might and drawing the most discordant noise from the instrument. "What in the name of all that is good are you playing?" asked Pingley. "I am trying to play that score of Wagner's," replied Milliken. "But the score is upside down," said Pingley. "That's true," said Milliken. "I had it the other way up at first, but couldn't make head or tail of it, so I thought I might succeed in this way!"

Stucco for Renovating House.

Many men will "spruce up the old place" when they will not tear down and rebuild. Sometimes it is sentiment, sometimes economy. Renovation can do a lot more than improve the looks of the house. Remodeling and overcoating with stucco make the walls fire-resistant—lowering insurance premiums and increasing safety. It makes the home easier to heat in winter, cooler in summer, and often lowers the cost of repairing or repainting.

"Listening In" in Egypt.

Mohammedans in Egypt are "listening in." The attendance is steadily increasing, and one Sunday four Mohammedan professors were at the preaching service and 15 Mohammedan boys came to the Sunday school for the first time. Their fathers stood outside the window to ascertain what the teaching might be. A number of them were thus listening out of doors.—The Christian Herald.

No "Short Change" Here.

An automatic change calculator which pays out correctly the difference between one dollar and the amount of purchase, is being used in banks, stores, et cetera. The new change maker saves time as well as mistakes, for the change is paid directly to the customer. The cashier merely presses a key marked with the amount of purchase.

Yvyno's First Blunder.

Louis Yvyno was born in sunny Italy. When entering a Winnipeg school at the age of fifteen he was required to fill out an information slip giving name and other personal facts. He was a bright boy and made no mistakes until he came to the line marked "born," followed by a blank space. In this Louis wrote down very neatly the one word, "yes."

Use Language Carefully.

Men should not say more about their neighbors in their absence than they would say to them if they were present. This is safe from a standpoint of future tranquillity and it is sound ethics. The same holds true with writing communications for publication. Whatever cannot be said over your signature should not be said at all.—Exchange.

Lumber Preservative.

It has recently been discovered that gum lumber when immersed in pure gummed spirits of turpentine lasts many years longer when exposed to open air. The usual method of treating the lumber is to give it three coatings and allow it to thoroughly dry after each one.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithea-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Russia's Withdrawal Confirmed To-Day

CONFIRMATION OF RUSSIAN WITHDRAWAL FROM THE WAR

An Official Russian Statement Corrobates Report From Berlin in Regard to Demobilization of Russian Armies ---Main Effect Will Be to Increase Transportation Facilities and Permit of Centralizing German Munition Production.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The confirmation of the German report that Russia has withdrawn from the war is contained in an official Russian statement received here to-day. Although this announcement was made yesterday in several despatches from German sources, this is the first word from Russia regarding her withdraw from the war.

The statement says Russia declares the war with Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria to have ended, Russian troops simultaneously receiving an order for complete demobilization on all fronts. For the defence of the frontier some detachments of younger soldiers will be left.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Russian demobilization will have scant effect on the Western front situation, military men believed to-day. A few more Teuton divisions will probably be available for transfer from the East to the West, but all evidences are that the Germans shifted all the divisions they wanted from the Eastern front some time ago.

The main effect will be to release transportation facilities and permit of centralizing German munition production more completely for the Western front.

Teuton troops cannot be completely removed from the Eastern front, despite the demobilization, it is held.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BERNE, Feb. 12.—"The Central Powers must try to force Trotsky to a denite peace treaty," the Frankfurter Zeitung declares in discussing Russia's withdrawal from the war. "It cannot be foreseen what attitude the Central Powers will adopt," the newspaper said.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—(Official).—A hostile raiding party attacked one of our posts last night, north-east of Epehy, but was driven off by our fire.

Yesterday evening Manchester troops successfully raided German trenches west of Labassee. Many casualties were inflicted on the enemy at slight cost to ourselves, and seven prisoners and a machine gun were captured.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 12.—Emperor Karl has decided to ask Baron Von Seydler, the Austrian Premier, to form a new Cabinet, Vienna despatches said to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Further news was awaited to-day of the labour demonstration in Denmark, in which country the industrial unrest appears to have spread.

Strikers attacked the Government buildings and engaged in hand-to-hand fighting with the police in Copenhagen yesterday, according to despatches received here.

Armed with revolvers, sticks and paving stones, the strikers are reported to have attacked the Ministerial buildings and the Treasury. "They demanded possession of money" at the latter place, one despatch said.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 12.—Kaiser William's health is in such a state that it is necessary for him to transfer his personal headquarters to a spa, where he will "take a short cure," German newspapers, received here to-day, declared.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

ROME, Feb. 12.—The Pope favours the Swiss Red Cross movement against the use of poisonous gases in warfare, and probably will act officially in the matter, it was learned authoritatively here to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

ROME, Feb. 12.—"Great expectations were aroused" at the opening of Parliament here to-day, over Premier Orlando's statement regarding the Inter-Allied Conference at Versailles.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Active local operations were carried out last night by the French. German raiding parties were beaten back. The following official account of these operations was given out to-day:

"The night was marked by great activity on the part of French detachments. North of Aillette a bold raid, carried out in the vicinity of Bouconville, enabled the French to bring back twenty prisoners and two machine guns. In the Woevre the French made several successful incursions into the German lines. West of Renenauville 250 Germans were captured. Other German efforts in the Champagne, Woevre and Vosges obtained no results."

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 12.—Kaiser William's health is in such a first word from Russia regarding her withdrawal from the war.

AUSTRIANS TORN TO PIECES BY THE ITALIAN ARTILLERY

Enemy Renew Their Attacks on the Northern Front West of the Brenta River But Were Held in Check By the Italian Troops

BERLIN CLAIMS GAINS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, Feb. 12.—The Austrians yesterday renewed their attacks on the northern front west of the Brenta river, but were held in check by the Italians. The Austrian columns were torn to pieces by the Italian artillery and attacks were stopped, says to-day's official report.

BERLIN, (Via London), Feb. 12.—After a day of lively artillery fire on the Sette Communi Plateau, on the Italian front, the Austrians attacked south of Sasso Rosso, clearing supporting positions and capturing nearly 180 prisoners.

Sergt. "Buff" Guerin Visiting In Flint

Sergt S. T. ("Buff") Guerin, who went overseas with the 4th Battery in the early months of the war, is at present on a visit to his brother-in-law, Mr. Richard Holt, 187 Mary street, Flint, Mich.

In an interview he stated:

"The very best thing that can be done by America is to let Garfield and Baker go on unhampered in their work of getting the troops across. Before summer is over the whole country will be patting Mr. Garfield on the back for the personal inconveniences he has recently caused it."

Sergt. Guerin believes that the war will be won before the end of this year. He referred to the fact that there are now left only 1,800 of the 33,000 men who composed Canada's first contingent. Sergt. Guerin expects to resume his duties at the C.P.R. freight sheds on his return here.

FRANK JENNE Says:

It is to your advantage to invest in a suit during this month. I have secured permission from Semi-Ready Ltd., of Montreal, to use the same samples for February as I have used during the past eight months, and by selecting a suit from this range you will save at least 20 p.c., as wool is advancing every day.

HOCKEY.

There will be no practice of the George Street Church League team to-night.

ULTIMATUM IS SERVED

Germany Demands that Romania Shall Make Peace Immediately and the Roumanian Cabinet has Resigned

OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The State Department to-day officially announced that Germany served an ultimatum on Roumania, demanding immediate peace, and that the Roumanian Cabinet has resigned.

CONGRATULATES HINDENBURG.

BERNE, Feb. 12.—The Kaiser to-day wired Field Marshal Hindenburg that Russia's readiness to withdraw from the war, was due to Hindenburg's "magnificent victories." Because of this, he said, Hindenburg and the German army are the real "peace delegates." The Kaiser wired congratulatory messages to Emperor Karl and the Sultan.

EXPECT STRIKE TO END TO-DAY

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 12.— The nation wide railroad strike was expected to be settled to-day.

Refusal of British and Italian workers to join the movement, through the belief that it was instigated by German propaganda, is thought to have thwarted the strikers' plans.

POLAND TO PROTEST

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 12.— The Polish Government will formally protest settlement of the Ukraine frontier by Central Powers, at the expense of Poland, Dutch newspapers learned to-day.

By the separate peace pact effected between the new Ukraine Republic and the Central Powers at Brest-Litovsk Sunday, the former country was given a large portion of territory usually regarded as belonging to Poland.

OVER 1000 MEN OUT OF WORK

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 12.—Over one thousand men in this district are out of work to-day as a result of the order cutting off the natural gas supply of factories. Important production work is being seriously hampered, and petitions, which are being circulated, will be rushed to Toronto. Several delegations went to-day representing the manufacturers.

George Street Church Favours Four-Year Term

A referendum vote on the pastoral term of the Methodist church is being taken by the Quarterly Official Boards of the Methodist church of Canada. The question on the ballot is as follows:

"Are you in favour of the continuance of the present time limit of the pastoral term?"

A vote taken by the George street Methodist church Official Board resulted in a negative vote of three, and an affirmative vote of twenty.

"Allies' War Aims Provide Fair Basis Of Settlement"

AUSTRIA IS READY TO ACCEPT PEACE TERMS OF ALLIES

Austrian Rulers Are Afraid of the Future and Hindenburg's Offensive Cannot Be Long Delayed If it is to Avoid Austria Falling to Pieces---People Cry For Bread and Peace.

Special significance attaches to the following despatch as it reveals the conditions behind Count Czernin's sp.. ch, to which President Wilson yesterday replied. This is the second of a series of despatches revealing the actual conditions in the Central Empires.

(By William Philip Simms—Copyright 1918 by the United Press).

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 12.—Austrian workers, before taking up their tools, following the recent strikes, did three significant things—

They laid down conditions forcing Foreign Minister Czernin to adhere to the Wilsonian programme; sent a delegation to Emperor Karl, who stated, "Peace is my only aim, day and night"; and formed a permanent committee to maintain a watch on the Government and force it to keep its promises.

The same causes which unchained the strike continue. Another and graver social disturbance is possible any day. The Austrians want peace, and are opposed to dying for pan-German dreams of conquest.

ARE READY TO ACCEPT.

I know for a fact that an Austrian official, now in Switzerland, declared that Austria is ready to accept President Wilson's peace terms.

The Austrian rulers are afraid of the future, especially if the war continues. They have already had to back down to avoid trouble.

The strong, new Hungarian party plans a separate Hungarian army. The Karolyi party refuses to join the Government party, because it wants an independent Hungary. The Tisza party is undecided.

The Czechs are suspicious toward Germany and have asked the appointment of an Austro-Hungarian Council to watch their interests in the peace conference. The pan-Germans are equally suspicious of their neighbours, and are calling each other names.

But the masses of the countries feel the same—the cry of both peoples is for bread and peace.

BOLSHEVIK MOVEMENT GROWS.

The Bolshevik movement is rampant and growing in Austro-Hungary, and the country is menaced by division and dismemberment. The Monarchists are scared, as are the pan-Germans, who are keenly aware of events.

The Austrian Bolsheviki are headed by Otto Bauer, who recently returned from Russia, where he was held as prisoner.

The movement is spreading rapidly among the Czechs, Jugo Slays and kindred races, who are demanding an immediate peace and liberty.

The recent strikes probably had nothing in common—the movement was spontaneous. The Socialists opposed strikes, admitting they surprised even them, who are still obediently a part of the Government blocs.

The Socialists assumed charge of the strikes and ordered the strikers to return after 48 hours, the leaders saying they were not consulted by the strikers.

The fact is Austria-Hungary is hard hit by the war. The people are suffering enormously.

MANY DEATHS IN VIENNA.

The Vienna Economis Neus reported 45,000 deaths in Vienna in 1917, against 24,000 births. There were over 12,000 deaths from tuberculosis, which was enormously increased on account of the poor food.

A statement was made in the Austrian Parliament that half the deaths in Austria during 1917 resulted from Tuberculosis. It was estimated there were 120,000 deaths from that cause in Austria last year. At Prague, in one week, the deaths from consumption exceeded the births.

With the Bolshevik movement hourly gaining, which may at any time link up with the recent strikers, and both with the Socialists, it is small wonder Austria fails to view Hindenburg's offensive favourably. Likewise there are reasons for terror gripping the hearts of war party members. Austria is in no position to continue an unpopular war. The Hindenburg crowd realizes the end must come soon.

Therefore the offensive must not be delayed, lest Austria fall to pieces, and with her, Prussia.

MUST STAND HIS TRIAL ON SEDITION CHARGE

(Canadian Press.)

ITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 12.—Paul Leinster of Hespeler, who is alleged to have declared "he would not contribute any money to defeat his nation" must stand trial at the Assizes here, where the Grand Jury has returned a true bill against him on a sedition charge. No bill was returned in the sedition cases against H. Odarburg and I. H. Heuber. The Gerbig mured trial will probably be commenced this afternoon.

Important Statement Made By King George at the Opening of British Parliament—It is Expected This Session Will Be Followed By a General Election.

GOVERNMENT CRITICIZED

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.—"The aims for which my allies and I are contending recently were set forth by my government, a statement which received emphatic approval from my people throughout the Empire, and provides a fair basis for settlement of the present struggle," King George declared to-day in opening parliament.

ASSEMBLED EARLY.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 12. — Members of both Houses of Parliament assembled early to-day for the opening of the eighth session of the longest Parliament in modern times — a session which is virtually certain to be the last, and which will be followed by a general election upon largely extended franchise with women voting, for the first time in the country's history.

King George, accompanied by the Queen and the Prince of Wales, who is on leave from the Italian front, performed the opening ceremony at noon in the absence of some of the customary spectacular features.

It was decided that in view of the war, peers and peeresses will not wear their gorgeous titual robes and coronets.

The proceedings on this occasion probably will be full of interest and importance, and may cover the whole field of war effort. Political circles have been buzzing the past few days, with various rumours, showing that severe criticism of the government is to be expected in the debate. One rumour is to the effect that a hostile amendment condemning the government will be moved from the Opposition bench.

Complaints that Ministers have interfered with the military chiefs have been resuscitated recently and voiced outspokenly in a section of the press. It is assumed that Premier Lloyd George will reply with an important statement.

AUSTRALIAN GIRLS PROTEST WITH VIM.

Their Troops Wed 800 British Girls Monthly.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Australians are now marrying English and Scotch girls at the rate of 800 monthly, preference being given to Scotch lassies. The Australian Government will grant assisted passages at a reduced price to wives wishing to go to Australia after the war.

Meanwhile, Australian girls, says the Daily Mail's Sydney correspondent, are resentfully protesting already that there are not enough men to go round.

JAILS TO LET.

Hon. Mr. Rowell, as Liberal leader, persisted in his advancing of prohibition for Ontario, till it was accomplished. His successor in the leadership is alive to the necesisty of providing for meeting the "disastrous" results of prohibition. The closing of the bar has resulted in such a decided decrease of crime, that many of the jails of the province are virtually empty. Mr. Proudfoot considers this a waste, and as a man of ideas suggests a remedy. He proposes a consolidation of the jails of the province, using one for a group of counties, thus making a great saving in avoiding their unnecessary maintenance.

We can't afford to keep our jails empty as monuments to our superior public virtue and as reminders of the benefit of sober habits; and here Mr. Proudfoot suggests their use, as a solution of another problem, the provision of more room for the care of our unfortunates who have to be looked after in public institutions. He suggests that the closed jails be employed as homes for the care of the feebleminded or some similar purpose.

It would be a realization of poetic justice if buildings erected and maintained for the housing of direct drink-created crime, should be used for the shelter of the indirect fruits of generations of drunken parentage, the feeble minded and otherwise physically or morally degenerate.

We have yet to hear from the Fuel Controller or anybody else, one valid argument in selecting Saturday, instead of Tuesday, as a heatless day.

PURCHASING COMMISSIONS.

In regard to purchasing commissins, it stands to reason that where business methods alone and desire for effectiveness are the sole considerations in purchasing, there is greater certainty of avoidance of waste and better value for the money expended. The purchasing department of the Canadian Pacific railway is governed alone by business considerations. The object being to get the maximum of quality at the minimum of price. This policy carried into effect, means a tremendous saving of money and greater effective values. The Purchasing department of the Canadian Pacific railway, placed at the disposal of the British government, made purchases aggregating in value, 59 millions of dollars. It is assumed, having regard to the distribution of market conditions, that 59 million dollars of value were received by the British government, much more than would have been realized if the purchasing had been done by a government in which the spirit of party patronage was a factor.

We shall have gone a long way when, in the administration of war interests and national interests, business principles, and not political considerations, are the motive of action. It is often made a reproach, no doubt largely justified, that in plentiful Canada, there is as much waste in food and other things as there is economical and useful employment of food and other articles. And it is also safe to say that in public administration, under the patronage system, there is almost as much money wasted as is expended in the way of realizing value in service and result.

It is evident that the Kaiser is not as good a man as Judas was—"and Judas went out and hanged himself."

USE THE SURPLUS.

The most practical patriotism can be made to consist with universally increased cultivation of home gardens and vacant lots. With energetic production of this kind households can supply themselves with a large bulk of green things, which, used as diet, can contribute very importantly to saving of foods required for shipment abroad, especially wheat.

Largely due to last year's "amateur" gardening, there are large supplies of potatoes, parsnips, turnips, carrots and onions—in excess of the quantities usually consumed by the people.

It may be an unpalatable suggestion that these foods, all of which are wholesome and nourishing, might be used more plentifully, and bread and foods, containing wheat ingredients, and meat, be used more sparingly. Unless our surplus of vegetables are consumed before the new crops come in they will be wasted, and this is a time when we can't afford to waste anything, especially in the form of food.

The counsel of the cognos cesti is, therefore, use more vegetables that we may save wheat and meat for export to the Mother Country, and our Allies.

A little housewifing ingenuity can make palatable dishes of potatoes, onions, parsnips, carrots, etc. They contain the elements necessary for the human body; and for our physical well being a change of diet is often, if not always, beneficial. Besides, there is the element of patriotism by eating more vegetables; we save foods essential for feeding our armies—that is, foods that can be transported long distances—and, in that way we contribute to helping win the war. Then, when the winter passes, and our home gardens face us, we can grow more vegetables and green things and use them to save exportable foods.

The conditions requiring the adoption of such expedients may be considered "hard times"; but, if we are constrained to modify our foods we can at least eat them in peace and safety, and not as our soldiers are forced to do, in the roar of great guns, bomb-filled air, and the knee-deep mud of the trenches.

Liberals who eschewed party and swallowed the Union Government must be doing a litle "chewing" now.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—It is with plesurable interest that those of us interested in a wise democratisation of labour, notice our local Trades and Labour Council coming into more public prominence of late, taking an interest in our municipal control. It is the indicator of progress, and a growing knowledge of a power to enforce progress. What is now needed are educative lectures and publications in the press of the aims, achievements and the true value of the workers of this Dominion. Is the labour of Canada making strides to power, as compared with other countries? Australia has a Labour Government, and it does not require a great prophet to foretell a Labour Government in Britain after the war. The war has tended to hasten profound social changes throughout the world, but Canada is surprisingly conservative. The inner significance of this war has to do with the emancipation of labour, and the sooner our leaders realize this fact the better, and utilize their intelligence in guiding its progress along peaceful legislative lines, and so avert chaos and revolutionary trouble. As remarked by an American, "This age is weary of polite and weak camp followers; weary of servility." The age calls for courage, strong character, for men with convictions of their own, and who have courage to act on them. Two lights are seen in one's horizon; one the slowly rising sun of human brotherhood, which is the workers' goal. The other light is in the possession of the capitalist class, the fast fading marsh light of power. Labour should be a strictly independent party, standing entirely on its own principles, owing allegiance to no one. We have a right to experiment in government, and to make blunders, in order to discover new truths. When labour realizes—"and, remember, this is true"—that the working classes have a potential, an economic power to-day, far beyond the political power represented by their votes. It is a leverage of which we should become more and more aware. Our first loyalty must be to our class. Not liberal but conservative; or stand by this party or that party, but stand by the Labour Party and recognize it by no other name. Win the war, it is now in labours interest, for, as before stated, the inner significance has to do with the emancipation of labour, which means a higher standard of civilization. To achieve success, we must more thoroughly organize, unite and federate our fellow-workers. We must establish more fully faith in ourselves, and confidence in each other. Stand shoulder to shoulder midst stress and strife, make fraternity the principle of our every-day lives; and impress upon our fellow-workers the necessity of helping to bear each other's burdens.

Would it be possible for the Trades and Labour Council to issue a periodical, or some type of literature, to keep the working class in close touch with local progress and educative labour items?—Yours,

T. T.

Holland To Join Germany Within 2 Months, He Predicts

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 — Holland will be forced to enter the war on the side of Germany within two months to save its people from starvation.

That was the statement of Dr. W. H. Van Loon, formerly a member of the faculty of Cornell University. He arrived aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam after an extended stay since last July in the Netherlands.

"The people in the United States do not understand conditions in Holland," said Dr. Van Loon. "Within two months there will be absolute starvation unless foodstuffs are allowed to enter the country from overseas. Straving peoples are driven to desperate straits. Germany offers them food from Roumania. If they are compelled to take this or die, what can be expected?

"Furthermore, the people of Holland do not understand why the government of the United States is preventing shipments of food and holding up its vessels. Very little news regarding affairs here gets to Holland. The people over there really are at a loss to know reasons for the embargo. Many of them are still ignorant of the reason prompting the United States to enter the war.

"I believe that better arrangements could be made for getting American news to Holland than now obtain, and that the question of shipments of foodstuffs should be given serious consideration."

Speaking of conditions in Germany, Dr. van Loon said:

"I am informed from reliable sources that the German navy intends sending out massive submarine cruisers next month. These will be armed with heavy ordnance. Some will carry 15-inch guns, it is said, and will be able to hold their own against well-armed war ships."

Dr. van Loon said he had heard that the impending German drive may be against the American forces.

GERMANY'S WAR LOSSES.

The Point of Complete Exhaustion Will Soon Be Reached.

The announcement that Germany will call up early in the year 1918 all the lads who will be eighteen at any time during that year furnishes far more dependable evidence of how the war is going than her victories on the Italian front or her defeats in Belgium and France. Shrewd observers no longer expect a decision as the result of a great battle or series of battles. The men who will determine when peace must be had at any price are the officers of the German High Command, who control the nation's man-power. That it is failing fast the whole world knows; how fast is known only to Hindenburg, Ludendorf, and their subordinates, to whom the daily lists of casualties are accessible.

The published German lists are far from up to date, and for that reason, if for no other, are no longer reliable. It is believed that they never were reliable in the disclosure of the total number of wounded. The experience of Great Britain has been that of every four men hit not more than one is killed outright or dies of his wounds. In recent engagements of our Canadian troops the proportion has been nearer one in five. Yet the German lists as published up till July 31st give totals of 1,158,601 killed and only 2,922,420 wounded, while 710,454 are returned as missing. Probably over half the men under the heading missing are prisoners, and the remainder were killed and buried by the British, French, or Russians. Their names remain among the missing because there was nothing upon their bodies when found to establish identity. It would be within the mark, therefore, to say that up to July 31st, the German dead and the missing, who were almost certainly dead, totaled a million and a half. The wounded were returned at slightly less than three millions, so that the German ratio of killed to wounded was one to two. The conclusion is forced upon us, in face of our own experience and that of Great Britain, that these figures are not correct, and that Germany, with a million and a half of dead, must have had four and a half million wounded.

That was only up till July 31st, before the battle of Ypres began. Her losses during the past four months have been not less than half a million men, an unusually high proportion having been killed. The strain forces her to order out boys of seventeen, and to put lads of eighteen into the front line, where they are being used up far more quickly than they can be replaced by the still younger boys. There must come a time soon when the permanent losses will rise to a total so stupendous that even the power of autocracy will no longer be sufficient to still the despairing cries of the German people or to provide man-power for the front. Germany is far nearer exhaustion than may seem possible to those who look only at her victories in Russia and Italy, and forget the terrible losses to which her Western armies are subjected week by week with remorseless perseverance by the British and French troops opposed to them.

Killed in Bathtub.

A young man was found dead in the bath tub in his home in Toronto some time ago. Investigation showed that he had been killed by coming in contact with a bare electric lamp cord, carrying 118 volts, while standing in the water.

Boss of Everything.

"But," exclaimed the man of delicate sensibilities, "will your conscience permit you to do as you suggest?" "Look here, friend," answered the politician, "I am accustomed to be boss, even of my own conscience."

At the Party.

Dorothy was invited to a party where all the other girls were a few years older than she. On arriving home she said to her mother: "Mother, I had an awfully good time, and I was the bahiest one there."

Homemade Floor Polisher.

When polishing floors make a thick pad of felt or velvet and fasten it over an old worn-out broom. This makes an excellent polisher and saves the trouble of kneeling on the floor.

Toast to Women.

Woman is like the reed which bends to every breeze, but breaks not in the tempest.—Archbishop Whately.

Ostriches' Toes.

Ostriches in South America have three toes; those in Africa only two.

Watching German Fleets.

War operations in the North Sea, especially the activity of the German fleet, have been in view of the residents of the west coast of Jutland all summer, says a despatch from Copenhagen. So frequent have been the manoeuvers of the German fleet along that coast that the people of Holmslands Downs have become quite well acquainted with the German naval tactics.

Zeppelines, waterplanes, mine vessels, torpedo-boats, destroyers, and submarines pass day after day along the coast outside the territorial limit, and occasionally the sound of guns at a distance carries the message that the English naval forces are not idle either.

When zeppelins or waterplanes show themselves in the south off the Downs above the international water, it seldom takes a long time before German mine sweepers, two and two together, often several pairs in company, make their appearance in the south, and it does not require a very sharp observer to find out that lined in between each pair of mine sweepers is a submarine. If the flying craft signal peace and no danger, the trawlers proceed boldly, stopping only at the northern end of the mine belt, where they turn round; the submarines evidently do not any longer need assistance.

Until midsummer the trawlers used to stop a little before they were off Sondervig. Later on, after the extension of the English mine area, they generally proceed farther north, until off Hirtshals.

Gabriele D'Annunzio.

At first sight there is not much connection between dropping bombs from aeroplanes and poetry. Still Gabriele D'Anunzio seems to take to one equally with the other. Before the war he was Italy's leading writer, to-day he is, apparently, Italy's leading aviator. He has received four medals for conspicuous bravery, and was the leader in the last raid, which successfully bombed the naval station at Cattaro. It was, perhaps, a premonition of this that made him so obnoxious to Count von Bernstorff. The ex-ambassador used generally to explain that the poet's activities had been bought and sold. Inquiries as to the paymaster were always disposed of airly. Anyhow the poet was easily with the Count's trinity of dislikes—the others were Lord Grey and von Bethmann-Hollweg.

Monument of Tears.

Marking the dividing line between Europe and Asia and of Russia and Siberia, at the summit of the Ural mountains, is the "Monument of Tears," a white triangular pyramid significant to unfortunate exiles.

The Swedish Almanac.

The Swedish same almanac differs from English almanacs in giving, besides the usual information, a Christian name for each sex for every day of the year, says London Graphic. The names set forth have to receive the approval of the king. The object aimed at is to secure a greater choice of names for parents and to avoid the endless repetition of a dozen or so names. A similar name almanac is issued under royal authority in one of the German states.

Strict Accounting.

A business man requires those who handle money to account for all expenditures, holds an employee responsible for the full amount trusted to him and demands vouchers for all disbursements. Even then he may not be satisfied without a cash audit by an accountant. Material should be accounted for on exactly the same theory as cash itself (although possibly less rigorously), says Stephen Gilman, in Industrial Management.

Fate and Fancy.

Many of us feel that Fate has not treated us fairly—that if we had had such and such an opportunity how full and satisfying life would be, says a student of human nature. But Fate is pretty accurate, after all. If we only look around us we will discover and all too quickly, that those whom we consider more "fortunate" have as much and even more to contend than we have.

English, You Know.

"An' so you're goin' to teach French at the school, Mr. Canewell?" said the grocers' wife. "Well, it's as well that some folk can teach people, for I often think it must be shockin' difficult for furriners who come here. For instance, take the word 'air' for example. There's the 'air on our 'eads, the hair of the hatmosphere, the 'are they 'unts, an' air you quite well? Yes, it must be awful confusin'."

Man's Efforts Show Worth.

Character is best seen in the pursuit of its own ideals. Left to himself, man finds the level of his own thinking. His leisure hours are the index of his inner worth. It's what a fellow tries to be that shows his aim, declares Gitt. It's easy enough to move along with the flowing tide. It's struggle against odds that tells of character. The world may never see your effort because it is engrossed in itself. But you will find the response of effort in increased strength and multiplied power. Even if you never succeed in realizing an ideal, you are a better man for having made the attempt.

Little Skeptic.

Caroline and Tom were five and two years old. An expedition to a park had been planned when father brought home to Tom a picture book of wild beasts. Caroline was delighted. "Because, mamma, if we did not show pictures of the animals first to Tom he might see them in the park and say 'I don't believe.'"

Diplomatic.

Bobby (entertaining sister's beau)—"Effie told ma yesterday you was born to be a politician." Mr. Simpton—"A politician? Why does she think that?" Bobby—"That's what ma asked her, and she said because you can do so much talkin' without committing yourself."

A Dog's Advantage.

Scientists say that a dog's possession of a sixth sense is proved by the fact that a dog carried far from home will return directly when it escapes. Well, for one thing, comments the Louisville Courier-Journal, the dog is not confused by rural directions for taking the right road.

Smith Township 1818-19

By Thomas W. Poole, M.D.

(Written in 1867)

The present year marks the one hundredth anniversary of the original survey and settlement of the township of Smith. A movement is on foot to celebrate the event some time during the coming summer and the matter is now in the hands of the Township Council and other interested parties. In 1867 Thomas W. Poole, M.D., published a sketch of the early settlement of Peterborough and of each township. In a chapter devoted to Smith township, the appended information is to be found. In perusing this article it is well to remember that the book was published in 1867, and that the events recorded date from the first settlement of the township up to the time of publication.

Chapter twenty-one of the book deals with the Township of Smith as follows:

The survey of the township of Smith was just completed in 1818, when a number of colonists who had sailed that year from Cumberland, in England, found their way to that township for the purpose of forming a settlement. There was as yet no semblance of a road through the almost unbroken forest from Port Hope, and they accordingly chose the route by way of Rice Lake and the Otonabee River. On arriving at Smith, the first thing done was to erect a temporary log house on the first lot west of the communication road, which is a small triangular piece of ground, just outside of the present limits of the Town of Peterborough. Here they lived in common, until by mutual assistance, small houses or shanties, were erected on their several lots, to which they then removed.

The names of those first settlers who comprised this group, were William Dixon and his family of five sons, Joseph Lee and his sons John and George; Robert Milburn, Robert Walton, John Walton, (not the late reeve and no relative), Walton Wilson, Thos. W. Milburn, John Smith, and his son, Joseph Smith. These were spoken of collectively as "the colony" settlers, to distinguish them from others of an early period.

The following were also among the early pioneers, having settled in the township during the same season, (1818), and but a little while later than those already named: John Harvey, Ralph Bickerton, Alexander Morrison, Jacob Bromwell, Robert Nicholson, James Mann and his son, James, Thomas Lockhart, and John Yates. Among those from one to three years later, were Walter McKibbon, Samuel McKibbon, William Tully, Thomas Robinson, Isaac Nicholson, Silas Pearson, Joseph Walton and sons, the eldest of which was the late reeve of Smith; Matthew and Richard Bell, John Edmison, Ephriam Jackson and sons, and Thomas Milburn.

These names constitute the roll of honor among the early settlers of Smith—men who by their courage in penetrating the forest, and their example in enduring and finally overcoming its difficulties and hardships, laid the foundation of a fine settlement, in connection with which it is but fitting that their names should be remembered as those of practical patriots, whose deeds remain, and the fruit of whose earnestness and industry it is to be hoped their children will long enjoy.

The first requisite to procure land in those days was to take the oath of allegiance, on which a certificate was issued as evidence of the fact. A location ticket for the lot sought was then granted for which a small fee was charged. Owing to the wild and unsettled state of the township when the first of these were issued, "the colony," or first settlers, were not required to make any other payment than this mere nominal one; but in later years, a fee of $25 was charged to others on the issuing of their deed. Before a full title to the land was procured, an affidavit made by two persons setting forth that the settlement duties were performed, and a house at least 18 x 20 feet in size erected, had to be presented at the land office, which for some years rendered a second journey to Toronto a matter of necessity. The performance of the settlement duties was not so rigidly exacted in this township as in Otonabee, in connection with which they will be more clearly described.

The first settlers in Smith encountered difficulties and privations: ? which we, now, can have but a faint conception. Unaccustomed as many of them were to the new scenes in which they found themselves placed—with scant provisions, and separated by long wastes of wood and water from their fellow kind, their situation with their wives and little ones, must have been at times appalling; and by less indomitable spirits, would have been relinquished in despair. Looking back upon it now in the light of their present prosperity, what have they not achieved! Such brave men are the true patriots, whose names deserve to be handed down in the annals of our history for future generations.

During the first few years great difficulties were often felt in procuring the necessary provisions with which to support life. These had to be brought all the way from Port Hope or Cobourg, in the most laborious manner, and in the total absence of even the most ordinary roads; the only guide being the "blaze" upon the trees through the interminable forest, in which they seemed entombed. Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered at that whole families were often for weeks without tasting bread, and that the herbs and succulent roots of the rich woods were often called into requisition to lengthen out their scanty fare.

Late in the autumn, during one of these critical junctures, a number of the younger men of the settlement started in company for Port Hope, to bring in a supply of provisions, of which their families began to be sorely in need. The journey was made by way of the Otonabee River and Rice Lake. The season was already advanced and a keen frost setting in, what was their surprise and mortification to find themselves next morning hemmed in by an icy barrier which stretched away in the distance, and blocked up the mouth of the river through which their course lay. Imagine their impatience at being thus delayed, well knowing that during their absence their loved ones at home were living on short allowance, and their children vainly stretching out their hands for bread. On the next day the ice had become sufficiently strong to support them, and they proceeded on their way over its glassy surface, dragging their canoe, with their provisions, behind them. This is but a sample of the difficulties of which those early years furnish many examples.

Not even after their first small clearings were made, and they began to sow and reap their tiny harvests, was their condition greatly improved. How they watched the wheat as it grew, and tasted of the pulpy grain as it hardened and matured in the kernel! But there was no mill, and their utmost ingenuity could not convert it into the bread for which they longed with all the force of early relish. In this dilemma, the stumps of trees, or some of the larger logs, were hollowed out into pot-shaped cavities, in which a large mallet was made to fall, to crush the grain; the process being aided by the spring of a sapling bent over for that purpose, or the unwieldly lever still used for raising the bucket in farm wells. Wheat was boiled, roasted, and as a food for the children, was even chewed by their parents, besides being thus pounded, in order to convert it into food.

The more robust and vigorous, indeed, not infrequently shouldered a bag of wheat, and carried it through the woods of Monaghan, Cavan and Hope, to Smith's Creek, as Port Hope was then called, returning with it ground, to the great joy of the household. On such journeys it was usual to take along a supply of potatoes to be eaten on the way, a sufficient being concealed beneath some friendly root, or convenient wind-fall at about midway of the distance to be used on the way home.

A little later an apology for a mill was erected on Galloway's Creek, in Cavan, and a now leading and wealthy farmer in Smith, informs us that after the family were two weeks without flour, he, then a young man, took the oxen and the sleigh, and wended his way through the woods to Galloway's. Winter was setting in, and he found the wheel silent and the water wheel frozen and immovable. Determined to have the flour, he set to work with a will, but after chopping away the ice and spending nearly all night in clearing obstructions, a few rounds was the utmost the machine could be urged to go, and he had to trudge back weary and disappointed.

About the year 1821, the little mill erected by Mr. Adam Scott, on the bank of the Otonabee at Peterborough, and which has been already described, was set in motion, and imperfect though it was, it must, nevertheless, have been a great boon to settlers so situated.

A small grist mill was erected by Jacob Bromwell, one of the early settlers of Smith, which came into operation just before the mill erected by the government in 1827. Bromwell's mill was a frame structure, erected at the mouth of a small creek which enters the Otonabee River just below Mr. Snyder's saw mill. In point of size and usefulness, it was about on a par with Adam Scott's; and was but a brief time in use—the erection of the larger mill referred to, having superseded the necessity for both of these lesser structures.

A deputation from the early settlers in Smith waited upon His Excellency, Sir Peregrine Maitland, to express the disadvantages under which they labored; but as reference has already been made to the incidents of that occasion, they need not be repeated here. With the erection of the grist mill at Peterborough by the government, a new era dawned upon the settlers in this as well as the adjoining townships, and thenceforward their prosperity and success were fully assured.

The present excellent roads in Smith were only brought to their present perfection after long years of successive improvement and the outlay of large sums of money. In 1831, a writer in the Cobourg Star described the communication road as scarcely passable for ox teams and filled with boulders, stumps and other obstructions. In 1832, £100 was granted by the U. C. Legislature to improve this road, and further sums in later years.

The folowing is an extract from the official returns of Smith for 1832: Number of persons assessed 116, acres cultivated 2181, horses 23; oxen 160, cows 232, horned cattle 143. Total assessed value £8099. Total rates levied £38 11s. 1d. Total population 753.

There were two official school returns for 1832; one being that taught by Wm. Lalley, and the other by P. Wood; the average attendance of scholars being set lown as 21 and 27 for these schools respectively. Among the school teachers of later years, are the names of Daniel Dove, James Brennan and Orran Movey. These occur about the year 1835. The first school house was that erected on Mr. Isaac Milburn's lot, about the year 1831.

Among the first clergyman who visited Smith, were the Rev. Mr. Thompson, Episcopal minister, from Cavan; the Rev. Wm. Case, Rev. Geo. Tar, and Rev. Henry Ryan, of the Methodist church; the Rev. Samuel Armour, who came in soon after the immigration of 1825, and the Rev. J. M. Roger, who located in Peterborough, in 1833, also officiated in this township;—religious services having in those early days to be held in the houses of the settlers, wherever accommodation could best be found.

The township of Smith was not behind in volunteering for the support of the government in 1837, and many left their homes from a sense of duty, at great personal inconvenience and risk to their families.

The township of Smith is surrounded on three sides by water. From a comparatively early period, its western boundary, along Chemong or Mud Lake, was placed in communication by means of steamers with the back townships bordering on the great chain of inland waters in the heart of the County of Victoria. These steamers have been the Sturgeon, the Backwodsman, the Peterborough, the Ogemah, the Fly, the Novelty, the Woodman, and others. At the principal landing place in Smith, now the village of Bridgenorth, wharfs were built, and hotels and stores followed. S. S. Kelly and Walter Scott, Esquires, have there a steam saw mill each, and M. S. Dean, Esq., a grist mill, steam saw and shingle mill and also a store and post office.

In 1837 the site of the village of Bridgenorth was still covered by forest. The first house there was built by one Wm. Valley, who kept a tavern, which he transferred to William Dorey. Daniel Donahue, Ralph Edmison and finally Asa Dunbar succeeded to the business. Mr. Dunbar and Mr. Herrington, a tailor, were the only residents of the place in 1843. Besides the store and mills mentioned, it now boasts of three hotels, numerous tradesmen, and a neat Wesleyan church erected within a few years.

Smith has two other churches, one a Baptist church, built about the year 1840, of which the Rev. John Gilmour, the Rev. Robert McDougall, the Rev. John Edwards, and now the Rev. Edward R. Roberts, have been successively the pastors. The other is a Presbyterian church in the northern part of the township, just completed and dedicated in September, 1866. Besides these, the churches in Peterborough and Lakefield have supplied the religious wants of a large portion of the residents of Smith.

This township has the merit of being not only the earliest settled, but also one of the most thriving and prosperous in the county. In 1852, the number of its ratepayers was 250, in 1861, 428; and in 1866 they had increased to 621, giving a population in all of about 3600 souls, having multiplied nearly three and a half times in the course of thirty years.

During the fifty years which have now elapsed since the township was first settled, many of the older residents have passed away to their rest; but they lived to see the forest subdued and broad acres of cleared and

Winter Rheumatism

Rheumatism is a disorder of the blood. It attacks people when the blood is overcharged with acid and impurities, thus setting up inflammation in the muscles and joints. Wet weather or cold weather may start the tortures of rheumatism, but is not the cause. The cause is in the blood and the blood only. Victims of this winter malady have every reason to fear the dull ache in the limbs and joints, followed by sharp pains through the flesh and muscles; these are the symptoms of poison in the blood which may shortly leave the victim pain-racked and helpless.

There is only one way to cure rheumatism, and that is through the blood. Liniments, hot applications and rubbing may give temporary ease, but cannot possibly root the trouble out of the system. That can only be done by the rich red, new blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make. This new blood drives out the poisonous acids and impurities, and the rheumatism disappears. If you are a sufferer from this painful malady begin curing yourself to-day by the use of Dr. Wililams' Pink Pills, and see how soon the pains and stiffness of the joints fade away, leaving behind new energy and new health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Wage Increase Small.

The salaries of London school teachers will not be greatly increased this year if the recommendation of No. 1 committee of the board is accepted. In fact, it will be practically negligible.

Only $2,000 Taxes Out.

Tax Collector W. H. Benson of Chatham reports that out of a total of $300,000 collectable taxes there is only about $2,000 in accounts still outstanding.

Billiard Halls to Close.

As a fuel conservation measure, it was decided at a meeting of the billiard hall proprietors of Chatham with Mayor Clements to close these places of recreation at 9.30 every night, except Saturday evening.

Fuel Scarce in Guelph.

The fuel situation in Guelph has only not improved, but, if anything, is becoming worse. There is not enough coal coming in to meet the demand and citizens are being urged to burn wood. To add to the difficulties, the frost has penetrated the ground and reached the water mains, and there are over 200 orders ahead to have them electrically thawed out. New complaints are constantly coming in.

County Would Retaliate.

Should the City Council of London decide to approach the Provincial Legislature for approval of the plebiscite taken during the municipal elections in January, when the citizens of London expressed their willingness to abolish all tax exemptions on property, and be successful, Middlesex county is prepared to retaliate and approach the authorities at Toronto for a similar privilege. It is estimated that should the scheme be worked out by both municipalities that neither would benefit, the county property in London being about equal in value to the city property in Middlesex.

PURCHASES A PURE BRED BULL

T. D. Young, Esq., one of the largest milk producers in this district, visited the "O'Reilly Stock Farm" a few days ago and purchased a fine pure bred bull to place at the head of his herd.

The average for the two gradams of this calf is over 26,000 lbs. milk, and 1,000 lbs. butter in one year, and Mr. O'Reilly states that the demand for young of this breeding has been so great in the past months that he has only a couple of young calves for sale at the present time. 1d-1w

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

fertile land stretching away on every side. Their first rude habitations had in many instances given away to large and comfortable mansions of brick or stone, and they and their families enjoyed the fruits of their toils in comparative wealth and affluence. The first few years of toil and privation in a new country brought in their train, first, plenty, and then luxury. The children of the first settlers in Smith, who were young men and women during some of the early years referred to, have now at their very threshold all the blessings and advantages of the higher walks of civilization. Not only shops and stores teeming with the substantial necessaries, but even with the rich fabrics and choice productions of the world; large and elegant churches within easy access, through the mosaic windows and stained glass of which the sunlight enters; the printing press and the news depots, rich with the modern literature of the old and new worlds; professional skill, both medical and legal of the highest order, and the most respectable attainments; a fine court house and a massive jail, with all the paraphernalia of justice and law in their robes of office. Mills and manufactories of large proportions, and capable of an indefinite extension; the iron rail, and the panting locomotive, with the bustling railway station, within easy morning walk of the inhabitants, and within rifle shot of that first rude dwelling where the early settlers of 1818 lived in common until their first shanties could be erected in the mighty forest; steamboat communication stretching far into the interior of a fine country, yet undeveloped, and teeming with rich forests and vast mineral deposits which may yet supply the wants and the necessities of half the world.

What a contrast does all this—the reality of to-day—present to the astonished vision of the adventurous pioneers who fifty years ago penetrated this spot, then in all the wild rudeness of nature, and passed their first nights beneath the spreading branches of the hemlock and the pine! Surely a country capable of such astonishing development has still attractions for the immigrant from other lands, who may now as then, in its newer districts, carve out for himself a home, and an independence, with equally gratifying results. We have still in our rear millions of acres of arable lands, well wateed, and rich in all the wild treasures of nature, which need but the strong arm and the determined will, joined with prudence and foresight, to become the home of thousands, well watered and rich in all the wealth, will be most surely enhancing their own.

The picture here drawn is no fancy portrait; the facts recorded are stern realities, and what is here written of the township of Smith might with equal truthfulness, be, in great part, repeated in the case of nearly every township in the county.

The establishment of a cheese factory by John Walton, Esq., in this township, in 1866, is an interesting fact, indicative of the varied resources of the Canadian farmer. During this first season, 1600 pounds of excellent cheese were manufactured by Mr. Walton, chiefly from his own cows. As the importance of this branch of trade and its adaptation to the Canadian soil and climate became better understood, operations like this may be expected to become more frequent, and their product more extensive. Mr. Walton deserves credit for being the first to introduce the manufacturing of cheese on so extensive a scale into this county.

The last census (1861) shows the population of the township of Smith and Harvey to be made up of the following nationalities: Ireland 455, England 354, Scotland 158, United States 100, Upper Canada 2315, Lower Canada 39, other countries 5.

The religious census for Smith and Harvey for 1861, was as follows: — Church of England 656, R. Catholic 492, W. Methodists 707, Bible Christions 178, Free Church 815, Church of Scotland 88, Baptists 876, other Methodists 94, other churches 20.

The total population in 1861 of both townships was 3426, of which 1811 were males and 1615 females. There were in 1860, 17 deaths, 114 births, and 752 children attending school.

The Wardenship—The township of Smith has had the honor of twice furnishing a Warden for the county, in the person of M. S. Dean, Esq., who held that important position during the years 1861 and 1862.

Says Other Nations Must Run Russia

CANNOT GOVERN HERSELF.

Faces Disintegration or Ruthless Exploitation by German Capitalists, Arthur E. Sproul Says.

LONDON.—Russia will need to be taken in hand by an international commission for a number of years before she recovers, in the opinion of Arthur Eliot Sproul, Vice-President of Herman and Herman, dye stuff manufacturers, of New York, who has just arrived here from Petrograd. He was in Russia for a year during two revolutions, but is emphatic that he has left for business reasons, not "as a man fleeing from a burning building."

"Two great dangers face Russia—disintegration until she presents a new Balkan problem and exploitation by the Germans. It is perfectly plain that the Russians at present cannot govern themselves. I believe the solution of the problem would be the appointment of an international commission from the large creditor nations to reorganize and develop her."

Mr. Sproul laid stress on the necessity of making it clear to the Russians that this commission intended merely to nurse them until they could get on their feet again. He had, he said, no objection to Germany participating in Russian trade, for in her vast area was room for all, but he dreaded the ruthless exploitation of practically a virgin country by German capitalists.

He thought such a commission as he had in mind might need a certain amount of armed force at first in order to enforce its policy, but it must from the first disclaim any intention of doing more than acting as guardian for the country during its period of reconstruction. He suggested that fifteen men of high character and distinguished business ability could be found among the interested nations, and that the Russians, if approached in a proper way, would be willing to receive them.

The Bolsheviki, Mr. Sproul thinks, have passed the zenith of their power and that undoubtedly one element of the population would be glad to see the Germans arrive for the sake of the order they would enforce. German commercial agents are already common, and he could best describe the attitude of the Bolshevik to them as complaisant.

"As for business," he went on, "one cannot build a house without foundations, and there can be no business without a government. One of the funniest books in the world would be a collection of laws passed by the Smolny Institute concerning business and industry. But despite all I am an optimist about Russia. Its 180,000,000 people are drunk with freedom, and one should regard them as one regards a child in its tantrums."

Mr. Sproul describes life in Petrograd as bearable as long as one looks after oneself. It is comparatively safe to go downtown to business as long as one goes in daylight by the main streets, but if one happens to be wearing a good overcoat a Russian soldier may accost one and ask for it. He will be fairly polite, but he will take the overcoat all the same.

Tenants in apartment houses band together to provide their own guards, and a common precaution is to arrange the electric bells of the different apartments so that they ring simultaneously. The trouble is, when a soldier is discovered trying to rob an apartment, there are no police to whom to give him. He can be kicked out, and that is all.

Food in even the first-class hotels is of doubted quantity. Every now and then the hotel will produce excellent steaks and chops because it has happened to hit on an unexpected supply. The next day it will have nothing but fish. The black bread is sour and badly baked.

"I got along largely on large cakes of chocolate and tinned goods like sardines," he explained. "A friend sent me a loaf of white bread, and it was like a jewel to me. But one could always get plenty of tea."

MAY SEND ONE PARCEL EVERY THREE MONTHS TO THE PRISONERS IN GERMANY

The British War Office has sanctioned arrangement whereby one parcel which does not contain other than specified articles may be sent each three months by private individuals in Canada direct to prisoners of war other than officers interned abroad. The parcel must be packed and despatched through the post office by the relative or friend of the prisoner, and must bear a coupon.

The next of kin has first right to the coupon and can designate to whom it may be given if they do not wish to use it. Persons wishing to send parcels under this scheme should apply for the necessary coupons, if they have not already done so, as early as possible. Coupons for parcels intended for prisoners belonging to the Canadian forces, are supplied by the Prisoners of War Department, Canadian Red Cross Society, 14 Cockspur street, London, S.W. 1, and in the case of prisoners belonging to the Imperial Forces, Allied Forces or Civilian prisoners of war, by the Central Prisoners of War Committee, 4 Thurloe Place, London, S. W. 7. The list of goods which may be forwarded is as follows:

Pipe, sponge, pencils, tooth powder, pomade, cap badge and badges of rank, shaving brush, safety razor, bootlaces (mohair), candies (8 oz.) medal ribbons, brass polish, mittens (1 pair a quarter), muffler (1 each year), braces and belts (provided they are made of webbing and include no rubber or leather), housewife, handkerchiefs (1 a quarter), combs, hair brushes, tooth brushes, cloth brushes, buttons, pipe lights, dubbin, hob nails, shaving soap (1 stick a quarter), health salts, insecticide powder, chess, checkers, dominoes.

Persons are warned that the parcels are subject to censorship and the inclusion in the parcel of any article not mentioned in the above list may entail confiscation of the parcel. The maximum weight of the parcel is 11 pounds and it is advised that they should not weigh less than 3 pounds, so as to minimize the risk of loss in the post.

CAN HAUL 2-MILE FREIGHT.

The greatest steam locomotive in the world has been put into service by the Baldwin Locomotive Works. It is so gigantic that its boilers had to be made flexible at three different joints so that the locomotive could turn around a curve. It is more than 100 feet long and weighs some 450 tons. Twenty-four driving wheels, each standing as high as an average-sized man, afford its traction. The driving wheels are distributed along the length of the locomotive in sets of four pairs, the wheels of each set being coupled together and driven by two giant steam cylinders. Under full steam the locomotive can exert an 83-ton pull on cars behind it, which means that it can easily haul a freight train two miles long and 23,000 tons in weight over an ordinary good roadbed at an average of fourteen miles an hour and possibly more. Bad roads will retard it only slightly.—Popular Science Monthly.

Good Opportunities On Farms For Returned Men With Families

We had a paragraph in the papers trying to find a place for a returned man, on a farm, taking with him his wife and kids. Within half an hour of the coming out of the paper the man was placed, comfortably. Nice house for him to start up in; school convenient and other things to his liking. He could have been placed six times over, in the last four days. The farms are hungry for just such men.

And this brings up the question, broadly, of placing men, (returned men) on the land. Suggestions of a hundred acres of land, somewhere in North Ontario, and some assistance to begin with is not sufficient inducement, for the personal element is overlooked. To place a man, wholly inexperienced in such environment is anything but attractive. What is needed in a practical way is to get the man in the service of some good farmer, where he can serve an apprenticeship and learn what not to do. Then after three or four years, same as if at a trade, the man can get to it for himself, with some chance of success. The energy of the Departments should be turned in the direction as noted above.

Several opportunities of a similar character are now open, and more coming in. Phone, or come to the Patriotic Fund Office, and all particulars will be supplied. One in this morning, offers a good place, a nice new house and conditions that would seem to be ideal, with Mr. J. F. Staples, Ida P.O., 'Phone 522-ring 2. In his service would be just as going to school and better than a course at Guelph College, in a very practical way. Who is the returned man that will collar this place.

PAUL CHAPMAN, 16, HEARS HIS DEATH VERDICT CALMLY

Boy Manifests No Emotion When Found Guilty of Murder

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Paul Chapman, an awkward, overgrown youth of sixteen years, who once was a choir singer in a fashionable church, heard without a tremor a verdict of first degree murder pronounced against him in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

He is the youngest boy ever convicted of first degree murder in this State.

During the forty-one minutes the jury was out Chapman exhibited indifference, sitting in an ante-room. The jury retired at twenty minutes to five o'clock and filed back into the court room at twenty-one minutes after five. Chapman took his seat between his attorneys. His mother was not in the crowded court room.

Chapman stood and faced A. F. Hofaker, a carriage builder, of No. 2,911 Albermarle road, who was the foreman of the jury.

As the clerk made the formal inquiry whether the jury had agreed upon a verdict, Chapman fixed his gaze upon the foreman, who nervously answered in the affirmative.

"We find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree," he said.

Speaks No Word of Comment.

Chapman sat down without any display of emotion.

With a deputy sheriff at either side, he walked to the clerk's desk to give his pedigree and in a clear, strong voice answered the questions.

Then he walked to the anteroom and drew from his pocket a package of cigarettes. Seating himself, he lit a cigarette, crossed his legs and flicked the extinguished match across the room. Except for answering the questions of the clerk of the court he did not speak from the time the verdict was announced until he was taken to the Raymond street jail.

The trial of Chapman, which began on Tuesday last, was one of the swiftest murder trials resulting in a conviction ever known in King's county.

It was Chapman's own story which brought about his conviction. He was one of a trio of thieves which entered the stationery and cigar store of Harry Regenberg, at No. 636 Park place, on October 29. The shopkeeper and his brother, Samuel Regensburg, were shot to death and Mrs. Jennie Regensberg was wounded.

Denied Entering Store.

The youth contended that Hughes Davis, one of the trio, who was killed in an exchange of shots with the police when he was trapped in the dumb-waiter shaft, had plotted the robbery and that he had no knowledge of its nature until a few minutes before they reached the building. He said he understood he was to act as lookout and was to receive $25. He denied that he had entered the store.

Before the summing up began Chapman was called to the stand for the completion of his cross-examination. He was questioned severely concerning the statement he made to the District Attorney after his arrest. Though his counsel fought hard to keep the transcript of this statement out of the record, it was admitted. This statement formed the substance of the State's case.

The death sentence will be pronounced upon Chapman on Wednesday.

Leonidas Davis, said by Chapman to have been the third member of the band, is awaiting trial on a similar charge.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE OTONABEE CHAPTER I.O.D.E.

Officers Elected For the Year—Third Annual Report is Full of Interest—The Financial Statement—Report of the Sock Committee

The annual meeting of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 9th.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were:

Hon. Regent—Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt.
Hon. Vice-Regent—Mrs. Huycke.
Regent—Mrs. A. E. Coulthard.
1st Vice-Regent—Mrs. Gardiner.
2nd Vice-Regent—Miss Lundy.
Treas.—Mrs. J. A. Aylmer.
Sec.—Miss Helen Denison.
"Echoes" Secretary—Miss Hurley.
Standard bearer—Mrs. Spence.
Councillors — Mesdames R. R. Hall, Huycke, Stratton, Buchanan, Widdess, Dunsford, Carmichael, Harstone, Perry, Miss Morrow.

The reports of the year were presented and also the reports for the Peter Robinson Chapter.

Another year has passed and the Otonabee Chapter has attained the dignity of receiving its Third Annual Report. As an organization we may consider it to be firmly established and we trust that the work done by it may in some measure assist in upholding the reputation of the Order to which we are so proud to belong.

There have been six executive meetings and 12 general meetings held during the year, the latter meetings having an average attendance of 25 members.

Thirty-two new members have been elected and we now have a paid up membership of 99. One of our members has been "called home" this year, and the members unite in extending to the relatives of the late Mrs. Hunter their sincere sympathy.

One of the first works undertaken by the Executive was to arrange for Standing Committees for the various departments. This plan has proved very satisfactory, as the committees were in readiness for any work which might be required of them, and have certainly responded most willingly. One in particular deserves "honorable mention," namely the Telephone Committee, which under Mrs. Coulthard has done yeoman service all the year.

Another venture which proved very successful was the course of lectures held on the Saturday afternoons during Lent. Those who very kindly gave their services were His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Rev. Canon Cornish, Rev. Dr. Wilson, W. J. Johnston, Esq., and R. R. Hall, Esq. The Chapter also feels most grateful to all these gentlemen who so ably filled the chair at these lectures. Over $86.00 was raised by this course and many expressed their pleasure at the intellectual feast provided for them.

At the April meeting it was decided that we increase our monthly subscriptions for our Prisoners of War from $2 per month to $10, and this amount has since been paid each month.

The work of sending socks overseas has gone on steadily under the care of Mrs. Widdess, who has packed and shipped since our last annual meeting 400 pairs. Numbers of grateful letters have been received from those to whom the socks were sent, and we cannot help but feel that this part of our work is most important.

At the request of the local Red Cross Society, the Chapter this year paid for their wool in advance, the sum of $150 being used for this purpose.

In April an Autograph Quilt was completed under the supervision of Mrs. Scadding, and was sent to Major Davidson at No. 3 Stationary Canadian Hospital. This quilt was a very handsome one and was much appreciated by Major Davidson. The sum of $67.45 was raised by this means.

The sewing for the Red Cross Society was carried on in our workroom, kindly loaned by Mr. Lynch, until April, with Mrs. Stapleton as Supervisor. It was at that time found necessary to close the room, and that branch of the work was then discontinued for the summer months. A great deal of work was accomplished in this room and the thanks of the Chapter are due to Mr. Lynch for allowing the use of the room, as well as furnishing the heat, and to Mrs. Stapleton for the large amount of time and strength which she expended on this work.

During last winter and spring a number of knitting teas were held at the houses of different members where in addition to the knitting done, a large number of socks were toed off, washed and pressed for the Red Cross Society.

In March the Chapter undertook the work of providing and furnishing rooms which might be in some measure, suitable for Club Rooms for the returned soldiers. Through the kindness of Mr. Barrie, who gave us the use of two rooms in his building absolutely free of charge, we were able to arrange two comfortable rooms for the Veterans, which have been in constant use up to the present time. Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Spence very kindly acted as a committee to take charge of this work. On March 12th the rooms were formally opened and the Chapter had the pleasure of entertaining some of the returned officers and men. We also had the pleasure of assisting the G.W.V. on their tag day in the spring, on which day this association raised over $1500. No part of the work which we have been privileged to do during the past year has given us more pleasure than that done for our returned men, and we wish them many happy hours in their new club rooms.

In April a lecture was given under the auspices of the three Chapters for the benefit of the Sailors' Homes, by Dr. Anderson, who has been travelling about lecturing for this purpose. The subject of the lecture which was chosen was "Malta," and it proved a very interesting one to those who were present.

At the annual convention of the Order held in May in Vancouver, our Chapter had the honor of being represented by our National President, Mrs. Gooderham.

On June 21st we again held our annual Midsummer Fete, this year in the beautiful grounds kindly loaned by Mr. and Miss Lundy. This was an exceedingly pretty affair, and the results well repaid the members for all the work done before and at the time. The net proceeds from this entertainment were something over $200.00.

In October a call came for workers for the Red Cross Society, and it was decided that the members meet every Monday afternoon at the Public Library rooms. The first work undertaken was Stretcher Caps, and Mrs. McClellan was appointed as Supervisor.

In January as Mrs. McClellan found it impossible to continue this work, a committee consisting of Mrs. Stratton, Mrs. Stapleton and Mrs. Caffe, was appointed. At the same time the Chapter expressed their hearty thanks to Mrs. McClellan for the manner in which she had carried on this work.

On October 13th a war bridge was held at the home of the Regent, at which the sum of $57.00 was raised. It was decided that the refreshments at this affair should be along the lines laid down by the Food Controller, but this proved to be no hardship, as the delicious war breads and cookies were thoroughly enjoyed.

On November 15th, 16th and 17th a rummage sale was held in the curling rink, which was generously lent for the occasion by the Peterborough Curling Club. This was very well patronized and over $200 was raised. The tea room under Mrs. Fessenden, was very attractive and popular.

Our Chapter also undertook their share in distributing the cards sent out by the Food Controller.

As a result of all these various undertakings we have been able to widen our interests and express our sympathy in tangible form with the work of other organizations. $25.00 was voted to the 57th Regimental Band Fund, for which we received a warm letter of thanks and also the exceedingly generous offer on the part of the Band to give their services free of charge at any of our entertainments. We have also given $25.00 to the British Red Cross, $100.00 to the Peterborough Red Cross Society, $50.00 to the Navy League, $100.00 to the overseas work of the Y.M.C.A. and $100.00 to the Halifax Relief Fund.

It was with very sincere regret that we were obliged to accept the resignation of our Regent, Mrs. Hall, which was received at the meeting in January. All those who have had the pleasure, as well as privilege of working with Mrs. Hall during the past year, must feel that they should have a higher ideal of whole-heartedness and loyalty to our Order and its members. We can only hope that at some future time, Mrs. Hall may be able to again accept the office which she has so ably filled.

Although the dark clouds of war are still hanging over us, and though so many of our members have felt the touch of deep sorrow and heavy anxiety, we may still feel that this has been a year of growth, and that we are stronger to take our part in whatever may be before us with higher ideals of truth and honour and stronger loyalty to our King, Empire, Order, Chapter and each other.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Helen Denison,
Secretary

"The Katzenjammer Kids"

Here Next Saturday

The Katzenjammer Kids have been lifted bodily from the pages of the coloured supplements and planted behind the footlights in one of the funniest and altogether pleasing entertainments seen in many seasons. In a new musical comedy bearing the title "Katzenjammer Kids," which will be presented at The Grand for matinee and evening next Saturday, Feb. 16, the many funny characters in this amusing series of cartoons, disport themselves in a manner to cause the atre-goers to laugh until they are well nigh exhausted, for from the moment the curtain rises on the first act there is not a dull moment in the entire show. The action is fast and furious and novelty follows novelty in lightning rapidity. The play is produced under the direction of Gazzolo, Gatts and Clifford, who have provided a handsome scenic environment and a chorus that will be the talk of the town. The book and lyrics are by David M. Wolff, and Donald H. Bestor wrote the musical score.

RAILWAYS HAVE AN EMBARGO ON ALL CLASSES OF FREIGHT

Only Freight Moving is Perishable, Coal, Live Stock, Munitions and Government Material—Embargo Will Be Effective For Ten Days

DUE TO CONGESTION

Special to the Examiner and Toronto Star.

TORONTO, Feb. 12—Owing to the severe weather and the snow storms of the past three weeks the Grand Trunk and the C. P. R. have been forced to take drastic steps in the handling and movemnt of freight, and to-day it was learned that both roads have had an embargo on all classes of freight except perishable, coal, live stock, munitions and government material, for ten days. There is an embargo on freight moving in and out of Canada to and from the United States. These measures were taken by the traffic chiefs of both roads at Montreal, and the local authorities received their orders from headquarters.

Freight Piling Up.

The embargo, in other words, means that tons of freight have been piling up in different terminals, and at frontier points. Local freight for points in Ontario is not affected by this order, but freight in general has been held up, due to weather conditions.

"It is due to the congested conditions all over the lines," stated a railroad official. "We have been unable to move any freight for foreign points, due to the abnormal weather conditions."

"As traffic conditions get better we will accept shipments," said a C.P.R. official, "and if this weather keeps up we will be in a position to get back on our feet."

"The railways will not give figures as to the effect of the congestion from the embargo, but it is said that if the embargo is left on much longer all freight movement will be at a standstill."

WAR LOAN TO BE ANNOUNCED

(Canadian Press)

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, announced to-day he would shortly make public announcement regarding the Provincial War Loan which will be floated this year.

NOT DIVIDED BY DEATH.

John L. Sullivan's Dumb Friends on His Farm Pass Away.

ABINGTON, Mass., Feb. 12.—Death has laid a heavy hand on John L. Sullivan's animal friends at his farm here. The day after the former champion was buried, "Colonel Corn," his favourite horse, dropped dead in his stall; next day, another constant companion, the bulldog given him by "Yank" Sullivan, of Syracuse, N.Y., died. To complete the list, the ring hero's cow and two collie dogs in which he had taken great pride died on Sunday night.

SOLDIER PALS MEET.

Each Thought the Other Had Fallen at Langemarck.

Meeting this morning for the first time since Langemarck, each believing the other had been killed in that battle, two returned soldiers faced each other at the G.T.R. station this morning. One of them, Private Taylor, had just stepped from the moving train, and Wilbert McIntosh was returning to Toronto after spending the week end at his home on Elm street. They went overseas with the 16th Highlanders of Hamilton, became separated at Langemarck, and unable to obtain confirmative information, each believed his comrade had fallen. Their amazement this morning may be imagined as they stand momentarily incredulous, while their belief of the past two years slowly dissolved before the fact of reality and the warmth of mutual agreements.

WHEAT AND COAL MOVING ON RAILS

Material Evidence of the Benefits of Heatless Days.

Free movement of wheat through Peterborough from Midland for Eastern ports and the arrival of liberal supplies of coal to-day were concrete evidence of the success of the workless week end. Practically all the coal yards received shipments this morning. Most of the coal was reported to be of soft variety, but there was some anthracite received. Two trains of wheat went east to-day apart from yesterday's special traffic of foodstuffs for the Allies, and two trains of empties for Midland also clocked through. Altogether the fruits of the idle, heatless days have apparently justified their drastic demands on the general public.

Ontario Shows Biggest Surplus In Its History

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—The largest surplus in the history of the province of Ontario was announced by Hon. T. W. McGarry, the Provincial Treasurer, in making his annual statement to the Legislature this afternoon. It amounts to $1,751,374, or more than six hundred thousand dollars in excess of surplus for the year 1915-1916. This would have been much greater, the Provincial Treasurer said, but for the generous contributions made by the province to war objects. During the last year the net debt was reduced by more than a million. The expenditure on capital account was ten millions, of which more than half was for Hydro purposes. Receipts from the Dept. of Lands, Forests and Mines was over 3 1-2 millions, including half a million arrears in nickel taxes. Over three millions were received from succession dues.

SEIZE PASSENGERS' BAGGAGE.

United States Detectives on Hunt Following Arrest of Spy Suspect.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Feb. 12.—Government officials here began the task of scrutinizing eight motor truck loads of written and printed matter found among the effects of the passengers aboard the liner Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived here several days ago. The collection included phonographic records which, it is believed, may contain information of value to the enemy.

All except four or five of the 40 cabin passengers detained after the arrest of a German spy suspect, have been admitted to bail and the others are held on minor technicalities. The same may be said of the 375 steerage passengers still held at the immigration station.

BIG SPY HELD ON HEAVY BAIL AT A U.S. PORT.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Feb. 11.—Rient Sobering, second steward on the Dutch liner Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived here Thursday, was held in $25,000 bail by a Federal Commissioner here, on a charge that he attempted to smuggle mail into the United States.

Toronto Stock Market

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—There was practically no trade at the Union Stock yards this morning. Prices were the same as yesterday. The Railway Companies, for the last two days, have not accepted any stock, as they are using all spare cars for fuel. Receipts: 4 cars, 2 cattle, 7 calves, 255 hogs, 5 sheep.

...N OF SILKWORM EGGS SHIPPED BY FRANCE TO JAPAN

...ll a Carload Is Guarded Against Frost Throughout Long Journey.

NEW YORK.—One ton of silkworm ...s—half a carload—capable of turning out enough silk after they de...top among the mulberry bushes in ...pan to clothe all Seattle in gorgeous ...ds—arrived in the Pacific coast city ...ently, says the Seattle Times, in a ...ecially fitted box car from France ...d were transferred to an Oriental ...er. Railroad and steamship officials say this is the first consignment of silkworms ever sent out to Pacific port.

Because it now is impossible to obtain space on board steamships going through the Suez Canal from Europe to the Orient, leading silk manufacturers in Japan, desirous of retaining the high quality of silkworms produced in southern France, have decided for the first time in the history of the industry to ship them across the Atlantic to the United States, then across the continent and over the Pacific.

The consignment, which is valued at thousands of dollars, was escorted from New York by K. Fujita, American representative of Hara & Co., with headquarters in New York City. The silkworm in its present form is something more than a wee egg about half the size of a grain of wheat. Thousands of them are put in paper containers. These containers are laid out at uniform spaces in an especially equipped box. In all there are seventy cases or boxes in the shipment.

Taking a Big Chance.

Fujita described the decision of the company to ship the precious eggs over the new route to Japan as "just taking a big chance." The eggs must receive exceptionally delicate care, he explained. Unless they were kept in the same temperature during shipment they would be rendered valueless.

As the shipment which reached Seattle is said to be the first ever sent across the United States, Fujita declared that railroad officers in New York City were inclined to have something to do with its transportation across the country because of its delicate nature and great value.

Finally the American Express Company agreed to carry it across the continent. F. P. Rhoads, general agent of the American Express Company in Seattle, said that a special attendant was assigned by the company to watch over the eggs, despite the fact that Fujita personally accompanied the shipment from New York City. Examination of the crates showed that the eggs are in perfect condition, it was said.

Though Japan and China, said Fujita, have, of course, a vast supply of silkworms, none compare in quality with those produced in southern France. The silk produced by the French silkworms is combined with the native silks of the Orient in manufacture.

The consignment now bound through Seattle for the Orient is destined to reach Japan just in time for the opening of the proper season for the development of the silkworm, which begins in April. Only by exercising extreme care and caution was the shipment saved from ruin by the extreme cold blasts in New York City.

Bitro-Phoshates Will Strengthen Your Weak Nerves

Physicians Claim This Organic Phosphate is Actually Converted Into Living Nerve Tissue

Weak nerves rob men and women of all the joy of life and quickly reduce the strong and robust to a condition which is pitiable in the extreme. This condition is brought about slowly and stealthily in the majority of cases, and the poor sufferer fails to realize what is wrong until faulty memory, indecision, lack of desire for work or recreation, insomnia or some other unmistakable symptom, indicates weak nerves. It is then that many people make the big mistake of resorting to the use of so-called nerve tonics, alcoholic stimulants or drugs. Nothing could be more harmful or more dangerous. The nerves are weak and exhausted; they need food and nourishment—not drugs that will lash them into temporary activity. Feed your nerves and they will become strong again and your health will improve in consequence.

Dr. Joseph D. Harrigan, former visiting specialist to North Eastern Dispensary, N. Y., says: "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic or run down, take a natural, harmless, unadulterated and strength and tissue building substance such as bitro-phosphate for a reasonable time and you will soon see some most astonishing results in the increase in nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance. It seems to supply the power that electrifies all the organs of the body."

That is the advice of present day physicians and specialists. Simple advice, but its excellence has been proven over and over again, and as a package containing sufficient bitro-phosphate tablets for two weeks' treatment can be obtained from any druggist at reasonable cost the remedy is within the reach of every sufferer from weak nerves.

NOTE—As physicians have pointed out in order to derive the greatest benefit bitro-phosphate should be taken in its pure, unadulterated form. If there is a tendency to constipation, take one or two purified toxiol tablets before retiring. In case of indigestion or acidity of the stomach, it is advisable to take a little ordinary serathol, as either of these conditions would naturally retard the progress of bitro-phosphate in building up strength, endurance and strong nerves. The genuine bitro-phosphate so highly recommended above and sold under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back can be obtained in this city at the drug counters of McDermid & Jary and other good druggists.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

BARTLEY IN GAME SUSPENSION HAS BEEN LIFTED BY THE O.H.A.

The Peterborough Junior O. H. A. Club have been successful in getting the suspension of Leith Bartley raised, and the left wing player will be in the line up to-night at Oshawa after all. Yesterday the locals were informed that Bartley had been suspended, but after taking the matter up with Sheriff Paxton, the president of the O.H.A., and Secretary Hewitt, and pointing out that Venini had not been altogether blameless in the matter, permission was given for Bartley to play to-night. The Petes left for Oshawa at noon to-day, determined to win right in the Bradley ice-box. They can do it if they get working together. The line up will be the same as has won the last four games:

Goal—Murray.
Centre—Cherrett.
Substitute—Williams.

TORONTOS TAKE THE LEAD IN THE N.H.A.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—In one of the most grueling games of the season the Torontos last night defeated Ottawa at the Arena by the score of 3 to 1, and now have a clean sheet in the second series of the N. H. L. The hard-earned victory of the locals was all the more nourishing because it was obtained on ice detrimental to them, or to any team possessing the speed of the Blue Shirts. The mild weather, coupled with the fact that the juniors held sway until 6.30, did not give the icemaker much chance to have a hard sheet, the result being that the ice was sticky, and this made the puck difficult to handle.

The visitors were extremely confident of winning before the game, and it was only after the hardest kind of a battle that the locals emerged with flying colours. The Senators presented their strongest aggregation and with the exception of one game last season, it was the toughest argument that they have given Toronto on the local ice since professional hockey has been played here. In fact the issue was in doubt until the last three minutes of play, when Skinner swooped a pass by Benedict, and thus gave the Blue Shirts a lead of two goals.

No closer checking has been witnessed in the N.H.L. than was done last night by the two teams. Each hung to the other like leeches, and this applied to centre ice as well, which is something foreign in professional matches. Had the teams been fortunate to have had real hard ice there is no doubt but the clash would have gone down in history as one of the grandest contests ever staged at the Arena. As it was, there was not a dull moment to the exhibition, and it was a happy relaxation that the large crowd had when Skinner made victory sure for the locals.

"Rusty" Crawford made his first local appearance in a Toronto uniform, as did Jack Adams, the Sarnia boy. Crawford came on shortly before the last goal was scored, while Adams made his debut after the game was on ice. He is a stocky-built boy, and on one trip up the ice showed cleverness in stick-handling and the possession of a wicket shot.

A W. Archibald Won Bonspiel Finals From R. G. Sturgeon By 9-8

With his last stone, on the last end of the final game, Alex. Archibald won the impromptu bonspiel of the heatless days from R. G. Sturgeon last night by the score of 9-8. It was one of those ding-dong contests in which the man with the last stone had a certain advantage. It was a fighting finish to one of the liveliest bonspiels the local curlers have held among themselves.

The rinks were as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Capt. Morrison | J. E. Smith |
| R. F. Downey | Tom Ferguson |
| M. C. Tooley | R. Dobie |
| A. W. Archibald | R. G. Sturgeon |
| Skip ..... 9 | Skip ..... 8 |

The score by ends:
Sturgeon—00010203011O—8.
Archibald—12101020100l—9.

To win this bonspiel Archibald "got a charity" from George Benore in the first draw, Benore defaulting, but after that he defeated Tom Brightman, Harry Foote, George Morrow, and finally R. G. Sturgeon. This is the third year in succession that Archibald has drawn M. C. Tooley. They first allied in '16, when with "Mike" vicing, Alexander landed the vice-skips' bonspiel. Next year the skips' bonspiel went to Archibald, and again Tooley was his right bower. This last bonspiel was virtually a skips' bonspiel, and the twain worked their way through to the honours, if not the prizes. There are no prizes in these games, but about $25 was realized and will be given to some patriotic organization.

In reaching the finals, Sturgeon defeated Dickson Davidson, Dr. Greer, and Alex. Kay.

Consolation Close.

Alex. Kay defeated Dr. Wightman's rink, skipped by Ray Best, yesterday afternoon by the score of 11-10, and at four o'clock McDermid won from Percy Fitzgerald by 14-11, leaving McDermid and Kay to play off the consolation finals. The game may be played this evening.

OSHAWA'S ONE GOAL LEAD WAS ENOUGH

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 12.— Oshawa and Belleville intermediates this evening in this city battled for supremacy for Group 2. The spacious rink was filled with hundreds of hockey enthusiasts, who witnessed one of the fastest games of hockey seen in the city. Oshawa came to Belleville with a lead of one goal, and it was apparent at the start of the game that they were determined if possible to hold that lead. In the first period both teams scored a goal. In the second period neither team were able to score, and in the third period Oshawa scored two goals and Belleville one, Oshawa winning by a score of 3 to 2, and the group by a score of 6 to 4. The line-up.

SAYS INSPECTORS BOLTED.

When Fire Broke Out at Halifax Recently Munition Experts Fled, Says Witness.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 12.—Sensational charges against the staff of munitions inspectors who were on duty at the ocean terminals when a fire broke out there recently causing a small panic in the south end of the city were made by William Earle, stevedore forman, one of the witnesses called before the Board of Control and Investigation which commenced yesterday. Earle, who was in charge of a number of stevedores at shed No. 32 the day of the scare, said that he himself put the fire out, and that the munitions experts had left their job. Only two of them, he said, returned when the blaze had been practically extinguished by him.

Major Alkin, Dominion munitions inspecetor, who appeared before the Board and submitted statements to prove that six men, including three of his own staff, had put the fire out. Two others of his men, he said, "tucked their tails between their legs and bolted." He said that they would be severely dealt with.

OBITUARY

JOHN L. READ.

With the death of Mr. John L. Read, on Wednesday evening, there passed away one of Bobcaygeon's oldest and most respected citizens. He was born in the township of Augusta, a few miles from Brockville, on Dec. 23rd, 1830, and had thus completed his 87th birthday. About 60 years ago he came to the village to engage in business, and has continued to reside here ever since, respected by all classes of the community. Along with merchantile affairs, he conducted extensive farming operations, and the farms now occupied by Messrs. David Hetherington, Gerald Murphy and Leslie Anderson. In those days the municipal politics were not the milk and water affairs of to-day and he participated in many a hot contest, and more than once emerged victorious, with the reeveship. He belonged to the old school of those whose honesty, integrity and uprightness never was questioned—men whose word never was broken. Some sixteen years ago he retired from active business to enjoy a well earned rest. He was a Conservative in politics and a consistent member of Presbyterian church, and until his death a valued member of the session. For many years he was church treasurer, and when declining strength compelled him to ask to be relieved of his duties he was elected as an honorary member of the Board of Managers, that his wise counsel might be at the disposal of the church. His tastes were simple, his friendship sincere and his faith humble and child-like, and he leaves behind him the rich legacy of an honorable life and untarnished name. He was married three times, his last wife surviving him, and two sons, Mr. Frank Read, merchant, of the village, and Mr. Fred Reid, who has lately had his home at Prince Albert, Saskatchewan. Messrs. John and William Read, of Peterboro; the Messrs. Warner, of Hastings, nephews of the deceased: Mr. Jos. Greer, Pleasant Point, Mrs. T. A. Fisher of Lindsay; and Mr. Jerry Greer of Bailieboro, attended the funeral, which was from the Presbyterian church on Friday afternoon.

ICE HAMPERED STREET CARS THIS MORNING

Last Night's Sleet Froze as it Fell, Insulating the Rails.

Ice covered rails, following last night's sleet, presented a real problem to the Street Railway Company this morning. During the first hour the cars struggled to clear the rails. It was after seven before the Byersville cars reached their terminal, and in other sections the going was scarcely less difficult.

FROST IN CONNECTIONS.

Penetrated to the Water Pipes Leading Into Houses.

There were more water connections near the street lines reported frozen yesterday than at any time during the winter, according to a plumber who was kept busy all day fighting the frost. Although the weather registered above the point of freezing, it was explained that this break in the cold spell had the effect of driving the frost further into the ground, especially on streets with a gravel substructure. Thirty connections on Water Street alone were reported closed by frost, and many of these were thawed by the Utilities Commission workmen, who, by agreement, will attend to the first freezing in any connection to the mains.

ASSAILS GERMAN CENSOR.

Berne Paper Discusses Article on Increasing the Birth Rate.

Under the title "Is the Sense of Shame at Last Awakening?" Die Freie Zeitung of Berne of Nov. 21 printed an article tending to confirm recent statements that extreme measures for increasing the birth rate in the German Empire to offset the war losses were being discussed in German periodicals and favoured officially. Die Freie Zeitung said:

"Before us lies the November issue of Nord und Sud, the monthly published by Ludwig Stein. We look through it, and on page 180 we find the following notice printed in black type and indicated by three hands: 'Pages 181-188 are absent from the foreign edition of this number.' But the censor, through carelessness, has merely cut out the eight pages mentioned without touching the table of contents, so that we find upon pages 181-188 there is an article entitled 'Multiplication of the People and Policy of Population After the War,' by Dr. Georg Jahn, at present in Brussels.

"Some time ago it was very disagreeable for the German officials when Die Freie Zeitung presented the marriage proposition to the neutral public in order to show what a demoralizing effect the quantitative idea applied to everything human, in connection with the alliance with the Turks, was having in Germany. As the result of this, the foreign edition of the Ludwig Stein monthly is mutilated. If the German censor had really wanted to suppress the moral ideas of Dr. Georg Jahn he would not have allowed them to be published. Therefore they appear to be without danger in Germany, perhaps they are even approved from military sources. In the neutral countries, on the contrary, they are likely to compromise Germany.

"This is the same moral system with a false bottom that locks a Liebknecht up in jail and reserves special trains for a Lenine. The same moral system that finances pacifist propaganda everywhere abroad and brutally suppresses it at home. Peaceful on the exterior and warlike in the interior."

CATTLE MARKET

With only four cars arrived with two cattle, seven calves, 255 hogs and five sheep, there was practically no market yesterday. According to previous announcement and carrying out the spirit of the order of the Fuel Controllers for a three-days' shutdown, no live stock was lifted by the railways Monday, and consequently there was nothing doing in the local markets yesterday. Prices are unchanged, but with a stronger tone to the market owing to the recent light deliveries.

The United States Battleship Fleet Will Share Naval Offensive

Mr. Daniels Announces Vessels of All Types On Guard With British—Representative Miller, Recently Back From Europe, Reveals Novel Conditions in Speech.

LARGER CRAFT NO LONGER BOTTED UP

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 13.—The promise that any naval offensive that may be undertaken to rout the Germans out of their submarine nests will be shared in by United States battle ships is held out by the disclosure that American vessels of this type are now in European waters co-operating with the British fleet.

The work of the United States is not now confined to destroyers. The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Daniels, has announced that naval vessels of every type are now doing service abroad.

The most definite information on this subject, however, is given by Representative Miller of Minnesota, who recently returned to the United States after interviewing many British and French naval commanders.

The American battleship fleet is no longer "botled up" in sheltered waters in fear of submarine attack. Several of the first-class ships have been sent abroad. These are coal burners, which for a time, at least, will relieve the British battle ships of the oil burning type.

Helping to Guard Seas.

What portion of the fleet is now working with the British navy is, of longer "bottled up" in sheltered waAmerican people at least have the assurance that the United States Navy is doing its full duty in maintaining the allied guardianship of the seas.

The facts about the American fleet are woven into a speech made in the House by Representative Miller in the course of a presentation of war conditions as he observed them while abroad. His statements, made partly because he told of things he saw and partly from things he was told by British and American naval commanders, shed a light upon the where abouts of the American fleet and its operations that hitherto has been locked in the secret archives of the Navy Department.

Mr. Miller frankly told the House that when he was there Vice Admiral Sims had thirty-six destroyers—not the number now—with which to patrol waters asigned to him. These waters extended west of the coast of Ireland, down across the western entrance of the English Channel, clear across the western coast of France, and Ireland, the coast of Spain, down to the Azores Islands.

"Number Greatly Insufficient."

"This number was greatly insufficient," Mr. Miller said, "but the navy has started on a programme that will produce any needed destroyers. Some of these destroyers are being delivered."

Before the sinking of the Tuscania, which occurred in waters outside the zone being protected by American craft, Mr. Miller said that disaster had been narrowly averted more than once, and that the navy's first duty was to protect the line of communication between France and America.

The speaker said he was in Europe when the request was made for American battleships, and he said that request had been granted.

"They have been sent," he said, "and no better battleships ever floated on a sea. I was afraid our navy would not send them, but I made particular inquiry and followed it up and found they have been sent."

That the American war craft are in the thickest of the submarine danger zone is shown by what was said of the area covered by the German submarines. Much of this area is said also to be covered by American craft.

Main U-Boat Base at Zeebrugge.

"The main submarine base," Mr Miller said, "is at Zeebrugge, on the North Sea. The main area of operation is across the northern part of Scotland and the upper part of Ireland, and then the English Channel. Continuing, their field is the Bay of Biscay, then along the coasts of Spain and Portugal, and then out to the Azores."

"Moments of grave danger are just about sunrise in the morning and sunset at night, especially if the sea is calm. Because during that twilight period there is that uncertainty of light which makes it difficult to discover the periscope of a submarine, but easy for the submarine to see the hulk of the ship in bold relief," said Mr. Miller.

Strategy of Admiral Sims.

In showing the valuable contribution made to naval strategy by Vice-Admiral Sims, Mr. Miller said his suggestion was this:

"What is the use of sending destroyers and ships of your navy scouring the seas, hunting for submarines? The seas are vast and the submarine is small. They may seek for days and weeks and not find their quarry, but you group your ships together and put your destroyers about your ships and you are bound to have your destroyers meet the submarine. The submarine must find the ships and in finding the ships he meets his deadly enemy."

This suggestion of Vice-Admiral Sims was finally accepted by the British Admiralty.

Mr. Miller declared Congress and the Navy Department should give Admiral Sims absolute carte blanche and carry out whatever he recommended.

Mr. Miller related this incident to emphasize his belief that there should be better co-ordination in the handling of both merchant ships and the protecting war craft.

"Two ships had left a port in France and were some fifty miles up the coast when instructed by wireless to wait for some other boats. They were to leeward of an island, with all communication between them and the shore cut off.

Waited Five Days.

"After they had waited five days the destroyers to escort them through the submarine zone appeared. For some unaccountable reason the ships did not sail even then. The destroyers fooled around, going back and forth for further orders. On the eighth day, under most unfavourable conditions, this group set forth. Why, submarines had been for a week spotting exactly where they were. Is it any wonder they were attacked twice before they got through the zone?"

STOP HEN TRADING.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The United States Food Administration announced that by forbidding licensed trading in live or freshly killed hens and pullets after February 23 it was hoped to prevent a situation where prices of eggs and poultry would soar beyond the reach of the average consumer. Dealers are permitted to handle stored or frozen stocks.

CULTIVATE SIDE VISION.

It Will Enable You to See In Several Directions at Once.

One of the most useful gifts one can have is a good side vision. By side vision is meant literally ability to see in several directions at once and to know what is going on in other directions besides that upon which the gaze may be fixed at the moment.

Just try the next time you are reading your paper in the train, for instance, and you will understand clearly what is meant.

You can with little effort and while still reading follow the movements of those sitting opposite you and even those at your side.

With a little practice the range of your side vision can be extended behind you in each direction to an angle of forty-five degrees, and you can see clearly every movement that takes place on both sides simultaneously.

Now, just think what this means. The man in possession of a good side vision is not an easy one to take by surprise. In business he finds it a valuable asset, especially when talking with more than one person at a time.

He can guard against dangers from unexpected sources, and when crossing a roadway he can clearly see the traffic coming from either direction while still looking straight ahead.—London Answers.

THE COST OF MILK PRODUCTION AND THE FARMER'S PROFIT

The Principles of Cost Accounting Used in Manufacturing Should Be Applied to Agriculture—No Common Meat Food is Cheaper Than Milk at Fifteen Cents a Quart—Who is Getting the Best Deal?

A WORD TO THE CONSUMER

The principles of cost accounting used in manufacturing should be applied to agriculture, not that the farmer may always sell above cost, for at times he sells below cost, but that he may know the average selling price will at least equal the cost and thus allow him to break even. Were the results of such cost accounting for the business of milk production known to the farmer as well as the consumer, the former would bestir himself to reduce his costs while the latter, recognizing the narrow margin of profit upon which the farmer is working in producing a staple food product, would cease his blind criticism and be willing to pay a fair price for milk which is one of the cheapest foods.

To find the cost of milk production is no sinecure in accounting, because of the complexity of the conditions surrounding the industry, but the importance of the product has led to many investigations with the following average results, using present day feed and labour charges:

Expenditure Per Cow.

| | |
|---|---|
| Feed at cost prices | $ 82.90 |
| Labour per cow, including handling of milk | 55.27 |
| Interest and depreciation on herd per cow, $110 at 11 p.c. | 12.10 |
| Interest, insurance, repairs and depreciation on buildings | 8.32 |
| Depreciation on equipment | .70 |
| Losses from abortion, tuberculosis, pneumonia, etc. | 1.95 |
| Veterinary services and drugs | .86 |
| Cash sundries | 1.96 |
| Added interest of owner in excess of that exhibited by hired help | 6.00 |
| Total | $170.26 |

Receipts Per Cow.

| | |
|---|---|
| 6167 pounds of milk at 29c. per gallon | $ 178.84 |
| 12 tons manure at $2.00 per ton | 24.00 |
| Total | $202.84 |

Under the above conditions milk costs the farmer 27.6c. per gallon or 6.9c. per quart. At most he is selling it for 29c. per gallon or 7.25c. per quart. The profit left to the farmer is very little over the value of the manure for his farm. In one investigation conducted on twenty-five dairy farms keeping on an average of 460 cows, the average profit per cow per year was $8.23 while out of the twenty-five dairies 28 p.c. reaped no profit whatever.

While 6,167 pounds of milk per cow per year may seem a small yield to some farmers, it is in reality a very good average, exceeding the average for Eastern Canada by 2,000 pounds. The farmer's remedy lies in increasing the average production of his herd.

A Word to the Consumer.—Comparatively speaking, milk is one of the cheapest foods. Instead of being regarded as a luxury it should be regarded as a necessity. Based on food values it has been estimated that if porterhouse steak is worth 30c. per pound, milk is worth 16.5c. per quart; if eggs are worth 30c. per dozen, milk is worth 21c. per quart; if fat fowl are worth 20c. per pound, milk is worth 20c. per quart; and if whitefish is worth 18c. per pound, milk is worth 32c. per quart. No common meat food is cheaper than milk at 15c. per quart. Moreover, milk is an already prepared food, requiring no fuel to cook it, a most important consideration under present fuel conditions.

The question is, "Who is getting the best deal?" Certainly it is not the farmer.

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

Was she actuated solely by a desire through self interest to impress him with the truth of the theory she had advanced and assure him of the futility of further investigation? Or had she been driven by her own torturing doubts to disclose them to another and in seeking to convince him, reassure herself?

That she was sincere in the belief in her niece's deranged mental condition he did not question, but it was equally evident that she shrank from the suggestion of self-destruction, which her brother in law had so eagerly grasped at as the solution of the girl's death and was so indomitably forcing her to accept.

If it were not the true explanation—and McCarty put it from him as unworthy a second thought—why did Stephen Quimby profess to accept it with such unquestioning readiness, unless he desired above all things to cover the real facts in the case, and would he so cover them unless they led irrefutably back to himself?

Miss Beckwith was completely dominated by her brother in law, her pliant will absolutely beneath his control. In his stepdaughter, however he had encountered a nature which he evidently could not break.

The little boy had unconsciously revealed that morning th the man who held himself in such complete self-mastery before the world was not the ruler of his own passions in his home, and to one accustomed as he was to carrying everything before him, the defiance of his stepdaughter must have been a bitter experience.

Had she really been of unsound mind or was it a long maturing plan of his to secure a permanent control of his property? Miss Beckwith had spoken of others who knew of her niece's mental condition; who could they be? No hint of it had been disclosed at the inquest; the little seamstress was ignorant of such a possibility, as were the dead girl's friends—Miss Hatfield and Charles Sturtevant.

McCarty bounded from his chair. Was this supposition unknown to Sturtevant? He remembering Quimby's sudden movement and fixed, almost warning, gaze when the younger man had been called to the stand at the inquest. And Terhune, too! Where had he come upon that clue to the suspicion of insanity which he evidenced in the picture of the mad-woman that he had projected on the screen? It had produced a palpable effect on Sturtevant; how much could he know?

McCarty seized the telephone book, and called up the young broker's office, but it was closed for the day. No home address was listed and he did not wish to present himself to Inspector Druet's notice, again with further demands so he was forced to defer his inquiry until the following morning.

He ate a lonesome and unsatisfactory dinner at a little restaurant round the corner and returned to his rooms. He missed his daily chat with Dennis more than he would admit to himself; but the slur on his age and weight still rankled, and back of it was a deeper resentment at his old friend's admiration for and open championship of the methods of the scientific detective.

He remembered with galling bitterness the old days when Dennis had looked upon him as the oracle, triumphing in his achievements and glorying in his passing fame, and he was jealous of Terhune in his friend's eyes as he would not be in the estimation of the world at large.

Dennis must come around of his own accord; he would not be running after him. The Rowntree problem was enough to have on one's mind in all conscience.

He wrestled with it for an hour or two and then in disgust he put it from him and then retired. He was just sinking into sleep when the sharp insistence of a bell pierced his consciousness and he opened a heavy eye. No one could be trying to see him at that hour, and if they were, let them ring. He turned over and rooted his head deeper in the pillow, but the bell's clamor was repeated and a swift realization of its purport made him leap from his bed.

It was the first fire alarm, his own private signal from the chief's office.

The "big three" was sounding now, and McCarty waited only for the signal to tell him in what district the fire was located. When it came his eyes bulged with excitement; it was here in his own neighborhood!

He rushed to the window. A blaze of such magnitude to call out the big three would surely be visible, yet no ruddy glow lighted the dark expanse of the sky. He waited for no evidence, however, but climbed into a pair of trousers over his pajamas, thrust his feet into shoes, and seizing a coat, charged down the stairs and off for the corner. They would know at the fire house whither the engines had gone.

He did not pause to wonder that no din and clatter had assailed his ears and none but his own wildly cavorting figure appeared in sight until he drew up panting and snorting before the engine house. The engine was stationary in its accustomed place, and Dennis lounged grinning in the doorway.

"Fire!" McCarty gasped, waving his arms in a vain effort to express himself. "Where's the fire? Big three!"

Dennis's grin widened.

"It hasn't happened—yet," he announced. "I thought I'd get you up my lad, and it took the big three to do it! I tapped in a little private call to you, Mac. Sit down and don't try to swear till you get your breath. I want to talk to you about the Rowntree case."

CHAPTER XVII.

THE PASSING OF MARY.

McCarty's indignation spent itself in his efforts to regain his breath and a glow of returning warmth pervaded his heart when Dennis voiced his complaint.

"This whole day have I been hanging around waiting, and never a sign of you! You have not been so busy you couldn't spare a minute to tell a fellow how things are going, and anyway, why wasn't I in on whatever you were doing, I'd like to know? Sure, it's not like you to go to bed with all the news on your chest and me left out in the cold! 'Tis the influence of that Terhune, that's what it is! Since you have been associating with the great man you're no use for the like of me!"

"Why isn't it him you're getting out of bed in the middle of the night for news, if he's so great?" retorted McCarty, but his eyes twinkled. "I'm only a has-been, and fat at that! What should I know about the case?"

"You are out of condition and that is a fact," observed Dennis tactlessly. "Look at you now, puffing like a traction engine from just a little sprint round the block! But Mac, you old divil, there ain't a man in the detective line to-day, on the force or off it, can hold a candle to you with all their scientific contraptions, and well you know it!

"'Tis a week to-night since the murder and not a step forward have they got, any of them. If the truth about who killed the girl is ever coming out, 'tis you that will do the trick, and no one else—with me helping you maybe."

"True for you," responded Dennis. "If you'd found out anything to-day, you couldn't have slept on it without telling me in spite of your grouch. I have been thinking the case over, and it comes to me that the whole thing hinges on what the girl whispered to you with her dying breath. It's that flying man you've got to find, Mac!"

"That's real smart of you, Denny, you're improving!" McCarty commented satirically. "Now, if you'll just be telling me where he is, I'll go right out and collar him, and then get some sleep."

"Oh, you may laugh, but there's no smoke without fire. That girl said 'flying man,' and flying man she meant, for by the same token she was not delirious nor crazy. There's no flying man but an aviator, and the only one she knows is the one she met on the afternoon before she was killed. I've thought all that out, and it's straight. Of course he has an alibi, but so has Quimby, and you knocked it higher than a kite. Mac, you mark my words, he's the fellow you want."

"Maybe the poor thing was crazy after all," McCarty remarked. "At least that's what her family are trying to put over now."

He gave Dennis an account of the day's events, including his interviews with the Pullman porter, little Stevie, and Miss Beckwith, and the other listened with shining eyes.

"That's where my idea comes in!" he exclaimed. "If this Mr. Antonio that's gone is the chauffeur, maybe the aviator fellow was in love with her, too; followed her to the flat on the fourth floor and killed her!"

"Then how did he get away?" demanded McCarty.

"How did the girl who went to Chicago get out, and Quimby, or whoever the man was who was behind the glass closet, and anyone else who wanted to? From the way that building was policed, if you ask me, the whole ward could have passed in and out and nobody the wiser! If you can lay your hands on that aviator, and make him talk, you will learn something, I'll bank on it."

McCarty's reply was cut short by the harsh clamour of the fire bell and he had merely time to step out of the way as Dennis jumped to his place, and the engine shot out of the door.

"And I hope it's a 'false alarm!'" muttered McCarty, acutely aware once more of his incomplete attire, and recalled to the ruse which had urged him forth.

The alarm, however, was a genuine one, a stubborn blaze in a basement cleaning establishment, and Dennis returned water soaked and too weary to continue the discussion. With a promise to look him up in the afternoon, McCarty left him, and returned to his own interrupted slumber.

Nine o'clock the next morning found him in the office of Charles Sturtevant. That young man faced about irascibly from his desk, when the ex-roundsman entered, but beneath his bluster McCarty detected a note of uneasiness.

"Confound you fellows! Can't you ever let a chap alone? I've told you repeatedly that I know nothing about the case, and Terhune assured me after his silly farce the other night that I souldn't be annoyed any more in connection with it. What do you want now?"

Killed by Poisons

All scientists agree that poisonous products in the blood are eliminated by the kidneys and liver. The kidneys act as a kind of filter for these products. When the kidneys are changed or degenerated, by disease or old age, then these poisons are retained in the body. If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals to flush the kidneys. Then procure Anuric at a drug store. This Anuric drives the uric acid out. Scientific men have learned that in gout, also rheumatism, poisonous uric acid crystals are deposited in or about the joints, in the muscles—where inflammation is set up.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only a little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month.

You can obtain a trial pkg. of Anuric by writing Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., or Bridgeburg, Ont., enclosing 10c.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"For sixteen years I have been a sufferer from kidney trouble; my back has ached almost continuously and I have had rheumatic pains in my arms, hands and lower limbs. I have doctored and tried every medicine recommended to me, but have never found the relief in anything (no matter how much I took) that I have found in one small package of Anuric. In one week the secretion cleared and my bladder was stronger than for years, so that I was not disturbed at night, where I always had to arise several times during the night. I only hope that many will read this and will try Anuric if they suffer with any sort of kidney trouble."—MRS. JACOB LONSBERRY, 85 Albert St.

Peace Plotters in Italy.

Two Ministerial councils have been convoked and held with urgency in Rome, to discuss the internal situation. The gravity of certain facts, due to the extreme liberty hitherto accorded to the expression of political opinions, has been revealed, and severe measures are considered necessary. The Corriere della Sera, in a vigorous leader, denounces in scathing language the action of these misguided agitators. It refers especially to an extraordinary circular issued by the secretary of the official Socialists, exhorting to sedition, which urged their followers:

"To stir up by means of municipal crises subversive agitations in all towns where the Socialists have a majority on the councils. Through the spread and the intensification of such agitations we should produce such an upheaval as would compel Italy to separate from her allies and conclude a separate peace before the winter."

"This," adds the Corriere, "is not the first nor the gravest proof of the unlimited audacity of our enemy at home. If this is not treason, if this is not openly co-operating with the military forces and intrigues of our enemies, the Austrians and Germans, then we don't know what is treason."

The Corriere calls upon the Government to put an end to such misguided agitation, and says Ministers will be justified in any rigorous measures they may adopt. The Socialists, of whatever ilk, in whatever Entente country found, are working with blind infatuation in the supreme interests, not of their own country, but of the enemy.

Germany's last hope, after her huge armies, her zeppelins, and her submarines have failed, is based on the moral asphyxiating Socialist gas in the Allied countries. But as the Stockholm scheme has fallen through so vigorous measures taken at last will also clear the air of this infection.

The First Stockings.

Stockings first came into use in the eleventh century. Before that time it was customary to swathe the feet with bandages.

For Sanitary Bakers.

A waxed paper baking board, a sheet of which can be discarded when soiled and immediately replaced with another under it, and also a waxed paper rolling pin, with a cardboard core, so that the covering may be thrown away in the interest of sanitary baking, have been invented by a Connecticut woman.

How It Looked to Jimmie.

Jimmie's elder sister has a beau. The beau has a touring car. One day Jimmie was playing in the front yard and the beau drove up in a roadster instead of his touring car. Jimmie ran into the house, calling: "Oh, Minnie, come quick! Mr. Parker has come, and he only brought the front seat."

Los Angeles Broadens Out.

Recent additions to the city of Los Angeles, Cal., make it the largest city in the United States in point of area. It now has an area of 387 square miles as against New York city's 314, Chicago's 198, and Philadelphia's 129, all greatly exceeding it in population.

Not Impressed With Lamp.

A little girl was told the story of Aladdin and his magic lamp. Later she was shown pictures of it. The spirit of the lamp was most hideous, with a large mouth and ugly horns. After a prolonged stare the child said: "Gee, I'd never wish for that."

Protein in White of Eggs.

The purest example of protein is the albumen in the white of eggs. Protein is found not only in eggs, but all lean meats. Also in vegetables and cereals in much smaller proportions, some vegetables having only a trace, while others, such as peanuts, having more than the best beefsteak.

Great Men Never Die.

The career of a great man remains an enduring monument of human energy. The man dies and disappears, but his thoughts and acts survive and leave an indelible stamp upon his race. —Samuel Smiles.

Must Be One or Other.

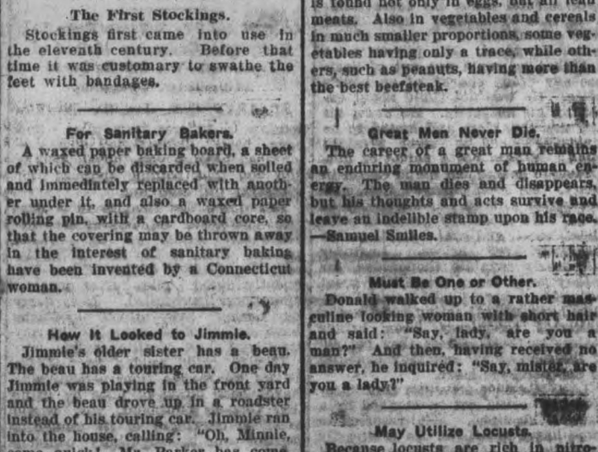
Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks



To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Girls and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just try this for a week and notice results.

THE UKRAINE PROBLEM.

"Little Russia" Does Not Trust Fellow Countrymen.

The thorniest of Russia's racial problems is undoubtedly that of "Little Russia," or the "Ukraine." The Little Russians who prefer to be called "Ukrainians," differ from the Great Russians in language and culture fully as much as the Dutch do from the Germans. Had the Russian Government granted them local autonomy and respected their language and customs, there seems little doubt that the Ukrainians would today be loyal citizens of the Russian state, especially when it is remembered that the great divider of East European people—religious schism—is here absent, both Great and Little Russians being Greek Orthodox in faith.

As a matter of fact, however, the old Czarist government tried for centuries to make the Ukrianians into Great Russians, while the middle-class "Liberals" who controlled the dumas after the inauguration of Russian parliamentary life in 1905, showed themselves as imperialistic and intolerant towards the Ukrianians as the Czarist bureaucrats had ever been. All this has embittered the Ukrianians and makes them doubt the possibility of safeguarding their racial identity within the boundaries of the Russian state. On the other hand, the Ukraine's geographical position, lying as it does between North Russia and the Black Sea, would render it impossible for even the most democratic Russia to view with equanimity the severance of the Ukraine from the Russian political body. The effect of such a severance upon the Great Russians would be much the same as the effect that a movement to separate the Province of Quebec would have upon the other parts of Canada. We here have one of those "hard cases" which "make shipwreck of the law."

Somebody Goes Wrong.

Food for Thought.

Alkali In Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Sumac in Sicily.

Two species of sumac are grown in Sicily, the wild and the cultivated. The wild variety has a short stalk, small leaves attached two by two to a short stem, the leaves sparse, covered with a white fuzz on both sides, the stem with no small leaves near its base. The cultivated plant (Rhus coriaria) has a longer stem than the wild, its leaves are larger and are covered with fuzz only on the lower side, and the stem of the leaf has small leaves along its entire length.

Sumac requires a dry, loose soil. The best is a clay soil with lime and silica mixed. It does not grow well in damp, compact ground. The soil may be rich or poor, so long as it is dry. However, the best sumac is grown on soil of volcanic origin. The soil, together with much heat, produces the greatest amount of tannin. The heat is perhaps the most important element in the production of tannin. In Sicily sumac is grown at all elevations up to 2,000 feet.

The gathering of the leaves takes place when they commence to turn yellow, usually in July and August. The best method is to gather the crop in three periods. First the leaves near the stalk up to about the middle of the limb are gathered. Twenty or 25 days later half of the remaining leaves are gathered. A few days after this the ends of the twigs are cut off. This method gives two or three qualities of sumac, but, as it requires a great deal of time and labor, the usual method is to cut off the whole plant near the ground. The twigs are piled on a floor and are turned three or four times a day with a fork.

After the leaves are separated from the wood, they are taken to the mill, where they are packed in bales or ground for shipment. There is no treatment at the mill which affects the amount of tannin contained in the sumac.

What Service Is.

The most blessed of human endeavors is service—the service that educates and builds and makes this old world a better and happier place in which to live and work. Service is the spirit of the hour. It blesses him that gives and him that gets; it is the brotherhood of man in business; it is the helping hand extended unselfishly; it is bread cast upon the waters; it is a way of helping ourselves by helping each other. The best that can be said of any man is this: "He served others that they might better serve themselves."—Barker.

To Remove Smoke Stains.

This suggestion will be beneficial to housewives who have not the convenience of electricity or the modern gas fixtures. Frequently the ceiling above an old-fashioned gas jet becomes discolored from smoke and heat. The discoloration may be removed if a layer of starch and water is applied with a piece of flannel. After the mixture has dried it should be brushed lightly with a brush. No stain or mark will remain.

Cross Children.

Don't be cross with children when they are cross. If they are irritable and pouty leave them alone to their blues or try to divert their attention to some interesing book or game or toy. Get them outdoors to play or to walk. Take them for a side. The common retort to cross children is in being cross yourself, but this only hurts the children and makes them moody and later despondents.—Exchange.

Children Like It

It is not an easy matter to get a medicine that children like, or to force them to take one they don't like. Most mothers know that a cough medicine, while palatable, should contain no drug injurious to the child. The great popularity of is explained by the fact that it contains no opium or narcotic of any kind, and at the same time is so pleasant and agreeable to the taste that children like it. For this reason it is a favorite with the mothers of young children.

READY!

In the newspapers there recently appeared articles telling of the arrival of the American fleet at Queenstown—telling how the Officers of the English Navy had gone to Vice-Admiral Sims and asked him when he would be ready for action. Every American thrilled with pride at his answer—

"WE CAN START AT ONCE."

"READY TO START AT ONCE"—What a wonderful motto for every man, and yet how many of us realize that at any moment we may suddenly be called away from Business, from Home and Friends, from this world of ours to pass in to the Great Beyond.

Peace Plotters in Italy.

Two Ministerial councils have been convoked and held with urgency in Rome, to discuss the internal situation. The gravity of certain facts, due to the extreme liberty hitherto accorded to the expression of political opinions, has been revealed, and severe measures are considered necessary. The Corriere della Sera, in a vigorous leader, denounces in scathing language the action of these misguided agitators. It refers especially to an extraordinary circular issued by the secretary of the official Socialists, exhorting to sedition, which urged their followers:

"To stir up by means of municipal crises subversive agitations in all towns where the Socialists have a majority on the councils. Through the spread and the intensification of such agitations we should produce such an upheaval as would compel Italy to separate from her allies and conclude a separate peace before the winter."

"This," adds the Corriere, "is not the first nor the gravest proof of the unlimited audacity of our enemy at home. If this is not treason, if this is not openly co-operating with the military forces and intrigues of our enemies, the Austrians and Germans, then we don't know what is treason."

The Corriere calls upon the Government to put an end to such misguided agitation, and says Ministers will be justified in any rigorous measures they may adopt. The Socialists, of whatever Hk, in whatever Entente country found, are working with blind infatuation in the supreme interests, not of their own country, but of the enemy.

Germany's last hope, after her huge armies, her zeppelins, and her submarines have failed, is based on the moral asphyxiating Socialist gas in the Allied countries. But as the Stockholm scheme has fallen through so vigorous measures taken at last will also clear the air of this infection.

The First Stockings.

Stockings first came into use in the eleventh century. Before that time it was customary to swathe the feet with bandages.

For Sanitary Bakers.

A waxed paper baking board, a sheet of which can be discarded when soiled and immediately replaced with another under it, and also a waxed paper rolling pin, with a cardboard core, so that the covering may be thrown away in the interest of sanitary baking have been invented by a Connecticut woman.

How It Looked to Jimmie.

Jimmie's older sister has a beau. The beau has a touring car. One day Jimmie was playing in the front yard and the beau drove up in a roadster instead of his touring car. Jimmie ran into the house, calling: "Oh, Minnie, come quick! Mr. Parker has come, and he only brought the front seat."

Los Angeles Broadens Out.

Recent additions to the city of Los Angeles, Cal., make it the largest city in the United States in point of area. It now has an area of 367 square miles as against New York city's 314, Chicago's 198, and Philadelphia's 129, all greatly exceeding it in population.

Not Impressed With Lamp.

A little girl was told the story of Aladdin and his magic lamp. Later she was shown pictures of it. The spirit of the lamp was most hideous, with a large mouth and ugly horns. After a prolonged stare the child said: "Gee, I'd never wish for that."

No. 1, McLean, Nebraska.

This famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has been restoring women of America to health for more than forty years and it will well pay any woman who suffers from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues" to give this successful remedy a trial.

Protein in White of Eggs.

The purest example of protein is the albumen in the white of egg. Protein is found not only in eggs, but all lean meats. Also in vegetables and cereals in much smaller proportions, some vegetables having only a trace, while others, such as peanuts, having more than the best beefsteak.

Great Men Never Die.

The career of a great man remains an enduring monument of human energy. The man dies and disappears, but his thoughts and acts survive and leave an indelible stamp upon his race. —Samuel Smiles.

Because locusts are rich in nitrogen and phosphoric acid the government of Uruguay has appointed a commission to ascertain if the insects cannot be utilized in fertilizers, soap and lubricants.

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Girls and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just try this for a week and notice results.

THE UKRAINE PROBLEM.

"Little Russia" Does Not Trust Fellow Countrymen.

The thorniest of Russia's racial problems is undoubtedly that of "Little Russia," or the "Ukraine." The Little Russians who prefer to be called "Ukrainians," differ from the Great Russians in language and culture fully as much as the Dutch do from the Germans. Had the Russian Government granted them local autonomy and respected their language and customs, there seems little doubt that the Ukrainians would today be loyal citizens of the Russian state, especially when it is remembered that the great divider of East European people—religious schism—is here absent, both Great and Little Russians being Greek Orthodox in faith.

As a matter of fact, however, the old Czarist government tried for centuries to make the Ukrainians into Great Russians, while the middle-class "Liberals" who controlled the dumas after the inauguration of Russian parliamentary life in 1905, showed themselves as imperialistic and intolerant towards the Ukrainians as the Czarist bureaucrats had ever been. All this has embittered the Ukrainians and makes them doubt the possibility of safeguarding their racial identity within the boundaries of the Russian state. On the other hand, the Ukraine's geographical position, lying as it does between North Russia and the Black Sea, would render it impossible for even the most democratic Russia to view with equanimity the severance of the Ukraine from the Russian political body. The effect of such a severance upon the Great Russians would be much the same as the effect that a movement to separate the Province of Quebec would have upon the other parts of Canada. We here have one of those "hard cases" which "make shipwreck of the law."

Somebody Goes Wrong.

"To keep on playin' de races," said Uncle Eben, "a man has to have a mighty forgivin' nature."

Food for Thought.

Trust in Providence and keep your powder dry.

Alkali In Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Sumac in Sicily.

Two species of sumac are grown in Sicily, the wild and the cultivated. The wild variety has a short stalk, small leaves attached two by two to a short stem, the leaves sparse, covered with a white fuzz on both sides, the stem with no small leaves near its base. The cultivated plant (Rhus coriaria) has a longer stem than the wild, its leaves are larger and are covered with fuzz only on the lower side, and the stem of the leaf has small leaves along its entire length.

Sumac requires a dry, loose soil. The best is a clay soil with lime and silica mixed. It does not grow well in damp, compact ground. The soil may be rich or poor, so long as it is dry. However, the best sumac is grown on soil of volcanic origin. The soil, together with much heat, produces the greatest amount of tannin. The heat is perhaps the most important element in the production of tannin. In Sicily sumac is grown at all elevations up to 2,000 feet.

The gathering of the leaves takes place when they commence to turn yellow, usually in July and August. The best method is to gather the crop in three periods. First the leaves near the stalk up to about the middle of the limb are gathered. Twenty or 25 days later half of the remaining leaves are gathered. A few days after this the ends of the twigs are cut off. This method gives two or three qualities of sumac, but, as it requires a great deal of time and labor, the usual method is to cut off the whole plant near the ground. The twigs are piled on a floor and are turned three or four times a day with a fork.

After the leaves are separated from the wood, they are taken to the mill, where they are packed in bales or ground for shipment. There is no treatment at the mill which affects the amount of tannin contained in the sumac.

What Service Is.

The most blessed of human endeavors is service—the service that educates and builds and makes this old world a better and happier place in which to live and work. Service is the spirit of the hour. It blesses him that gives and him that gets; it is the brotherhood of man in business; it is the helping hand extended unselfishly; it is bread cast upon the waters; it is a way of helping ourselves by helping each other. The best that can be said of any man is this: "He served others that they might better serve themselves."—Barker.

To Remove Smoke Stains.

This suggestion will be beneficial to housewives who have not the convenience of electricity or the modern gas fixtures. Frequently the ceiling above an old-fashioned gas jet becomes discolored from smoke and heat. The discoloration may be removed if a layer of starch and water is applied with a piece of flannel. After the mixture has dried it should be brushed lightly with a brush. No stain or mark will remain.

Cross Children.

Don't be cross with children when they are cross. If they are irritable and pouty leave them alone to their blues or try to divert their attention to some interesing book or game or toy. Get them outdoors to play or to walk. Take them for a ride. The common retort to cross children is in being cross yourself, but this only hurts the children and makes them moody and later despondents.—Exchange.

Children Like It

It is not an easy matter to get a medicine that children like, or to force them to take one they don't like. Most mothers know that a cough medicine, while palatable, should contain no drug injurious to the child. The great popularity of is explained by the fact that it contains no opium or narcotic of any kind, and at the same time is so pleasant and agreeable to the taste that children like it. For this reason it is a favorite with the mothers of young children.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

Yours for health,
"Granny Chamberlain"

Thursday the Special Day for Women

THAT'S the day on which THE GLOBE publishes its weekly feature, "The Homemakers' Page." It is additional to the daily Woman's Page, conducted by a staff of trained writers, and which has given Canada's National Newspaper pre-eminence among women. In this Thursday feature is given what women want to read. Among the chief contributors is Jean Blewett, whose name is a guarantee of ideas, entertainment and literary excellence. Variety is one of the strong characteristics of the Homemakers' Page. The favorable reception this new department has received prompts THE GLOBE to invite every woman to look for it next Thursday.

What Women Like About Canada's National Newspaper

WAR NEWS—First in the hearts of the women of Canada is the war. By them, just as much as by busy men, THE GLOBE'S "War Summary" is looked for daily, as the most complete and concise review of the day's war despatches. Women readers, too, are appreciative of the services of the world's ablest war correspondents, so many of whom write exclusively for THE GLOBE in Canada.

DOMESTIC NEWS—While neither THE GLOBE'S space nor its readers' time is wasted on non-essentials, no happening of general interest in Canada is overlooked.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS—THE GLOBE has enjoyed a preference among women for many years, owing to the special attention it has given to the activities of their various organizations. Ontario's progress toward woman suffrage has been assisted materially by THE GLOBE.

HOUSEWIFE HELPS—The practical element, in the make-up of THE GLOBE'S special department for women, is emphasized by "Mrs. Buylow Goes to Market"—careful women all over the Province follow the market prices through this well-known feature.

SATURDAY FEATURES—Music, The Drama and Literature are among the special Saturday features that so many women appreciate. The serial story and the Young People's Page also appeal to a large proportion of women readers.

FASHIONS AND ADVERTISING—Due prominence is given in THE GLOBE to the ever-changing dictates of Fashion, while big store advertising serves a kindred purpose. An inquiry by a woman investigator revealed the fact that a high percentage of readers was guided in their buying by THE GLOBE'S advertising columns.

THE CENSORSHIP—One reason why 89 per cent. of THE GLOBES delivered to city homes remain in those homes all day is because Canada's National Newspaper is a safe paper for all the family. The salacious and the irreverent are barred from the columns of THE GLOBE.

Other Days

TUESDAYS— Industrial Section.

WEDNESDAYS— Farm and Country Life.

SATURDAYS— Children's Page, Religious Outlook, Serial Story, etc.

EVERY DAY— Woman's Page, full page of editorials and letters to editor, financial news and the most complete cable and general news service published in Canada.

THE home life of the Canadian people has been honestly reflected by THE GLOBE since 1844. Every Canadian woman should be a reader. Your subscription is invited through your newsdealer or direct. $4 per year, by mail; $5 delivered.

"SOUP" FROM HUN PLANES.

Deadly "Soup" Powders With English Labels Dropped on Calais.

During a recent air raid on Calais the Germans dropped not only 100 bombs but also a number of small packets bearing an inscription in English to the effect that they contained soup powder. Directions were given to dissolve the powder in cold water and then to add a pint of boiling liquid.

Analysis has shown that the packets contain an extremely violent poison, and the Temps states that all the families who took the soup have died. In Eastern France a number of children have been killed by poisoned sweet and explosive pencil-cases dropped from aeroplanes.

COUNTRY ROADS BAD.

Succession of Pitch Holes That Make Traffic Slow and Hazardous.

Country roads have become so broken up by "pitch holes," deepened by the belated thaw, that the delivery of wood for city use has been greatly curtailed. Reports from the contractor, from whom the Council has been obtaining green maple, indicate that the hauling of heavy loads is accomplished with unusual difficulty and for that reason shipments have been retarded. Similar reports have been brought in by farmers on most of the roads radiating from the city, and this morning Street Commission Evans had to put a gang of men to work on a hole at the north end of Reid street. It had been so gouged out by traffic that the road was practically impassable. By filling and packing the hole with snow, the road was improved to the extent that it was no longer a menace to traffic.

TO SUFFER FROM HEADACHES

Makes Life Miserable

Headaches seems to be habitual with many people. Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually with the dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on.

The varieties of headache most common are sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, debility or indigestion and periodical and spasmodic headache, and undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that has been on the market for over 40 years, removes the cause of the headaches, and not only does this but also restores the entire system to healthy action and buoyant vigour.

Miss Emily Smith, 204 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. For two years I was greatly troubled with violent headaches, particularly in the morning. I tried everything to cure me until a friend recommended B.B.B. I tried it, and now I am completely cured."

DON'T BE DYSPEPTIC.

The dyspeptic has thought only of the stomach when the real source of trouble is the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills thoroughly cleanse and purify the digestive and excretory system and in this way put the organs of digestion into splendid working condition. A little patient urging on of the organs when sluggish will restore the habit of healthful digestion.

ENQUIRE INTO DEFEAT OF ITALIANS ON ISONZO.

ROME, Feb. 12.—The Italian defeat of last October on the Isonzo front and the circumstances attending it are to be enquired into by a committee named by the Cabinet.

This announcement, in the shape of a note issued by the Stefani News Agency, says that following the appointment of a committee to enquire into the military events of the end of October, 1917, the Cabinet decided that General Cadorna, former Chief of Staff, General Porro, Under-Chief of General Staff, and General Capello shall remain at the disposal of the Minister of War without any reduction in rank or authority, simply for the object of enabling them to furnish the committee with all the facts likely to be useful to it.

CAN YOU HOP TWENTY TIMES?

New British Army Test Savors of the Freak.

LONDON.—If you can hop twenty times on each foot without showing signs of undue distress, the British army considers your health good enough for general service, according to a new book of instructions issued to the examining medical boards. The test recommended is as follows:

"The rate of the pulse is taken, and then the recruit is directed to hop twenty times on each foot, raising the other foot nine inches. At the end of this performance, in health there should be no noteworthy breathlessness and no pallor or anxiety of expression. Two minutes later the pulse should be not more than five beats more frequent than it was before the exercise.

Diseases of Metals.

So firmly do some scientists maintain the theory that changes in metals are due to conditions resembling diseases in organic matter that a German navy yard maintains an expert to study the question.

Emerson's "White Plague."

Although Ralph Waldo Emerson lived past the allotted three score years and ten, his health was undermined by tuberculosis, and only a rough sea voyage saved him at one time from dying of the disease. His wife and two of his brothers died from it, and his life was a struggle against it. However, it released his marvelous gift of genius and made him America's greatest essayist.

Had an Idea.

William was a clever youngster, but his cleverness sometimes led him into funny mistakes. Once when he was traveling with his family they stopped for breakfast at a restaurant. William was permitted to make his own choice of food, but after the waiter had gone he grew doubtful of his wisdom in choosing and said, "I wish I could counteract that order."

How Vessels Sink.

Nearly every class or design of vessel sinks in a particular way. For instance, the old type of single-bottom steamers, with few or no bulkheads—that is, in the modern sense of the term—almost invariably founders on more or less of an even keel and not with the bow or stem up in the air.

CUTICURA HEALS SKIN TROUBLE

On Face that Itched & Burned. The Soap and Ointment Acted Like Magic.

"My skin had always been clear until last January when a pimple appeared on my chin. It burned and itched and of course I foolishly scratched it. Then a scab formed that looked like a cold sore and my face became nearly covered.

"It was growing worse so fast that I sent for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed my face with Cuticura Soap and applied the Ointment and they acted like magic. I have not been troubled since." (Signed) Otto C. Brock, Glen Sutton, Que.

EAT LESS.

That, Says Writer, is Whole Secret of Food Conservation.

The chief topic of conversation in London to-day, if The Daily Mail is to be believed, is not the war, but food. A sudden and inexplicable shortness in the supply of tea has upset the British equilibrium. The average Briton must have his tea. The first thing he or she does after getting out of bed in the morning is to light a lamp under a Russian samovar or British tea-kettle and brew a strong decoction of the Asiatic herb. Nine Britons out of every ten start the day in that manner, as their parents did before them. Next to the Russians, they are the tea-drinkers of Europe. One day last month the price of this necessity suddenly rose from 2s 4d to 4s and 6s. This threw Britons, rich and poor, into panic. A rush of buyers disclosed the fact that shopkeepers would only sell two ounces to each customer. Then everybody realized, as not before, that nearly every article of food was steadily increasing in price. Hence the universal theme of talk.

While Lord Rhondda, the British Food Controller, was "regulating" one staple, the "purveyors" would push up another article of diet. Then began the bitterest war ever waged against the "middleman"—the commission broker, who "scalped the market," robbing both producer and consumer.

This class of people has an ugly customer to deal with in Lord Rhondda. Before he was "ennobled" he was plain David A. Thomas, a colliery magnate of South Wales, and is now aged 61 years. He was a sturdy economist, despite immense wealth, and a foe to wastage in every branch of livelihood. When selected for his present job, he displayed his Welsh traits to a high degree. He organized the Food Department on a strictly business and unsentimental basis. He decentralized his task by creating more than 2,000 committees in all parts of the United Kingdom. His powers were such that he could put out of business any "food shark" at an hour's notice. He was not timid about exercising his authority. He knew his task was thankless and bound to be unpopular; but he went straight ahead. Where not a pound of butter was to be had, he found cream in plenty. He soon changed that, and best butter sells in London to-day at 2s 6d. He especially grappled with wheat, meat, and coal. On these he absolutely fixed prices. Luxuries will nearly regulate themselves, for if they go to fancy prices, the great majority of people quit using them. This boycott, self-acting, and not a matter of conspiracy, soon brings dealers to their senses; they get rid of their stock as best they can and do not purchase more.

Lord Rhondda soon saw that "profiteering" could not be stopped by a wave of his hand. He resorted to some harsh measures. He arbitrarily fixed the rate of profit to be made at each stage, from producer to customer, and limited the number of intermediaries. He enforced a scale of punishments, provided for in the bill, high enough to be deterrent, but not so high as to be vindictive.

The whole problem of the Food Controller, whether his name be Herbert C. Hoover or Lord Rhondda, is to induce people to eat less.

As more and more money is put in circulation, whether due to increased wages or to war-time commerce, the tendency is to eat more.

Reduced food consumption can only be achieved by voluntary economy. It becomes a matter of national honor—a thing to be emulated and rigidly yielded to by rich and poor.

Enemy Claimed London.

Large signs announcing that London and Paris had been captured by Germany and that the Kaiser was to exact indemnity from England were displayed on the walls of Fukien to deceive the Chinese, according to Dr. J. Preston Maxwell, medical missionary in charge of the Yungchun Hospital, Fukien Province, who arrived in New York recently. Dr. Maxwell says that German propaganda in South China is widespread and has been so since the beginning of the war.

"All sorts of reports were constantly being circulated to make the Chinese believe Germany was winning the war," he said. "It is only recently that the people of South China have been getting true accounts from the battle fronts.

"A medical registration is being put into effect in China, and it is hoped that this will eventually eliminate the 'quack' doctors who used to go about selling flour and oil as medicine. Where formerly we had nine medical patients to one surgical, now there is the same number of each. The Chinese are gradually overcoming their aversion to operations."

Ecclesiastical Candy.

One Sunday a young man from the north of Scotland, while walking out with his sweetheart, noticed over a doorway the sign, "Dairy and Confectioner." Wishing to give the young lady a treat, the youth entered the shop and asked for chocolate creams. "I dinna sell chocolate creams on the Sabbath," said the old lady behind the counter severely. "But ye selt sweeties to the woman that has just gane oot," said the young fellow, who indeed had seen the transaction through the window. "Ay, some ecclesiastical confectionery; but nae chocolate creams," said the lady, and went on to explain: "Ecclesiastical confectionery is peppermint draps, pan drops, and ginger lozengers, but nae chocolate creams."

Italian Peat Bogs.

Many peat bogs are being worked at the present time in Italy in order to secure a supply of fuel. Much of this peat is too low a grade to compete with foreign imported coal, but more recently attention has been called to the nitrogen it contains.

Just Their Way.

"Some men," said Uncle Eben, "is so good natured dat dey kin impose on most anybody."

One's Career.

Strictly speaking, every life is a career because it is a course that is run from start to finish, but as generally used the term implies an unusual life record, something exceptional and out of the ordinary, says a professor. Childhood is a period of life, but it is not a career. One's career is the life one lives and the record one makes whether it becomes known to the public or not. The term public career is applied to lives largely spent in the public service.

Minister Without Portfolio.

The phrase "minister without portfolio" means a member of a ministry or cabinet to whom no special department is assigned. The phrase is used only in England, and we have no corresponding phrase in this country, notes an international authority. Prior to December, 1916, the British cabinet consisted of the political chiefs or heads of the principal government departments, and exceeded 20 in number.

Polishing Diamonds.

Before the polishing of a diamond is begun the rough stone must be held firmly. This is accomplished by building a solder mold for it. The mold is first roughly shaped by hand and heated. It is then reshaped as often as necessary to fit the stone perfectly. When it is exactly right, it is heated again and the stone dropped in. Held firmly by the snug solder mold, the stone can then be handled easily.

The Dread Of An Operation

Keeps Many Pile Sufferers From This Risky and Expensive Method of Treatment—You Can Be Cured Without an Operation.

ST. JEAN, Que., Jan. 30.—Possibly you are a sufferer from piles, and have been disheartened and discouraged because your physician has told you that nothing short of an operation will cure you.

You dread the thought of a surgical operation, for, besides the expense and strain on the nervous system, there is the risk of life itself. Dr. Chase's Ointment has frequently cured piles after surgical operations have failed. It is every day curing cases which physicians have stated to be incurable by any treatment short of an operation.

If you could read a few of the letters we receive from persons who have been cured of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, you would soon be convinced of its wonderful control over his frightfully common disease.

Mr. Charles Beauvois, a well-known citizen of St. Jean, Que., writes: "For fourteen years I suffered from chronic piles and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a celebrated doctor, who could not help me and ordered a surgical operation as the only means of relief. However, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and obtained great relief from the first box. By the use of three boxes I was entirely cured. This is why it gives me great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from piles as a treatment of the greatest value."

WHAT ASTONISHED THEM.

Soldiers Tell of What Seemed Unusual to Them in Paris.

PARIS.—One of the French trench newspapers has been asking soldiers returning from leave what astonished them most in Paris. Here are a few typical replies:

To see people sitting down to their meals.

To see unoccupied cellars.

To find there are women who are not grocers.

To find people who want to go to the country.

To see funerals.

To be asked to sit down when getting one's hair cut.

To hear civilians complaining about their hardships.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores its Natural Colour and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

ROUMANIA DEFIES THE CENTRAL POWERS

ROUMANIA HAS IGNORED ULTIMATUM FROM GERMANY

King Ferdinand's Plucky Nation Determines to Survive or Perish With The Allied Cause---Prospects of a Separate Peace Between Austria-Hungary are Much Nearer.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Roumania has ignored Germany's twenty-four hour ultimatum "to conclude peace," according to a message to Dr. Constantin Agolasca, the Roumanian Minister here. Roumania has "disdainfully ignored" Germany's threat, and will survive or perish with the Allied cause.

With Teuton divisions on one side, the Bolsheviki on the other, and many miles away from a friendly force, King Ferdinand's plucky nation is fighting harder to-day than ever before.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 13.—The Berlin Tageblatt says that the Central Powers have addressed a demand to Roumania to enter peace negotiations and requested an answer by this evening. The newspaper says the demand did not take the form of an ultimatum with an inherent threat. Late last week some of the German newspapers printed reports that Field Marshal Mackensen had sent an ultimatum to Roumania on February 6th, demanding that peace negotiations be begun within four days.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 13.—According to the correspondent of the Daily News facts are known which bring the possibility of a separate peace between Austria-Hungary and the Entente Allies much nearer. Great reluctance, he says, is manifested in Austria toward the prospect of fighting British and American troops on the Western Front.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

Stockholm, Feb. 13.—Radical and Conservative leaders of the Swedish Government differed to-day on what stand this country should take in regard to Finland, where revolutionaries are battling for their independence against the Russian Bolsheviki.

The only intervention in Finnish affairs must be an offer to mediate," was the declaration in a Socialist manifesto signed by Branting and others.

The Conservative leader, Lindeman, said: "The Swedish Government cannot forbid the transmission of arms to the Finnish Government, which Sweden has recognized."

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BERNE, Feb. 13.—An exchange of Russian and German prisoners has been begun, according to Berlin despatches received here to-day. One thousand German prisoners have arrived at Warsaw, en route to Berlin.

Except in the case of men wholly incapacitated it is regarded as probable that the German prisoners will immediately be re-mustered into the army. In a military way Germany will get all the best of this exchange, as her men will again become soldiers, while Russia's withdrawal from the war means that Russian prisoners will follow civil pursuits.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

BERNE, Feb. 13.—The prospect of the much advertised Hindenburg offensive is provoking much alarm and indignation among German civilians and apprehension among the troops, according to reports reaching here to-day.

Berlin has been secretly placarded with announcements that the Prussian militarists are preparing to sacrifice another million men. A number of Socialists have been arrested.

(Canadian Press Despatch.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—There was a fairly heavy artillery fire last night in the neighbourhood of Pinon, on the Aisne Front, says to-day's War Office statement, northwest of Rheims, the bombardment was also rather lively. The French carried out successful raids and drove off a German attacking detachment in the Embermesnil region.

(By John H. Hearley.)

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

ROME, Feb. 13.—Pope Benedict welcomed President Wilson's latest address to the enemy and the world, as "nourishing the peace seed, which is already sprouting," it was learned in Vatican circles to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

MADRID, Feb. 13.—The steamer "Ofernio" has been torpedoed, it was reported here to-day. Thirty-seven survivors are said to have been towed by the submarine and landed at Canary Islands.

WHAT BRITAIN IS DOING

Has Added 820,000 Men To The Army During the Past Year.

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Eight hundred and twenty thousand men were added to the British Army in 1917, while 730,000 men and 309,000 women were assigned to essential war work, Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law announced in the House of Commons this afternoon. The Chancellor said Great Britain now had thirty per cent. more guns and twice as many airplanes as in 1916, and had built 1,107,000 tons of shipping, twice the amount built in 1916.

Big Sale of Farm Stock and Implements

One of the biggest sales of farm stock and implements to be held in Peterboro county for some time, will be that to take place at the home of Mr. T. M. Hunter, lot 3, Concession 11, North Monaghan, on Thursday, February 21st, commencing at 12.30 noon. A splendid offering of horses, cattle, hogs and poultry will be sold without reserve, while the farm implements on the list are numerous. A feature will be the sale of 500 bushels of Marquis seed wheat, which will be sold in 2-bushel bags.

INCREASING WHEAT PRICE

Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Legislation to increase the price of wheat this year from $2.00, as fixed in the Food Control law to $2,50 was introduced in the Senate to-day.

Toronto Stock Market

(Special to the Examiner).

TORONTO, Feb 13.—The market was brighter this morning. Prices steady and run of cattle. Hogs, steady. Receipts: 47 cars, 512 cattle, 95 calves, 1,412 hogs, 95 sheep. Export cattle $12 to $12.50, export bulls $9 to $10.50; butchers' cattle, $10.75 to $11; butchers' cows, $8.75 to $10.25; butcher bulls, $7.50 to $8.75; feeding steers $8.50 to $9.75, sheep ewes $12.50 to $13.50; lambs, $18.25 to $19; hogs, fed and watered $18.75 to $19; calves, $15.50 to $17.

DIED ON WAY HOME FROM FRONT

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 13. — Major Fred Dingwall, son of the late D. W. Dingwall, jeweller, of Winnipeg, died at Halifax this morning of pleuro pnuemonia. He had gone to the front in 1914 as second in command of the Fort Garry Horse, and was returning home after three and a half years' service.

PROVINCE WILL FLOAT LOAN OF TWO MILLION

Ontario Government Has Secured This Necessary Permission From the Dominion and Bonds will Shortly be Placed With Bond Dealers.

LOWER INTEREST RATES

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 13.— The Ontario government has secured permission from the Dominion government to float a loan of $2,000,000. The loan has not yet been floated, and consequently full particulars are not yet available, according to a statement made by Hon. T. W. McGarry, the Provincial Treasurer, in the House yesterday afternoon.

Sir Thomas White sent for the Ontario treasurer some weeks ago and satisfactory arrangements were made for financing Ontario so long as the war continues. Mr. McGarry said that bonds would shortly be placed with local bond dealers and it is expected that the $2,000,000 loan will be floated at a rate of interest lower than that offered by the Finance Minister.

While the Dominion order-in-council has been obeyed, and the province has secured permission to float a loan, it is a question in the minds of many financiers as to whether the Dominion government has the right to pass such an order.

NO FURTHER NEWS AVAILABLE ABOUT LIEUT. CRESSMAN

Pigeon Message from Missing Peterborough Officer Said That He Expected The End Soon if Help Did Not Come.

A few days ago Mr. A. W. Cressman received a letter from the Admiralty giving particulars of the loss of his son, Fred, of the Royal Naval Air Service, who was reported missing December 24th. It states that Flight Lieutenant Cressman was on duty on the North Sea on December 24th and that shortly after the time his return to his base was expected, a carrier pigeon message was received from the young officer's machine stating that unless he received help soon it would be all up.

The admiralty letter also stated that an exhaustive search had been carried out by His Majesty's ships, but no trace of Flight Lieut. Cressman or his seaplane could be found, but any further information would be immediately cabled.

On February 3rd a cable was also received, which read, "No further information."

TWENTY SOLDIERS CARRIED TO SAFETY.

CAMP SHERIDAN, Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 12.—Twenty patients were carried to safety when a ward at the base hospital here was destroyed by fire. Destruction of several of the buildings was threatened, but soldiers confined the blaze to the one ward.

PROMISES OF COAL TO MAYOR

Buffalo Companies Assured Him They Would Speed up Deliveries—32 Cars are Arranged For and Their Arrival Will Depend on Railways

MAYOR WELL RECEIVED

Mayor Duncan is back from Buffalo with promises of delivery of at least 32 cars of coal from the Scranton, Lehigh Valley and other exporting companies. The Mayor was accompanied by Mr. Robt. Hicks, who is remaining in Buffalo for a few days to chase up the orders that have been filled for Peterborough.

When Mayor Duncan apprised the Lehigh Valley manager of the scarcity in Peterborough, he immediately changed an order for one car billed for Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald to a general order for six or eight cars, and stated that Mr. Fitzgerald would receive first conside ration among Ontario customers. This company also agreed to forward more supplies to the H. B. Taylor Company.

The Mayor's representations supporting Mr. Hicks' statement, moved the Scranton coal office to change a Peterborough order from one to six cars, and an independent company promised to send Mr. Hicks six or eight cars at once.

In practically all the offices it was made plain to Mayor Duncan that the coal companies and jobbers are discouraging municipal yards. One man said: "We will do anything for the regular dealers, but we won't sell to municipalities."

Coal Sidetracked.

"At Black Rock and Bridgeport, we saw anywhere from 600 to 800 cars of coal snow-bound on sidings. They had been set down there by trains," the Mayor stated, "apparently because the railways could not deliver them. On the way home I saw gangs of men digging them out. There should be a freer movement from now on if the weather remains favourable."

A Toronto company promised to send Mr. Hicks six or eight cars of coal, and the Mayor ordered seven or eight for the city. If the railways come throuzh with deliveries the present scarcity of fuel should be met by adequate supplies.

Ordering For Next Year.

Coal men in Buffalo assured Mayor Duncan that there would be supplies for next winter, but that the companies should file their orders early, and consumers should make their purchases during the "long run," in the summer months.

CALL OF THE SECOND CLASS MAY COME SOON

That is Ottawa's Expectation in View of the War Situation

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—In view of the urgent necessity for reinforcements, it is considered likely here that further calls of other classes under the Military Service Act may not long be delayed. Class One has already been called up, and all but exemptees, appellants or deserters are in khaki.

Class Two, which is the next class under the Act, and may soon be called up, includes men between the ages of 20 and 35, who are married, or widowers without children. It is stated that the government will soon give out the returns showing the result of the first call. This statement is already in the course of preparation. It may be taken for granted, however, that the issue of the statement, especially in view of the situation on the eastern and western fronts, must lead to further call under the terms of the Act.

Canadians Holding Larger Front Than Ever Before

WILL SWITZERLAND BE NEXT NATION TO SUFFER BELGIAN FATE?

Hindenburg Massing Troops Against French Right Flank While German Agents are Stirring up Trouble Against the Swiss People—Labourites Send Ultimatum to Government.

(By William Philip Simms)—Copyright 1918 by The United Press.

Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 13.—After Belgium, is Switzerland's turn next?

Hindenburg is massing troops against the French right flank, with vast stores of ammunition and many guns.

The people here are asking whether the Treaty of 1915 will be the next "scrap of paper".

Germans in Zurich are openly boasting that Ludendorff could smash the Swiss Army in forty-eight hours.

The Prussians, while gorging themselves on little republics, brag they could occupy this city on the first day. They declare Switzerland's 1,500 machine guns, 16 six-inch cannon, 80 batteries of three-inch field guns and small stock of ammunition is insignificant to cause much trouble.

ONLY 100,000 TO FACE.

They say there are only 100,000 troops under colours and that of these but 47,000 are on the German border, which could be swept aside and France entered before the remainder of the Swiss could be mobilized.

The concensus of opinion of people I have talked to is that if Hindenburg does not attempt to crush Switzerland in an effort to turn the French flank it will be because he considers it strategically unwise.

I am told the Germans have planned the invasion to the last detail, even skeleton governments for Cantons (Swiss States) exist.

At the trial of a number of suspected spies at Vevy, documents placed in evidence named a certain tailor as Mayor of a town upon Prussian occupation.

To-day Switzerland is struggling valiantly, not only to maintain its neutrality, but for independence itself.

GERMAN AGENTS ACTIVE.

German agents are threatening the staunch Republic with a revolution, hoping the revolution will spread into Italy and France. The Prussians boast the German people are better disciplined than the rest of the world; that ir fevolutionary doctrines are scattered broadcast, other nations will succumb while Germany will remain unscathed. Switzerland is swarming with agents of the Prussian War Party.

Labour troubles are increasing. Purely political strikes have already occurred. Others are brewing. I am told they are all inspired by "foreigners not belonging to the Allied countries."

The latest menace came from the Radical Laborites, foreign led, in the shape of an ultimatnm to the Government, demanding the withdrawal of certain war measures, the immediate release and indemnification of deserters who are forced to work, and the complete demobilization of the army by May 1st.

CALL GENERAL STRIKE.

The Labourites declared that if within forty-eight hours after the ultimatum was ratified by the Labour Unions and Socialists, the terms were unheeded, a general strike would be called.

The best element of labour is generally against the ultimatum, but German agitators, aiming at a revolution, are busy day and night.

Meantime the German troops are gathering near the Swiss border.

All true Swiss are crying a warning, demanding "what is the connection between the menace of a Swiss revolution and Hindenburg's offensive?

The Patriotic League Will Collect Papers

Collection Will be Mad in The Spring.

The Woman's Patriotic League of Ashburnham expects to make another collection of old papers and magazines in the spring.

Owing to the great drop in the price of paper, it was considered wise last autumn, to postpone the collection until the spring, and the citizens are asked to please keep all magazines, papers and old books, in order to make the collection this spring successful. 3d37

The article afterwards was published in a different form without being submitted to the Censor.

Dominion's Fighting Strength Both in Men and Guns is Constantly Increasing—Large Addition to Fighting Establishment

STRONGER THAN EVER

(By W. A. Willison, Correspondent of The Canadian Press)

Canadian Army Headquarters, Feb. 13.—After three and a half years of war Canada in the field is to march on to victory stronger than ever before.

The Dominion's fighting strength both in men and in guns, is constantly increasing.

Add to the Strength.

Military regulations prevent any extensive statement from the field as to new developments in Canadian forces, but I am able to say that Canada's splendid support of the military service measure has placed the military authorities in a position where they not only are assured of reinforcements for existing units, but can add largely to their fighting establishments. During the Passchendaele operations new forces of artillery came from the Dominion to France, and while not actively engaged in the desperate fighting last October and November, long ago took their place in the line where they are now acquitting themselves splendidly.

Stronger Than Ever.

The Dominion is entering upon a Spring campaign stronger in men, material and guns than at any time since the mobilization at Valcartier marked the creation of the historic first division, and is holding a larger front than ever before. It is impossible yet to give any details of the increase in forces, but one effect is to materially strengthen the rifle strength in the line.

The Canadian front continues quiet. Recently captured German prisoners say the accuracy of the Canadian machine gun and artillery fire lately have given them trouble.

MURDER TRIAL AT KITCHENER

Canadian Press Despatch:

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 13.— The first murder trial heard in this city in twenty years was commenced this morning at the spring assizes of the Supreme Court before Justice Masten, when Charles Gerbig pleaded not guilty to the charge of having murdered his wife by cutting her throat with a razor at their home on Samuel street on November 29 last. J. C. Makins, K.C., Stratford, prosecuted for the Crown and J. E. Jones, K.C., Toronto, defended Gerbig. Evidence given this morning was largely a repetition of that given at the inquest, and related to the discovery of the remains two days after Gerbig and his wife had been missed by the neighbours.

F. H. Kalbfleish, one of the physicians called after the discovery had been made, expressed the firm conviction that Gerbig was insane at the time he arrived. Gerbig had cut his own throat.

IS KILLED BY ICICLE

Canadian Press Despatch:

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 13.— A huge icicle falling from the roof of the boiler house of the British Chemical Works, Trenton, fell on Antonio Carmandola, an employee, killing him instantly, his neck being broken. He leaves a wife and five children.

CHIEF OF STAFF ASKED TO RESIGN?

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Among the many rumours buzzing in the corridors of the House of Commons is one to the effect that on Monday the Government placed pressure on Sir Wm. Robertson, Chief of General Staff, to resign, to make way for the appointment of Sir Henry Wilson of the Versailles War Council. Sir Wm. Robertson resisted the pressure however, and on Tuesday, it is stated, the Government was considering the advisability of removing him.

THE DAY HAS COME.

One of the best announcements that has come from the Capital for a long time, is that conveying the information that the government proposes at the coming sesion to pass an act of Civil Service reform, whereby appointments to the public service will be made on the report of a Civil Service Commission, based on merit, decided by competitive examination, without any reference to party affiliations, or without any deference to idea of reward for party services.

If the proposed legislation goes far enough, and gives the Civil Service Commission power enough; and if the Commission is fairly constituted, not top-heavy with any particular party predominance of personnel, it will represent one of the most important advances in securing better and more economical administration, of the past ten years.

It is assumed that the spirit of the act will extend to the giving of government contracts for public works. The patronage system applied to these in the past has been one of the most prolific causes of immense waste of public funds and of debauching of constituencies. Prof. Wrong, of Toronto University, declares that the public waste through partizan bedevilled public contracts amounts to twenty-five million dollars per year. According to this estimate, Sir Robert Borden, by neglecting six years of power and opportunity to abolish patronage, by enacting, in respect of the outside service, the complement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's bill applied to the inside service, is morally responsible for a waste of public money through the contract system alone of six times twenty-five millions—that is one hundred and fifty millions—not to speak of the immense waste by war scandals, waste entirely due to partizanship.

The public will rejoice that the day has come for ending waste of money through partizan contracts, and inefficient service by partizan officials—with only political qualification—is at an end. We are all fighting for the best interests of the country, and while we all are making sacrifices the party parasite must not be allowed to fatten at the expense of the public interests.

The proverb—"threatened folks live long,"—is suggested by the flatulent boasts of what the Huns are going to do on the Western Front.

A GOOD TOTAL.

The Government demand to close shops and factories to save coal, was generally loyally observed throughout the country as it was in Peterborough, without much, if any, audible "kicking". This shows that we Canadians are beginning to see things as they are, and to realize the necessity of saving—sacrificing if necessary—to help win the war.

We are a free people and don't take kindly to dictation, but we are also a loyal and reasonable people, and heed appeals to reason. What we have to submit to is as nothing to what the people of other belligerent countries have to submit to. We submit because it is our duty; but in, say, Germany, the people have to submit to infinitely greater restrictions; but they are acustomed to be corcered and driven; generations of governmental brutality have made them cringing, and they are not supported by the necessity of sacrifice for a great cause. They are the serfs of a miltary caste, the victims of a malignant militarism, whose triumph, unlike our triumph, would be the enslavement of more peoples than those of the Central Empires.

Then we submit to the fuel and food saving orders because of the results. Superficial thinkers may reason that the saving of fuel by the heatless days decreed, is not much; perhaps not in a few cases, but take the country over, with hundreds of thousands of places, each saving a few pounds of coal, the total will be well worth taking into account. A saving of an ounce of bread a day by the eight million people of Canada means, we are told, 1,750 tons a week, or several shiploads of food a year. This war has taught us all the benefit of saving.

In British camps, at the front, every ounce of fat is saved, to be used in producing munitions, and the total of what was formerly lost is inconceivably large. In Canadian military camps in England, in one month, 832,000 was realized from the sale of by-produces. Even the dishwater in camp kitchens is skimmed for the fats obtained.

Every little we save in food or fuel goes to help our efficiency in promoting the work of war. Wheatless days, meatless days, heatless days, all have their important meaning and value. The little savings in each mean tremendous total in the course of a month or year.

When are we to get the "returns" of the soldiers' voting, overseas?

PATRIOTISM AND PATRONAGE.

Patriotism, and a natural desire for Canada doing her best work in war winning, led to a great political change in Canada. It was recognized that with the country divided into warring political camps, and kept that way by party government, Canada's war winning efforts would be antagonized and largely neutralized by the operation of mutual party cross-currents.

A non-partizan Union government was proposed, and welcomed with frenzied acclaim. The whole country threw itself into the object, men and women alike. Our women went into wholesale hysterics over the win-the-war election, and they and the great mass of the people declared in no mistakeable way, that the fate of our war efforts, the solution of the situation, lay in forming a non-partizan Union government, in which party considerations would have no place—in which an honest administration provided by the two great parties—merged into one for the purpose—would provide highest possible war administration.

We elected the Union government by a big majority—a government composed of patriots—not Grits or Tories, as known in their degenerate days.

On assuming office, Sir Robert Borden, in the name of the Union government, in which there are neither Grits nor Tories, promised that there would be no more partizanship, that the patronage system would be abolished.

This promise has not been kept. Partizanship still has a big finger in the pie. The latest example added to appointing a partizan to the postmastership of Wingham, is the partizan appointment of an active Conservative political worker, for several years secretary of the Conservative Association, Ottawa, to the position of Postmaster of Ottawa. Mr. Acres is described as having no special fitness for the position other than his party services.

The patronage evil is so gigantic an evil in Canada, that universal approval went to Sir Robert Borden's—unfulfilled—promise, as head of the Union, non-partizan government to abolish it.

Prof. Wrong, of Toronto University, is no doubt Professor Right, when he declares his belief that, in the matter of contracts alone, patronage is responsible for the wasting of one dollar in every five spent by the government; annual average loss due to the system is 25 million dollars; and a Cabinet Minister before the war declared that our proposed "dreadnoughts"— 35 million dollars—could be bought and an army supplied, out of savings made by the abolition of the patronage system.

Prof. Geo. M. Wrong, of the University of Toronto, declares publicly that the patronage system is "the vilest thing in the public life of Canada."

WARREN, P. A. Feb. 9.—Eddie Klepfer, pitcher of the Cleveland American League baseball team, was drawn by a Draft Board here to-day as one of the next contingent of selected men to leave on February 18, for Camp Lee, Virginia.

Why Not Make Some Of Our Jails Military Prisons?

Ontario's Liberal leader, William Proudfoot, K. C., M.P.P., advocates the closing of many of the country jails at the present time, because there are so few prisoners, and the remodelling of those closed into homes for the care of the feebleminded or for other general purposes. His idea should meet with general approval.

If one jail could be made to do the work of three or four there would be a considerable financial saving to the province in the salaries paid officials. The amount saved would go far towards paying for the remodelling required.

There is now a class of prisoners which it seems hardly fair or wise to throw among the criminals guilty of theft, assault, manslaughter, or any of the offences against decency, and this class is composed of deserters from the army and those who have refused to comply with the terms of the Military Service Act. Would it not be advisable that one or more of these empty jails be set aside for the accommodation of these men?

The crime of desertion is a serious one, and the prison sentences being imposed on those guilty of it are frequently as long as two years. Under the present scheme, these men, whose lives in many cases, have been law-abiding and clean except for the one offence which has landed them in the toils, must spend the two years in the companionship of Canada's "toughest" characters. Many of them are likely to suffer from contamination, and all will bear the stigma of having been in prison with other criminals, which will handicap them in later life. Since the offence is one of a military nature, would it not be better to have a military prison especially for deserters?

It is not proposed that prison life should be made more pleasant for deserters than for others. They can be made to do similar work and in every way conform to prison rules and regulations, but they may be kept from company which might make criminals of some of them who would be respectable citizens in future if kept apart from the hardened and experienced law-breakers.—London Advertiser.

WINNING SUCCESS.

It Must Be a Continuous Performance, With No Intermissions.

"The other day," says a writer in the American Magazine, "a famous author was telling me how he felt when his first story was accepted. He said that within a few minutes the thought flashed across his mind that he could not stop, but must go on. One good story must be followed by another and another and another, else his reputation would die, and he would be humiliated. He said that the feeling was not exactly comfortable; that the prospect was in a way terrible. 'Being successful,' he said, 'is not easy. The successful man advertises to the world that he can do certain things well, and he must go on making good or back off the map. It's a great sensation, a great experience, worth almost anything, but it isn't a snap.'

"It is the same way in business. The salesman who sets a high mark has to go right out and beat that mark or suffer by comparison with his own record. He can't sit down in a rocking chair and devote the rest of his life to receiving congratulations.

"Have you ever sat in a restaurant and compared your job with that of a waiter? Try it some time. No matter what your work is, I am sure you will see the point if you watch the waiter and think how exactly his job typifies yours. Take, for example, my job—that of an editor. An editor's job is exactly like that of a waiter. He has to go and get something good and bring it in. And after he has brought it in he has to go right out and get something more and bring that in. The minute he sits down or stops to talk unnecessarily with the guests, he ceases to give as good service as before. Then the guests who praised him a moment ago begin to growl. And so, almost immediately, he has turned from a good servant into a poor one.

"This fits any line of human activity. A continuous performance is what is wanted. Nothing else counts."

No Chance.

"Ah, Miss Ethel, may I not dream that one day you will be mine?" "You may, but it won't come true."

Thought for Today.

The great man is he who does not lose his child's heart.—Mencius.

No "Cyclones" on Land.

Of late years it has become common to call every violent storm a "cyclone," which is plainly erroneous. A cyclone never occurs except on the ocean, asserts a weather observer, because a cyclone is a violent, whirling storm of great area, and no such storm could occur on land. The so-called "cyclones" of the West are "tornadoes," which are whirling storms of great violence, but contracted in area. Tornadoes have been known whose greatest width did not exceed a few rods, and those which exceed several miles in width are very unusual.

Camouflage.

Camouflage is a French word of Italian origin (camuffare, disguise) and as used in war dispatches connotes disguise by masking, as artillery, with an arbor of leaves built around a gun, or as an observer on outpost duty, a sharpshooter, etc., with whisps of straw to imitate a chock or sheaves of grain while concealing his body. The word is pronounced ka-mu-flazh—the first "a" as in "artistic," the "u" as in "rule," the final "a" as in "art," and the "zh" as "z" in "azure."

Demand for Imitation Leather.

Imitation leathers of certain grades and colors have a real market in Venice at this time, and the trade is growing, writes a correspondent. Formerly the demand was found almost exclusively among the makers of art furniture, but this has decreased because transport difficulties and restrictions placed upon articles of luxury, have brought the manufacture and exportation of art furniture almost to a standstill.

Ancient Mirrors.

The mirrors of antiquity were principally of bronze, highly polished and about the size of an ordinary hand mirror. They were usually provided with a handle and sometimes were mounted on a stand. The principal feature of these ancient mirrors was the design incised on the back. They belong to the period about 400 to 500 B. C. During the middle ages, from the twelfth to the end of the fifteenth century, picket mirrors or small hand mirrors carried at the girdle were considered a necessary part of a lady's toilet.

The Jugoslavs.

Why do we write Jugoslavs when south Slavs would do much better? The word simply means south Slavs, its first half being the universal Slav term for "south," it is not written as pronounced, or rather, it is written as a German would pronounce it. Our phonetic transliteration should be "Yugo-Slavs," a form which is often used. But "south Slavs" indicates much more intelligibly the great racial unit of some 15,000,000 souls that occupies the whole southwest corner of the dual monarchy, abutting on the Adriatic.—London Chronicle.

To Face the Music.

According to James Fenimore Cooper, who said that he looked the matter up, the phrase "To face the music" originated among actors, who when they went on to play their parts had really to face the music. Another suggestion, which Cooper did not approve, was that it originated in the old time training days, when the militiamen were bound to appear armed and equipped facing the music.

Buttons Made From Yeast.

Buttons are now made from the spent yeast which collects in the vats of breweries. It is dyed, grained and pressed into any shape, and it has the great advantage over horn and bone that it grips as in a vise any metal part—a shank, for instance—that is pressed into it.

Which Is Yours?

The remuneration received for services rendered has many names. The laborer calls it "pay," the skilled mechanic "wages," the city clerk "salary," (he banker "income," a lawyer "fees" and a burglar "swag."—London Answers.

The Untired Horse.

Mother—My dear, what is the matter with the horse? Isn't he walking lame? Small Boy—I know what's the matter, pop. One of his blind tires has come off.—Baltimore American.

DE LA SALLE TEAM HERE ON FRIDAY

Peterborough Juniors Will Meet Fast Toronto Youngsters at Brock St. Rink in The Third Round of the Junior O. H. A. Series—The Game Should Draw Biggest Crowd of the Year.

Peterborough's opponents in the third round of the Junior O.H.A. series will be the doughty De La Salle team, of Toronto, conquerors of Aura Lee, last year's junior champions.

The Toronto youngsters will clash with the Petes at Brock street rink on Friday night, in what promises to be the greatest junior game seen here in years. It is a long time since a Peterborough team reached the third round of the big series, and it is a still longer time since a Toronto junior team has been seen in action here—in fact you would have to go back to the old days at Charlotte street rink, when Upper Canada College battled the Colts, to find a a parallel.

Friday's game should be a whirlwind. De La Salle, with "Babe" Dye, McCurry and other stars, have been picked by the dopesters as the team to beat for the championship. However, the local youngsters are not worrying any over the reputation of the visitors and if they show the clean tactics and the combination they displayed at Oshawa last night, they'll give De La Salle an argument that will surprise the cocky squad from the Queen City.

Any way you look at it, it will be a real old time battle, and it is certain that the biggest junior crowd on record will see Friday's game. The return game will be played in Toronto on Tuesday or Thursday of next week, with Tuesday as the most likely night if the Arena can be secured.

Don't let anything keep you away from Friday's game.

TWO FAST GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE

There will be two fast games in the Junior Church League to-night with the George street-St. Paul's and All Saints' clash at the feature. The latter is the second half of the double-header, and a win for the George street team means the championship for the big Methodist church. On the other hand a victory for the St. Paul's-All Saints' team will tie them with George street. Mark street will meet Knox-St. Andrew's in the first game.

Patterson Trophy For The Vice Skips Bonspiel This Year

This year's trophy of the Vice-Skips of the Curling Club will be of unusual interest in the fact that the trophy donated by Mr. E. G. Patterson for this event will be presented to the winning rink. It is not long since Mr. Patterson went over the Vice-Skips' hurdles, and having since attained his majority, has taken this step to heighten the enthusiasm with which the Vice-Skips enter their annual bonspiel. At the last annual meeting Mr. Patterson offered this trophy, stating that it would be a pleasure to him to assist in promoting the interest in the game by thus offering an encouragement to the Vice-skips. His suggestion was immediately accepted by the Club, and this year's winning rink will not only carry the club prizes, but also the Patterson silverware.

It was decided by the Executive last night that all scheduled games must be arranged before Tuesday, Feb. 19th, otherwise they will be assigned to certain dates by the committee.

The games will then go by default if they are unplayed.

The bonspiels remain to be played, the Skips and Vice-Skips, who expect to get under way in the near future. The curlers expect considerable cold weather before the ice breaks.

The final game of the "heatless week end bonspiel has not yet been arranged. J. W. McDermid and A. C. Kay are the opposing skips.

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

Centrals Win From Grocers.

In the Ten-Pin League last night at the Water street alleys, the Centrals annexed all three games from the Grocers.

Pidgeon, for the Centrals, was high for the night with a three-game total of 569, while Dawson had high single of 230.

For the Grocers R. Ross had a three-game total of 478.

To-morrow night the High Rollers and the Printers meet in a league fixture.

MR. ROBERT HILL OFFERS DISTRICT TROPHY TO CURLERS

In a communication to the Curling Club Mr. Robert Neill has offered a trophy to be contested annually by the rinks of the Trent Valley district. The letter authorized the executive to select the trophy at whatever cost they may decide and to remit the bill to Mr. Neill. This is a new evidence of Mr. Neill's abiding interest in curling, not only in the affairs of the Peterborough Club, of which he was one of the most prominent players until he was forced by illness to retire from the game two seasons ago, but also throughout the district and province in which he is well known wherever the roarin' old game finds devotees. Some time ago a suggestion in these columns summarized the opinions of many curlers who advocated a closer union among the curling clubs of the Trent district. Such members believed that the game would receive a decided fillip if Millbrook, Norwood, Keene, Lakefield and the other clubs were brought together in a competition apart from the Tankard and District Cup contests. It was also felt that the curlers in these towns would welcome the idea. Their views have not yet been received, and it is understood that the executive last night concluded that the wisest course would be to sound the clubs on this project before replying to Mr. Neill's letter. At any rate the very generous offer has crystallized the agitation which has broken out on occasions during recent years, and it is almost safe to predict that if the remaining clubs share the feeling that prevails in Peterborough, Mr. Neill's proposal will be carried into effect.

The old game flourishes through its appeal to the body of players and it finds many of its bright features in the impetus it receives from enthusiasts like Mr. Neill, whose sporting ideals have been worthy of those that are inseparable from curling.

BOWLING NEWS

Y.M.C.A. Five-Pin League.

Two Intermediate Boys' Leagues have been recently organized and both leagues will open to-night. The School Boys at 4.15 and the Employed Boys at 7.30. The School Boys' games will be Submarines vs. Tanks, Aeroplanes vs. Cruisers. Only one match will be played to-night, when the Pussy-Cats will play the Wild-Cats. The Bear-Cats and the Tom-Cats will not fight to-night.

BARTLEY CAME BACK

Leith Bartley redeemed himself in last night's game at Oshawa. The little left wing player was on his best behaviour, did not draw a penalty, checked Venini, the Oshawa star, to perfection, and was up with every play.

Rattlesnake's Rattle.

The rattle of the rattlesnake is developed from the single scale or epidermal spine, which in most snakes forms the internal tegument of the tail. The bone on which the root of the rattle rests consists of the last caudal vertebra and is covered with a skin which is the beginning of the rattle in young rattlesnakes.

More Wasted Food.

"Chew your food well," says Good Health. The biggest waste of food in this country grows but of hasty eating. Half-chewed food is half digested. The other half is wasted. The people of the United States waste enough food, by neglecting to chew, to feed France and Belgium.

Largest Ingot.

The largest octagon ingot mold which has ever been cast in the United States, and perhaps in the world, has been made by one of the great steel companies. The actual weight is not given, but it is reported to be nearly 140 tons.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY MEETING HELD YESTERDAY

Nineteen Year old Boy Gets Tired Of Working For Nothing

At a meeting of the Children's Aid Society held yesterday afternoon, in the Bank of Montreal building, Dr. J. E. Middleton gave a verbal report concerning the care of the children's teeth and the necessity for training along the lines of dental hygiene. Dr. Middleton who has placed his services at the disposal of the Board, read an extract from a dental journal showing that in one institution where children are cared for, all contagious diseases had been completely eliminated from the records of the institution. This was directly attributable to the care taken of the children's teeth by a competent dentist. "The majority of contagious diseases originate in the mouth," said Dr. Middleton.

Tooth brush drill will be introduced in the Shelter.

THE HEALTH RECORD.

Dr. D. C. King, the attending physician at the Shelter, also gave a verbal report of the work which he has accomplished since the last meeting. One case of pneumonia had been successfully treated in addition to several other minor complaints.

A letter was read from Mr. Kelso, Provincial Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, suggesting that the local Board appoint a woman to co-operate with Mr. G. W. Powell in the supervision of careless families, and to advise young people in the ideals of good citizenship.

"That is rather a large order," observed Mr. E. A. Peck.

In view of the valuable assistance rendered by Mrs. McElhiney, which was available on all occasions, the Board did not deem it advisable to make an appointment at the present time.

Mr. Powell, the local agent for the Society, read a number of letters concerning the movements of several of the wards of the Society. It appears that one boy, who is 19 years of age, has lived for a number of years with a farmer who it is claimed did not pay the boy any wages. The boy wants to come to Peterboro and learn a trade but an effort has been made to effect a compromise by having the farmer pay the boy reasonable wages. Two hundred dollars a year was suggested but the farmer said that he could not afford more than one hundred and fifty dollars. This the boy refused and demanded three hundred dollars and the use of a horse and vehicle. The farmer thought he might just as well give the boy the farm as pay that amount. It is altogether likely that the boy will come to Peterboro, where his brothers reside, and will learn a trade.

Several other cases were referred to and without exception the wards are being properly cared for and are under competent supervision.

A number of accounts were passed.

"There She Goes" Is a Great Gloom Destroyer, Not a Pause Anywhere

Certainly the best musical comedy from every standpoint is "There She Goes," which comes to The Grand next Friday, Feb. 15.

After a most remarkable season of record breaking business, it comes. The snap and go which is always in evidence in the productions sent on tour by this management is especially evident in the forthcoming attraction. There is an abundance of pretty girls in the chorus, elaborate costuming, sparkling music, refreshing comedy and really beautiful scenic effects. The show never pauses in its mad whirl for a moment, and is the greatest gloom destroyer of the season. It is another one of those delightful original musical pieces like its predecessor, "The Million Dollar Doll." A hodge-podge of whistly music, smart dancing, pretty girls and the jolliest of comedians. There are dances of every known variety, from the classical to the modern, which are demonstrated by several solo dancers and other numbers in which the clever chorus girls participate. "There She Goes" comes with the original cast and production, including Harvey Orr, Martha Craver, Cal Clifford, the dancing LeRoys and Marion Weaver. Some of the song hits are: "When You're Twenty-One," "An Absent Minded Man," "Hawaiian Moon," "Some Girl in the Summertime," "To the Music of the Old Jazz Band," and "Sometime if Dreams Come True."

Webster, to Mr. Frederick Charles Marshall of Peace River, Alta. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. Spencer, and Miss Atwood presided at the organ. The bride, who was unattended, was brought in and given away by her father and wore a very becoming suit of green gabardine with hat to match During the ceremony the choir sang "O Perfect Love," and during the signing of the register Mrs. Osborne sang very impressively "Giver of Light." Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the Lakefield House. A number of valuable presents were received by the bride, prominent amongst others being an inlaid mahogany tea tray, presented by the members of St. John's Choir, she having been a valued member of the choir for several years. The happy pair drove to Peterborough en route to eastern points, to spend their honeymoon and are followed by the good wishes of a host of friends for their future welfare and happiness.

BOBCAYGEON YOUTH MAKES CLEAN-UP IN LINDSAY

Collegiate Institute Student Passed Several Worthless Cheques and Then Bounded a Train for his Home.

LINDSAY, Feb. 13. — A Collegiate Institute student by the name of Nelles Neville son of Rev. Mr. Neville, Methodist clergyman at Bobcaygeon, got himself into trouble yesterday morning when he submitted cheques on three Kent street business men in payment of goods, there being no funds in the bank to meet the demand o the cheques. The cheques bore the supposed signature of Mr. Neville, Sr.

It appears that the young fellow, who is but 16 years of age, first entered the drug store of Mr. A. Higinbotham, bought $3.00 worth of goods and tendered a $30.00 cheque in payment, receiving the balance in cash. He then bought a pair of boots in R. Neill's store, paying cash for the same. The clothing store of Milton J. Dedman was next visited, where the youthful artist purchased a suit of clothes, tendering another cheque in payment for the same. At the time the proprietor was not in the store, so after parcelling the clothes up the clerk stated he would keep both the cheque and clothes until Mr. Dedman arrived. The uptown ticket office of the G. T. R. was next visited, where young Neville proceeded to buy a ticket for Toronto with another cheque. This time the cheque was for $60.00, and he received over $55 cash in return.

By this time, in fact shortly after Neville left the drug store, Mr. H. J. Reid became suspicious of the genuineness of the cheque, called up the Bank at Bobcaygeon, and was informed that there was not sufficient funds there to meet the amount. Without further word he hurriedly got into his coat and hat and followed the young fellow, finally locating him loitering on William street south. He accused him forthwith, Neville endeavouring to put him off until he heard from his father. Mr. Reid, however, persisted, and returned with the young artist to Neill's store, where the boots were taken in and the cash value turned over to Mr. Reid. The latter also got $15.00 from Neville and the price of the drugs, but was still out two or three dollars, Neville stating it was all the money he had.

Mr. Reid returned to the store, and a few minutes afterwards concluded that Neville was endeavouring to bluff him out of payment of the balance of the money. He again took up the pursuit, and located his man at the Grand Trunk station where he was about to board the waiting train. On being refused any further money, Mr. Reid marched the youth into the ticket office, where the ticket was turned in for cash. Mr. Reid was still out a small personal loan which he had given him the week previous, and decided the time was ripe to make a final clean-up. This amount he demanded, Neville stating that he had no money, but that a traveller just passing around the corner of the station would loan it to him, whereupon Mr. Reid took possession of a club bag while the cheque artist followed the traveller. He returned with four dollars and straightened accounts. Mr. Reid asked him how he was going to get a ride on the railroad without a ticket or money, Neville replying that he could get it all right. At the time he had other cheques on his person which Mr. Reid advised him to destroy.

Police on the Trail.

Later on Chief Short was informed of the misdoings of the young Bobcaygeon youth, but by this time Neville was on his way to Toronto or other points.

In the meantime Mr. W. J. Waite, of the uptown office of the G.T.R., and Mr. Dedman placed the worthless cheques in the hands of the Crown Attorney, who is awaiting information from Bobcaygeon, where it is understood Rev. Mr. Neville is at present confined to his bed through illness, he having been suffering for some time past from nervous breakdown.

Wanted Passport For His Brother.

A few days ago Neville waited on the immigration officer in town seeking information as to passports, and stating that he had a twin brother as Napanee who was planning to go to the States.

"HYDRO" COMMISSION AGAIN REMINDED OF RADIAL SCHEME

Another Resolution Passed in Toronto Yesterday Proposed the Nationalization of the G.T.R. and G.T.P.—Mayor Duncan a Nice President.

Peterboro's two resolutions were endorsed by the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association at its annual meeting in Toronto yesterday. Mayor Duncan, Ald. Edgar and City Clerk Armstrong were present. One of the motions urged the Hydro-electric Commission to give attention to the development of Hydro-radials in the Trent Valley district, and the other requested the Commission to inquire into the practicability of the use of electricity for domestic and other heating purposes.

Mayor Duncan was elected Vice-President of the Association, and Ald. Edgar was appointed chairman of the Peterboro group.

Mayor Duncan stated this morning that Sir Adam Beck had promised to give Peterboro's demands for additional power development every consideration as soon as possible.

A resolution of general interest urged the government to nationalize both the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. Mr. J. W. Lyon, president of the Hydro Radial Association, asserted that for years Canada had been the happy hunting ground of railway promoters, with the result that at last Canada's railway system had fallen down.

TAKE OVER THE G. T. R.

Continuing Mr. Lyon suggested that the government could take over the G. T. R., and satisfy the shareholders by paying an annual rental of $3,400,000, equal to the average dividend in 10 years.

"If ever there was a time for nationalization of railroads it is at the present time," declared Mayor Church explaining the elimination of a clause in the railways nationalisation resolution urging that the C.P.R. be left as it is, separate from the public ownership scheme.

Mayor Burgoyne of St. Catharines said that while he was prepared to support the report as presented by the resolutions committee, he would like to see the C. P. R. taken over along with the G.T.R. and G.T.P.

"The C.P.R. is worth $510,000,000, and their stock is $260,000,000," said D. A. McLachlan, Stratford. "We have given them $260,000,000 already. Now, let's quit muddling and take them all over, the paying railroads along with the non-paying roads."

"We have to use a certain amount of diplomacy," advised Mr. J. W. Lyons. "I have no doubt the C. P. R. will come to the people ultimately, but just now I think it good politics to leave the C.P.R. out of the resolution at the present time. We have indications that we will get the other portions."

The electrification of the G. T. R. was also proposed.

TO PREVENT THE GRIP.

Colds cause Grip—LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE Tablets remove the cause. There is only one "Bromo Quinine." E. W. GROVE'S signature on box. 30c.

PERFORMANCE WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Dramatic Society of Church Of Immaculate Conception Score Another Success

Great success attended the amateur theatrical performance given last night in the Mark street Parish Hall by the Dramatic Society of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and the large number who attended were delighted by this playlet rendered by the talented members of the society. Not a moment lagged between numbers, as Miss Florence Leahy very ably filled in any gaps by generous contributions of splendid instrumental selections of popular music. Mr. Jack Primeau made a most able chairman.

"Meet My Wife."

"Meet My Wife," a delightfully funny little sketch of a hen-pecked husband who teaches his wife a lesson by introducing a gay and sportive friend who places her in a compromising position, was most successfully presented by Mr. and Mrs. Dillon, who took the part of Mr. and Mrs. George Chamberlain, and Mrs. MacConachie the friend Percy Hamilton. All were so pleasingly natural and realistic, the happy ending was a distinct relief to the audience.

Song in Costume.

This sketch was followed by some clever stories and a song, "I'm Happy Because I'm Living," a humorous recitation given by Mr. MacConachie in costume.

"John Clayton, Actor."

A clever little play was presented by Mr. Jack Primeau who, as John Clayton, an actor, holds all the stage struck matinee girls in a fascinated state; Mrs. J. Primeau, as Louise Warne, daughter of Col. Warne, of Virginia, a girl of high breeding and madly in love with the actor; and Mr. Dan. Leonard as Col. Warne. The play centres around the visit of Col. Warne to Clayton's apartments, who warns the actor that he must undermine his daughter's fascination. Col. Warne hides when, at the crucial moment, his daughter arrives to warn the actor that her father is coming to shoot him. Mr. Primeau's clever impersonation of a valet, which is included in his role and of this intoxicated actor striving to disillusion the girl, were worthy of a professional. Mrs. Primeau as Louise fascinated the audience by her clever acting and charming personality.

Mr. Frank Grady then sang "O'Brien is Looking For You," and met with storms of applause.

A Mock Trial.

A most pleasant surprise awaited the audience when Mr. Primeau announced that the Knox Church Dramatic Society would present the Mock Trial or Balm for an Aching Heart. The young people were enthusiastically applauded in this decidedly clever and witty selection, all the actors being thoroughly acquainted with their roles.

The evening closed with God Save the King.

DR. GRENFELL'S WORK MAKES PROGRESS UNDER STRESS OF WAR

Cooperation Stores an Innovation Along the Labrador Coast That Meets the Economic Problem of The Settlers—Continued Assistance is Needed.

SEAMEN SWEEPING MINES

Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the wonder worker of the Labrador coast, was greeted by a large audience that filled St. Paul's Church last night. Since his last visit to Peterborough the Grenfell missions among the deep sea fishers have undergone a wonderful expansion, and even under the stress of war there has been accomplishment that brings deep gratification to all those whose contributions have made possible this advancement. Public support has been generously maintained, and Dr. Grenfell, after outlining the needs of the straggling settlements along the North Atlantic coast, left a silent plea for renewed and greater subscriptions, which was expressed in words by Rev. Dougald Brown, who presided. The lecture was illustrated by slides that presented convincing evidence of the progress of the Grenfell Association, which has developed out of and around the Doctor's service during the past twenty-five years. The contrast with our Ontario life was so marked, the rocky coast so hard and uncompromising, that the appreciation of Dr. Grenfell's success turned to amazement in the realization of the vast difficulties that have been surmounted. Hospitals, schools, churches, and, recently, a system of co-operative stores have been established along the drear coast above Belle Isle, bringing to the natives and fishermen advantages which are commonplace here at home.

The picture of one of the co-operative stores drew a reference from Dr. Grenfell to the opposition which has been raised against this undertaking which was primarily planned as a means to improving the economic conditions in the communities.

"Economic slavery is little less than political slavery against which we are fighting to-day," observed Dr. Grenfell. "What is life to man to be born and live in debt?" Two of these stores did a business of $60,000 last year, and every cent of the capital is held by settlers.

Another splendid accomplishment has been the erection, at St. John's, Newfoundland, of a Seamen's Institute, a large building equipped with bowling alleys, billiard and assembly rooms, baths, sleeping quarters and all the comforts that attract men. The seamen find this a haven while in port, and have no longer to depend upon the saloons, where they used to assemble, largely because other accommodation for recreation and association was not provided. The Institute is proving a boon and a blessing to the seamen, and incidentally reveals the extensiveness and the variety of service rendered by the Grenfell Association.

St. Anthony's Activities.

At St. Anthony, near the northern point of Newfoundland, Dr. Grenfell's headquarters, a mission station has been established. A new winter hospital to cost $50,000 is needed, and a brick orphanage has also become necessary. It is hoped that this building may be built by Sunday School children all over America, each giving a brick. A picture of the hospital showed a summer staff of nine nurses and five doctors. Here, a new rest house, the St. Anthony Inn, has been erected. It provides comfortable accommodation for visitors, and summer tourists are assured a warm welcome. Annexes to the inn receive poor men and women coming to the hospital for treatment.

The seamen have given largely of their numbers for war service, many having gone into the navy, and especially to the mine sweepers in the North Sea. Other young men enlisted in the gallant battalion that has so heroically represented Newfoundland at Gallipoli and in France. The men of Belle Isle have sacrificed themselves for the Empire, and their deeds have won a recognition richly deserved.

Citizens who desire to contribute to the Grenfell Association may deposit their contributions with Mrs. James Wood, of this city, P. O. Box 990. Mrs. Wood is an honorary secretary-treasurer.

Sizes of American Flags.

The garrison flag of the United States army is made of bunting, with 20 feet fly and 20 feet hoist; 13 stripes, and in the upper quarter next the staff is the field or "union" of stars, equal to the number of states, on blue field, over one-third length of flag, extending to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top.

Giving and Receiving.

You cannot give anything to anyone, you cannot give to any cause. From all this seeming giving you only take from experience the blessing of self-expression. You give only to yourself and in ministering you minister only to yourself. The man who takes from you must in turn give before he actually receives.—Exchange.

A BUILDER OF HEALTH

Nothing can be of greater assistance in building up the system than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, for this food-cure forms new, rich blood, and nourishes and restores the feeble, wasted nerve cells. Gradually and naturally the body and mind regain vigor and energy, and you feel again the joy of living which comes only to people in good health.

Offensive Breath Caused Usually By Catarrh

A Simple Remedy Discovered That Cures Without Drugs.

The American people suffer more from Catarrh than from any other disease. It undermines more constitutions and creates more sickness than all other diseases combined. It is, therefore, very dangerous.

You can't successfully treat Catarrh by internal dosing—you must in some way send a purifying, healing agent through the breathing organs, so that the germs can be reached. This you do every time you inhale Catarrhozone. Its rich essences and healing balsams are breathed all through the nose, throat and lungs, and effectively, destroy every trace of Catarrh. This is a proven fact.

I endorse Catarrhozone because I know of six bad cases of Catarrh, including my own, that it has cured. It is a sensible remedy because it is capable of going where the disease is. I believe it cures quicker than other remedy because it gets sooner to the source of the disease than anything else I know of. I had headaches, bad breath, and much stomach trouble associated with my Catarrh, but they have disappeared since using Catarrhozone, which keeps me free from colds, headaches, catarrh and all winter ills." OTTO E. KRAMER, Belleville, Ont.

MUCH INTEREST IN VISIT OF MISS NEILSON-TERRY

Famous English Actress Comes to the Grand To-morrow

More than ordinary interest attaches to the appearance of Phyllis Neilson-Terry, at the Grand to-morrow (Thursday) evening. Miss Neilson-Terry has been conspicuously associated with Shakespearian characters, and her departure from that line of work, to enter the field of modern comedy is a matter of interest. Her tremendous success as "Trilby" in the famous play by that name, is some indication of what may be expected of this charming young star in a comedy part, which gives full scope to her versatility. The play "Maggie" affords her a most congenial part and she is surrounded by a company of capable players, and the production has been made with every attention to the details, which contribute to a finished performance.

PETERBOROUGH RED CROSS NOTES

At the regular monthly meeting of the the Red Cross Executive, which was held on Monday afternoon, the following report of the Packing Committee was received:

Madame President, Members of the Peterborough Red Cross.—Your Packing Committee report 15 cases, shipper for January, containing the following:

9 Dressing gowns.
120 Pairs pyjamas.
432 Pairs socks.
30 Pneumonia jackets.
68 Sheets.
322 Towels and 4 face cloths.
69 Bed pads.
72 M.T. bandages.

Supplies were received from the following: Ashburnham P. L., St. Andrew's Berean Bible Class, Central Smith, All Saints' Auxiliary, George Street Methodist, St. John's Women's Auxiliary, Lily Lake, Murray Street Baptist, North Monaghan, Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E., St. Paul's Auxiliary, Trinity Church Auxiliary, Public Library Work-room, Collegiate Institute, St. Peter's Patriotic Club, Thursday Club, Mrs. Magie.

Flora H. Davidson, Convener.

Sock Committee.

Miss Burnet, convener of the Sock Committee, reported as follows:

Our sock report for January shows a decided improvement. It is the best month we have had since February of last year, when we took in 830 pairs. Our supplies this month from all sources amount to 789 pairs, made up as follows: From our individual knitters, 191 pairs, and as donations to the Red Cross, 138 pairs, from Murray Street Church 44 pairs, Central Smith 59 pairs, Young's Point 12 pairs, Lily Lake 14 pairs; Lakehurst 2 pairs, and from Mrs. Millership 1 pair. It may be interesting to know that this pair of socks has already been over in France. Mrs. Millership had sent them to her husband, who was killed before they reached the front, and they were returned to her. To the C.W.C.A. were contributed 139 pairs, from St. Andrew's Church 60 pairs, from Trinity Church 35 pairs, from George Street Church 24 pairs, from Mrs. Matthews 14 pairs, from Mrs. Magie 5 pairs, and from Miss Bennett 1 pair. From the machines this month we have 321 pairs, making a total of 789 pairs.

Owing to the necessity of closing the Public Library for three days in the week, on account of the scarcity of fuel, the Red Cross work will be carried on during the afternoons of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, when, it is hoped, a large number of workers will be present, as it is imperative that the supplies should not be allowed to decrease, but rather keep pace with the growing demand for them from overseas.

The following news clipping from a Toronto paper should contain ample assurance to Red Cross workers that their efforts and donations are not expended and given in vain:

"Mr. Cassels, the London manager of the Bank of Montreal, and Mr. Cambie, the London manager of the Bank of Commerce, have concluded a week's trip with their visit to the corps details and the examination of the Red Cross work in the forward area. As members of the London War Committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society, they have been greatly impressed with the work of the Society, particularly in the battle area. That work, which reached a climax during the Passchendaele operations, has won high praise from the medical services and from all the ranks. Messrs. Cambie and Cassels will recommend the extension of such activities and the closest possible co-operation with the C.A.M.C. to provide all the comforts which tend to ameliorate the condition of wounded men. In a statement to the Canadian Press correspondent, they said: 'We are delighted with the administration of the Canadian Red Cross in France, at the base and in the forward area. The people of Canada, who have been so generous with donations, may rest assured that their money is being spent to the best advantage, without waste and with particular attention to improving the conditions of the sick and wounded. A great work has been done, and it has been greatly appreciated. The medical officers have spoken in the highest terms of the society's activities during the Paschendaele fighting, and are engaged in the installation of temporary electric light plants in the advanced stations.' It is with particular pleasure we are able to report that General Currie, speaking of the Red Cross work, said: 'The activities of your society, both at the base and the front, have been of great value to the Canadian forces, and have been highly appreciated. In supplementing the work of the C.A.M.C., it is doing vital service. Had it not been for the splendid generosity of the Canadian people, the men wounded in action would be denied comforts, which are only less than necessities.'"

Some idea of the extent and details of Red Cross work may be gathered from the following items, culled from the February news letter sent out by headquarters:

The society has supplied 2,500 mufflers and 2,500 pairs of mitts for the use of Canadian prisoners of war.

The total of $12,000 was granted for the erection of recreation huts at Nos. 8, 9 and 10 Canadian Stationary Hospitals.

The society decided to furnish each of the six recreation huts with a Victrola and a supply of suitable records.

The society made a grant for a supply of musical instruments for the entertainment of soldiers returning to Canada on the hospital ship "Araguaya."

Musical instruments to complete the orchestra of No. 7 Canadian General Hospital, France, have been given by the society.

The society, just before Christmas, granted a gratuity of ten francs each to the Canadian prisoners interned in Switzerland.

The society furnished 1,000 sets of pyjamas and 200 heavy dressing gowns to the British Red Cross Committee at Berne as a gift from the Canadian Red Cross Society, to prisoners undergoing hospital treatment, as it appeared that a need existed for these supplies.

The society has purchased a plough for No. 2 Canadian General Hospital, France, in order that vegetables might be grown on the fifteen acres of arable land around the hospital.

He called upon Head Clerk Jarvis, London, to make the presentation, which was bourne by three lady members, acting as standard bearers, namely, Sovereigns L. A. Defoe, A. Little and F. H. Graham.

Mr. Jarvis.

Mr. Jarvis, in making the presentation, stated that the assembly had been cuield for the purpose of celebrating a victory won and to formulate plans for an even more successful future. He outlined the campaign by which Peterborough had secured the banner, and Lindsay the banner for obtaining most members between October 20th and December 31st. In securing her banenr the Peterborough Camp, W.O.W. had spread the Camp's influence into 170 more homes in the city.

Gordon, Clare, Jarvis, and Deputy Hubbard are now identified with the Camp. These men are working in unison with the aim of forwarding the camp. Headquarters are in London, where a building is owned and controlled and to which a welcome is extended to every visitor who cares to enter.

Visiting Sovereign Hubbard was next proposed. He paid an eloquent tribute to the members. This toast was responded to by Mr. Crawford of London. The toast list included Aldermen Edgar, Jones, Sovereign J. W. Worth and the visiting Sovereigns from other cities.

HAPPIEST MAN IN CANADA, HE SAYS

"It's All Because of What Tanlac Did For Me," States Ward

"I believe I am the happiest man in all Canada to-day and I want to tell the public it's all because of what this Tanlac is done for me," said Henry Ward, who resides at 30 Batavia Avenue, Toronto, and is employed by the Swift Canadian Company.

"Sometimes," continued Mr. Ward, when I stooped over a pain would catch me in the small of my back and I could hardly straighten up again. My kidneys were all out of order and disturbed me so I could scarcely get any rest at night. My stomach was so out of fix that I couldn't eat like other people and for fifteen years I have simply suffered torture. Many a morning my back hurt me so bad and was so stiff that I couldn't raise my head and I would actually have to roll out of bed. I have gone to work hurting so bad that I could hardly drag along and felt that I would be compelled to go back home. I have had to quit work many times on account of my condition and last spring I got in such a bad shape I had to stop off for more than a week, and I can't describe my suffering. Then my legs became affected with something like rheumatism and there were sharp, cramping pains going through my muscles that made my legs feel like they were drawing double. Many a night I have had to crawl out of bed, walk the floor and rub to get relief from those awful cramps, and I just tell you I was in misery nearly all the time.

"This is just the fix I was in for fifteen years and while I doctored and tried nearly every kind of medicine recommended for such troubles, nothing did me any good until I began taking Tanlac. Others said so much about Tanlac helping them that I thought I might as well try it. So I did, and when I found it was doing me good I kept on taking it. I have taken six bottles now and I can say it and tell the truth, I am feeling better than I have in fifteen years. I am simply getting along fine and have gained five pounds in weight, which I think is wonderful for one of my age, as I am sixty-four. I haven't been bothered with my stomach and kidneys since I took my first bottle of Tanlac and I believe these troubles are gone for good. All signs of the rheumatism have left me too. I'm not constipated any more and I feel stronger and more vigorous than I have in many years. I certainly am happy over my wonderful relief and I think it nothing but right that I should tell about it for the benefit of others."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.

Music & Drama

STEP LIVELY.

Peterborough has enjoyed a splendid list of theatrical offerings this season, and some more good ones are on the way, which, perhaps, made "Step Lively" at the Grand last night seem worse than it really was. However, it was bad enough to make the audience feel that the Customs officials and the Provincial Board of Health must have been asleep when the company crossed the border. It was one of those offerings, happily almost extinct, in which noise was substituted for music and vulgarity for humour, and the most pleasing thing about it was the final dropping of the curtain. Billy House, described on the programme as a "Sixty Laugh-Power Propeller," was the principal "fun-maker" of the offering. He has the ability to get laughs, and with a little Dutch cleanser on his remarks would get by easily. As it was, however, his line was off colour. Jose O'Donnell introduced a violin specialty that was a bright oasis in a desert of mediocre numbers.

The weatherman is not very friendly to Peterborough any way. Springs a blizzard to keep Elsa Ryan away, and then turns loose a mild spell to let "Step Lively" reach here. Other cities may have better luck.

Questions sent to the Examiner will receive attention in due course.

W. T., Peterborough, Ont.: Where should I begin to paper a room and where finish? Is it true that by cutting up two rolls of paper at the same time you save paper?

Ans.: There is no set rule as to where to start or finish hanging wall paper in a room. But for an amateur I would suggest starting at a window, a work away from the light, as in this way the edges will not show as much, and finish in the least conspicuous corner. Sometimes there is an advantage in cutting two rolls at the same time. But not always. It depends entirely upon the repeat of the pattern.

Curious, Peterborough: "What do you consider a fair number of rolls for a paperhanger to put up in eight hours? How long does it take to learn paper-hanging?"

Ans.: The above questions are foreign to the purpose of this column. But to satisfy "Curious" and enlighten the public, I may say, in answer to the first query, that my conception of paperhanging is that it is an art of a high decree, and immediately one couples art with speed dissatisfaction results. With reference to how long it takes to learn paper hanging, I do not know. I've only been at it twenty-six years. Ask another man.

Marjory X, Peterborough City: Kindly inform me how to stain those dark irregular spots one sees on bamboo easels, paper racks, etc.

Ans.—Those marks are not stained, they are burnt. The Japanese are adept at this class of work, which can, with a little practice, be done by a novice, fairly well. Simply set the bambo on a gas jet, when the flame will be divided and burn the wood. By using different shaped jets and with careful manipulation, many beautiful designs can be formed, and with various depths of tones. After the burning process oil or varnish the wood.

A Constant Reader, Peterborough, Ont.: "How should 'Red Wood' be treated? At Christmas I received a dainty jardinere stand, all made of 'Red Wood' in the raw state, and I want to preserve it. Should I paint it or what can I do?"

Ans.: "California Red Wood" hardly needs anything to preserve it. Barns built in 1855, in parts of the United States, and having never received oil, paint or other preservative, are to-day standing in a good state of preservation, although that condition might not obtain in Peterborough. The California Red Wood is very popular in the West, where it is comparatively cheap on account of the size to which some of the trees grow, climbing, as they do, to a height of 250 to 300 feet, and sometimes 18 or 20 feet in diameter at the base. It is a beautiful wood, as you no doubt see by your stand, and I would not suggest hiding the grain with paint. A very unique finish is obtained by applying one coat of thin shellac, then paint it over with a walnut brown thin paint, and after letting it stand a little while, wipe the paint off or nearly all off. Allow this to dry, then wax and polish. Or, give it two coats of shellac (rubbing each coat lightly with fine sand paper) and wax. Or, you may simply oil it several times and wipe.

DR. GRENFELL ADDRESSED LADIES

At the Green Room of the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon about 50 ladies heard a special lecture by Dr. Grenfell. It was expected Mrs. Grenfell would give a talk, but she was prevented on being called away by illness in the family. Dr. Grenfell spoke of his work among the fisher folk and showed specimens of rugs made by them.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say the medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion, or they can eat as they please in reason, and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid, and prevent the formation of gas, sourness, or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia, and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestant. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without the need of pepsin pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate, and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you have ever had on "What to eat."

ONE YEAR FOR FRANK SPRY

Spry was Arrested in Peterboro Turned and over to the Military Authorities

HAMILTON, Feb. 13.—Judge Gauld yesterday at the County Judge's Criminal Court sentenced Frank Spry, who was arrested at Peterborough, to one year's imprisonment for assaulting Mrs. Gillies. Spry, wearing a soldier's uniform, went to Mrs. Gillies' home, and when she refused to give him 50 cents struck her over the head with a bottle. His Honour would not listen to a plea for leniency because of Spry's record.

Social and Personal

Miss Mabel Johnston left Monday for a short business trip to Toronto.

Miss Grace Gordon has returned home after a few days' visit to her brother, Mr. G. N. Gordon, and Mrs. Gordon.

Mrs. (Dr.) Gibson and Miss Quinn, Lakefield, are the guests of friends in the city.

The progressive euchre given last night at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum by St. Peter's Ladies' Aid to raise funds for charitable purposes, was a most successful and enjoyable affair. Twenty-seven tables were taken by the euchre players while a large number spent a most pleasant social evening. The rooms were prettily and appropriately decorated in Valentine style. Mrs. Neil Powers secured the ladies' prize, a beautiful cut glass vase, Mr. Frank Fairen the gentleman's prize, a picture.

Mr. Walter Phelan, Pittsburg, is spending his annual vacation with his brother, Mr. Harry Phelan.

Mr. Wm. Sandiford received word yesterday, that his son, Charles, who enlisted at the outbreak of the war with the British army, has been sent to the hospital in France with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

The Toronto Globe says: Mrs. Russell Widdifield has, during the absence of her husband, Capt. Widdifield, who is overseas, taken a position in the office of the Militia Hospitals Commission. Mrs. Widdifield was formerly Miss Marion Denne, and obtained her B. A. at Trinity in 1911. Captain Widdifield also graduated from Trinity in 1911, and was practising law in Peterborough when he joined the colours. He is at present with the 6th Canadian Reserve.

Miss May Murney, 319 Stewart street, who underwent an operation lately in St. Joseph's Hospital, shows great improvement in health and it is expected she will be up and about in a few weeks.

Our First Woman's Rights Paper.

The first woman's paper to be established in this country for the definite purpose of spreading abroad news of the new woman's rights propaganda was the Lily, a tiny four page weekly sheet edited by Mrs. Amelia Bloome of Seneca Falls, N. Y. This was begun in 1840, just the year after that famous first woman's rights convention called by Elizabeth Cady Stanton and a few other women, the radicals of those times.—Exchange.

Etiquette.

Originally the word etiquette meant a ticket, label or slip of paper attached to a bag or object to indicate its contents. It then came to be used of a ticket given to a person taking part in a ceremony to tell him what he should do; hence the modern meaning.—Exchange.

Gretna Green.

The last blow to Gretna Green as a clearing house for marital romance was dealt in 1856, when the Scottish law made it necessary for one of the contracting parties to reside three weeks in Scotland before the marriage could be performed.

ARE RAISING $50,000 BY TRINKET FUND

Mrs. May Thornley, a few nights ago, spoke in London, Ont., at the women's meeting on behalf of the thimble and trinket fund. She pointed out the great need at the front of Y. M. C. A. fre drink dugouts, and explained that this year's estimate to maintain the required number of dug outs of this nature would be $50,000, of which amount the women had promised to raise $25,000 and purposed doing this by a trinket campaign. There are very few homes in which there are not some worn-out pieces of silver or gold trinkets that are not necessary, and the owners of such are requested to hand them over to the canvassers on the last week in February, when the campaign will be made. Six hundred women will be needed to carry on this canvas.

Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, British Columbia are also adopting this method of raising the mony. It is endorsed by the National Council of the Y. M. C. A.

Peterborough is now having the Trinket campaign, next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 18th, 19th, 20th February.

Be ready on these days with your old bits of silver, gold and brass-plated ware, forks, spons, etc.

The canvassers will call on you.

Hunt your trinkets and help our soldiers to have hot free drinks at the front.

TROOPS IN BATTLE

Trained Soldiers Are Wholly Indifferent to Danger.

FACE DEATH WITHOUT FEAR.

Thought of Calamity Bothers Them Not, and They May Be Severely Wounded Without Feeling Pain. Unique Analogy From Railroad Life.

The thought of not coming out of a battle alive rarely enters the mind of a seasoned soldier, and he goes into the conflict fired only with the sense of a patriotic duty to be well and faithfully performed, with perhaps a vague hope of promotion for a deed of bravery or daring. Very few people are afraid of a natural death, but a violent death is different, and yet "hundreds of thousands of men have gone to meet practically certain destruction without giving a sign of terror."

Concerning the absolute indifference of the trained soldier to death in the midst of battle and the reasons therefor, Dr. MacKenna employs a unique and graphic illustration from the rail road world.

"Let us imagine," he says, "that the brain, the organ that links up the body with the sources of thought and action, is a railway terminus into which run lines from all parts of the country. There are lines to and from the eyes, the ears, the feet, the hands and every muscle in the body.

"In the heat of battle trains loaded with messages are racing on the down line to every muscle. On a well ordered railway system certain trains have priority, while others are held back until congestion is relieved and some of the tracks are cleared.

"A wise train dispatcher will see that a slow freight train does not get in the way and block the progress of a passenger express, and the mind acting in this role takes care that no train laden with fear finds its way out of the terminus to throw the other traffic into confusion. There are no tracks to spare for such a cargo, the whole railway system is occupied with the supply of more urgent necessities.

"By a similar observation one can explain the frequently repeated statement that in the heat of battle a soldier may sustain a formidable wound and feel no pain whatever and even be unaware that he has been hit.

"The injured limb or organ dispatches an express train along the line of some sensory nerve to the railway terminus in the brain, but on drawing near the terminus the signals are found to be against it, and it cannot force its way through the press of traffic into the station. It is therefore sidetracked.

"But just as an ordinary train will try to call the attention of the signalman by blowing its whistle when the signal is against it, so a sensation of pain may succeed in calling the attention of the brain to its existence by sending on a message not of pain, but of heaviness or pressure.

"This may have the effect of opening a path for the whole train to run through, and the wounded man begins to discover that he has been hit or hurt. But in most cases a long interval elapses between the infliction of the wound and the realization of the soldier that he has been wounded.

"I have been informed by a soldier who had a large piece blown out of his thigh that he was quite unaware of his injury for several minutes. His attention was attracted by hearing his foot 'squelch' every time he moved it. On looking down he saw that his boot was full of blood; then almost immediately he felt a dull ache in the thigh, followed very shortly by a sensation of acute pain.

"In this case, to return to our illustration, the messages of pain from the wounded thigh had been held up by congestion of traffic near the terminus. We may imagine that the impeded train tried to call the attention of the signalman, but failed to do so until a message sent from the suburban station of sight, not far from the terminus, got through and informed the station master that a very important train from a remote part of the country was being held up. The levers were then at once drawn, and the sensation of pain passed on to the sensorium.

Many Big Assignments.

In a single year, his brother says, Richard Harding Davis reported the coronation at Moscow, the millennial celebration at Budapest, the Spanish-Cuban war, the McKinley inauguration, the Greek-Turkish war and the queen's jubilee. And the number of titles of his books on a fly leaf numbers exactly 29. Also he always had time for a little nonsense now and then—as when he organized a relief expedition to rescue John Drew from Harlem.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards— Receipts for yesterday, 60 cars, with 712 cattle, 249 calves, 1,485 hogs, and 96 sheep and lambs.

Although there was not much market yesterday, cattle are beginning to arrive freely, belated cars being delivered at the market all through the day. In consequence of the late arrival of many of the deliveries most of the cattle were held over for to-day's market, no attempt being made to put them on sale yesterday. A good active market is expected to-day. Prices yesterday were steady to firm and practically unchanged.

Packers were endeavouring to get hogs down a bid, bidding $18.50 fed and watered. Settlement in most cases was deferred, but it was understood the market varied from $18.50 to $18.75.

Editor Peterborough Examiner:

Dear Sir,—At St. John's church on Sunday, Rev. Canon Davidson reminded his congregation of the advisability of holding family prayers during the Lenten season. This is good advice for all; see home things for our encouragement.

We have been outlawed by sin. We broke with Him. The break could not be repaired by us. Jesus came; he was God and man; he touches both; the blood of the cross is the basis of all prayer. Now at this very serious time in our history, let us look at some things for us to rest upon and carry out. Matt., 18: 19-20, 'Again I say unto you, that if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my father, for where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them.'

Look in John, 14: 13-14, 'and whatsoever ye shall ask in My name that will I do that the Father may be glorified in the Son if ye shall ask anything in My name that will I do.'

In John 15: 7, 'If ye abide in Me and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you.' John, 15: 8, 'Herein is My Father glorified that ye bear much fruit, so shall ye be my disciples.' 15: 9, 'As the Father has loved Me, so have I loved you. Continue ye in My love.' John, 15: 16, 'Ye have not chosen Me, but I have chosen you and ordained you that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit shall remain. That whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in My name, He may give it you.'

In Matt., 16: 24, 'Then said Jesus unto His disciples, if any man will come after Me let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me.' 16: 26, 'For what is a man profitted if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul; or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?'

'For the Son of Man shall come in the glory of His Father, with His angels. And then He shall reward every man according to his works'; and many others which may be examined by the reader for himself.

Now there may be some that do not place the confidence in those promises that they ought, in fact perhaps none of us place all the confidence in them which we ought, I want to give you one example of faith in God.

By common consent David is one of the most fascinating figures in history. Look at Psalm 3-5 and 6 verses. 'I laid me down and slept. I awaked for the Lord sustained me. I will not be afraid of ten thousand of people that have set themselves against me. Round about is my young days. I thought of course, like anybody else. David had got tired and sleepy and went to bed and had a night's rest. But later I saw this inscription at the beginning of the Psalm, a psalm of David, when he fled from Absalom, his son. Look back in second Samuel, and get the story. David, an old, white-haired man, hurrying out of his palace because Absalom, his favourite son, was coming with the strength of the national army to take the kingdom and his own father's life. Reader, let us get a fresh view of what confidence in our Heavenly Father means!

GOOD DIGESTION

To be able to eat what you want and to digest it properly is a priceless blessing. Good digestion is not appreciated until you lose it. Then you cannot afford to experiment, for strong medicines are hard on weak stomachs. If you have indigestion do not be persuaded into believing you can cure yourself by the use of predigested foods or so called stomach tonics. There is no tonic for every part of the body. It is through the blood that the stomach gets its power to assimilate and digest food, and as the blood goes to every part of the body any improvement in its condition not only results in strengthening the stomach, but every organ in the body. Rich, red blood is absolutely necessary to good digestion. If your stomach is weak and you are troubled with sour risings in the throat, a feeling of pressure about the heart, or nausea after eating try the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So many dyspeptics have been cured by this medicine that every sufferer from stomach trouble should try it. You will soon know the joy of good digestion and enjoy better health in other ways if you give this medicine a fair trial.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"Just a word, Mr. Sturtevant, and I'll not bother you again. The inspector thought you would rather make a private statement to me now, than have the matter taken up when the inquest is resumed. In this way we can overlook any little question of suppressed evidence in your first testimony, which might be awkward for you later."

"Suppressed evidence!" repeated Sturtevant testily. "I don't know what you're driving at, my man. I haven't seen Miss Rowntree in months, and have no knowledge whatever of her private affairs. It's not pleasant I can tell you, to be dragged into the limelight in such a case merely because one happens to be a personal friend, and if it keeps up some one is going to suffer for it!"

"It's about the time when you did know quite a bit concerning the young lady's private affairs, sir, that the coroner would like to hear; some few things that you forgot to mention which he could recall to you and Mr. Quimby. Of course, if it's all the same to you, it can wait until the next session of the inquest."

McCarty nodded bruskly and turned to the door, but the young man interposed hastily:

"If it is anything in which I can be of real service to the investigation that is quite another matter. I shall be glad to assist you in any way. What—er—is it that you think I can tell you?"

"Just this, sir! You stated at the inquest that your attentions to the young lady were only those of friendship and that they were interrupted by your going away for the summer. Mr. Sturtevant, did you leave town for a holiday or as an excuse to break off those attentions?"

"That question is an impertinence!" Sturtevant brought his hand down smartly on the desk before him. "I went on a fishing trip to Canada——"

"Did you go before or after you proposed for Miss Rowntree?"

"I never proposed to her!"

"I did not say you did, sir. I said proposed for her; asked her stepfather for her. When you did, he told you something that made you change your mind in a hurry."

"I—I—don't know what you mean," Sturtevant blustered. "My feelings towards Miss Rowntree were always those of friendship, and they never changed."

"But you thought twice, as any man would, about marrying a girl whose mind wasn't quite all there——"

"Look here!" The young man leaped from his chair. "How did you people get hold of that? It's past and done with, and has no connection with the case whatever and anyway I thought that Quimby would manage to keep it quiet. What's the good of raking it up?"

"Because if this thing comes to a showdown it will not be to Mr. Quimby's interest to hide that. 'Tis a pity, sir, that you were so quick to believe what was told you without finding out the truth for yourself."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean if I wanted to discourage a man from marrying a girl, so that I could keep control of her property, that would be the strongest kind of a lie I could put up."

"I—I can't believe it! Quimby wouldn't dare make such an assertion if it were not founded on fact, and his stepdaughter's property wasn't a patch on his own."

"A patch that'd maybe stop a disastrous leak, Mr. Sturtevant. Think for yourself. Did you ever see any sign of craziness on Miss Rowntree's part?"

"I can't say I ever did." He strode to the window. "It's monstrous, unheard of, that a man of Quimby's position, would take such a chance—"

"He knew you'd be the last to speak of it, sir. And 'twas no longer a chance than to let the affair go on till he was forced to give an accounting of the trust, which he would have found to be a pretty hard job. You played into his hands right enough, when you let all that slide at the inquest but you can see it becomes necessary for him to establish her insanity, he'll call on you to back him up, and you'll be in a hole."

"But you understand my position!" Sturtevant turned abruptly and came forward. "Miss Rowntree was dead, and I saw no reason for casting a slur on her memory, to say nothing of the effect on the remaining members of the family. It is true that I admired her immensely and wanted to make her my wife. I was hard hit when I went to Quimby and he told me of her—her trouble. But I thought that it was decidedly straightforward and honourable of him to come out with the truth.

"I hadn't the least idea that the old scoundrel could have an ulterior motive, and naturally I—I fought shy. Every one thought that his position was impregnable—thinks so today. See here, I would like to know if your information is correct about his financial condition. I am pretty well tied up with him, carrying a huge marginal account of his on my books at this moment. If he's shaky I've got to get out from under."

"You'll have to find that out for yourself, Mr. Sturtevant." McCarty's voice was thickened with contempt. "The purpose of the investigation is to clear the young girl that is dead from the black lie that was told about her and find the man that killed her."

"Oh, to be sure," murmured Sturtevant hurriedly. "Of course, the whole incident was most unfortunate, and if I permitted myself to be deceived I regret it deeply, but as you say, any man would naturally think twice before he contracted a marriage with a person who was—er—mentally afflicted. Now, sir, I've told you all I really know, and in return, you've given me some information that I must act upon without delay. Come around again and I'll be happy to tell you anything I know, but just now every minute counts. You'll excuse me, won't you?—Have a cigar?

McCarty declined in disgust, and departed without further conversation. Dead or alive, he concluded that Marion Rowntree was well rid of her self centred suitor, and dismissed him from his consideration. A task loomed before him which would require all his diplomacy to perform and his habitual confidence had well nigh deserted him as he boarded an up-town car on the way to Mr. Terhune's rooms.

He found the detective busily engaged in mounting a series of photographs upon a board, and affably disposed to ignore the fiasco of their last meeting.

"Still interested in our little case, Mac?" he asked. "It does present some very unusual points, I confess, but basically it is simple, almost elementary. All the minor details are satisfactorily cleared up and I have the whole affair in a nutshell. Scientifically it admitted of only one solution from the beginning and working along that line without blundering into irrelevant issues I have arrived at the infallible conclusion."

"Yes, sir," said McCarty. "Have you got the man?"

Terhune frowned.

"That will come," he announced shortly. "The process of ratiocination alone would disclose him in time but we shall not adopt so lengthy and so crude a measure. The objective side of crime is particularly amenable to scientific analysis and with that objective firmly fixed in the mind the solution presents no difficulties to the expert intelligence."

"I've no doubt of it in the world," agreed McCarty, in haste. Of course, me being an outsider, and belonging to the old school that's past, with these wonderful new scientific discoveries you are master of, sir, it's that interesting I can't keep my mind from it."

"That is natural," Terhune acknowledged generously. "I like to see a man without prejudice toward innovations which he is not mentally equipped to grasp in their full practical significance."

A dull red appeared behind McCarty's ears, but he shifted to the other foot and asked naively:

"Then you've no objections, Mr. Terhune, to me puttering around a little and asking a few questions of some of the witnesses, just to satisfy my own mind? I'll not be bothering you or interfering with the real investigation but you know we old fellows like to pull in the harness now and again."

Terhune waved his hand airily.

"Go as far as you like, my dear McCarty! Come to me with what puzzles you have some time when I am not so busy, and I'll set you straight."

"Thank you, sir," McCarty hesitated. "I was thinking of having a bit of a talk with Mrs. Doremus and maybe that girl of hers, this afternoon. Of course if you'd rather I didn't sir, thinking I might upset your plans, or want me to wait till you can be along, too——"

"My good man," Terhune turned with an air of amused impatience, "my plans are not susceptible to change because of anything you may be able to discover. Go to her by all means, and ask her what you please, but don't bother me with any conclusions that you may reach. I am concentrating upon this from a scientific standpoint and my attention must not be even momentarily deflected from it by idle theories or chimerical clues. Run along, Mac, and investigate to your heart's content."

McCarty needed no second bidding, but hugging the official sanction to his bosom he hastened off to the firehouse, dragged Dennis forth, and across a little restaurant table he unfolded his scheme.

"So you saw Terhune," the latter commented. "I suppose you are after handing over the brooch, and giving him a slant at the little book of notes we found in Mary's trunk, and the accounts on the back of that envelope."

CHILL STARTS COLD

WAS SICK FOUR WEEKS

JUST ABLE TO CRAWL ABOUT

Mr. Weldon T. Hawkes, Curryville, N.B., writes: "Last spring I was taken very ill with a severe cold. I got wet and it started with a chill. I was sick four weeks, and was just able to crawl about. People all said I had inflammation of the lungs, and I think I did. I told a friend to get me two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before the first one was taken my cold and cough were broken up, and the second did its work completely. I am raising a family and I find that it is a good medicine for the children."

There is no remedy that will cure stubborn colds or coughs, the kind that won't let go, like Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It allays the inflammation, soothes the irritation, heals the diseased mucous lining of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and rids the system completely of all the bad effects of lingering coughs and colds.

There are so many spurious "Pine" preparations on the market that you should see you get "Dr. Woods" when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c.; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Liberty Bail Bonds.

Thousands of banners and posters, and nobody knows how many circular letters and newspaper advertisements, have vied with one another in bringing to public attention the excellent reasons why everybody should own Liberty bonds. Here is a reason which has not been mentioned by any of the banners, posters, or advertisements, observes a New York exchange.

"Have you bought your Liberty bond?" asked McCole's friend as the two came through the tube on a crowded subway train.

McCole replied proudly that he had done so—with the bit of money he had been able to scrape together.

"You see," he added, "I figured they was good things to have. F'r instance, if you got arrested and needed bail you could use them and not lose the interest."

Want No Vermin.

No man is allowed to enter Germany from Russia without being thoroughly disinfected and purified. It is not disease that the Germans are guarding against, but something that to them is more terrorizing than disease—vermin. Therefore, friend or foe, nobleman or peasant, nobody, is allowed to cross the threshold of Germany without a visit to one of the disinfecting stations along the eastern frontier. Even one of the emperor's sons had to submit to the disinfecting process and received, along with such of the Russian Cossacks who merited it, a certificate stating that "His Royal Higness Prince Adelbert is, for the time being, free from lice."

Harvesting Kelp.

Before the war potash could be bought for $40 a ton; since its importation from Germany ceased it has risen to $450 a ton.

G. C. Hopkins, in The Forecast, describes the harvesting of the gigantic kelp of the Pacific, and says this yields not only potash but ammonia and iodine, while the gas generated in the process is used to help the distillation. The United States department of agriculture is harvesting the kelp with floating mowing machines.

NEURALGIA CURED IN A FEW DAYS

And Has Never Returned— Nervous System Was Built Up—Now Sleeps and Eats Well—Husband Also Benefitted by This Treatment.

Mrs. W. T. Abbott, 536 Patterson street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "My system was in a run down condition, and I was troubled with nervousness and sleeplessness. For some time, also, I had been bothered with neuralgia, and although I tried many remedies, it was without success. Upon the advice of a friend, I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found in five or six days that my neuralgia was cured, and I have not been troubled in this way since. I also find that now I can eat and sleep well, and I give full credit of this great benefit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I might also mention that I lost considerable in weight, but after using the Nerve Food, I gained back the flesh I had lost. My husband has also found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food of great benefit to him, and uses it when he feels run down from overwork. I have recommended the use of this great medicine to many of my friends and acquaintances."

We know that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food possesses exceptional potency as a means of building up the strength of the human body. We have seen it tested in so many thousands of cases that there is no question of the effectiveness of this treatment.

But how are we going to prove this to you unless you try it. You are the one to be benefitted and so it remains for you to make the test.

Try it when you feel tired out and discouraged. Try it for sleeplessness and irritability. Try it for nervous headaches and indigestion.

It is not a mere relief for these ailments, and for this reason you must persist in its use until the last vigor is restored to the nerves.

But of one thing you can be certain— that each dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food contributes something towards building up the exhausted nervous system. 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75; at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. # Bitro-Phoshates Will Strengthen Your Weak Nerves

Physicians Claim This Organic Phosphate is Actually Converted Into Living Nerve Tissue

Weak nerves rob men and women of all the joy of life and quickly reduce the strong and robust to a condition which is pitiable in the extreme. This condition is brought about slowly and stealthily in the majority of cases, and the poor sufferer fails to realize what is wrong until faulty memory, indecision, lack of desire for work or recreation, insomnia or some other unmistakable symptom, indicates weak nerves. It is then that many people make the big mistake of resorting to the use of so-called nerve tonics, alcoholic stimulants or drugs. Nothing could be more harmful or more dangerous. The nerves are weak and exhausted; they need food and nourishment—not drugs that will lash them into temporary activity. Feed your nerves and they will become strong again and your health will improve in consequence.

"Just put sufficient bitro-phosphate into the system of anyone who is weak, thin, nervous, anaemic and lacking in physical strength and it is like turning sunshine into a cold, damp, neglected room," says Frederick Kolle, M. D., author of medical books and editor-in-chief of "Physicians' Who's Who" in New York. Dr. Kolle says bitro-phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood.

Dr. Joseph D. Harrigan, former visiting specialist to North Eastern Dispensary, N. Y., says: "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anaemic or run-down, take a natural, harmless, unadulterated and strength and tissue-building substance, such as bitro-phosphate for a reasonable time and you will soon see some most astonishing results in the increase in nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance. It seems to supply the power that electrifies all the organs of the body."

That is the advice of present day physicians and specialists. Simple advice, but its excellence has been proven over and over again, and as a package containing sufficient bitro-phosphate tablets for two weeks' treatment can be obtained from any druggist at reasonable cost, the remedy is within the reach of every sufferer from weak nerves.

NOTE—As physicians have pointed out, in order to derive the greatest benefit, bitro-phosphate should be taken in its pure, unadulterated form. If there is a tendency to constipation, take one or two purified toxiol tablets before retiring. In case of indigestion or acidity of the stomach, it is advisable to take a little ordinary serathol, as either of these conditions would naturally retard the progress of bitro-phosphate in building up strength, endurance and strong nerves. The genuine bitro-phosphate so highly recommended above and sold under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back, can be obtained in this city at the drug counters of McDermid & Jury and other good druggists.

Historical Wagram.

Wagram, known by its own people as Deutsch-Wagram, is a village of Austria, situated on the plain of Marchfeld, eleven and a half miles northeast of Vienna, Austria. Here on July 5 and 6, 1809, Napoleon Bonaparte defeated the Austrians, commanded by the Archduke Charles.

Was In the Name.

The strolling company were playing "Hamlet," but they were afraid that Shakespeare's great tragedy would not sufficiently attract, so they conceived the bright idea of altering the title to "How a Stepfather Was Paid Out." The result was a crowded house.—London Tit-Bits.

A Fitting Name.

"Well," was the answer of a little chap who had been asked the name of his cat, "we used to call him William, but he has been having fits lately, so we call him Fitz William now."

COOLNESS OF LOUIS BOTHA.

His Nerve In Dealing With a Savage Zulu Chieftain.

A story of the cool daring of General Louis Botha, whose name is so intimately associated with dramatic episodes in the history of South Africa, appears in his biography written by Harold Spender. It happened one winter when young Botha had taken sheep for pasturage across the Drakensberg mountains and down to the warmer coast lands, which were still in the grip of the Zulus.

One tranquil day a young native rushed into Botha's camp. He breathlessly warned the young Boer to fly and save his life. Mapelo was "out." The most bloodthirsty of all the ruffianly gangs that were then ravaging Zululand was the well mounted and well armed gang of Mapelo. Only an hour or two before, said the native, he had cut the throat of a missionary at the old mission station, about six miles from Botha's camp. The native himself had just left the body of the unhappy man lying still and warm on his own dining room table.

Botha had little time to make up his mind, but one thing was clear—he could not desert his sheep. Most of them belonged to his brothers. So he began to prepare to face the raider. Looking at his bandoleer, he found to his dismay that he had only one cartridge left. Scarcely had he discovered the fact when a troop of Zulu horsemen appeared about a quarter of a mile away over a rise of ground in extended order and charged toward the wagon, waving their rifles over their heads and shouting like demons possessed.

Louis Botha rose and very deliberately mounted the box seat of his wagon. He laid his rifle in a conspicuous place next him. Then he proceeded, with an outward calm very foreign to his own inner feelings, to light a match and apply it slowly to his pipe.

Throwing away the match and looking up, he found that the native horsemen had drawn rein in a cloud of dust within a few yards of the front of the wagon.

A few seconds of dead silence followed, the natives glancing at Botha and Botha eying them with a steady gaze of surprise. Then Mapelo advanced and said that his men were very hungry and wanted something to eat. Botha gravely demurred at this stormy way of approach and coolly bargained with the invader of his peace. At last he agreed to give them one sheep on the strict condition that they should withdraw some distance from his camp and not disturb him again. The condition was accepted, and so ended an incident that Botha has always described as one of the most disturbing in his whole life.

Tricks of Worms.

Mimicry in animals, "hitherto an insoluble mystery," is explained in the North American Review by Hudson Maxim. When a bird is about to attack a worm he looks at the worm, trying to ascertain whether the worm is a food worm or a puff-adder. The mental process of the bird is transferred to the nervous system of the worm, who, now aware of the fact that the bird would hesitate to attack him if he were a puff-adder, proceeds to imitate the puff-adder.

Kitchen Tactics.

There is a woman, poor but proud, who goes into the kitchen every morning and pounds a folded towel with a rolling pin just to make the neighbors believe that she has beefsteak for breakfast.

Time to Be on Guard.

When a man feels bad he should be on his guard lest he say or do something he will regret having said or done when he feels better.

All Have Faults.

Nothing will make us so charitable and tender to the faults of others as by self-examination thoroughly to know our own.—Fenelon.

Wealth of Love.

We are most of us very lonely in this world; you who have any who love you, cling to them and thank God —Thackeray.

Wherever the tree of beneficence takes root, it sends forth branches beyond the sky.—Saadi.

VINOL MAKES GOOD BLOOD

Positive—Convincing Proof

Many so-called remedies for anaemia are only so in name. Their makers are afraid to prove their claims by telling what their medicines contain.

The only way to be honest with the people is to let them know what they are paying for. Here is the Vinol formula. When the doctor knows what a medicine contains, it ceases to be a "patent" medicine.

Cod Liver and Beef Peptonates, Iron and Manganese Peptonates, Iron and Ammonium Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycerophosphates, Cascarin.

Any doctor will tell you that the ingredients of Vinol, as named above, will enrich the blood and banish anaemia and create strength. When the blood is pure and rich and red, the body is strong and robust.

You can prove this at our expense because your money will be returned if Vinol does not improve your health.

Youthful Mothers.

Some of the world's notables have been born of parents well over thirty years of age. Conversely great numbers of them were born of youthful mothers. Abraham Lincoln's mother was only twenty-five at the time of his birth. Napoleon the Great was born of parents twenty-three and nineteen years of age, respectively. The mother of Pasteur, undoubtedly the greatest genius France has yet produced, was under thirty, as were the mothers of Herbert Spencer, Michael Farraday and John Stuart Mill.

He Who Toils.

The average man does not love work for its own sake. This is a truism, and a truism rather mildly worded, muses an exchange. And yet we are convinced that real laziness, real disinclination to bodily or mental effort, is one of the rarest things in the world. Cases of it are unquestionably known to the medical profession and to the poorhouse authorities, but when the cause is not hookworm or anaemia, it is usually a too enthusiastic thermometer.

Making Nails.

An excellent illustration of the difference between old and new methods is the ordinary common nail. Formerly the metal was cut into strips and then forged into shape with hammers, and an expert took about one minute and a half for each nail. Today they are made of steel and are lighter and stronger. Strips are cut with steam shears and fed into automatic machines. One man tends three machines, dropping a nail every second.

Childish Deductions.

Mary and her little brother, Billie, were standing in the parlor of a big hotel. Much awed at their luxurious surroundings, they were gazing about, when Billie's glance fell on a picture of Marie Antoinette. Edging up to Mary, he whispered: "Who's that lady?" To which Mary replied in a confidential tone: "Why, she's the one that owns the furniture."

An Acre.

An acre originally meant in both Latin and Anglo-Saxon a field of any size. As a measure of land it was first defined under Edward I of England as the amount that a yoke of oxen could plow in a day. It was under the reign of George IV. that a uniform standard was given to this name 4,800 square yards.

An Immense Diamond.

A big diamond has been found in a mine in Griqualand West (South Africa). The stone is amber colored and weighs four hundred and forty carats—about a quarter of a pound. Although this is not a record as regards weight, it is the finest that has ever been found in that section of the country.

First Submarine Cable.

The first submarine cable was one that made communication possible between Calais and Boulogne, on one side of the English Channel, and Dover, on the other. This experiment is commented upon by the London Illustrated News in its issue for August 18, 1849.

A CAPTURED ZEPP.

Came Down With Its Nose in a Brook and Its Stern in a Pine Grove.

I personally inspected the German zeppelin brought down near Bourbonne-Co-Barns in the Vosges, writes Henri Bazin, inside and outside and underneath its entire length, from the stern to the forward section. The landing having been made in a mountainous country, the airship had pitched down and lay at an angle of 20 degrees, with its nose buried in a stream. The stern was resting amid a clump of pines. Walking underneath the ship it was possible to see nearly its full length.

The total length of the zeppelin is 600 feet, with a diameter of ninety feet. It has an aluminum frame, with longitudinal and horizontal ribs, and is covered with stout, interlaced cord. Over this is the outside cover of linen, painted black. The shape is that of an exaggerated fat cigar. Two silk balloons fill the interior, holding the hydrogen gas which gives the lifting power. Slatted runways, nine inches wide, with pine guide-rails, extend the length of the airship. There are sleeping quarters, an electric kitchen, telephones, and an elaborate system of electric push buttons. The five great steel engines have twelve cylinders of vertical type. The propellers are of wood. One is suspended forward next to the chart room and the commander's quarters. Two are placed amidship, one on the starboard and the other on the port side. Two more are at the stern. Access to the body of the dirigible is obtained by means of fixed ladders.

The equipment included Arctic clothing, an oxygen manufacturing apparatus for use in high altitudes, condensed foods, medicinal supplies and charts elaborately squared, showing France, England, Holland, Switzerland, and Germany.

A bomb-dropping apparatus is located directly amidships. The bombs are suspended over a trap-door, which opens electrically, releasing the bombs. There is space for twelve bombs, but all had been dropped. An electric fire extinguishing apparatus is also included in the equipment. In fact, there is every appliance for facilitating murder from the air.

Just before being brought to earth the commander emptied the contents of an automatic revolver into the forward engine in a vain effort to wreck it. Six unused incendiary bombs were found in the commander's quarters. Barring some tears and rips to the envelope and the buckling of the stern, where it rested amid the pines, the airship was absolutely undamaged.

This is the most complete capture that has been made in the war or is likely to be made.

An airship like this captured one could readily be constructed from this model. The zeppelin had painted forward and also on the stern "L—49" in red letters, with the German white cross on the sides amidships. I encircled the airship completely after I had been through the interior. The spectacle was magnificent, amid the autumn tints of the foliage and the blue-clouded sky.

German newspapers found in the forward gondola of the zeppelin L-49 indicate that the captured monster may have made the longest airship flight in history. A copy of the Reichenbachen Tabeblatt, published in Reichenbachen, Saxony, on Thursday, October 18, was found. Since the zeppelins reached London late Friday night, it seems possible that the airship started either from Reichbenbachen or the immediate vicinity, as it is unlikely that a newspaper from the small Saxony town would be on sale in all parts of Germany.

The approximate distance from Reichenbachen to London is about 620 miles, and the approximate distance from London here is 372 miles.

The zeppelin's instrument for calculating altitude showed she had ascended a distance of 42,000 feet, perhaps setting a new world's record for altitude, if the reading is correct. The face of one member of the crew was frozen, despite his heavy clothing.

The French Minister of Aviation and several air experts from Paris visited the zeppelin but for fear of vandalism nobody was allowed to approach the dirigible except on a signed order from the commanding colonel. Nevertheless, there has been a steady pilgrimage to the scene from many distant cities. Among the crowds could be seen mothers pushing baby carriages.

A gang of workmen has begun to dismantle the zeppelin, fearing that a severe storm might wreck it. It will be reconstructed and set up for French aeronautic experts to study

Japan Likes Fat Men.

In this country, when a man of average height takes on girth until his weight runs up to 300 pounds or so, his friends have grave doubts about his condition and advise him to diet in order to bring back a slim elegance of figure. In Japan the contrary is true. If a man can carry 300 pounds of flesh with any agility he is of the material from which heroes are manufactured, and if he can work up to the 400 or 475-pound notch, and becomes a wrestler, he is in the running for the championship.

Wrestling is to the Japanese what boxing is to us, and more. The populace goes crazy over it, and the magnates of the big game handle great sums in the way of gate receipts. The Tokio Wrestling Association controls the flower of Japan's heavyweights, and at its head is a 350-pound veteran, T. Dewanoumi, the holder of the championship for eleven years in succession—a record feat.—Wide World.

CONSTIPATION

If the truth were only known you would find that over one-half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They work on the bowels gently and naturally, and will cure the worst cases of constipation.

Mr. Sylvester Clements, Galt, Ont., writes: "I desire to express my heartfelt thanks for what Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have done for me. I have been suffering from a bad stomach and constipation and would be off work 4 or 5 months a year. I was hardly able to be inside without getting a severe headache. I tried doctors' medicine and other remedies, but got no relief until a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. Now I can work inside without any headaches or pain. I would not be without your remedy for anything. I write this so that anyone suffering the same as I did may use them and be cured."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take one tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

LEARNING TO FORGET BEAUTY

Difficult Lesson for Woman, Asserts English Writer, in Describing the Aged Queen Alexandra.

"There is no more difficult lesson for a woman to learn than that of learning how to forget that she has been beautiful," writes a clever English woman.

"One afternoon I saw Queen Alexandra driving slowly in her open motor through the gates at Hyde Park corner. For the first time it occurred to me that this rarely lovely queen is now an old woman nearing four-score years of age. Perhaps she had forgotten to be alert, as is her usual custom, or perhaps the heat of the day had fatigued her. But at any rate there was a touch of tragedy in the thought that Queen Alexandra is learning slowly, but surely, that extreme beauty can fade although the charm of personality can challenge the attack of time.

"I fancy it must have been the queen mother's costume that brought this idea most surely before me. She was wearing a mantle or cloak made of some material in shade of iridescent blue spangles with a close frilling of black lace all round the edge. Her hat or bonnet was of the usual royal shape and built of jetted stuff to match her cloak, with a small white aigrette standing erect in front.

"Under ordinary circumstances one would regard this quaint nineteenth century toilet of the queen mother's as a characteristic conventionality, but somehow on this sunny afternoon it represented to me a sacrifice to the inevitable."

WHY COAT WAS UNBUTTONED

Private, Unable to Speak English, Gives Explanation After His Second Reprimand.

A private of foreign extraction recently appeared at reveille with his overcoat unbuttoned, contrary to regulations, relates a cantonment correspondent. The colonel, who happened to be on the scene, noticed this discrepancy; he called the man out of the ranks, took him to his office and delivered a stern lecture on the necessity of military exactitude. During the admonition the private maintained a dignified silence. When the colonel had finished, he pointed to the door. The man went out.

The following morning he appeared at reveille with his coat again unbuttoned. When the formality was concluded, the captain called him to one side.

"Didn't the colonel tell you to keep your coat buttoned?" he demanded.

The private regarded him blankly.

"I say, didn't the colonel tell you to keep your coat buttoned?"

The man looked at the officer with a puzzled expression.

"Me no spik English," he affirmed mildly.

Camera Lenses Wanted.

The United States signal corps has issued an appeal to the owners of all high-grade cameras. The signal corps needs the lenses of their machines for war work. It is known that the United States bureau of standards has solved the problem of manufacturing high-grade optical glass for aircraft camera lenses, but apparently they cannot be produced in quantity fast enough to equip our fleet of airplanes. The United States has always been a great field for amateur photographers, and there are a large number of high-grade European-made lenses scattered about the country. These lenses the signal corps wants to buy. Long focus lenses working at large apertures are the only kind which can be used.

Eyes Made of Rubber.

Everybody knows that eyes were made to rubber. Very few know that eyes are now being made of rubber. This is one of the million results of the war, notes a correspondent.

Glass eyes are always more or less uncomfortable, and frequently unsightly, and it is interesting, therefore when the deformities of war are so serious a subject of consideration, to learn that two French workers, Mme. Lemaitre and Teuillieres, have evolved an entirely new method of replacing a lost eye. By the use of a combination of a hard and soft rubber substance they have achieved their aim and are producing an eye that looks well and feels well.

Revolution Headquarters.

Of all Boston's early taverns none were of more historic interest and none dispensed greater good cheer than the Green Dragon, which stood until recent years when it had to be torn down in order that the street might be widened. The Green Dragon was called a "nest of treason" by the British because of the way in which the spirit of liberty flourished here and the fact that many meetings held for the purpose of furthering the cause of American independence were held under its roof. Daniel Webster called it the "headquarters of the Revolution."

Flavine as Antiseptic Fails.

Flavine, or acriflavine, which has recently been called the ideal antiseptic for use in wounds, is unequivocally condemned by Lieut. Alexander Fleming of the British Army Medical corps, after a series of experiments with its effect upon his own blood, upon microbes and upon pus. The Lancet publishes his experiments in detail, and his conclusions are that strong solutions of flavine have a more destructive action on the blood than on the microbes, and that weak solutions have no antiseptic effect worth mentioning.

The two main ingredients in the manufacture of linoleum are cork and linseed oil, to which are added smaller quantities of kauri gum, resin, and pigments of various kinds.

THE PRESIDENT'S MAIL.

It Takes a Corps of Trained Clerks to Handle the Letters.

President Wilson's mail bag is the largest in the world. Thousands of letters arrive daily, and every one of any importance must have the individual attention of America's first citizen. Of course the president is not able to read all his correspondence himself. This difficulty is overcome by a carefully developed system by which the contents of the White House mail bag of any importance are laid before Mr. Wilson each day.

The work of selection falls upon a corps of confidential clerks, who open the letters and give them a first reading; then they are carefully sorted. Many of them are simply recommendations for office. These, after courteous acknowledgment, are referred to the proper departments and placed on file until the matter can be taken up for consideration.

Hundreds of the missives are purely ormal or contain impossible requests. These are immediately answered by the staff and signed by one of the president's assistant secretaries.

Such communications as the president ought to see are clearly briefed—that is, a slip is pinned at the top of each letter, and on this is a typewritten synopsis of its contents, telling who the writer is and what he has to present. Frequently the president is sufficiently interested by the brief to cause him to read the whole letter. Sometimes the communication is referred to a cabinet officer, in which case the slip is retained at the White House and filed.

Requests for charity are continually pouring in. These, however, are sent to a different department, which goes fully into each case before replying.

When a large number of persons write on the same subject the letters are bunched, and the brief at the top gives the names of those who present one argument, and on another list are given the names of the persons who offer a different view

A NORWEGIAN WORD.

Origin of "Budstikken," Which Means Spreading the News.

This peculiar word is frequently found in Scandinavian communities as the name of a newspaper, such as St. Cloud Budstikken. It is a Norwegian word, 1,200 years old at the least and has a very peculiar origin.

In those days when the coasts of Norway were ravaged by pirates the inhabitants had to resort to all sorts of devices to warn those at a distance of the approach of these piratical craft. When one was seen on the horizon a man went up to the top of a mountain, where he lighted a beacon fire. This could be seen for a long distance and was known to be a warning. When it was seen in the distance another fire was lighted on another hill until all over the country fires blazed from every hilltop and the people prepared to defend themselves.

They also had a system of messengers. The man who first sighted the sail would take an arrow and send it to his neighbors. From town to town this arrow was sent until all were warned. These were rather primitive ways of telegraphing, but were so effectual that in the course of twenty-four hours all Norway knew of the approach of pirates.

This system of spreading the news was called "budstikken," and when there were no more pirates the newspapers became spreaders of the news and so were appropriately styled "budstikken."—Exchange.

String Beans In Brine.

Instead of canning string beans put them up in brine, and in winter they taste like freshly picked beans.

Put a layer of dry salt one-fourth inch thick in the bottom of a crock. Next put a layer of beans one and one-half inches high just as they are picked from the garden without washing.

Next a one-fourth inch layer of salt and so on until the crock is filled. On top invert a plate and put a heavy weight.

When you wish to use them soak an hour or so and then boil like fresh beans.—New York Sun.

Man and the Animals.

The essential difference between men and animals is well stated by Dr. Grasset, an eminent French biologist, quoted by the Scientific American. He says the animal is predestined to obey the laws of its species, while man obeys them only if and when he will. A man may, if he wants to, sustain with energy the pretension that two and two make five, or he may commit suicide.

Quicksands.

Quicksands are not caused by water constantly flowing over sand. It is only where there is an upward current that they are found. Imagine, for instance, a bucket filled with sand. Water poured on that sand does not make it "quick." If, however, the bucket had a hole in its bottom and water was forced through the hole quicksands would be formed.

Hand Plow Built From Bicycle.

A farmer in California had no hand plow, so he proceeded to improvise one, says the Popular Science Monthly. The body of the plow he made from an old bicycle frame. The bicycle handle-bar was taken off, turned backward and set solidly in the frame. The wheel was taken from a large gate valve. The plowshare is attached to the frame by a U-bolt.

Chicken Mystery.

Pearl and Stanley, six and four, respectively, had buried a dead chicken in their garden. A week later out of curiosity they went to dig it up, in the wrong place, and did not find it. Excited, they ran together to mother and cried, "Ma, that chicken must have gone to heaven, because it isn't there any more."

HAVELOCK CORRESPONDENCE

HAVELOCK, Feb. 13.— The supper and lecture held in the Town Hall on Friday night last under the auspices of St. John's church, was in every way a decided success. The weather was most favourable and the attendance was large. A pork and bean supper was served from 6 to 8 o'clock, after which Rev. Major Davidson of Peterborough, who went overseas as the chaplain of the 93rd Battalion, and was in close touch with the soldier boys for many months, gave a most delightful and appreciative lecture. Miss Stocks, of Toronto, well known as a splendid elocutionist, contributed several selections. The proceeds, after expenses were paid, amounted to the handsome sum of $100.

Pte. Jas. Little, of the 28th Batt., who was wounded in November last, has been sent to a hospital in England.

The February meeting of the Quarterly Board of the Methodist church was held on Monday last and was largely attended by the Havelock and Trent River members.

The financial report presented was most encouraging and all the business was transacted in a very pleasing manner, with an invitation to the pastor to remain another year. The motion was carried unanimously and was accepted by Mr. Adams in a touching address.

It was highly endorsed by the Board that congregational meetings should be held during the coming year, when the reports of the different departments of the church should be taken up and discussed by the members of the congregation, which the Board believed would aid materially in promoting the church work. The Board concluded its session by singing "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

Miss Jennie Barlow has returned from visiting friends in Toronto and London.

RECIPE TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

A Cincinnati Barber Tells How to Make a Remedy for Gray Hair.

Mr. Frank Harbaugh, of Cincinnati, O., who has been a barber for more than forty years, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and ¼ ounce glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger. It does not colour the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

READY!

In the newspapers there recently appeared articles telling of the arrival of the American fleet at Queenstown—telling how the Officers of the English Navy had gone to Vice-Admiral Sims and asked him when he would be ready for action. Every American thrilled with pride at his answer—

"WE CAN START AT ONCE."

"READY TO START AT ONCE"—What a wonderful motto for every man, and yet how many of us realize that at any moment we may suddenly be called away from Business, from Home and Friends, from this world of ours to pass in to the Great Beyond.

Are you Mr. Reader, "READY TO START AT ONCE?" Have you made provision for those dependent on you should the call come?

WEAR THOSE SHOES THAT TORTURED YOU

Cincinnati Authority Tells How to Dry Up a Corn So It Lifts Out

Cincinnati authority tells how to dry up a corn so it lifts out.

Pou corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezone applied directly on a tender, aching corn stops soreness at once and soon the corn loosens so it can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

A quarter of an ounce of freezone costs very little at any drug store, but is sufficient to take off every hard or soft corn or callus. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to inflame or even irritate the surrounding tissue or skin.

GERMANY INSISTS ON RUSSIA SIGNING REGULAR PEACE PACT

Political and Military Leaders Not Satisfied With Trotsky's Latest Movement Are Trying to Find Solution to Problem--Polish Cabinet Dissatisfied With Terms of Special Peace Agreement Has Resigned.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 14.—Judging from the latest indications in the German press, much dissatisfaction and suspicion has been aroused by the latest move of Foreign Minister Trotzky. Important political and military leaders are said to be conferring busily to find the best solution to the puzzle. The Kreus Zeitung of Berlin on Tuesday declared, "on reliable information," that Trotzky's proposal is in no circumstance to be regarded as a peace offer, while it is pointed out by other papers that the Russian war theatre was mentioned especially in the official army report on Tuesday. A Berlin telegram to the Koelnische Volks Zeitung of Wednesday says: "The Government is not willing to continue relations with Russia on any basis whatsoever unless the present Russian Government signs a regular peace treaty."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.—"Except for some hostile artillery activities south-west of Epehy and in the neighbourhood of Bullecourt, there is nothing of special interest," says to-day's official communication.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.—An important peace debate will begin in the German Reichstag on February 21, according to a wireless despatch from Amsterdam. Chancellor Von Hertling will discuss the treaty with the Ukraine and will reply to President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George and Premier Orlando.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.—It is understood that summonses for Colonel Repington, military correspondent of the Morning Post, and F. A. Gwynne, editor of the Post, who are to be prosecuted under the Defence of the Realm Act for an article by Colonel Repington which appeared in the Post on Monday, are returnable in the Bow Street Police Court on Saturday morning.

ZURICH, Feb. 14.—The resignation of the Polish Cabinet, because of dissatisfaction with the terms of the separate peace between the Ukraine and the Central Powers was officially announced in Warsaw despatches to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

JASSY, Roumania, Feb. 11 (Delayed).—A new Cabinet, headed by General Alexander Averescu, said to be the ablest commander in the army, is known to lean towards peace. This Cabinet succeeds the Bratiano Ministry, recently resigned, which was known as the War Cabinet. The change was the direct result of an ultimatum from Germany demanding that Roumania declare her future course of action.

FARMERS AMONG RETURNED MEN

(Canadian Press)

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Returned soldiers who have had experience as farmers in Canada will contribute their share to the increased production during the coming summer. A transport which arrived at a Canadian port several days ago, brought home a large party of soldiers who are classified as "experienced farmers". A considerable number are agriculturists who enlisted in Eastern Canada. Other large batches of returned farmers are expected to arrive later on, and it is expected they will all take up their former occupation.

THE FIRST CLASS WILL NOT YIELD REQUIRED NUMBER

Figures Given by the Government Yesterday Show This and Also Indicate That Speeding Up of Appeals Must Take Place in Quebec

APPOINT MORE JUDGES

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 14.—While the question of calling out the Second Class under the Military Service Act has not yet been formally "considered" by the Government, it has undoubtedly "crossed the mind" of members of the Government of the Military Service Council. The statistics issued for publication by the Government yesterday indicate that the total of 100,000, which is the limit of the Act, will not be obtained from the First Class. On the face of the figures it would appear that as a direct and indirect result of the Act, upward of 46,000 men have been secured. Of these, however, over 16,000 are men who volunteered since September, both in Canada and the United States. The intent of the Act was to secure infantry reinforcements, but a great majority of the volunteers joined units other than the infantry. Moreover, it is difficult to say how many of the volunteers actually joined as an indirect result of the Act, since men were volunteering at the rate of about 4,000 per month right up to the time the Act was promulgated. Of the 30,000 odd draftees counted in the statement, only about 17,000 are yet in khaki.

Sir Robert Borden declared that in compiling the number authorized by the Act the 16,000 odd volunteers must be taken into account. Unless, however, the hearing of appeals is speeded up, Quebec's share will not be available at the time when reinforcements are most required, namely, in the spring months, while, therefore, troops from other provinces will be called on to bear the brunt of the expected German offensive, Quebec will have a reprive from that experience. The authorities here believe that the appeals will be dealt with speedily, however, and arrangements are being made to increase the judicial machinery.

EXPERTS DISAGREE

KITCHENER, Feb. 14.— A strong plea for the acquittal on the ground of insanity, of Charles Gerbig, who is being tried here for wife murder, was made by his counsel, J. E. Jones, K.C., before Justice Masten and a jury at the Assizes here to-day. In giving evidence this morning, Dr. English, of the Hamilton Asylum for the Insane, said he considered Gerbig quite sane when the crime was committed. On the other hand, Dr. Robertson, of the London Insane Asylum, declared that Gerbig had been a victim of dementia praecox since childhood. The case will reach the jury to-night.

Canadians Take Prisoners In Successful Raids Near Lens

Machine Guns Were Taken and Many Germans Were Killed and Trench Mortars Destroyed—Casualty List Was Small.

DUGOUTS BOMBED

LONDON, Feb. 13. — Canadian troops have carried out two successful raids in which they captured prisoners and inflicted losses on the enemy, the official statement from British Headquarters in France and Belgium to-night says. In an attack this morning north-west of Passchendaele, in the Ypres sector, German troops temporarily occupied two British posts. The British later drove the Germans out in a counter-attack.

Many Germans Killed.

The statement reads:

"In a successful raid south-east of Hargicourt, reported this morning, carried out by the Canadians, in addition to thirteen prisoners, two machine guns were brought back to our lines. Many Germans were killed in fighting above ground, and four trench mortars were destroyed. Seventeen dugouts in the enemy's first line and others in his support line, whose occupants refused to come out when summoned, were bombed. The casualties incurred by the raiding party were slight, and all were brought in. Another successful raid was carried out last night by Canadians in the neighbourhood of Hill 70, north of Lens. Considerable opposition was encountered, in spite of which six prisoners and a machine gun were captured. Our casualty list was small.

"Fighting took place at dawn this morning north-west of Passchendaele, where a hostile party attacked and temporarily occupied two of our posts. The enemy subsequently was ejected by a counter-attack, and both posts were regained. The enemy's artillery showed increased activity this morning south and south-west of Lens."

PROTEST ENTERED BY SALVATION ARMY

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—A protest is being made by the Salvation Army against the ruling by the New York District Board of draft appeals against the refusal to exempt officers of the Salvation Army as ministers of religion.

They assert that Salvationists have the legal right to perform marriage ceremonies and other Church functions.

ORDINARY ARTICLES ARE VERY SCARCE IN THE CENTRAL EMPIRE

Many People Are Going Barefoot in Germany—People No Longer Expect Victory But the Best They Hope For is the Exhaustion of the Allies Before Germany is Compelled to Sue for Peace.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By William Philip Simms—Copyright 1918 by United Press).

ZURICH, Switzerland, Feb. 14. — As indicating Germany's thoroughness, she will no longer permit corpses to be buried with their clothes.

They must be placed in pasteboard coffins. They must be clothed in paper shrouds, or be bound in paper sheets. No woollen, cotton, linen, or similar materials must be wasted in graves. Whole wooden, zinc, copper, and other metal caskets are generally forbidden.

Everything Scarce.

An American woman, just leaving Germany, declares all ordinary articles are scarce that a sale of her worn-out kitchen utensils brought undreamed-of prices. German women, packing in her home, sought an opportunity to buy things families usually throw away in moving. They fetched fancy sums. This woman says the coal shortage is far more acute than outsiders imagine. This is not due to lack of coal, but to the labour shortage, plus transportation difficulties. The scarcity of cars caused the military officials to reduce the trains to little more than sufficient for the army's needs. The rolling stock is in frightful disrepair. Silver and nickel have been demonized. All gold, including jewellery, formerly requested in the name of patriotism, is now demanded by the Government in order to keep up gold coins and prevent too rapid a decline in the value of paper money. The people no longer expect victory, the woman declares. The best they hope is the exhaustion of the Allies before Germany is compelled to sue for peace. The masses have been told so often that an offensive would bring immediate peace, they are beginning to feel duped and angry.

Speech Made Impression.

I understand that President Wilson's speech made a deep impression in Germany, and probably will bear future fruit. On the most reliable authority, I learn that the Kaiser himself openly declared Wilson's terms were reasonable enough to form the basis for negotiations. William, however, is without influence. I am told that while openly opposed to the extreme to which the war party is the leading Empire, he does not murmur, as Hindenburg and Ludendorff are his absolute masters.

Are Going Barefoot.

An American girl, recently arrived from Germany, says many children, and even grown-ups, are now going barefoot. They are unable to buy shoes. A proud professor of the University of Leipzig asked as a favour to be allowed to buy discarded shoes of the girl's brother.

A crime wave is sweeping the country from end to end. Thugs often rob pedestrians of their clothes. The children of one of the girl's friends were robbed of their shoes while on their way home from school. The weather was bitterly cold, and the children arrived with their feet about frozen and bleeding.

Enthusiasm Is Lost.

Travellers agree that ninety per cent. of the German people have lost their enthusiasm for war. The sole topic of conversation is food and peace.

Intelligent people are asking, "What is the good of launching another offensive?" Many of them know America, because they lived and worked there. They say the United States will continue the crusade a hundred years, if necessary, to rob Germany of her spoils.

Everything points in the same direction. The Central Empires are economically and generally in such a turmoil that all the Allies need to do to win the war is to keep equitable war aims before the world, and hold their own on the Western front.

"LIFER" IS ARRESTED AT PARRY SOUND

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Feb. 14. — Joseph Courtrand, alias Duval, under life sentence, who escaped from the Provincial penitentiary, Kingston, also from the Asylum for Criminally Insane at Hamilton, was outwitted at the district jail here, where he attempted to clear out with the aid of a table knife and piece of wire. The prisoner is now on his way back to the penitentiary in charge of a strong guard. He had been arrested here after breaking jail at Chatham, where he was held for passing bogus bills. The Dominion police traced him here, and he finally confessed that he was an escaped "lifer."

SO NEAR AND YET SO FAR.

The scarcity of sugar, has led the Food Contoller to suggest greater attention to utilizing our maple trees for the manufacture of sugar. This is good advice; but, as in many other things, there is a fly in the Food Controler's maple sugar. We know that there are millions of maple trees—acer saccharinum—in Canada. But the conditions are against easy and successful sugar production. This year there is a very heavy fall of snow, which will lie long in the maple woods after it has partially disappeared in the open. This deep snow will make getting about in the woods for the tapping of trees and collection of sap, very difficult. This won't deter the man that is earnest, and used to maple sugar making, but it will dampen the ardor of many men who are asked for the first time to make a new departure, or to resume a work that has been neglected for years. It would be a nice thing if we could supplement our sugar supply by getting even one pound from each of the millions of maple trees in Canada. Each mature maple tree will yield, on an average, about four pounds of sugar in a season. A citizen of Peterborough who has half a dozen healthy maples in front of his premises, has the potential wherewithal for about twenty-five pounds of sugar; that is if we had the halcyon days of King Alfred, when jewels could be hung on wayside trees and be free from theft—we might, under such conditions, get the sap from the street trees we tap, without dread of passers by—especially the sweet-toothed small boy.

If party patronage is abolished, thousands of patriots will go out of politics.

THE FUEL CONTROLLER'S BENEFACTION.

The Fuel Controller's orders, in order to conserve coal, have their disadvantages and annoyances and vexations, interruption of the routine of living and doing business. But like many of the afflictions that come to us, they involve compensating advantages. While they may be annoying in one way they are, in another way, good for us.

Business men on Saturday found that there was no difficulty in closing the regular business at nine o'clock. Thus the Fuel Controller's "tyranny" has demonstrated a possibility that should be regarded and acted upon as an official precedent.

The possibility of closing Saturday night shopping at nine o'clock rests almost entirely with the public, who should place their orders by 'phone or in person, at an earlier hour and do their personal shopping earlier. They can do this when compelled, as witness the result of the Fuel Controller's early closing order.

But early closing is too big an advantage, too much a matter of doing justice to late worked and consequently, overworked and unnecessarily worked, shop employees to be ignored. Early shopping involves a fine spirit of Christian charity —it involves thoughtfulness for the comfort, convenience and even rights, of others. Late shopping imposes a burden of discomfort and injustice upon shop employees, depriving them of their rest, and even of their religious privileges. Ministers complain that the late hours in shops on Saturday nights —due almost entirely to the thoughtlessness or indifference of the public—so thoroughly exhaust the employees, that the demand of compensating rest on Sunday morning prevents their attendance at Sunday morning services in the churches.

Then late shopping is positive cruelty. It imposes unnecessary fatigue on shop girls especially, who have enough to suffer by being compeled to stand from nine o'clock in the morning till eleven at night; and must necessarily be intensely tired. Added to the physical fatigue is the mental exasperation of having to meet with a smile, the exactness of cranky and unreasonable and inconsiderate women shoppers.

If two hours were cut off by the considerate cooperation of shoppers, so much injustice and positive cruelty would be cut off.

The war situation has brought the necessity of new business methods and new views of our relations of duty to our fellow men—and women. A demand is created for the reduction of unnecessary deliveries of goods ordered, something that adds very largely to the "overhead" expenses of merchants; a situation complicated by scarcity of employment, and the demands for employment in activities more profitable than long journeys to deliver parcels, that the purchaser, without any inconvenience or loss of dignity, might himself or herself take home.

We thank the Fuel Controller that he has proved that, without loss to anybody, but with great gain to many, the usual long-drawn-out and delayed Saturday night shopping can be concluded at nine o'clock. All that is necessary is for the public to think of themselves first, that is, think to do their ordering or buying early. Then, if they think of others, they will send hundreds home two or three hours earlier for a much needed rest.

The summer—according to the calendar, anyway— is coming, with its long, beautiful evenings. It is hoped that never again the shopping public of Peterborough will be guilty of thoughtlessness of the past—strolling about in the delightful evening hours, till the hour that business should be closed and weary workers released, who then rush to the shops to do their belated buying, and keeping shops open and tired workers busy till ten or eleven o'clock, not to speak of parcels having to be delivered afterwards by jaded horses, a work that often goes far into the small hours of Sunday morning.

The scarcity of sugar should bring laggard wooers to the "popping" point.

FISH AND FLESH.

A man named Goldstein, has had a moving picture film, alleged to have cost $100,000 confiscated by the order of a California judge. The film, called "The Spirit of 1776," held up the British and British soldiers to ridcule. The judge didn't mince words. He said:

"The disposition and purpose of the whole play in its deeper significance," is to incite hatred of England and England's soldiers. And it is not at all necessary that it should be shown to have such effect; it is enough if it is calculated reasonably so to excite or inflame the passions of our people, or some of them, as that they will be deterred from giving that full measure of co-operation, sympathy, assistance and sacrifice which is due to Great Britain as an ally of ours, working with us, to fight the battle we think strikes at our very existence as a nation."

We cannot dispute the justness of the logic of the judge's reasoning. He rightly held that such a play gave, indirectly perhaps, but effectively, help to the enemy by impairing the spirit of war service and sacrifice of some of the people of the United States an improper and unlawful thing towards an ally of the United States.

While we expected the fair-minded authorities of the United States to take such a stand, in respect of the interests of an ally, we should naturally expect the authorities of a country like Canada, which is not only an ally, but an integral part of the British Empire, to take similar ground. But they don't do it. We have had, and have still, Henri Bourassa, not a foreigner, but a Canadian, and therefore a traitor of a deeper dye, spreading treason for years, through his newspaper, "Le Devoir," with a daily circulation of about 30,000 copies without let or hindrance. He has been poisoning the minds of French Canadians for years with anti-British treason, "calculated to so inflame, and actually inflaming, the passions of the French Canadian people that they were deterred from giving "that full measure of co-operation, sympathy, assistance and sacrifice which is due to Great Britain as an ally"—and more than our ally—our mother country—a real part of us.

There is no doubt that Bourassa and the treason he has preached without let or hindrance through his newspaper, are directly responsible for the fact that the people of Quebec have not done the fair share of recruiting and war service we should expect from a nationally brave people—if they had not been corrupted by the treason of Bourassa. It has been committed, not only without official protest, but actually with official encouragement. The late government, the predecessor, and in large part, the personal substance of the new Union Government, made a party alliance with the treason party of Bourassa, and put three members of his treason party into a British cabinet—making avowed discipiles of a cult of treason the advisers of the king.

We looked in vain to the Borden Government to put an end to Bourassa's propaganda of treason—they were making party capital out of the connection—but we certainly were sanguine enough to expect htat the Union Government, formed by strong popular warrant, as a win-the-war government, would put down a treasonable movement that has been, and continues to be, the most momentous, most deplorable, and most disgraceful obstruction to a splendid section of Canada, and, doing its war duty through its default, to many other Canadians doing their full duty in helping win the war.

Nobody demands the corporeal head of Bourassa; but loyalty, patriotism and decency demand that an end be put to his propaganda of treason and his newspaper receive the suppression that has been due for years. "Le Devoir," a newspaper reeking with treasonable advocacy, has been alolwed to flourish and do its evil work unmolested, but two Ontario weeklies, whose combined circulation for ten years would not equal one day's circulation of Bourassa's treason sheet, for unguarded and comparatively trifling utterances, or criticism of war measures, were suppressed.

Why the distinction, why the disgraceful differentative treatment of great and little treason? Why make fish of one and flesh of the other?

New York State is flattering Ontario by imitating our Hydro-Electric system.

RELICS FROM FLINT RIDGE

Collection of Arrowpoints and Spearheads Donated by Ohio Man to Gonzaga University.

More than 70 arrowpoints and spearheads, gathered at Flint Ridge, O., have been donated to Gonzaga university museum of Spokane by Water A. Mikesell of Newark, O., says the Spokane Chronicle. They come from the most famous flint quarries worked by prehistoric men in the United States.

It was at Flint Ridge that the warriors of the stone age bought their ammunition for the hunt and for warfare.

"The great quantities of flint implements dug up there even in our own days permit us to form an estimate of the extensive workshops that must have been in operation there during the stone age, in order to supply the actual demand from near and far and to store away such a vast surplus," said A. M. Jung, curator of the museum at Gonzaga.

The specimens in the Gonzaga collection show well the various colors which made Flint Ridge implements so much sought after in prehistoric times. The characteristic colors are white, gray, yellow, brown, blue, green and black.

Saw Soldier Cousin in Movies.

At a moving picture performance, says the Boston Post, there was shown "The Battle of Arras" and the retreat of the Germans. One view showed some English soldiers marching through a street in France. In the film the soldiers stopped in front of the camera a few seconds, when suddenly an American soldier jumped to his feet and yelled at the top of his voice, "Give 'em thunder, Johnnie, old top! Give 'em thunder!" The audience almost went wild in its applause; but the soldier, realizing what he had done, blushed and started for an exit, when a young woman usher told him not to mind, but stay and see the show. He later explained that the man in the picture was Johnnie Clark, his cousin.

She Wished Good Service.

Telephone girls have many questions put to them daily, according to a young woman who is employed at the Central Union exchange in this city, notes the Indianapolis News.

But the funniest request made by any of our subscribers in all my experience," she continued, "came from an old woman just the other day.

"'Is this the Bell Telephone company?' she asked.

"'Yes, ma'am,' I replied.

"'Well, I want to speak to Mr. Bell at once. There's something the matter with my telephone, an' I want him to come down here an' fix it.'"

Effect of Learning.

President George Kistner of Campion college said the other day:

"Learning, profound learning, is the light of the world, but we continually get new proof of the harm a little learning does.

"A lady employed a schoolgirl of twelve to scrub her front steps. The schoolgirl worked well, but suddenly she stopped coming. The lady met her on the street and said:

"'What's the matter, Minnie? Why have you stopped working for me?'

"The urchin tossed her head.

"'I'm takin' Latin now,' she sniffed, 'and I don't scrub steps no more.'"

Wrist Watch Again.

Old Convert—I can't understand why the wrist watch is such an object of levity. I'm sure it is a great convenience.

New Convert—Yes. With the old kind, in order to find out the time I had to unbutton my coat and fish around in my waistcoat pocket for my watch. Now all I have to do is unbutton my coat, fish around in my waistcoat pocket, discover that my watch isn't there, and then pull up my sleeve and look at my wrist watch.

BARCELONA AN ACTIVE CITY

Most Progressive of All Spanish Municipalities and Center of the Revolutionary Movement.

The revolutionary movement in Spain centers in the city of Barcelona. The goal of the revolutionists is a republic, and republics stand for progress. Of all Spanish cities Barcelona is the most progressive, writes Niksha. For ten years the conservatives have been looking askance at this great modern shipping and manufacturing center, so different from their sleepy inland strongholds, and from the peasant villages of the quiet hills, with political ideas of the last century.

Barcelona is a great world city. It is outdistancing Marseilles as the Commercial queen of the Mediterranean. The Spaniard has often been charged with a lack of business and enterprise. Barcelona is his answer. Here his factories rival those of Lancashire, his shipping that of Liverpool. The great industrial suburbs, each a city in itself, are reminiscent of the outlying cities that cluster about Manchester in the industrial north of England.

Yet Barcelona remains characteristically Spanish. The city has taken the ugliness, the bitter competitive spirit of modern industry, and, more nearly than any other industrial center, has blended them with beauty and Latin courtesy and good nature. Barcelona is Spain awakened, but not Spain transformed.

It is a sunny town, with a clear, bracing air and a blue sky that the smoke of a thousand chimneys never hides. It has plenty of parks and tree shaded boulevards; even its poorer quarters lack the sordidness of the Anglo-Saxon slum. The flower markets, the promenades, the cafes, are thronged with loungers, not of the leisure classes, but workmen in their leisure time. The Spaniard has learned to work without forgetting how to idle. And withal, the crowds are keen and wideawake, mightily interested in public affairs, and discussing politics with the heat that is a birthright in the Latin races. Barcelona promises to remain at the forefront of progressive Spain.

MUSKRATS ARE FOUND EDIBLE

Little Animals Sold and Eaten in Many Cities as "Marsh Rabbits," According to Correspondents.

Newspaper correspondents advise us, says the Peoria Journal, that last fall ther appeared in the Washington, New York and Boston markets many barrels of plump little animals, all dressed and skinned, which were sold as "marsh rabbits."

It appears that for several weeks the good people bought these animals, cooked them according to the special directions and served them at family and party dinners as "rabbits"—not realizing that this food was really something vastly different from that of the ordinary rabbit.

Then came the announcement that the "marsh rabbit" was nothing less than the muskrat.

All of which goes to show that even now the American people are not averse to being fooled. In fact, they like it. Barnum's statement holds true as it did when he displayed a sand-papered elephant as "the only sacred white elephant in captivity."

We sometimes think that this is becoming a "marsh rabbit age."

Embarrassment.

In all probability there is no state of embarrassment more acute than that which is suffered by the bald man who has to sit through a long sermon based on the text: "Even the hairs of your head are numbered."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Wasting Her Time.

"What do you think of a man who would spend his evening with his arm around the back of a girl's chair?" "Looks like wasting the girl's time. I'd let him spend the evening with the chair."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Ready for Tomorrow.

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could; care, worry, sorrow, even fear and doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. This day for all that is good and fair!—Emerson

Getting Some Place.

"Selfishness don't git you nowhere," said Uncle Eben. "De man dat makes de most of his opportunities is de man dat makes de most opportunities for other folks."

Different Methods.

Many women get a red nose from shedding too many tears over a man who got a red nose from taking too many "smiles."—Farm Life.

Elephant's Gaits.

The elephant can neither trot, canter nor gallop; it's only pace is a walk, capable of being hastened to a fast shuffle.

Almond Supply.

About one-fourth of the world's supply of almonds are grown in Spain.—Christian Science Monitor.

Hydraulic Power.

The use of hydraulic power in Spain for mills and other business places is rapidly increasing.

The Worst Evil.

Bad as any government may be, it cannot be worse than anarchy.

SHELLS CUT THROUGH WIRE

New Projectile Has Scissors Attachment—Another Releases Short Chains When It Explodes.

There seems no limit to what the new shells can do. One of the latest shells has a sort of scissors attachment which, when released by the explosion, will cut through the strongest wire entanglements. Another releases a number of short chains when it explodes. These chains are sure to wreck anything they touch, says Popular Science Monthly.

The scissors shell has an opening in the casing through which the cutting arms project. They are slightly recessed in order to avoid wind resistance. The arms are attached near the nose of the projectile. They are mounted on steel studs in such a manner that they can rock and expand in order to throw the free ends outward at the base of the shell.

The fuse is made in the ordinary way, and behind it is a chamber for the explosive charge. The projectile is fired just as any shell is fired. The explosion releases the cutting arms and they cut through any object with devastating force.

The chain shell is considered similarly, except that the short chains are wound around the gaine and separated by disks which keep them in place until the projectile is emptied. Sometimes the chains are weighed heavily at the ends. When the explosion takes place the chains fly out with fearful force, and in addition to their high-speed forward movement they rotate rapidly. Needless to say, where they hit something there is nothing left.

Cliff and Cave Dwellers.

The cliff dwellers knew nothing of the use of metals. Their knives were made from the bones of the deer, highly polished and very sharp. Their household utensils consisted of pottery jars and casks made of fiber and covered with a substance resembling modern varnish. Although the earliest cliff dwellers were prehistoric, cave livers have existed in almost every age of the world. The ancient Horites derived their name from their practice of living in caverns and subterranean abodes.

Thought Kept Him Alive.

Murphy was making his first trip across the Atlantic, and he felt unspeakably awful. He failed to connect the fact of his being on the briny ocean for the first time with his agony. The doctor came to him as he tossed about in his berth. "Cheer up, man," he said heartily. "I know you're feeling rotten, but you're not going to die." Murphy opened horrified eyes. "Not going to die?" he wailed. "Faith, doctor, I thought I was! That was the only thing that kept me alive."

Wedding Train Puller.

Viola had been to see Aunt Mary's beautiful church wedding and was much interested in the duties of the little train bearer. The next day Viola was seen marching in the yard with an old lace curtain draped from her head, and little Jim was holding it up. When she was asked what they were playing, Viola replied: "Oh, we is just getting married. I'se the bride and he's the train puller."

Great Burma Rice Crop.

Burma is the world's largest producer of rice and, though less than a tenth of the crop is exported, even then her exports constitute more than half the rice which comes into international trade. The Burma rice crop averages twenty-eight million tons a year, and upwards of two and one-half million tons are exported.

GREATEST JUNIOR GAME OF THE YEAR

Fans Are Excited Over the Coming of De La Salle Crack Toronto Juniors To-morrow Night—Biggest Junior Crowd in Local History of the Game Will See Junior O. H. A. Third Round Battle.

The brilliant away-from-home victory of the Peterborough juniors on Tuesday night, followed by the announcement that they would meet the crack De La Salle team in the third round of the Junior O.H.A. series, has aroused the greatest interest of the season among local fans, and they are looking forward with keen anticipation to to-morrow night, when the celebrated Toronto aggregation will meet Capt. Cherrett and his squad at Brock street rink.

The game promises to be the greatest junior fixture in years. De La Salle, with a record of three victories over Bill Marsden's Aura Lee double champions, have already been awarded the championship by the Toronto critics, but that isn't causing the Petes to lose any sleep. The local youngsters are in good shape, and if they show the class they did in Oshawa, "Babe" Dye and company will realize there is more to the O.H.A. race than merely winning the first round.

The Peterborough line-up will be the same as has won the last five games:

Goal—Murray.
Right defence—Girard.
Centre—Cherrett.
Right wing—Park.
Substitute—Williams.

The De La Salle team will ine-up about as follows:

Goal—Koster.
Defence—Spring and Cain.
Centre—Green.
Right wing—Dye.
Left wing—McCurry.

The game will be called at 8.15 o'clock. Good ice is promised for to-morrow night, and everything is ready for the big game of the year.

The reserved seats are on sale at Warne's drug store.

GEORGE ST. CINCH THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE CHURCH LEAGUE

The George street team took a hammer lock on the Junior Church League championship, for the second year in succession, last night, when they handed an 8-2 trimming to the St. Paul's-All Saints' aggregation. The victory for the Methodists practically cinches the title, as they are yet to be defeated, and with only two games yet to play the worse they can get is a tie and that is only possible by losing two games. Although they were without the services of Captain Graham, the George street team had a big margin on their opponents, who were unable to stop the rushes of Dugan, Rutherford and Helson. The latter's shooting was a feature. George street led by 2 to 1 at the end of the first period; scored four goals, and blanked the opposition in the second, and added two more when St. Paul's-All Saints were scoring one in the last.

The winners lined up as follows:

Goal—W. Rutherford.
Defence—Northey, Head.
Rover—J. Graham.
Centre—Rutherford.

The Knox-St. Andrews team scored their first victory of the season in the first game of the night, when they beat Mark street 3 to 2 in over time. It was the first interruption in a long string of defeats for the Knox boys last season and this, and they had a hard battle to get away with the honours. Mark street led by 1 to 0 at the end of the first period, but the ultimate winners overhauled them and the teams had two goals each at the close of the third period. Knox scored in the over time period.

"Jerry" Coughlin refereed both of the games satisfactorily.

Torontos Beat Ottawa Right At The Capital

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—The Toronto hockey team took the lead in the National League last evening, in the drubing administered to the Ottawa sextette at the Laurier Avenue Arena. The score was 6 to 1. Not only was the victory well deserved but the margin of goals should have been greater on the play. With the exception of the first seven minutes, the Senators were hopelessly outclassed. At the opening of the play the locals had the visitors backed into their goal, and it was only the superb work of Harry Holmes in the flags that prevented the homesters from piling up enough goals to win an ordinary match. It was only a flash in the pan, however, and soon the tide turned, and as the play progressed the superiority of the visitors became more and more evident until in the closing minutes the Senators were helpless, leg weary and unable to advance on the puck.

The score at the end of the first period was one to nothing and at the end of the second three to nothing, only goal of the Ottawas was obtained when Nighbor whirled form behind the nets and shoved the puck around the goal posts. On all frontal shots Holmes was unbeatable.

Five thousand people saw the Ottawas go down to a humiliating defeat and thus lose an excellent chance to capture the Eastern championship, and get into the play off against Seattle, Vancouver or Portland.

NO EXCUSES OFFERED.

There are no excuses to be offered for the Ottawas defeat, though some of the players thought that they would have done much better on faster and harder ice. The Torontos played them to a standstill at times. Indeed there was after the first fifteen minutes play no comparison between the two teams. The Torontos skated rings around the Senators, back-checked them to the point of exhaustion, played a dazzling two and three man combination that had the Senators glued to the ice, and showed general all round supremacy; in fact, the Westerners made a brilliant showing, and looked the greatest hockey machine that has appeared in the capital this winter.

BOWLING NEWS

D. J. Dolan Wins Victory Bond.

Last night a large crowd of bowling enthusiasts gathered at the Water street alleys to witness the final game for the $50 Victory Bond. There were twelve contestants, and at the end of the game Dolan and Sommerville were tie, with a 160 score each, just two pins over the blind score being rolled for and which was 158. The two players played off the tie, Dolan winning out by making 155, just three pins short.

The scores were as follows: Dolan, 160-155; Sommerville, 160-87; Owen, 163, Stansfield, 142; Early, 135; Saunders, 130; Gillespie, 127; Hubbard, 126; Boyd, 118; Fanning, 111; Clancy, 102; Clayton, 98.

CURLING

Piling up ten shots in the last three ends in their scheduled game last night, J. H. Metheral nosed a win from Lou Bowes by 16 to 15, eliminated Bowes from the running and strengthened his own position in the group. The game was wide open, Bowes picked off 13 shots in three ends, enough to win an ordinary game, and seemed to have a safe margin on the way home.

SIFTING OUT THE SLACKERS

Hospital Assistant, Threatening to Cook Alive One Patient to Obtain Grease, Reduces Sick Call.

Stories of how to outwit impostors who report sick in order to loaf in hospitals are among the oldest traditions of the medical branches of all aries, says a writer in a medical journal. A fourteenth-century collection of anecdotes shows that the malignerer was known in those days and Cardinal de Bari, who had a hospital at Vercell, found its resources were being exhausted by men of this type. He sent one of his subordinates to investigate. This man, Petrillo by name, who was something of a humorist, dressed himself in the robes of a physician and assembled all the patients for an examination of their wounds. Then he gravely said: "There is clearly but one remedy needed for the cure of ulcers of this character, and that is an ointment made of human grease. This very day I intend, in consequence, to draw by lot one from among you, who will be plunged alive into boiling water and cooked for the salvation of all." Seized by fear, all the patients made haste to report themselves fully recovered from their ulcers, and consequently there was room in the hospital for those who really needed care.

Physicians today, by the use of similar ruses, have discovered many "hospital slackers."

FISHING A MECHANICAL ART

Outfit Consists of Net, Rope and Pulley—All Operator Need Do Is to Turn Crank.

Most operations nowadays can be performed by machinery. Time was when the best sport in angling was obtained by the use of a rope, with patience at one end and a suitable bait at the other. The Wide World Magazine gives a revised edition of this plan. Here it is in all its simplicity:

You hang an immense four-cornered net on a rope which passes over a pulley, turn a handle, and drop the net into the sea. After a time, which may vary according to the mood you are in and the quality of the tobacco you are smoking, you wind up the net and look into it. If it is empty, you let the handle go a few turns, and drop the net into the sea again; if it contains any fish you draw it and bag them. In this way you reduce fishing to a mechanical art. When you haul up this huge net from the briny deep and find by the aid of a telescope that it contains one tiny, solitary fish—as was our case—after many unsuccessful "casts," you rejoice with joy unspeakable and call in your neighbors to the feast.

The King's Beard.

An interesting story is told in connection with the Swedish actor, Ferrasi, who was called upon to take the part of Oscar I in a play under that name at Stockholm, Sweden. The actor was ordered by the director of the opera to make up with a full beard, but during one of the intermissions he hunted up the director and told him that Oscar I never wore such a beard. "What kind of a beard did he have, then?"

To this Ferrasi replied, "Mustache and goatee, like Napoleon III."

"How do you know that?"

The conclusive reply was offered, "From my postage-stamp collection."

The change was made and at the second performance the public noticed with astonishment how King Oscar had altered the cut of his beard. To stamp collectors it is hardly necessary to point out that Mr. Ferrasi secured his information by looking up the issue of Norway, 1856-7.

Height of Clouds.

Thunderstorm clouds are very variable in height—from 500 to 2,000 feet. The clouds in thunderstorms may be very deep—from two to five miles and more—hence the appearance as to distance is very deceptive. Cumulus clouds are intermediate, and generally occupy a position from 2,000 to 5,000 feet above the earth.

Trees in Greenland.

Lofty trees once grew in Greenland and nearly all of the inhospitable northern lands. Trees of the same sorts as are growing today are found as fossil remains in countries where the climate is now so harsh that scarcely any tree will grow even a few inches high.

RAILWAYS ARE TO BLAME.

Did Not Make Adequate Provision for the Winter.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Lack of preparation by the railroads to meet the winter weather was the cause of the great traffic congestion. Warren Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, told the Railroad Wage Commission in asking for a minimum wage of $6 a day and penalties of time and a half for overtime.

"Many roads went into the winter with no provision for taking care of their motive power," he said. "There were no doors on roundhouses and no means of heating. I know one instance where 25 to 30 engines were kept burning all night, using perhaps one ton of coal each an hour, to keep them from freezing."

Long hours worked by railroad men Mr. Stone denounced as a menace to public safety. He said a majority of yards were working on an eight-hour shift until the movement was begun for increased wages, when the work was lengthened to enable the railroads to show larger amounts paid to employes. More than half the engineers of the country receive less than $150 a month, he said.

Employment of women in the place of men also was condemned by Mr. Stone. He said women now were being used as engine wipers, cinder shovellers, lumber pilers, freight truckers and for other dirty and heavy work, although there were plenty of men to fill such positions.

P. F. Richardson, of Chicago, representing the American Federation of Railroad Workers, who are mechanical employes and bridge builders, asked for increased wages amounting to forty per cent., and a basic eight-hour day. He said many men were leaving the roads because they could get $1 or $2 a day more in other trades.

Wage increases approximating 33⅓ per cent., and which Secretary Lane hurriedly estimated would cost the railroads $82,000,000 annually, were asked by J. A. Franklin, speaking for 251,000 members of shop unions. He said the increases also should apply to 260,000 non-union men not included in Secretary's Lane's computation.

WILSON BEST SPOKESMAN.

London, Feb. 14. — President Wilson stands head and shoulders above all others as the spokesman of the allied peoples, in the opinion of the Manchester Guardian, mainly because he is able to keep firmly and constantly in view the reasons why America came into the war. The newspaper instances the various times in which Mr. Wilson has come forward to remedy "our shortcomings, take up dropped stitches, and repair all too palpable lapses of our own and allied diplomacy," and has done it with conspicuous and admirable effect.

"HEATLES MONDAY" IS OFF.

Washington, Feb. 14. — Fuel Administrator Garfield has suspended the Monday closing order, but left the way open to put it again into effect if it appears that that will be necessary.

INDIA'S PART IN THE WAR.

She Has Contributed Over Half a Million Men to Army.

As soon as the war is over India's demand for a large share of self-government will have to be considered. Some such political reform is generally conceded to be long overdue, and the important part she has taken in the war has greatly strengthened her claim.

Most persons do not realize what India's contribution has been. Had she chosen to be sulky or rebellious, as Germany hoped, the difficulty of handling her would have been almost insuperable. Her army at that time consisted of 78,000 British and 158,000 native troops. How confidently Britain relied on her loyalty is shown by the fact that practically the whole of these troops were sent to various fronts as soon as possible. India, for a time, was almost denuded of soldiers, with the exception of some British territorials in training, who were used to guard the border.

Since the struggle began she has contributed at least half a million men, most of whom have been employed in Mesopotamia, Egypt and South Africa. Many thousands have also been in France, where they did excellent service, but here the climatic conditions were found unsuitable for them.

There was much fear lest the alliance between Germany and Turkey might strain the allegiance of Britain's Mahometan subjects, but this idea proved to be entirely without foundation. The Jehad, or holy war, proclaimed by the Sultan, seems to have had about as much effect among Mahometans as the Pope's peace proposals among Christians.

Financially, also, India has done well. She has paid the cost of her own military expeditions and she has donated half a billion dollars to the general expenses of the war. In addition, her ruling chiefs have testified their devotion by munificent gifts. In view of these facts it will be hard to deny her whatever degree of self-government her people may desire.—Vancouver Daily Sun.

MANY MONTHS OF DELAY.

ow Effects of Deceased Soldiers Are Returned to Canada.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Dealing with system by which personal effects deceased Canadian soldiers are re- ned to Canada, a Militia Depart- nt memorandum says that they collected by the unit in which the n served and forwarded as quick- as possible to the authorities in gland, where they are checked and t to Canada as soon as transport available. In Canada they are warded by express to the next-of- , but, in all, five months has ually elapsed. Experience has own that the overseas authorities not take any action towards final- disposing of an estate until some nths after an officer or man is of- ally reported to have died. Suf- ient time must be allowed for the dit of the account and its transfer Canada, where it is checked and tributed. Consequently distribu- n of an estate should not be ex- cted before eight months after ath. Before the official certificate death can be issued by militia adquarters here, it is necessary to ceive from the overseas authorities writing a confirmation of the cas- lty report. This sometimes takes ree months.

WAR FLOUR HERE.

But Bakers Have Not Yet Begun to Use It For Bread.

Bakers report receipts of the new war flour but have not yet begun to manufacture bread from it for the reason that their supplies of the regular flour are not yet exhausted. The new flour is said to be of fine quality, with no perceptible loss in whiteness. The bakers themselves are more than satisfied with it and state that consumers may not notice the change unless informed of it.

Canada Must Raise Big Sum In Present Year

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Feb. 13.—Canada is faced with the necessity of raising a sum of approximately $30,000,000 this year to take care of Municipal and Provincial Debentures and bonds, which fall to be renewed during 1918, but the prospect is regarded without dismay by the financial experts of the Dominion.

Never in the history of the country has Canada been so prosperous as at the present time, and in spite of the demand for money the Bond Market is open and the public are buying freely according to opinions of bond brokers.

The total renewable bonds of the Canadian Municipalities and Provinces in the United States has been estimated at $20,000,000, a part of which will be renewed in the United States, while the amount of industrial bonds held in the same country and falling due this year, is placed at $16,500,000. The figures given are approximations which have been compiled by one of the largest Bond Houses in Toronto, which has access to all of the available information, so that the totals cannot be many hundred thousands wide of the mark.

HONORABLE MENTION FOR GOOD CITIZENS

By Their Sidewalks Ye May Know Them—One Block Recommended.

If the city were to establish decorations with which to recognize special acts of good citizenship, there is one group that deserve recommendation for their work in cleaning the snow from the sidewalk fronting their homes. These citizens live on the east side of Rubidge street between Townsend and Wolfe streets. At least they have merited mention in home despatches. Not only have they removed the snow from the walk but have also dug a trench to drain the water which is already pooling in the hollows. It's an excellent piece of work, altogether too rarely emulated in this model city.

CHARGES AGAINST PACKERS.

Conditions Workers in "The Jungle" at Chicago Have to Endure.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.— Charges that men and women employed by the Chicago packers are overworked, underpaid, cursed by foremen and driven like cattle to increase the output of the plants, were made yesterday by John Kikulski, organizer for the American Federation of Labour, in testifying before Federal Judge Alschuler in the stockyards wage arbitration. The witness described the home conditions of the workers as extremely pitiful in many instances, and said there was much suffering this winter from lack of food, fuel and wearing apparel.

"Fifty per cent. of the stockyards workers do not live; they just exist and do not exist decently," he said.

The witness said there are eighteen different nationalities employed in the stockyards of Chicago. Only ten per cent. of the employes were Americans, he said. About 18,000, or less than half of those employed, belong to labour unions.

A year and a half ago the packers began employing negroes, the witness said. He declared they were brought from the south and that today 8,000 are employed.

The witness gave a description of a working day of a stockyards labourer. He left his home at 5 a.m., worked all day in wet, filthy or at least unpleasant surroundings, and returned to his family at 8 or 9 o'clock at night.

Representatives of the packers said testimony would be introduced to disprove the truth of every charge made by Kikulski.

ITALY MUST STAY IN THE WAR.

Necessity, Premier Says— Aims Not Imperialistic —Security of Boundaries and Fulfilment National Unity Declared.

ROME, Feb. 14.— Enthusiastic applause and cheers met the declaration of Premier Orlando at the opening of Parliament that the war situation was growing better, due to help from the United States replacing Russia.

Premier Orlando pointed out that so far as Italy was concerned the continuation of the war was no longer a matter of choice, but necessity. Also this fact is understood by all patriotic Italians, who are now willing to wage war to the bitter end.

Regarding Italy's aims, they were unimperialistic. "All she wants," he declared, "and no less, and she can wish for no more than the security of her national boundaries by land and sea, and also the fulfilment of her national unity.

War Loan a Success.

"It is materially seen how Italy's citizens view the war question by the fact that the unfinished national loan already has brought in three and a half billion lire, and it will within a fortnight be double any previous loan —all this money despite our defeat last fall. Italians are determined to fight until victory."

The Minister of War, General Alfieri, has returned to Rome from a visit to England. "The impression I received," he said, "may be summarized in the words, 'earnestness' and 'discipline,' which apply to the whole British Empire."

APPEAL TO OTTAWA TO AVERT A STRIKE

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 13.—The onus of the threatened shipyard strike has now been transferred to Ottawa. The case as it now stands was forwarded by wire to the directors of the Imperial Munitions Board by R. J. Buchart, director of wooden ship building on this coast, after a conference with a joint delegation representing the metal trade councils of Victoria and Vancouver.

GREETINGS EXCHANGED

(Canadian Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. — The exchanges of greetings between Earl Reading, the new British Ambassador, and President Wilson, when the former presented his credentials yesterday, were made public to-day by the State Department. On behalf of King George, Earl Reading expressed the highest gratification that the relations between the United States and Great Britain were to be strengthened by participation in a common cause. President Wilson, replying, said: "I believe that the righteous cause we are now prosecuting will serve to bind more closely the people of the United States and the people of Great Britain and the people of all the other nations which desire the triumph of justice and liberty, and the establishment of a peace which shall last."

$2.75 BUSHEL FOR WHEAT.

Republican Senate Favours Increasing Guarantee Price.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—A bill to fix the price of wheat for the 1918 crop at not less than $2.75 a bushel instead of $2, as now provided, was introduced yesterday by Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, and referred to the Agricultural Committee. The Senator said the price of materials and labour had become so high that something must be done to increase the profits of the farmers and induce them to increase production.

Senator Gore, Democrat, of Oklahoma, introduced an amendment increasing the Government guaranteed price to $2.50 a bushel.

Creation of a Federal Grain Standardization Board, with one representative from each State that produces more than 100,000,000 bushels of grain and modification of present grain standards was urged on President Wilson and Secretary of Agriculture Houston by Representative Anderson, of Minnesota, and a delegation from Minnesota and North and South Dakota.

SILVER THIMBLE AND TRINKET FUND.

Prior to 1916, Y.M.C.A. sold tea, coffee, cocoa, etc., in their canteen, but in the summer of 1916, they began to give away whatever supplies they had right up in the firing line, and since then tens of thousands of dollars' worth of material of this kind has been dispensed to the soldiers at no cost to them. The Y.M.C.A. estimate that their bill for free drinkables for 1918 will be $50,000. W.C.T.U. are going to raise $25,000 by the Thimble and Trinket Fund. Why should we keep these things when they will bring health and comfort to the soldier boy.

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday the W.C.T.U. will help on this good cause with your help.

Take advantage of the Silver Thimble and Trinket Fund to give free hot drinks, tea, coffee, cocoa and soups, to our brave boys at the front.

NOT TO USE WHEAT TO FEED CATTLE

War Measure to Conserve Food Adopted in Stock Yards.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—The question of conserving of feed at the stockyards was considered at a conference of the representatives of the Union Stock Yards, live stock exchanges and provincial Departments of Agriculture. After full discussion, it was resolved that:

"On suggestion of the Food Controller, and as a war measure only, the use of wheat be forbidden as a feed in all stock yards. That use of grain or meal of any kind be forbidden for feed for cattle and sheep for feeding purposes, or when cattle are not intended for immediate slaughter. That an appeal be made to live stock exchanges and drovers regarding conservation of food in yards. That the matter of feeding whole grain or ground chop be left to the decision of each market."

A harmless, yet very effective, treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growths: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package.

Announcing the Arrival of Many Spring Suits

IT MAY SEEM RIDICULOUS to mention Spring Styles, nevertheless there is a marked inclination to hasten Spring Shopping. The new garments have come to us in considerable numbers—principally Suits. It is refreshing to view these new models, with the characteristic novelty that comes only with a new Season. We will mention briefly and let them tell their own story if you are sufficiently interested to grant them a personal inspection.

The new Suits and Coats are widely different in design——many are strictly tailored or semi-tailored with much braid binding or braid trimming; others are smartly flared from the hips, and are made irresistible with long collars, vest effects, clusters of pleats, tucks, &c. The collars are such that make them doubly pleasing—such tones as clay, beaver, harvest green, munition grey, taupe and the ever popular navy blue. The materials are Trictotines, Gabardines, Velours, Delhi and Serge in various twills.

Sending Much Needed Food

Millions of Pounds of Bacon and Frozen Meat Rendered Available By U. S. Conservation Campaign.

London, Feb. 14. — Sir William Goode, who since the entry of the United States into the war, has occupied the important post of liaison officer between the British Food Ministry and the United States Food Administration, discussed the present food situation in an address yesterday to the London Rotary Club.

"Few people," he said, "have yet grasped the fundamental fact that Great Britain still relies on the United States and Canada for 65 per cent. of her essential foodstuffs. Unless we can get this food, or nearly all of it, we will all peter out. As to how we get it, the popular idea seems to be that the United States is an up-to-date combination of miracle loaves and fishes and the widow's cruse.

"The cynic will tell you that it is ridiculous to imagine that the American people living in the midst of plenty, will make sacrifices for the sake of their allies thousands of miles away. But early last month we received from Mr. Hoover a cablegram saying he found that, as a result of the American conservation campaign, he had 150,000,000 pounds of bacon, and 25,000,000 pounds of frozen meat, more than the British representatives in the United States had estimated as likely to be available. His offer was so unexpected that we had to hustle to get the finace and shipping for this windfall. Later on it turned out that the amount of frozen meat available was thousands of tons above the Hoover estimate.

"Except for the hold-up of shipping in American ports, due to congestion on the railways, and blizzards, our bacon and meat shortage would long since have been eased by these shipments, which represent only a small percentage of the total sacrifices of the American people.

"It is lucky for us that a man like Mr. Hoover is at the helm of the allied food supply and that behind him is a people willing to deny themselves so we may live to fight."

Why Coal Was Of Inferior Quality

New York, Feb. 14. — Many complaints have been made by householders in New York and vicinity of the poor quality of the coal purchased from dealers this winter. Some persons have claimed that there was fully 15 per cent. of slate in all the coal that had been delivered to them, others that the coal would not fuse and produce heat. In fact, cold houses have been the rule and not the exception throughout the winter season.

These conditions are now amply confirmed by a despatch from Wilkesbarre, Pa., which says:

Investigation of the quality of coal produced and shipped by anthracite opertors, big and little, has brought to light such glaring perpetration of fraud on consumers of all sections, that the Federal fuel administration, through A. C. Campbell and Tudor Williams, administrators in Lucerne and Lackawanna counties, to-day took summary action to prevent further abuse from being heaped on a long suffering public.

A Federal order was issued by Mr. Campbell in behalf of the fuel administration that puts the bars up against the further sale of inferior and impure quality of coal. It becomes effective at once by making the inspection standard in effect at the beginning of 1914, the basis on which coal is to be inspected in the future before it is shipped to market or sold.

The coal must be passed through a breaker or washery so as to properly size and remove the rocks, slate, dirt and ashes. The 1914 standard allowed not over 10 per cent. of rock and slate in pea coal, and about three per cent. in chestnut and the bigger sizes.

Campbell announced that investigators had been at work for the last four weeks and that they had submitted reports in detail.

The claim of the anthracite operators to increase production is based, according to the facts gathered by investigators to the fact that culm piles and other refuse dumps, were sold to the public as coal. While the shipments were increased, there has been no great increase in the production of real coal.

It was discovered that the policy of a large number of operators has been to sell "everything black" as coal. There has been no attempt at screening and separation of coal from refuse, in a large number of cases. Culm banks were shovelled away into cars and this high mixture of refuse commanded the same prices as coal. Silt and extremely small pieces of coal were loaded into the cars and in many instances sold as pea coal.

NEGRO BURNED AT STAKE.

Killed Two White Men — Tortured Until He Confessed.

ESTIL SPRINGS, Tenn., Feb. 14. —Jim McIlherron, a negro, who shot and instantly killed two white men here last Friday, was burned at the stake here after a confession had been forced from him by application of red hot irons. A mob, estimated at upwards of 1,000 persons, met a train on which the negro was being conveyed to jail. A sister of one of the men McIlherron shot addressed the crowd, denouncing her brother's slayer. The prisoner then was taken out of town, chained to a tree, tortured until he confessed, implicating another negro, and then was burned.

Publications of International Bible Students Are Refused Permission to Circulate.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—A German pacifist propaganda in Canada engineered from Brooklyn has been nipped in the bud by Col. Ernest Chambers, chief press censor for Canada.

Some years ago, under the aegis of the late Pastor Russell, the religious tracts of the International Bible Students' Association obtained through free distribution a large vogue in Canada. Recently this publishing association was apparently acquired by pacifist or pro-German interests.

This camouflaged German pacifist and anti-war propaganda in Canada has now been stopped by the censor's ban on all the offending publications.

SELL EGGS BY WEIGHT.

Dozen of Them Should Weigh Pound and a Half.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—At a time when eggs are dwindling in size as the cost of living goes up, the Government is likely to institute a reform of the Sales and Inspection Act, providing for the sale of hen fruit by the pound. It is proposed to stipulate that a dozen of them must weigh a pound and a half, and for any deficiency in such weight the dealer would have to throw in a few extra.

A regulation also in prospect provides for 128 cubic feet being the standard cord of wood.

Social and Personal

The many friends of Miss Marion Gorman, the talented and popular young pianiste, will regret to hear that she is leaving the city to accept a position in Toronto.

Miss Gorman has been prominent in musical circles in the city. She has cheerfully given her services to the many demands to play at patriotic concerts and dances.

Miss Gorman has been musical directress of the dramatic section of St. Peter's T.A.S. for the past three or four years. She organized and directed the T.A.S. orchestra and the T.A.S. mistrels, which has scored so many successes. She was also musical directoress for the annual 17th of March Day and her services will be missed on that occasion.

Peterborough's loss will be Toronto's gain. Miss Gorman has accepted the position of pianiste in Woolworth's main store, Yonge street, Toronto. Her many friends will join in wishing her every success in her position.

Pte. Robert Howden, of the 2nd Depot Battalion, 1st C.O.R., which has quarters at Exhibition Camp, Toronto, returned last night after a few days' furlough, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Howden, 201 Romaine Street.

Messrs. Harry B. Housser, of the firm of H. B. Housser and Company, and T. Wallace Wood, formerly of Peterborough, recently associated with the Bond Department of Aemilius Jarvis and Company, have formed a partnership under the firm name of Housser, Wood and Co., with offices in the Union Bank Building, Toronto.

Mrs. Chas. F. Parker, of Winnipeg, is the guest of Mrs. A. S. Zavitz, Water Street.

Mr. Delmar Brown has been called from Toronto to his home, 277 John street, by the sudden death of his mother, Mrs. T. K. Brown.

Miss Leah Rogers left yesterday for a few weeks' visit in Toronto.

The Misses Boyd, Bobcaygeon, are the guests of Mrs. Alfred Belcher. Their brother, Mr. Boyd, underwent an operation recently in Nicholls Hospital.

Mrs. T. A. S. Hay, McDonnel street, returned last night from several weeks' visit with Dr. and Mrs. Crawford, Marmora.

Mr. Frank Russell left the city this morning on a visit to the State of New York, where he will be the guest of his friends, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Calkins, and Mrs. and Mrs. Wm. Neringer.

Mr. Webber F. Turner has purchased the late James Stratton homestead on Gilmour street, one of the choicest properties in the city.

Miss Phyllis Neilson Terry and Co., who will play to-night in Maggie, at the Grand, are registered at the Empress.

NO CONCESSION LIKELY.

Government Will Hardly Allow Racing With Betting This Year.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Some representations have been made here in favour of easing up on the prohibitory order last year concerning the operation of race tracks with betting. For the purpose of keeping "the ponies" in trim, and sustaining the breeding industry, a week's racing has been informally suggested.

It is learned here that the matter has not taken any definite form and, considering the economies urged for war time, it is doubted if any relaxation is permitted.

THE WANTS WILL HELP

What do you want most? Would you be glad of the chance to rent a room or two to congenial people? Would you like to secure a more profitable position where the chances for advancement are more certain? Would you like to dispose of household property or realty at a fair price? Would you like to locate a business partner?

These are but a few of the score or more questions that may be asked and answered through the Want Columns of the Examiner.

Those who wish to rent rooms are put in touch with those who have rooms to rent. Business partners are located, realty is bought and sold, employes and employers are brought together, buyers and sellers meet each day as a result of the little Want Ads that have come to play such an important part in modern business.

Both Armies Prepare For Next Offensive

Each Have a Fairly Accurate Idea of the Other's Strength —Raids Are Being Carried Out on Both Sides—German Strength Increases.

A GIGANTIC STRUGGLE

FRENCH FRONT, Feb. 15.—Like two boxers seated in opposite corners, taking deep breaths while awaiting the next round, the German and Franco-British armies on the western front are preparing for the reopening of the gigantic struggle. Each army has probably a fairly accurate idea of the other's strength.

The French and British know they have facing them 155 German divisions. Since this despatch was written there has been a considerable increase in the German strength. A cable last night said the Germans now had on the western front 175 divisions, or about 2,100,000 men. To give the total forces on the allies' side might possibly afford some indication to the enemy.

Ever since the battles of Malmaison and Cambrai minor encounters have taken place almost constantly, each side trying to find out the weak spots of the other or to discover the intentions of the opposing army. In Lorraine, in Alsace, before Verdun, in Champagne and around St. Quentin the Germans have attempted raids very frequently. In all cases they have been unsuccessful. On the other hand, the French have generally been able to carry out their entire plan of reconnaissance and have returned to their lines only after destroying the enemy's works and usually bringing back prisoners.

Jesus Teaching by Parables — Four Kinds of Ground. Mark 4:1-20.

Golden Text: Take heed, therefore, how ye hear. Luke 8:18.

1. Verse 1. What were the special charms which Jesus had for the people, that he attracted such great crowds?

2. Why is a boat for a pulpit from which to preach the gospel, just as sacred as a church or a cathedral?

3. Verse 2. Why did Jesus preach and teach in parables, and what are the advantages or the disadvantages of that method?

4. Verse 3. In how many respects does the preaching of the gospel resemble the sowing of seed?

5. Verse 3. How would you regard a farmer or a gardener, who deliberately sowed seed on the highway?

6. What were the characteristics of much of the ground in Palestine that made the four kinds of soil referred to in this parable?

7. Should a Christian deliberately sow the seed of the gospel in those hearts that are not prepared to receive it?

8. Verse, 5, 6. What class of people are those that resemble the stony ground?

9. Verses 5, 6. When shallow minded people who are also emotional hear the gospel and are moved by it are they, or are they not, likely to develop into strong Christians as those under like influences who are not so easily moved, and think more deeply? Why?

10. Verse 7. What effect has the preaching of the gospel upon those who will not give up their sins?

11. If a person is ever so much influenced by the gospel but still holds on to his sins, how much Christian fruit is he likely to bear?

12. Verse 8. How may all those who are appealed to by the gospel become "good ground" hearers, in this parable?

14. Verse 9. Is it a fault or a misfortune, and why, to have dull or no spiritual hearing?

15. Verses 10-13. Why did Jesus speak in parables that he knew some would not understand or would misunderstand? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

16. What is the only way by which we may understand the teaching of Jesus?

17. Verse 14. What is "the word" which all Christians must sow?

18. Verse 15. What class of persons are "wayside" hearers?

19. Verses 16, 17. Do those "stony ground" hearers who receive the word with gladness" and afterwards fall away, actually get converted? Give your reasons.

20. Verse 20. What reward will those who are "good ground" hearers get.

Strong, Active Mkt. Cattle Prices Firm

Light Run Offering—Lambs and Calves Easier—Hogs Firm

Union Stock Yards.—Receipts for yesterday, 59 cars, with 467 cattle, 27 calves, 2,200 hogs, and 189 sheep and lambs.

Cattle are coming through, but slowly, to-day's offerings not being as large as was expected. Cars keep coming along, but are late on arrival. Cattle are not "full," and consequently prices seem a bit better, but the market on the whole is not higher, except for anything extra choice.

Sheep, lambs, and calves are a little easier.

Hogs steady to firm at $18.75 fed and watered.

A NECESSITY IN THE HOUSE.

Most of the common ills of life arise from a torpid, sluggish condition of the Liver, Kidneys or Bowels, and because they act on each of these organs in a direct and specific way Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills overcome serious and painful diseases over which ordinary medicines have no control.

The Simple Breakfast.

Over, under and through all eating, the simple breakfast still stands supreme, declares A. J. R., in the Minneapolis Journal. A glass of water, a cereal or wheat biscuit with cream in abundance and a peach from Colorado sliced in, two slices of bacon not so crisp that they break, two slices of home-made bread comfortably toasted, a cup of coffee poured upon the cream and sugar and stopped at exactly the right color, two of mother's doughnuts and, as you leave the table with a sigh of relief, if it be possible to get the hooks on one of baby's bits of chocolate candy for a topper, no great harm is done. With that breakfast, one may leave the house feeling that he is fortified until the noon hour rolls around again.

Why Look After Daddy?

Mary was going downtown with her father, and mother, after dressing her, gave a few instructions on how to behave. She ended with, "And, Mary dear, always hold daddy's hand when you are crossing the road." Mary looked up innocently. "Why, mamma," she said, "can't he take care of himself?"

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"I did not," returned McCarty. "Not being mentally equipped to grasp the grand scientific stunts of him, I've permission to blunder along in my own way, and go as far as I like so long as I don't bother him with anything I can find out, and interrupt the marvellous workings of his brain."

Dennis choked over his coffee.

"By God, you put it over on him! On Terhune!" he gurgled. "A free hand and only himself to blame if you leave him at the post! Mac, you're back in the running and going strong!"

A half hour later they presented themselves at the Hotel Lavenham, and Mrs. Doremus received them with an air of languid boredom, which did not conceal the alert watchfulness in her eyes. She was clearly on her guard and more self confident than at any previous interview.

The maid hovered about in an elaborate pretense of occupation but McCarty waited pointedly until she withdrew, and then producing the little jeweler's case, he said:

"I've called to return this to you, Mrs. Doremus."

She gave a little scream of delight.

"My diamond pin! It was stolen from my apartment over two months ago.Oh, how glad I am!"

"It was stolen then? You didn't lose it?"

"No, indeed! It disappeared in the most unaccountable way. I advertised for it, offering a reward, but it was never returned. It couldn't have been lost, for Mary and I searched and searched! Did you find out who stole it?"

The curtains of the doorway swung violently apart and Mary reappeared—her face suffused.

"You have forgotten, Mrs. Doremus!" she cried, and there was no mistaking the open threat in her manner. "You gave me that pin after we found it under your dresser, for nursing you through your illness. It was never stolen!"

For an instant the eyes of the two women met and battled, then Mrs. Doremus bowed her head.

"Yes, I—I—remember now. I did give this pin to Mary, but my mind wanders since this horrible experience we have been through. I was startled and forgot."

"Denny, take care of the door!" McCarty smiled grimly. "There's nothing now that you need forget, Mrs. Doremus, nothing the police do not know. This girl here will have no chance to blackmail either you or Mr. Quimby any more, and we'll send her up on the theft of this pin alone."

A snarl of rage broke from the girl, but it was drowned in Mrs. Doremus's choking cry.

"Blackmail! What do you mean? What have you found out?"

"That Mr. Quimby was your guest at dinner a week ago Monday night; that he was a frequent caller on you, and you'd made up your mind to marry him. There is no use denying it, ma'am. He was in your apartment at the time that his stepdaughter was killed, and he was still there, hiding behind the glass closet in the dining room, when Inspector Druet and I questioned you later. You knew of the report he started, that his stepdaughter was crazy——"

"Oh, stop, stop! I can't bear it! What shall I do? Does Mr. Quimby know that you have discovered? Can't you keep it quiet? Oh, I implore you! Mr. Quimby will pay, anything, anything! not to have this disclosed!"

"We represent the law, ma'am. We are not playing Mary's little game. I suppose you don't know that she has been planning for a long time to blackmail you, before Miss Rowntree ever came to her death. In this little book, which we found in your girl's trunk, are records of talk between you and Mr. Quimby that she had listened to and copied down, and meant to make you pay for later on when you had married him, perhaps. From the evidence of this he was trying to back out and you held his letters over his head, a thing which a man in his position would pay well to keep from the newspapers, as Mary well knew."

"I cannot believe it! This is infamous! She could not have done such a thing——"

"Here," proceeded McCarty, ignoring the interruption, "is a little memorandum of what Mary got out of the two of you on account of what happened at the Glamorgan that night. The first amount is ten dollars——"

"Yes!" Mrs. Doremus was staring at him, wild-eyed. "I gave it to her when the disturbance occurred, and Mr. Quimby added twenty-five to keep her from letting anyone know that he was there. You see, he didn't want to get mixed up in anything."

"I believe you!" McCarty ejaculated. "Then there's an item of a hundred and another of fifty——"

"Mr. Quimby sent the hundred to me to give her when we found out the next day that the girl who was killed was his stepdaughter, and she got the fifty from me——"

"And some dresses and things, too."

Mrs. Doremus nodded and swallowed convulsively.

"Mr. Quimby was to let her know when to come to see him and get his instructions—he didn't dare send any more letters——"

"No. He signalled to her by dropping his hat at the funeral, and she saw it from the crowd," McCarty went on. "She called that night and got the instructions and five hundred dollars beside, to keep her mouth shut——"

Mary who had been standing at bay like a figure of stone, suddenly sprang to life.

"It's a lie!" she screamed. "A lie! You're letting them drag everything out of you like the fool that you are! I never blackmailed you or him either; you gave that money to me of your own free will, and you gave me the brooch, too! If you round on me, I will fix both of you. I haven't told what I know and they'll not find it out unless I do, but you get me out of this or it'll be the worse for both of you!"

Mrs. Doremus clenched her hands with an unexpected flare of spirit.

"There's nothing to conceal now! I have done all that I could, but as long as they know, I'm glad to be free from you. You're a blackmailer and a thief!"

Mary uttered a furious ejaculation, and, turning, disappeared. Dennis started to follow her, but halted at a sign from McCarty.

"Terhune's men are below," he observed. "She'll be trailed, wherever she goes."

"Oh, let her go!" moaned Mrs. Doremus, sinking upon the couch. "I wouldn't, prosecute her if she had stolen a hundred jewels! All this blackmailing business would come out and—and what you tell me she overheard—and the scandal, would be ruinous! You will be merciful and keep the public from knowing that Mr. Quimby was in the house when that terrible thing happened? He has great influence, he will not forget——"

"The public?" repeated McCarty. "Isn't it the authorities that he should be worrying about? If the man was present when his stepdaughter was killed——"

"But he wasn't; he was with me! It all happened just as I told you, that I swear! We saw the—the body fall past my window, but we had no idea who it was, even later. Mr. Quimby hid because he didn't want notoriety of any sort, did not want it known that he was calling on me.

"We were both absolutely ignorant of his stepdaughter's presence in the building and don't know to this moment why she went there or how she met her death. It was not until the next morning, when I saw the papers and received Mr. Quimby's note that I learned of her identity, and I thought that I should go mad! Oh, please, please, believe me! I am telling the truth!"

(To be Continued.)

AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

EASED BY SECOND DOSE OF Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all-gone" sinking feeling, or, again you may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die.

In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond question, marvellous.

Mrs. Frank Arsenean, Newcastle, N.B., writes: "I have awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At present my sister is taking them for nervousness, and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Strict Prohibition Law.

Under the act of congress organizing the territory of Alaska, the legislature meets every two years. It did not meet in 1916, but the legislature of 1915 passed a law providing for a popular vote on the liquor question in November, 1916. At that election the people voted by a large majority that from and after January 1, 1918, spirituous liquors should not be manufactured, sold, transported or given away anywhere within the territory. The prohibition law thus to be established by popular vote, notes an exchange, probably will be the most stringent of any.

Mote and Beam.

Gen. George W. Goethals was lunching in New York recently with a man who complained about his brother's extravagance.

"His latest extravagance is horses," said the complainant. "He bought a pair of coach horses last week for $6,000."

"Humph!" said General Goethals. "What did you pay for your touring car?"

"Er—ten thousand dollars."

"Well," said the general, "don't criticize the team in your brother's eye till you've cast the motor out of your own."

Willing to Hear.

"Miss Willing," began the young man, as he wiped the cold perspiration from his brow, "are you fond of stories?"

"If they are new, Mr. Woodby," replied the fair maid, "I simply dote on them."

"But the one I was going to tell you, Miss Willing, is not new," said the young man. "It is, I might say, Miss Willing—or, Clara—the old, old story, but—"

"Oh, never mind, George," she interrupted. "Even if it is a chestnut, I'm sure I never heard it. Go on, please!"—Tit-Bits.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GREY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost, you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

One Inning, Six Hits, No Runs.

Can six hits be made in a half inning without the side making the hits scoring a run?

This question was put to the Chicago News, whose expert says "Yes" and explains:

The first man up triples and is thrown out at the plate. The second man triples and is also nailed at the home pan. The third, fourth and fifth batsmen single, filling the sacks. The sixth man drives the ball between second and third, and the leather hits the runner coming from second. The man hit is out, retiring the side, and the man who hit him gets a base rap. This makes six consecutive safe raps without one run being scored.

We Label Everything as Pure.

The word pure is a curious example of the striving of people after perfection. We have pure olive oil, pure candy and pure reading matter. Everything that we know is likely to be adulterated we take pains to label "pure." We never call pure the things we know to be pure, but only those things about which there is an element of doubt. Only in one particular do we vary from this rule. If some kind friend tells us the truth about ourselves we are very likely to refer to that as pure nonsense.—Woman's Home Companion.

Long Distance Lecturing.

A pretentious person said to the burgess of a country village:

"How would a lecture by me on Mount Vesuvius suit the inhabitants of your village?"

"Very well, sir; very well indeed," answered the burgess. "A lecture by you on Mount Vesuvius would suit them a great deal better than a lecture by you in this village, sir."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Save Some Money.

Every one should try to live within his income and also to put away a little of his salary for use on a stormy day. Don't watch the other fellow and learn how much he is spending; watch yourself and ascertain where you can benefit. It is time enough to increase your living expenses when your salary is advanced, when it is also time to add to your bank account.

HANDY WITH THEIR FEET.

Many Animals Use Them Cleverly In Taking Their Food.

Kangaroos use their hands very readily to hold food in and to put it into their mouths. As their fore legs are so short that they have to browse in a stooping position, they seem pleased when able to secure a large bunch of cabbage or other vegetable provender and to hold it in their hands to eat. Sometimes the young kangaroo, looking out of its mother's pouch, catches one or two of the leaves which the old one drops, and the pair may be seen each nibbling at the salad held in their hands, one, so to speak, "one floor" above the other.

The slow, deliberate clasping and unclasping of a chameleon's feet look like the movements which the hands of a sleepwalker might make were he trying to creep downstairs. The chameleon's are almost deformed hands, yet they have a superficial resemblance to the feet of parrots, which more than other birds use their feet for many of the purposes of a hand when feeding. To see many of the smaller rodents—ground squirrels, prairie dogs and marmots—hold food, usually in both paws, is to learn a lesson in the dextrous use of hands without thumbs.

Nothing more readily suggests the momentary impression that a pretty little monkey is "a man and a brother" than when he stretches out his neat little palm, fingers and thumb and, with all the movements proper to the civilized mode of greeting, insists on shaking hands.—London Graphic.

Battleships and Paint.

Our battleships literally eat paint. The initial color requirements for a new battleship cost about $25,000, which is the price of about a hundred tons of the kind of paint the navy uses. In addition to this, according to the Popular Science Monthly, it is customary to repaint the different parts of a ship two or three times a year, so the annual upkeep probably exceeds this sum. This brings the annual outlay in paint for the entire fleet to $1,000,000. The most important coating a vessel receives is the paint applied to the submerged parts of the hull to protect it from corrosion or barnacles.

The Lesser Evil.

"If you were compelled to engage in conversation with one or the other for an hour which would you choose, a woman with a mission or one who thinks she is misunderstood?"

"The woman with a mission."

"Why?"

"She would do most of the talking. A woman who thinks she is misunderstood usually wants a little confidential advice."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

COULD NOT SLEEP.

Miss Gertrude Pratt, Wolseley St., Barrie, Ont., writes: "I was very much run down and could not sleep either day or night, and my arms and legs ached so that life was very miserable. After using six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I feel well and strong again."

Consolation.

A young probationer was preaching his trial sermon in a church in one of the inland villages of Scotland. After finishing the "discourse," he leaned over the pulpit and engaged in silent prayer, an act which surprised the congregation, who were unaccustomed to such procedure. Suddenly the young preacher felt someone slapping him gently on the shoulder, and on turning around he beheld the deacon, who said: "Hoot, mon, dinna tak' it sae mickle to heart; ye'll maybe dae better next time."

Cleverness of Chinese.

It is acknowledged that the Chinese are very skillful in making confectionery and possess the reputation of having many secrets. They are able to empty an orange of its pulp entirely, then fill it up with fruit jelly without one being able to find the smallest cut in the rind or even a tiny hole. Indeed, they even empty an egg in this manner and fill it with a sort of almond nougat without one being able to find the slightest break or incision in the shell.

MOTHERS OF CANADA
PREPARE FOR TROUBLE

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, and when a woman passes through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances. Many thousands in this section would testify as do the following:

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Over forty years ago I was restored to health by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It was after medicine and doctors had failed to help me or give relief. I had, through overwork, become all run-down in health. I was weak and finally became a nervous wreck. The 'Prescription' was recommended to me, and at the time I started to take it I had not been able to do anything for over a year. I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' as well. It took several bottles, but I was completely restored to good health and since that time when I have felt the need of these medicines I have taken them and always with perfect satisfaction."—Mrs. Wm. Baker, 33 Page St.

Stratford, Ont.—I was all run-down, weak, nervous. I also suffered with severe pains through my back. I was very miserable when a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one bottle seemed to give renewed strength. It stopped the pain in my back, also helped my nervous condition. It is surely a good tonic for women.—Mrs. Florence Cullum, 100 Milton St.

The Busy Gaza.

In almost every particular the modern Gaza is an Egyptian rather than a Syrian town. It is full of rich vegetation, and its many glistening minarets show up against the dull green of innumerable olive trees. Gaza is still as of old, a place of trade, of camels and caravans, and its bazaars are loud with traffic and filled with merchandise.

Cleaning Tea Kettle.

To make tea kettles wear twice as long gather a handful of pebbles (size of a walnut), wash nicely and put in tea kettle. The rolling around of pebbles keeps the crust that forms loose, and it easily shakes out from time to time, thus saving the wear of the kettle.

Queen of Hearts.

The name, Queen of Hearts, was given in the low countries to Elizabeth, daughter of James I and the unforunate queen of Bohemia. When her fortune was at the lowest ebb she never lost her dignity of spirit, and poverty and distress only rendered her the more an object of admiration.

Must Find Trouble.

There are some people in this world who would not be just sure they were living if they couldn't scrape together a collection of small troubles, either their own or other people's, about which they might feel irritated.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

With the Sages.

A hero is he who taking both reputation and life in his hands, will with perfect urbanity, dare the gibbet and the mob, by the absolute truth of his speech and rectitude of his behavior. —Emerson.

Effect of Odors.

It is stated that strong perfumes have a power to intoxicate and benumb, and workers in the perfume laboratories are occasionally so much affected as to need medical aid.

The Perfect Hostess.

"It's very simple: Comfort and freedom, thoughtfulness without tyranny. A too conscientious hostess can be as great a pest as an overzealous friend." —Delineator.

Combination Is Good.

"We must," says Roger Babson, "have the courage to put merit before wealth." But don't despise the two when combined.—Boston Advertiser.

Bravery.

People glorify all sorts of bravery except the bravery they might show in behalf of their nearest neighbors. —George Eliot.

Fat in Nuts.

The fattest form of food is nuts; almonds contain more than half their weight in easily digestible fat.

One way to be up with the lark is to keep the lark up all night.—Boston Transcript.

HANGED THE PRINCESS.

Fate of a Russian Heiress Who Worked For the Revolution.

What is said to be the true story of the hanging of Princess Olga Engalicheff, daughter of the richest man in Russia, in the prison of Tomsk on Jan. 15, 1916, is told in a New York society magazine. The story is signed by Boris de Tangko, a name which, the magazine asserts, is the nom de plume of a Russian nobleman who fled to New York when the recent Russian imperial government set a price on his head as a revolutionist.

The story depicts the Russian princess bravely facing death as she predicted the very culmination of Russia's troubles.

According to the story of Boris de Tangko, the governor of Kiev was assassinated in the home of the princess. Her father sensed at once her connection with the murder, and shortly after he had given his daughter fair warning that he intended to remain true to the emperor she was arrested and exiled to Siberia.

After five years spent in prison there she escaped and went to Paris, where she became a power in social and political circles. In 1915, following the death at the front of Dimitri Dashkow, a fellow revolutionist, whose acquaintance she had formed while both were exiles in Siberia, she decided to return to Russia. Three months later she was arrested.

Influential friends begged that they be allowed to appeal to the czar for a pardon, but she refused to allow them to speak in her behalf. Two days before her execution she managed to send several letters to her friends in Paris, in all of which she wrote: "When this letter reaches you I shall be dead. But our work will continue. Our nation will soon be free."

HAD SEEN HIS FACE BEFORE

Nurse Who Was Formerly Militant Suffragette Learns Her Soldier Patient Was Former Policeman.

The day approaches when in recognition of the women's generosity in giving their men for the war the men are asked to give women hereabouts the vote, says a British correspondent. Nothing could be more timely, therefore, than to recall the story of what happened in that hospital of our British allies on the coast of Normandy. A kind nurse was bending over the pillow of a wounded man—a big corporal of the Grenadier Guards. She was a dear old lady, the nurse, one who had in her time enjoyed a full share as a militant suffragette. In fact, she had led more than one furious assault on the houses of parliament. Yet here she was lavishing the treasures of her sympathy upon the country's mere fighting men.

"It's odd," she said. "Your face, my good man, isn't a bit strange to me. I can't get rid of the idea that I've seen you many times before."

"I can't deny it, ma'am," sighed the wounded corporal, struggling with a visible embarrassment. "You have seen my face before. But can't we let bygones be bygones? It's true, I'll used to be a policeman. But that was before the war, ma'am."

Liver Complaint, Biliousness

And Sick Headaches Go Hand-in-Hand and Are Cured When the Action of the Liver is Awakened.

Gananoque, Ont., Feb. 15.—"Biliousness" is the one word used by most people to describe their trouble when the liver gets out of order, leaves bile in the blood, upsets the digestive system and brings on sick headaches and irritatable temper, stomach troubles and irregularities of the bowels.

The trouble begins with the liver becoming torpid and sluggish in action, and disappears when the liver is set right. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure biliousness promptly because of their direct action on the liver. They thoroughly remove all the symptoms because of their combined action on kidneys, liver and bowels.

Rev. George Alton, Gananoque, Ont., writes: "I had been suffering from bilious attacks for four years. I was very weak, had headaches, and my stomach was so bad that I could hardly eat anything without being troubled by it. I had tried cures, herbs, pills and salts, and was under the doctors care for some time, but instead of getting better I seemed to get weaker. I was unable to fulfill my appointments on Sabbath and had to secure help. I used to take dizzy spells and could not walk across the floor straight. I had almost given up all hope, and my wife said that if I did not get better we would have to quit the work of the ministry. However, in looking over The British Whig, the well-known Kingston paper, I saw Dr. Chase's advertisements in it, and read how Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills had helped others who were troubled as I was. I resolved to give these pills a trial, and I must say that in a short time I obtained relief. I continued taking them for some time, and now I am able to resume my work again. From the benefit I have obtained from these pills, I would recommend them to all who suffer as I did."

(Endorsed by Rev. C. Cunningham, 124 First avenue, Toronto:—"This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with George Alton of Gananoque, and believe his statement with reference to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to be true and correct.")

Farming in France.

The French government has undertaken to supply the depleted ranks of the farmers and to give assistance to the amateur farmer by means of a correspondence course, which has been eagerly received. The pupil receives instructions as to a course of reading, the management of a small experiment plot, the carrying out of simple experiments, visits to neighboring farms, etc. The Union of Agricultural Syndicates, which has assumed charge of this work for the government, has appointed a number of "conitors" to supervise the work of pupils in their several neighborhoods. The pupils prepare monthly examination papers and render monthly reports on their work.

Dog on Operating Table.

Mack, a bulldog owned by Mrs. Charles Wright, teacher at the Rulo school, says a Walla Walla (Wash.) exchange, got so many porcupine quills in its mouth and throat during a fight with that animal that it had to be chloroformed and hundreds of quills were taken out with pincers. The dog was protecting chickens owned by its mistress. Mack has successfully fought off badgers, snakes and coyotes which have sought to steal the chickens, and when the porcupine appeared it charged it. Even with its mouth filled with quills it continued the attack.

Win Victoria Crosses.

Since the Victoria Cross was first instituted, sixty-odd years ago, as a reward for conspicuous valor in the Crimea, the bestowals have not amounted to a thousand. Five hundred and twenty-two was the number of the recipients before the beginning of the present war, and during the last three years 317 men have won the most coveted of all decorations.

Health and Money.

There is this difference between those two temporal blessings, health and money: Money is the most envied, but least enjoyed; health is the most enjoyed, but least envied, and this superiority of the latter is still more obvious when we reflect that the poorest man would not part with health for money, but the richest man would gladly part with all his money for health.

The Duty of Parents.

What better legacy can parents leave their children than to teach them that success and prosperity are surer if they begin by doing everything well; by being so careful and exact in the performance of every duty, and making themselves so useful that their friends or employers "cannot do without them;" and that when success begins to crown their efforts they will "be happier and no poorer" if they use some proportion of their wealth in aiding those less fortunate? Let parents and employers, both by example and precept, teach their children and their employees to be, industrious, faithful, economical and scrupulously honest, and the daily papers will not send through our community so many records of crime and immorality.—Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

MINISTERS OF GOSPEL PUT TANLAC TO TEST

Well-Known Ministers Come Out Openly and Fearlessly and Tell What They Know to Be the Truth About the Medicine That Has Helped Them.

RARELY will a minister of the Gospel indorse a proprietary medicine. The preacher's high calling, the influence he commands, puts a grave responsibility on his every word. He will not jeopardize his reputation by commending a thing without first assuring himself it is all right. His word carries as much weight in the home, on the street, or in the public prints as in the pulpit.

When ministers of some of the greatest communions in the land endorse Tanlac their words carry conviction. They say what they know to be the truth. They have put Tanlac to the test of personal service and have not found it wanting.

The proprietors of Tanlac have received countless testimonials from people in every walk of life, earnestly commending it. Among them are a number from prominent ministers of various churches. A few of these are printed below.

Rev. W. C. Norton is pastor of the Wesley Memorial church of Jacksonville, Fla. He says:—"I suffered from chronic indigestion for years. I seldom slept well and had severe headaches. Since taking Tanlac I feel as well as ever I did—sleep splendidly and eat anything I want. Tanlac has restored my health and I feel it my duty to recommend it."

Rev. A. H. Sykes, pastor of Watkins Park Presbyterian church, Nashville, Tenn., says:—"Mrs. Sykes suffered from stomach and kidney troubles and a nervous breakdown. Tanlac restored her health —she is gaining strength and flesh rapidly—her full restoration is but a question of time."

Rev. E. G. Butler, pastor of Central Baptist church, Muskogee, Okla., says:—"I had attacks of acute indigestion. Results from taking Tanlac have been most satisfactory—am glad to recommend it as the best medicine I have ever tried."

Rev. F. M. Winburn, Methodist, San Antonio, Tex., says:—"I had no appetite—suffered from weakness and general debility—could not work without quickly tiring. Found Tanlac just what my system needed. I consider Tanlac a good medicine to build up run-down systems."

Rev. R. J. Taylor, pastor St. Pleasant Baptist church, Franklin, Tex., says:—"Grippe left me in very bad shape—had indigestion, nervous headaches—could not sleep well. Tanlac gave me a good appetite, strengthened my nerves, I sleep well as ever—have gained five pounds."

Rev. A. L. Tull, Methodist, Atlanta, Ga., says:—"My granddaughter was a nervous wreck from indigestion. Tanlac gave her an appetite—she can eat anything. She is on the road to recovery."

Rev. Jas. H. New, Baptist, Clarkston, Ga., says:—"My wife had severe cramps, headaches, was very nervous, badly run down, weak and thin. Tanlac caused her troubles to disappear—she never complains now."

Rev. A. J. Vallery, former superintendent Bethany Home, Monroe, La., now of Memphis, Tenn., says:—"Three years ago I had a general breakdown with indigestion—had rheumatic pains in legs. Since taking Tanlac am relieved of indigestion—rheumatic pains have stopped—feel like a new man. I give Tanlac my unqualified endorsement."

Rev. John M. Sims, Baptist, Atlanta., Ga., says:—"I suffered from nervous indigestion and inactive liver—digestion badly impaired. Tanlac corrected these troubles entirely—gained ten pounds taking two bottles."

Rev. W. T. Roby, Pastor West Lonsdale Methodist church, Knoxville, Tenn., testifies from personal experience as to the great benefit he derived from taking Tanlac for disordered stomach.

No greater praise can be given a remedy than the unsolicited testimony of men whose lives are devoted to the betterment of their fellow men. Their integrity cannot be doubted. They serve their calling often at great personal sacrifice. Tanlac has helped them—they say so because they want to do you good.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter.

Cotton in Brazil.

A. L. Moreau Gottschalk, United States consul general at Rio de Janeiro, is enthusiastic over the prospect of a revival of the cotton growing industry of Brazil, according to the San Francisco Argonaut. He calls attention to the fact that the republic is the original home of one of the parent cottons of the world. Cotton thrives in the country when skilfully cultivated, but the industry has thus far been neglected for others more profitable. The consul general advances a strong point when he says that a by-product of the cotton industry—cottonseed oil cake—would be a great help to the cotton planters.

KICKS A $500-JOB AROUND

Actor Finally Discovers Mysterious Cable, Long Ignored, Refused by Others, Belonged to Him.

"Who is Leo Robinson?" asked Robinson of the clerk of a Tenderloin club in one of the large cities, whose membership is for the most part made up of actors. "That cable has been here so long it is getting my goat."

It was one of those cable envelopes which permit the name and address to be read through the thin paper.

"Haven't you opened it yet?" asked the clerk in return. "I forwarded it to J. C. Robinson in San Francisco and he returned it saying it did not belong to him. Next I forwarded it to H. D. Robinson, in New Orleans. He said it did not belong to him. I did not think of asking you to open it because you have seen it almost every day and I got the idea that it did not belong to you. I put it back again thinking that it was for some other Robinson who might be introduced and have the mail privilege."

Robinson carefully opened the flap of the envelope with a pencil because it had been pasted up by the last Robinson. As he read the message his brows knitted, his fingers trembled, he ran his hand through his hair.

"Damphool!" he ejaculated, and glared at the cable dispatch. Whether he meant the remark for himself or for the sender he did not specify.

"That cable is for me," he remarked, the ejaculation having cooled him off somewhat. "That cable offered me a $500 job for a month's work. Here it has been kicking around for three months and I hadn't the slightest idea it was for me. But why should it be addressed to Leo Robinson?"

The clerk took the cable dispatch. "It isn't addressed to Leo," he said. "That is 'leo,' which means the cable message is written in the language of the originating country."

"Give me a postage stamp and I'll write an explanation, but I know it will never be believed," but it was ten minutes before Robinson got his thoughts into shape to put on paper.

Rather Crude Pun.

Persons who laugh at the unspeakable efforts of the ordinary vaudeville wheeze escator missed a bit of delectable comedy in connection with a rather faint subway explosion above Thirty-eighth street, in Broadway, says a Gotham exchange. The usual precautions had been taken and excited workmen were stationed north and south of the anticipated crash when a woman with a baby carriage came along hurrying south. The flagman told her that there was to be an explosion, but she nearly knocked him over as she bumped him with the carriage and hurried by. She had hardly passed when a foreman stuck his head out of one of the street fissures and saw her. "Hey," he called to the workmen who had permitted her to pass. "What's the matter wid you? Didn't I tell you not to allow anyone to pass? What's your name, anyway?" "Me name is Cannon," answered the flag-bearer. "Well, yer fired," bawled the boss, with true wartime decision.

Her Valid Defense.

One has heard a good deal about the Russian woman warriors. Sensational stories about them have appeared from time to time in the European press. Altogether, there is a flavor of romance about the Russian amazons which is lacking entirely in the totally unlooked-for defense put up by an English working woman. A suit had been brought against her for having failed to pay the money due for the hire of her sewing machine. Asked what she had got to say for herself, she replied: "Nothing; I am unable to pay, as I was wounded a short time ago, fighting against the Austrians." It quite disconcerted the court! Her papers were examined by the judge, and found to be in order. Needless to say, the charge against her was withdrawn.—Christian Science Monitor.

Head Hunters Volunteer.

Japanese newspapers strongly urge the United States to send the Igorrotes to France to fight against the Germans side by side the American troops, says the New York Herald. They state that several of the wild tribes in the Philippines already have offered their services to Governor Harrison.

The Far East is especially urgent in this matter. It says:

"Men of all colors and nationalities are fighting side by side in the great war and the latest volunteers are natives of a tropical territory that can supply 100,000 fighting men to the United States if need be. In the Philippines are some of the most warlike tribes in the world, and based on information received directly at Manila they are keen to offer themselves."

High-Class Men.

"I'm looking for work, sir."

"What can you do?"

"I'll be perfectly frank with you, sir. I've had technical training in one of the best-equipped prisons in the country."

"I'm willing to give you a chance, but you mustn't boast in public of the advantages you have enjoyed. There are still a few old-fashioned people in this world who are prejudiced against a prison education." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

Late Suppers.

"You'll have to cut out those late suppers, under the economy regulations."

"On the contrary, when I want an extra heavy meal, I'll have to get up and cook it in the middle of the night when nobody will see me."

Promising Candidate.

Editor—Do you know how to run a newspaper? Applicant—No, sir. Editor—Well, I'll try you. I guess you've had experience.—Puck.

Korean Quick at Figures.

The governor general of Korea presented a watch to a native lad named An Myengwhan, an accountant in the employ of the land investigation bureau at Seoul, in appreciation of his high mathematical talents.

Among his other accomplishments, says the East and West News, he can mentally add a column of 25 items of four figures each in seven seconds. This is much less than half the time required by the most expert accountants in Japan. This boy is only sixteen years old. His father died two years ago and he is now supporting his mother, brother and a sister on 70 sen (37½ cents) a day—an unprecedented high wage for a Corean accountant.

Mr. An was honored by a gift last year from Count Terauchi when governor general of Corea.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day by day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left over waste, toxins and ptomain-like poisons are formed, and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulations of poisons and toxins, and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Salmon and Acids.

Investigators say that salmon find their way into rivers by means of the presence of acids or alkalis, which, of course, varies in different streams. Even when they are a long way out at sea, says the Youth's Companion, they can discover the trace that will lead them to the bay and the stream that they seek. It thus becomes unnecessary to appeal to a "homing instinct" to explain the return of certain salmon to certain rivers or the "running" of herring to certain localities.

Cold, Dry Air Healthful.

Cold, dry air is generally considered healthful and stimulating by medical authorities. Metabolic processes are active, and if the body is properly protected against excessive heat loss, sensations of well-being are dominant. There is little exact physiologic evidence bearing on this condition. Physicians have shown that respiratory infection of rabbits with bacillus bovisepticus (snuffles) is favored by chilling the animals after they have been accustomed to heat.

NINE BOILS Kept Coming On Neck One After the Other

Anyone who has ever suffered from boils, knows how sick and miserable they make you feel.

When you think you are about cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your wretchedness. All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not cure them and stop more coming.

Boils are simply bad blood bursting out, and the bad blood has be made pure before the boils disappear.

Burdock Blood Bitters is the greatest blood purifier known. It cleanses the system and removes every particle of foul material from the blood, then never another boil comes and the cure is permanent.

Mr. Geo. Ayers, 802 Gloucester St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I wish to tell you what I know about your wonderful Burdock Blood Bitters. In the spring I suppose my system needed cleaning out, for I had nine boils come on my neck one after the other. I quickly got a bottle of B.B.B., and before it was half finished I felt a great change, and it certainly put an end to my boils, otherwise I might have had a lot more. I recommend B.B.B. to all I can, for I know it to be a great remedy."

Preserving Flowers.

A method of preserving the natural colors of flowers consists in dusting salicylic acid on the plants as they lie in the press and removing it with a brush when the flowers are quite dry. Red colors in particular are well preserved by this agent. Another method of applying the same preservative is to use a solution of one part of salicylic in fourteen of alcohol by means of blotting-paper or cotton-wool soaked in it and placed above and below the flowers. Powdered boracic acid yields nearly as good results.

Portrait of Henry VII.

An interesting art discovery has just been made at Geneva, Switzerland, by a Luxemburg antiquarian, which, if confirmed, will fill a vacancy in England's historical records. M. Jean Bervard has found a miniature on wood which he identifies as a portrait of Henry VII, the first of the Tudor dynasty. No portrait of this monarch is known here to exist in any museum or private collection.

Mr. Bervard, without giving details as to how or where he discovered this unique work, says that it was painted by Geoffrey Tory de Bourges (1840-1533), and is the only painting known by him, although he was an egraver and drew illustrations for four historical works.

Utilization of Waste.

The utilization of waste in the battle-wrecked parts of France has been reduced to a science. All the pieces of shell, cases, unexploded bombs, haversacks, helmets, canteens, and even old rags are picked up and sent down to the base to be utilized in some form or another. At one spot 50,000 old shoes were being repaired when a war correspondent visited it. The upper part of an old shoe is often converted into shoe laces by an ingenious machine invented by an Irish shoemaker. One thousand five hundred French girls are employed at one salvage shop converting overcoats picked up on the fields.

Germany Is To Renew Military Activity Against Northern Russia

Conference at Imperial Headquarters Decides Against "No War But No Peace Plan" of Trotsky and German Invasion of Russia Will Continue Until Petrograd is Occupied--Enemy's Artillery Active in the Orient Sector--Belgians Repulse An Attack.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Germany has resolved to renew military activities against northern Russia. This decision is said to have been reached at a conference at the Imperial Headquarters, special despatches from Holland say.

The conference was attended by Emperor William, Chancellor Von Hertling, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, Gen. Von Ludendorf, Foreign Secretary Von Kuehlmann and others.

"The no war, but no peace plan" of Leon Trotsky, the Bolsheviki Foreign Minister, was rejected at the conference.

The invasion of Great Russia, it is added, will continue, at any rate, until Petrograd is occupied by German troops.

A despatch to the Daily News from Roterdam says that the Germans take the view that Trotzky's declaration, though it did not end the war, automatically ended the "Armistice".

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(Official)—"The enemy's artillery showed considerable activity early in the night against our front line in the Queant Sector. Apart from patrol encounters in the neighbourhood of Lens, in which we secured prisoners, there is nothing to report on the British front.

"Yesterday morning an attack by a German raiding party on a Belgian Post ,east of Merckem, was successfully repulsed.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 15.—The Turkish Parliament has approved a bill providing for the construction of a bridge and tunel across the Bosphorous connecting Europe and Asia. It will begin in April.

The Bosphorus is 1,800 feet across.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Feb. 15.—French troops last night penetrated the German lines north east of Courcy on the Aisne front and returned with a number of prisoners, the French War Office announced to-day. A lively artillery duel was maintained in the Champagne, notably in the sector of Butte du Mesnil, where American batteries are stationed. The night was marked by violent bombardments on the right bank of the Meuse and in the Woevre Region. The statement adds: In Upper Alsace the French repulsed a German raid in the district south of Zeppeis.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—Ten men of the officers and crew of the British steamship Larrinaga, 8,000 tons, perished in mid-ocean February 6th, when the vessel foundered. A cargo of grain bound for France, went down with the ship. A British war ship rescued twenty-seven men who had taken to the small boats.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 15.—The announcement that Roumania is ready to negotiate a separate peace is expected shortly, according to semi-official reports from Vienna to-day.

WAS TO HAVE OPENED TO-DAY.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—It is recalled by Reuter's Correspondent at the British Headquarters that to-day is the day fixed by the German newspapers last month for the opening of the much advertised great German offensive. This morning's reports to British Headquarters from the battle line, however, showed that all was quiet except for the usual artillery firing in various sectors.

BRITISH OFFENSIVE IN PALESTINE

WHEELS MUST GO ROUND IN THE TANK AND THEIR HEADS.

AMSTERDAM. — Jealous of Berlin's possession of a British tank, Bavaria is demanding that Munich must have a tank like the one now on exhibition in the Prussian capital. To this demand, the Neuste Nachrichten, of Munich, adds:

"We want one in good condition, too, because the people of Munich will not be satisfied unless the can see the wheels go round."

ARREST FOR ARSON IN BOWMANVILLE

Fires in Three Vacant Houses Led to an Investigation

BOWMANVILLE, Feb. 15.— Recent fires in three vacant houses in town recently belonging to William Tordiff, of Enniskillen, led to an investigation by Mr. George F. Lewis, deputy fire marshal of Ontario, in the town hall here, which lasted all day, some 20 witnesses being examined, including William Edgar, chief of the fire brigade, and several firemen. William Tordiff was subjected to a gruelling examination by the deputy marshal, the result being that Tordiff was arrested at the close on a charge of arson and placed in the lockup by Chief Jarvis. He is about 65 years of age, and owns a small farm in Darlington, valuable illage property in Enniskillen, and about a dozen dwelling houses in this town.

Pte. Gordon Wyatt, Well Known East City Boy Figures in Casualty List After Going Through All the Big Battles Canadians Have Fought

WOUNDED IN LEG

After having seen over three years' service in France, during which he was in every battle in which the Canadians were engaged, Pte. Gordon Joseph Wyatt, son of Mr. E. J. Howard Wyatt, went overseas with the first Canadian division, and has been at the front with the 14th Battalion since February, 1915, when the Canadians first reached France. Together they went through the second battle of Ypres, Givenchy, Festubert, Sanctuary Wood, the Somme, Vimy Ridge, Lens and Passchendaele without a scratch.

A third brother, Pte. Harry Wyatt, who enlisted here in June, 1915, is also in France.

PTE. JAMIESON HIT.

Pte. T. W. Jamieson, of Peterborough, at the front with the Canadian cavalry, is officially reported wounded, according to to-day's list from Ottawa.

GRANT IS REFUSED

Veterans' Request for $500 to pay Rent of new Club Rooms Flatly Refused by the City Council Only One Alderman Favours Grant

THE MAYOR'S REMARKS

At the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council held last night, the request of the Peterboro Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, for a grant of $500 to pay the cost of the rent and light of the Veterans' new club rooms, was flatly turned down.

Mayor Duncan led the opposition to the Veterans' request.

"I don't approve of this thing of coming back here every night or so for something," said His Worship. "A lot of these fellows never saw the front, and many of them refuse to work. There are too many chocolate soldiers among them. I am in favor of doing all that we can to help the real war veterans, but I don't think this is the proper time to come here for such a large grant to pay rent for a club room. The men would be better at home at nights instead of sitting around a club room in armchairs. They have fourteen hundred dollars on hand and I don't approve of a grant under the present conditions," added the Mayor.

"I move that we refuse to make a grant," said Ald. Malcolm McIntyre. "We are sitting here getting the best of it, and the boys are over there doing the work. I am in favor of a grant," said Ald. A. McIntyre.

"I will second Ald. Malcolm McIntyre's motion to cut out the grant," said Ald. Jones.

Ald. Worth—"I have had a lot of experience with returned soldiers. I am young, and I would rather not say what I know."

Ald. Jones—"I was talking to a returned soldier last evening. This man has had three years experience at the front and he told me a few things."

"We will have more real war veterans home later on, and I would say we should do all we can to assist them. The present time is not opportune for such a grant," observed the Mayor.

On motion of Ald. Malcolm McIntyre and Ald. Jones, the committee refused the Association's request for a grant of $500.

Ald. A. McIntyre's amendment favoring a grant did not get a seconder.

Returned Soldier Disappears From U. S. Hospital

Lund told the hospital authorities that he had been wounded in 47 different places at Vimy Ridge. He borrowed a suit of civilian clothing and left the hospital, despite the protests of the nurses.

More Than Fifty Bodies Had Been Recovered At Noon

AUSTRIA WILLING TO MAKE CONCESSIONS TO ITALY FOR PEACE

Divergence of Views Between Berlin and Vienna is Practically Over—Austria Desires to Retain Some Degree of Respectability in the Eyes of the World.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner)

(By Wm. Philip Simms—Copyright 1918 by United Press)

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 15.—Cordially hating Germany, but irretrievably tied up with her, war weary Austria would almost give her soul for peace.

An American official, just out of Austria, declared he is convinced, after talking with Austrian officials that Austria is willing to give Italy all Italy demands, save the seaport of Trieste, if it will bring peace.

The masses would give up Trieste, or anything else, if it would end the war.

From numerous and most reliable sources, I understand the divergence of views between Berlin and Vienna is practically official and open.

Austria, above everything, desires to retain some degree of respectability in the eyes of the world, in order to enter friendly relations with other countries immediately after the war.

WOULD DISOWN ATROCITIES.

Austria would welcome an opportunity to disown any part in the Belgian atrocities, the execution of Edith Cavell, or the torpedoing of the Lusitania, to show that Austria is the victim of Prussia, not the accomplice.

I talked with George Archibald of California, the famous jockey, here, awaiting passport formalities before returning to the United States, who is just out of Austria.

Archibald, said Austria, is hard hit, the people dying like flies on account of the poor food. The rich, he said, are getting almost anything they want, but the masses are suffering terribly. Hungary is resisting all efforts of Germany and Austria to extract food products from her.

Deserters fill Budapest. The soldiers are badly equipped.

Houses, railways, cars and everything are run down through lack of materials.

Archibald believes the smashing of Germany and Austria will follow the failure of the drive on the West front, into which they are plunging.

The popular dislike for the Germans will prevent the Austro-Hungarians from continuing in Prussia's train much longer.

The sick, starving, dying population will rebel. Especially as it is understand officialdom, from the Emperor down, less secretly than one might think, have the same disaster for continuing the war.

Traveller Writes To The Fuel Controller Of Conditions Here

The following is a copy of a letter sent to the Fuel Controller by a commercial traveller:

To the Fuel Controller, Ottawa, Canada.

Dear Sir,—The coal situation was brought home to me to-day in this fair city in a way that was indeed touching.

After having called at the General Electric Works, I was on my way to the De Laval factory, when a little lad of about eight years of age caught up with me. He was very friendly in his chat and in answer as to why he was not at school, he said his mother had kept both he and his sister home to hunt up some fuel. He told me his father was at the front and that an older brother worked in a butcher store in Peterborough, and that they had burned up two bedsteads already trying to keep warm.

Further along on my journey, on the same street, opposite the Baptist Church, I saw a man picking coal from two large galvanized tubs standing on the roadside, presumably put there by the caretaker of the church. This poor, honest looking fellow was filling his pockets with the fuel he was taking from these pails. As I passed him he remarked that if he had a sifter and a bag he would be well rewarded for the trouble in sifting those ashes; and to think, he said, that a church would be so unmindful of the distress existing for the very coal that was being so wastefully discarded.

In my travels from place to place I am more convinced than ever, that as a war measure, at least half of the churches might close down during the winter months.

Yours etc.
A Traveller.

OMEMEE TANNERY CHANGES HANDS.

Omemee, Feb. 15. — The improvement that the introduction of hydro power has made in this village is already manifest.

Charles Parsons and Sons, of Toronto, have purchased the Lamb tannery, which will be run on a much larger scale than ever before. Mr. Harry Lamb will be retained as manager. It is rumoured that extensions costing altogether $100,000, will be made. Almost double the number of men will be employed, and the plant will be operated day and night.

THE WEATHER

For the last three days the weather has been quite mild, the temperature rising to 40 degrees in the shade. A change has come over the scene, however. This morning the thermometer was 25 to 40 degrees, but at noon marked 15 degrees, having gone down 25 degrees in a few hours. The rainfall last night figured out .41 of an inch. While the weather throughout the west has turned much colder it is not of the Arctic variety that has prevailed so frequently this winter.—W.P.

Grey Nunnery at Montreal Swept by Fire—It Is Feared That Nearly Seventy-five Children Lost Their Lives in the Disaster.

MANY NARROW ESCAPES

Canadian Press Despatch:

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 15.—Sisters and helpers of the Gray Nunnery, which was attacked by fire last night, are busy this morning collecting their surviving charges from neighbouring buildings. It is thought to-day that from 45 to 75 little ones lost their lives in the holocaust, which is a climax to a long series of destruction of buildings in the province, with a heavy loss of lives. Civic and Provincial governments are taking action to compel more efficient wiring.

The firemen this morning continue to find charred and blackened bodies of tiny victims of last night's fire in the creche of the Gray Nunnery, and to-day at noon there were more than fifty little lifeless forms in a temporary mortuary, which was yesterday the play room of the institution.

THE EARLY REPORT.

MONTREAL, Feb. 14.—The lives of at least thirty-eight little children were blotted out shortly after 8 o'clock to-night by fire in the fifth or top story of the west wing of the Grey Nunnery on Guy and Dorchester street, and it is feared that the loss may run well up to a hundred. Thirty-eight charred bodies were found by the firemen at 10.30, when the fire was under control, and it is known that while firemen and soldiers were engaged in rescuing infants they were forced to leave many to die, as the flames and smoke drove the rescuers from the building. The property loss is not excessive, as the blaze was practically kept to the one floor. The fire started near the tower, supposedly from the electric wiring. The top floor was used as a dormitory for the infants being cared for by the nuns, and the lower part of the west wing was occupied by returned sick or wounded soldiers.

Many Very Young Babies Lost.

The ages of the inmates of the nunnery ranged from two to three days to almost a hundred years. Many of the babies whose lives were destroyed in the fire and smoke were but a few days or a few weeks old. The elderly inmates were housed in another section of the nunnery, and were not immediately affected by the fire.

Soldiers' Heroic Rescues.

Heroic work on the part of the soldiers, whose homes were temporarily in the west wing of the nunnery, doubtless prevented the loss of life being much larger. So rapidly did the flames envelop the upper floors of the west wing, where the children were in their cots for the night, that the firemen and soldiers were quickly driven out, and had time merely to grab as many of the little tots as they could and make a dash for the outside. It was impossible for them to return, but the soldiers were kept out only on the express orders of the Fire Chief.

One returned soldier made five trips to the top story, and with the flames threateningly close, and in the midst of dense smoke, he gathered two babies in his arms each time, and safely returned.

Chief Carried Four at Once.

District Fire Chief Marin, who was one of the first of the firemen on the scene, and who himself carried out four babies at one time, said as many children were saved as possible. He said the firemen had difficulty in preventing the Sisters from dashing into the flames in their frantic attempts to save the tiny creatures, when to enter that section of the nunnery would have meant certain death. Two or three of the nuns fell unconscious from their efforts at rescue in the smoke-filled dormitory behind a curtain of flames, and were carried out by firemen.

Some Old Persons May Die of Shock.

Naturally there was much excitement in the other sections of the big nunnery, which faces on three streets—Guy, Dorchester and St. Matthew—especially where the aged and infirm inmates were, but there was little confusion. Many old people who had been bedridden for years, were carried out in cots, wheel chairs and blankets, and were housed in nearby residences. The hospital ambulances were supplemented by police ambulances and pri-

PATRONAGE.

Pof. Geo. Wrong, of Toronto University, has contributed a series of four papers to the Globe upon the party patronage system. Mr. Wrong discusses the question broadly and lucidly, without party bias; and his conclusion is that "patronage has involved to Canada the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars."

In his last article, Mr. Wrong summarizes the evils we have to combat. His summary is as follows:

(1) A long, bad tradition of patronage which, for generations, has degraded our politics, will not be ended by anything but hard, determined labour. The tradition flouts self-sacrificing patriotism, and declares it to be an ineffective motive in politics. Patronage has created a body of men who will not, without a stern fight, be deprived of what some of them think their rights.

(2) The system has discredited public life in Canada. Because of it, good men, capable of giving the highest type of public service, have refused to stand for Parliament. Patronage has actually, in many, if not in most, constituencies, been the decisive factor in selecting members of Parliament. The man who stands by the workers and their hoped-for rewards is the man who gets the nomination.

(3) Patronage has degraded the character of the Civil Service by taking little or no account of merit.

(4) Patronage has involved to Canada the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars. Costly public works have been undertaken with the rewards of patronage as the dominating motive. If anyone wishes an illustration, let him ask why the wholly superfluous railway line from Quebec to Moncton was built as a part of the National Transcontinental system. This is only one of many instances which could be cited.

Let it not be forgotten, I say again, that, in some form or other, the system will endure if the Canadian people are not alert and determined in abolishing it. Years of effort and watchfulness will be required finally to kill this deadly thing.

"Prof. Wrong thinks patronage will not be abolished without a hard fight. The Globe thinks the same; in referring to the patronage articles and the system it says:

"The Globe trusts that the Union government is in earnest over it at last. But there is need for a vigilant and resolute public opinion to give the government backing and to make the reform effective."

It seems the Union government has the overwhelming support and sympathy and warrant of the people in dealing with the political hydra. In appealing for popular support in the war winning policy of the Union government, of which the abolition of patronage is not the least important, Sir Robert Borden, speaking in December 13—five days before polling, said:

"We have abolished patronage, and no government will dare to bring it back. The abolition will apply to outside as well as inside services. In regard to contracts, in future all departments of the government, purchases will be made on a business basis, without regard. . . to party service."

No Prime Minister could no more explicitly, pointedly and solemnly commit himself and his government to resolute and drastic dealing with the patronage evil; and no leader and no government, if any government, ever had a more emphatic endorsation of the policy of patronage abolition, than the people gave on December 17th.

One would think that no head of a government could for a moment escape the application of the splendid policy involved in so distinct a pledge to deal with the patronage system. But neither Sir Robert Borden nor the government is keeping the spirit of the pledge, and on this point the Globe says:

"Ottawa despatches announce that the government is, at last, taking action in this matter. This action was overdue. Appointments such as recently made to the Collectorship at the port of Montreal, and the postmastership of the city of Ottawa,—essentially appointments of patronage—are in direct and flagrant violation of the personal pledge of Sir Robert Borden to the electors."

Sir Robert Borden's "flagrant violation" of his pledge to apply a war-winning measure, like patronage abolition within, indicates that the pressure of patronage must be tremendous, when an honourable man, such as Sir Robert is regarded, makes a solemn pre-election pledge "a scrap of paper" at the impudent demand of party patronage.

BIRTHPLACE OF BASEBALL.

And the Diamond as First Laid Out by Abner Doubleday.

In the new Delaware and Hudson station at Cooperstown, N. Y., hangs an oil painting with an inscription that runs thus:

MAJOR GEN. ABNER DOUBLEDAY
1819-1893

Graduated from West Point, 1842; commanded 76th N. Y. Civil War Volunteers from Cooperstown. He originated our National Game of Baseball, and it was here in 1839 that he laid out the first baseball diamond. So reported the special Baseball Commission in 1907.

The decision that Abner Doubleday was the father of baseball and that Cooperstown was its birthplace followed a thorough investigation of many clews. The commission, which numbered among its members two United States senators and several high officials of the National and American leagues, spent a long time in completing the research.

At the time of the investigation Abner Graves, one of the original players, was a mining engineer at Denver, Colo. He proved to be the only survivor among those young Cooperstown boys who played so long ago in a village field, conveniently near Greene's select school. He reported that he saw Doubleday mark off the lines and place the bases and players virtually as they are in baseball today.

The game had previously been nothing more than the English rounders, to which baseball, as now known, bears as little resemblance as drafts to chess. Abner Doubleday, who was then twenty, received his inspiration one day while he was playing rounders, and he lost no time in marking out a diamond with a crooked stick. Later he blocked out his new scheme on paper, but it is interesting to remember that he tried it first on Mother Earth.

The diamond he drew was thirty yards square. Players, amateur and professional, have come and gone; rule after rule has been modified; underhand throws and curved deliveries have arrived; a change has come in the size and weight of the ball, which originally was two and one half ounces of rubber covered with yarn and leather, weighing six and one-half ounces and measuring ten and one-half inches in circumference; in the wake of the ball have followed padded gloves, catchers' mitts, breast pads and masks, but the diamond of today still measures ninety feet along each side.—Youth's Companion.

A CITY OF MANY SIEGES.

Verdun Has Figured In Wars Since the Time of Caesar.

The first appearance of Verdun in the pages of history was in the time of Julius Caesar, who established at Verodunum, as it was then called, a magazine for his legions.

The Germans first attacked Verdun in the sixth century, when the Franks from the northwestern part of Germany took possession of the town. By the famous treaty of Verdun, made on this date in the year 843, Verdun formed part of the dominions of Lothaire. It was taken and annexed to the German empire in 939 by Otho I. and placed under the temporal authority of the bishops.

Verdun surrendered to France in 1553, but was not formally ceded to France until nearly a century later. During the French revolution, in 1792, the citizens of Verdun opened their gates to the Prussians after a bombardment of a few hours. The French commandant committed suicide and the revolutionary government executed a number of others who shared the responsibility for the ignominious surrender, including fourteen girls who had offered flowers to the Prussian monarch. The Prussians were driven out after having held the town forty-three days.

The Teutonic hosts again swooped down upon Verdun in 1870. Unable to take the town by direct assault, they invested and bombarded it, and the French, after a brave defense, surrendered the fortress with 4,000 men and large stores of ammunition. Verdun was the last place abandoned by the Germans, the troops retiring in September, 1873.

Difficulties of Mining.

Every time a ton of anthracite coal and rock is hoisted from a mine an average of eleven tons of water must be pumped from the mine.

It takes about the same amount of power to pump fresh air into a mine as it does to hoist the coal out of it.

In some mines with long drifts the car hauls may be as much as fifteen miles per round trip.—National Engineering.

Feminine Nature.

Feminine nature, fortunately, remains about the same from generation to generation and, while we have no reliable statistics at hand at the moment, we do not believe that the higher education of women has resulted in any appreciable diminution in the world's supply of giggling.—Ohio State Journal.

CROWING OF COCKS

Rooster's Midnight Alarm May Be Haunt of Soldier?

Historical Events Are Quoted to Show Effects of Call at Regular Hours.

Is the crowing of the cock the haunt of soldiers?

Philosophers might ask themselves this question, fools might hesitate long enough with a ray of intelligence to remark, "It does look funny." The cock sounds his first shrill clarion call at twelve o'clock, midnight.

His neighboring cock from an eminent perch in an apple tree hears it and answers "auwk-er-uk-er-oo-o." Then he sleeps again and an hour later sounds the second watch of the night. He sleeps some more. He sounds the call from the barracks and his neighbors join in to make the dawning welkin ring.

Through this Eastern section, where eastern and central time changes and the country is thickly settled, there is an hour difference in the time of the midnight crowing of the cock within a few miles' ride of the traveler.

Since the war began in Europe and the nations engaged in that conflict set the clocks back an hour for military reasons, it is said that the cock has adjusted his midnight crowing to suit the hour by the clock.

Beginning two weeks before Christmas the cock crows first at ten o'clock at night and then at the regular hours as before until after Christmas eve.

When the Roman empire claimed its outposts as the outposts of civilization and its armies as legions, the watches of the night were sounded by the bugle of the sentinel from his tower stationed wherever the mighty country had laid claim to domain. It was then that the crowing of the cock seems to have become connected with the soldier's call of the watches of the night. "The cock shall not thrice crow this night before you shall deny me." It is mentioned in the Bible to denote the watches of the night.

The Christmas festivities in the early days of Christianity lasted several days, beginning prior to Christmas day and the revelries of the night, in which wines flowed freely, doubtless led to a curfew call which descended to the cock as the other watch calls of the soldier's bugle.

In the present world war when the haunt of the soldier is again world-wide, it is not unlikely that it might exert an influence on the life of the domestic animal. The horse, it is claimed by scientists, can scent the battle from afar and his nature even feels the approach of war.

Even again the time of the universal crowing of the cock might be changed by the effect of the military change of the people of the day.

Ate Hemlock.

George Koshter, a German prisoner of war, and William Cannell, a Manx laborer, while working on a farm near Douglas, ate some hemlock, being under the impression it was watercress. They were taken violently ill and died soon after.

Auto Goggles.

New automobile goggles for night driving have opaque diagonals on the lenses to enable a wearer to turn his head slightly and thus avoid the glare of headlights he faces.

Hold Your Temper.

Get mad if you must, but don't fly off the handle. Is the advise of a sage. When you express yourself others see what's in you, and as a rule see less than they thought was there; but if you are silent you have them guessing, and the chances are that they will think there's more in you than there really is—which will be greatly to your advantage.

EULOGIZES THE WRONG DOG

Eloquence of Tactful Attorney Credited to Newspaper Story and He Loses His Case.

An old man was arrested for beating his wife. Application was made to have him put under a peace bond. Thinking the case too small for him to bother with, relates Case and Comment, the county attorney asked Judge Albert D. Norton, then a young lawyer, to appear for the state at the trial. An attorney from Macon—a man who had quite a reputation as a "pleader"—went over to defend the old man. Curled in front of the defendant was a yellow dog. Vest's "Eulogy of the Dog" had recently appeared in some paper. It was not nearly so familiar then as it has since become. When the orator from Macon saw the yellow dog at the old man's feet he recalled Senator Vest's speech, and was alive to the opportunity for an effective appeal to the jury.

"Gentlemen," and he indicated the mongrel, "when all other friends desert the dog remains. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies; and when the last scene of all comes, and when death takes the master in its embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his graveside will be the noble dog he found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death."

So well was it delivered some of the furymen cried. All looked toward the aged defendant sympathetically. It is said that even the dog's eyes were moist. It was pretty clear the defendant's lawyer had things coming his way; but Norton had the windup, and during the noon recess he hunted up a paper which had the dog speech in it. This he produced and read to the jury in the afternoon, word for word as opposing counsel recited, and which the jury thought was original.

"You see, gentlemen of the jury," said Norton, "Senator Vest was talking about another dog altogether. He never heard of this yellow cur!"

The jury found the defendant guilty.

CAT HELPS FIND THE LEAK

Ingenius Plumber Demonstrates Feline, With Aid of Catnip, Is Worth Having Around.

"There are more ways than one to kill a cat," says an old proverb, and "there are more ways than one to use a cat," is the new reading. Here is an illustration:

A plumber was called upon to locate a supposed leak in a ten-story tenement house. After a day's cogitation and sundry profitless soundings and sniffings, he finally hit upon a plan. He went to a drug store and bought 10 cents' worth of fluid extract of valerian—commonly called catnip. Then he took the elevator to the top floor and poured the valerian diluted with water down the drain. Half an hour later he took a cat and visited each floor in turn.

The cat exhibited no interest until a room in the seventh story was reached. Then, with a bound, it sprang from the plumber's arms and began to paw the wall, mewing loudly. A hole was made in the wall, and there, sure enough, was the leak.

That plumber deserves to make a fortune from his ingenuity.

Self-Denial.

The worst education which teaches self-denial is better than the best which teaches everything else and not that.—John Sterling.

Disposing of Trouble.

A good way to borrow trouble is to go to your neighbor who is in a peck of it and relieve him of as much as you can, and then throw it away.

Many Great Men Die Young.

The question is often asked, what is meant by "the prime of life." It is difficult to say; people differ so much. Most great men have died comparatively young. Alexander the Great died at thirty-two, having conquered practically the whole world of his day; Julius Caesar was dead at fifty-five. Napoleon died at fifty-two, Oliver Cromwell at fifty-nine, Shakespeare at fifty-two, Charles Dickens at fifty-eight. Nearly all the men who made the French Revolution were dead before they were fifty; many of them before they were forty. Robespierre was only thirty-six when he died, Desmoulins thirty-four, Danton thirty-five, and Mirabeau forty-two.

Colorado Was Not Red.

It was William's first trip to Colorado. Everyone was marveling at the wonderful scenery but the little chap, who seemed troubled at it all. "What's the matter, don't you like the mountains?" asked his mother. "Oh, yes," replied the boy, "but on my map Colorado is red."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Cold Weather Just In Time For The Big Game To-night

The drop in the temperature came just in time to provide good ice for to-night's big third round junior O.H.A. battle at the Brock street rink, between De La Salle of Toronto, and the Peterboro youngsters, and everything points to a bumper crowd and a grand game of hockey. The De La Salle team arrived at noon with a number of supporters and there is nothing to prevent the game getting away at the advertised time, 8.15 o'clock.

The visit of the crack Toronto team has aroused great interest among the fans. The De La Salles are hailed in Toronto as the coming champions and local followers of the game are glad of the opportunity to see the Petes in action against such an aggregation. All the local team came through the Oshawa game in good shape and they should be right on edge to-night. If they remember the four axioms of the game, stay on the ice, pass the puck, play your position, and check back, they will make the doughty visitors realize that they are in a game.

It should be a great battle.

TURNBULL'S TIGERS WIN ONCE AGAIN

The Turnbull Tigers added another victory to their list when for the second time Grafton & Co's sextette went down to defeat by a score of 2 goals to 1. The game was fast and exciting throughout, brilliant plays being made by both of the teams. But the persistent work of Mahood, in goal, and the stellar playing of the forwards, won the day for the Turnbull boys. For the winners Lapp and Perry distinguished themselves while Fitzgerald and Doughty are worthy of mention for the losers.

Score by periods—

First Period:

1 Turnbull's, Tudhope, 13 minutes.
2 Grafton's, Doughty, 4 1-2 minutes.

Second Period:

3 Turnbull's, Lapp, 12 minutes.

The line up was as follows:

Turnbull's — Goal, "Stuffy" Mahood; defense, "Top Floor" Irwin and "Fire Sale" Henry; rover, "Midget" Irwin; wings, "Velvet" Lapp and "Electric" Perry; centre, "Hank" Tudhope.

Grafton's—Goal, "Church League" Rutherford; defence, "Fourth Form" Cottingham and "Heinie" Smith; rover, "Fade away" Conway; wings, "Suburb" Fitzgerald and "Midright" O'Brien; centre, "Sleepy" Doughty.

Mr. B. Hagerman refereed to the satisfaction of all.

LADY HOCKEYISTS CHALLENGE PETERBORO.

The Lindsay business Ladies Hockey Team, who were successful in defeating the Arsenal team recently, are eager for another game, and do not care so very much who their opponents are so long as they get a crack at some person. They have expressed their willingness for the Kawartha Rebekah Society to again handle the match and the proceeds to go for the patriotic purposes of the Society. If Peterboro has a ladies' hockey team that think they have a chance with this speedy Lindsay organization, perhaps a game could be arranged. Any team desiring a game can receive particulars from the above Society.—Lindsay Post.

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

Printers Defeat the High Rollers.

The Printers and the High Rollers were the contesting teams in a Tenpin League fixture at the Water St. Alleys last night. The Printers annexed all three games from their opponents.

The first game ended in a tie, each team rolling 840 for a total, and in the extra frame the Printers won out by one pin. The second and third games were won by good margins.

For the three games the Printers rolled up a total of 2631—a new record—against 2395 for the High Rollers.

For the High Rollers Kelly had high three games with a total of 598, and the high single of 212. Patterson had 500 for a total. For the Printers, Henderson and Anderson were the leaders with 597 and 581 for totals and high singles of 218 and 215. Cairns and Westfall also reached the 500 mark.

The scores were as follows:

| High Rollers. | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Kelly | 212 | 191 | 195 | 598 |
| Thomas | 119 | 147 | 164 | 430 |

The "Wicked" French Woman

A FRENCH woman, to the Canadian mind, is something that doesn't touch earth at all except just long enough to nibble at some pate de foie gras and petits fours. She is all clothes and magnetism and je ne sais quoi and chic and verve and savoir faire, with a strong mixture of savoir vivre—whatever that is. And about any French woman, whatever there is a touch of something deliciously wicked. Throughout our literature, the introduction of a French woman, from marquise to lady's maid, means that something will be started.

Those who can never picture her outside of a cafe would have a shock if they could look into a French munition factory to-day or to-morrow or any day this year, Sundays included.

"Oh, factory girls," you say. "Well, probably they are all the same everywhere, but anyway the French ones don't keep their mind on their work at all. We've seen Madame Edvina play Louise and we know all about Parisian factories.

But we don't mean even those who are usually regarded as factory girls. We mean all kinds. For there they are all jumbled together—artists and stenographers, florists, and housewives, modestes and school teachers, ladies of previous leisure and store clerks, house wives and hairdressers, lacemakers and even milliners—Paris milliners!—side by side, the chiffons removed, making high explosive shells and parts of guns.

You know what "French 75s" are doing at the front. Well, do you wonder when you think of all the chic and verve and savoir everything that is going into them? And the je ne sais quoi!

France was much more successful than any other country in speeding up and increasing her output of munitions in the first year of the war.

The women's response to their country's call was immediate, and the classes mentioned in the above list are actually one and all represented among those making the sinews of war. There is hardly one process in the work that women have not got their share in.

After the first year of war, women were already beginning even to do the setting up and tool making, including the grinding of tool edges. Women's output in small work often exceeds that of the men, and on the heavy work their productive power is of practically equal value. Their hours are the same as the men, except that there is a tendency to spare the women the night work, which results practically in a day shift of women and a night shift of men.

Much of the work done by the women has seemed to visitors to involve altogether too severe a strain. But when they are asked whether it isn't "pretty hard work" the invariable answer is to the effect that "It is—very hard—but think what our boys are having to do at the front."

Several factories supply caps and overalls for the women, and this would give a brilliant opportunity for an intelligent observer to find out for sure what is the truth of that standard statement that "a French woman looks smart in anything—it is not what she wears, but the way she wears it." We are burning to know how she wears overalls so as to impact "that cachet" that our own farmerettes have not yet got out of them.

But the fact of it is that the French woman is, down at bottom, the most practical woman in the world, and getting away with clothes is only one of the outward signs of her being able to do well whatever she does at all. The average French woman puts many of our breezy, wholesome, efficient, well-advertised Canadian girls to shame in the matter of getting down to brass tacks, and if we study her methods of work in war time as assiduously as we have studied her styles in peace, we shall be moving right along on the way that we ought to be going.

ELECTION EXPENSES ARE HIGH

It Took Three Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars to Elect Union Government

Ottawa, Feb. 15. — From reliable sources it is estimated that the recent general election in Canada will when all the various provinces connected with it are reported, have cost the Dominion $3,500,000. This as compared with about $700,000 for the previous election in the Dominion.

FATAL DESERT OF KARA-KUM

Heat Reaching 163 Degrees Is Hurled Into One's Face Like Sheet of Fire.

When the caravans in olden days went up from Samarcand and Bokhara to Mery for silks and carpets, or carried spices for Europe to the Caspian ports, some of them occasionally wandered off into the desert of Kara-Kum, and few of those ever returned. This desert, which is smaller but more terrible than Sahara, came to be known as "the tomb of caravans."

If you were to venture into the desert of Kara-Kum you would travel by camel. At first you would pass through a land of scrubby bushes and rest at noon near a well surrounded by a tiny native village at the bottom of a dimple in the desert. And here you would feel your first touch of the desert heat—a heat that reaches 163 degrees in the sun and is hurled into your face by the wind like a veritable sheet of flame.

In the comparative cool of evening you would push on into the desert proper. Presently from the top of a slight elevation you would see it reaching before you—a petrified storm at sea, an ocean of sand. There is nothing but sand, and it is tossed by a ceaseless wind into billows miles long that creep forward perhaps a foot a year, burying everything in their path. The wind tears banners of flying sand from their crests as you look, releasing cascades that go rumbling into the burning hollows.

The path across this desert is marked only by bits of bone and stick, occasionally by a human skull. It is easily lost in the dark, and it is the thread which connects one shallow, muddy well with another. Many have lost it and they are still in the desert of Kara-Kum.

TOOMBS UTTERS ONE ERROR

Noted for Accuracy, Famous Publicist Makes Mistake in Georgia Constitutional Convention.

In the Georgia constitutional convention of 1877 so usually accurate a publicist as General Robert Toombs uttered a singular error. He was contending in a speech for enough courts in Georgia to assure speedy justice and at one point in the debate he said:

"I only desire to say one word. Six hundred and fifty years ago our rude ancestors met upon a plain at Runnimede and established a great system of judiciary in one line of bad Latin. They made King John say, 'We will sell to none, we will deny to none, we will delay to none, right and justice, and we must make as many courts as are necessary to carry out those grand utterances."

Actually there is no "plain" at Runnimede, as those who have visited the historic locality know. Anciently there was a running-mede, or meadow, on the Middlesex shore of the Thames, where races were pulled off. Possibly the doughty barons held some mass meeting in the meadow, but history holds fast that the Magna Charta was signed on an island off shore, nearer the Surrey bank, and which has ever since been known as Charter island. In London in 1909 there was a sale of the island and the wonder was voiced in the public press why the government did not purchase it and erect upon it some suitable memorial.

Device to Save Worry.

A "worry-saving" device that is being installed in many of the apartment houses here, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, is a slot machine arrangement intended to eliminate computation and dispute regarding the monthly bill for telephone service.

The machine is built on the principle of the public pay station slot telephone, but is handier in size. It can be purchased outright at comparatively little cost, or leased at reasonable rates. It does away with all bills and makes complaints of overcharge impossible. In the event that a tenant has not the proper change to insert in the slot, he may insert brass checks, which are supplied with the machine.

When the coin box is opened by the collector the tenant is called on to redeem these brass checks. The device is making a hit with landlords and tenants.

The Parsees' Recreation.

One of the best stories concerning British weather is related by the Bishop of Lydda.

"Once before I was a bishop I was on the top of an omnibus in London with some Parsees," related his lordship. "A man said to me, 'What are they?' I replied, 'Indians—Parsees, you know. Men who worship the sun.' And the man replied, 'Oh, I see, and they have come over here for a holiday.'"

Sweden was the first country to recognize the value of canals.

Many Fans With The De La Salles

BUYS GLASSES FOR BULLDOG

Proud Mistress Discovers Cold Wind Brings Tears to Pet's Eyes and Takes Him to Oculist.

One of the newest features of the high cost of living investigation by federal agents has just been revealed by United States District Attorney Cline of Chicago. He told the following story:

"I dropped into an oculist's a couple of days ago with a friend who had broken his glasses. We found that gentleman, immaculately clad, carefully fitting a pair of glasses on the pug nose of a bulldog with undershot jaw and bandy legs.

"Well, we had to wait. A lady, in handsome furs, held the bulldog by the chain. When the job was done she led it away. I asked the oculist:

"'How do you test the vision of a dog's eyes?' He replied: 'I didn't test it for vision. You see it was like this—the lady had her dog out motoring. They were riding rather fast and the air was cold.

"'She noticed that a little drop of moisture gathered in the dog's eye. It trickled down his cheek. The lady decided that something must be done. So she brought him to me—the glasses are to protect his eyes when he goes motoring.'

"'How much did she pay for those glasses?' I asked.

"'Eight dollars,' the oculist replied."

Birds as High Flyers.

Nowadays we read with the utmost unconcern and little wonder that the German raiders were flying at not less than 10,000 feet, and we know that that is by no means a record height, and that a common one is anything between 2,000 feet and 5,000 feet above the level of the earth.

We sometimes compare the aeroplane to a bird, but even the swallows we see chasing each other and shrilling on a summer evening at what seems a great height are seldom more than 300 feet or 400 feet high, and the hawk winnowing the air over a wood ready to pounce is seldom more than 200 feet. We speak of the skylark "lost in the blue," but we must remember that a skylark is about nine inches across the wings whilst a plane is 40 feet, and the best lark that ever flew never mounted more than 500 feet to 700 feet unless he started from the top of a hill.

When migrating, birds fly at more considerable heights, but it is evident that it is not a great height, seeing that large numbers of them fly against our coastwise lights, but swallows probably migrate at a height of over 1,000 feet, and wild swans, ducks, and geese will fly at heights up to 2,000 feet.

The condor in his native wilds does not give much chance to the observer, but that great naturalist, Humboldt, averred that he was quite comfortable at a height of five miles, and travelers in the Andes, who themselves have been over 20,000 feet up the mountains, have seen him come into sight out of the heavens above their heads. So the airman has still something to compete against.—Tit-Bits.

CORP. McCOY IS WOUNDED

Mr. Jos. McCoy, 565 Rogers street, has received the following letter from his son, Corp. W. J. McCoy, of the 19th Canadian Battalion:

Dear Mrs. McCoy,—Your son was wounded in the hands yesterday and asked me when I saw him at the dressing station to write to you and tell you he would soon be able to write himself. When I saw him he had power to move his fingers, so that his wounds cannot be considered serious. In fact his right hand is only slightly cut. He was to confession, and I may add that he is faithful at all times in the matter of his religious duties. I trust he may soon be in a comfortable hospital in England and finally safe at home when peace comes.

Sincerely,
J. Macdonald, C.F.
Priest,
19th Canadian Infantry Battalion.

I may add that your son was very fortunate, as the lad next to him was killed outright.

GERMAN COLD DECK FOR THE RUSSIANS.

London. — The correspondent at Berne of the Morning Post reports that German traders have taken advantage of the situation in Russia and erected four hundred booths at convenient spots along and close to the Russian front. It appears that the Russian soldiers are anxious to obtain playing cards, and that they readily exchange a machine gun for a pack of cards.

Miss Phyllis Neilson Terry is at present rehearsing a new play, in which she may revisit Peterborough before the season is over. It is entitled "The Land of Promise," and is a story of the Canadian North-West. Certainly Miss Terry is wasting her talents in the empty and hackneied "Maggie," which was only saved from sheer boredom by the charm and art of the star and a few high lights here and there.

ALDERMEN ESTABLISH A NEW SPEED RECORD

City Fathers Hack Their Way Through a Bale of Contentious Questions With Lightning-Like Rapidity—Discussion Was Cut to the Bone

The feature of last night's meeting of the committee of the Whole Council was the speed with which the aldermen romped through the business. The business ranged all the way from a sixty thousand dollar grant for the patriotic fund to the appointment of a thirty dollar a month girl for the assessor's office.

The conclusion of the meeting at nine-fifteen o'clock found some of the aldermen pinching themselves to see if it were really true that the meeting was at an end. The absence of three of the aldermen may have been a contributing factor. It is doubtful if City Clerk Armstrong, with a municipal career extending over twenty years, could recall a similar record.

It was reported to the committee that twenty Public school children were suffering from throat and nose trouble, necessitating minor operations. Dr. F. C. Neal and other local doctors have agreed to perform such work free of charge where the patients are unable to pay. The hospital also agrees to take care of such children at the rate of one dollar per day. This the committee agreed to pay where the circumstances justified such assistance. Mr. F. W. Miller will be asked to investigate all claims for assistance. The general cost to the city of treating twenty children will be about twenty-five dollars, as in the majority of cases the patients are removed from the hospital the same day as the operation is performed.

Band Instruments.

The committee would not agree to sell the 93rd Band instruments to the 57th Regimental Band as requested.

Ald. Langford, who voted to have the matter referred back to the committee of the Whole Council, was not present to support the request of the 57th Band.

The custody of the instruments will be vested in the Great War Veterans' Association according to an agreement drafted by City Solicitor Gordon.

Patriotic Fund.

Ald. Edgar and Ald. A. McIntyre fathered a resolution in support of a proposal to raise sixty thousand dollars for the Patriotic Fund by the issue of five year debentures at six per cent.

Ald. Worth could see no reason why the entire amount could not be raised in one year.

The committee decided to recommend that the sixty thousand dollars be raised in one year. An amendment to this effect was moved by Ald. Taylor, seconded by Ald. Worth.

Ald. Edgar's resolution favouring a five year term was defeated.

Grants Approved.

The committee approved of a grant of fifty dollars a month to the Children's Aid Society.

The committee will recommend that one thousand dollars be granted to the Peterborough Health Association. A similar amount was granted last year.

Assessor Henry was authorized to engage a girl for his office at a monthly remuneration of thirty dollars. In October next a boy will be employed in a permanent capacity.

SELL SEED WHEAT AT COST PRICE

Ontario Government Secures Fifty Thousand Bushels of Spring Wheat

Fifty thousand bushels of seed wheat will be sold to the farmers of Ontario at cost as a result of an arrangement made by the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the Dominion Seed Commissioner. The seed obtained is No. 1 Spring (Marquis) wheat, and is part of the reserve secured in the West by the Federal Commissioner. It will be sold to Ontario farmers at $2.75 a bushel, plus freight when it is necessary to ship it to local points from the warehouses to be established at central points. The shipping centres suggested are Toronto, Peterborough, Brampton, Woodstock, Lindsay and Chatham. The seed will be brought down from the West and apportioned among the warehouses at these points.

The Government expects that extra freight charges will be largely eliminated by co-operation among the farmers. By making purchases in car load lots through farmers' clubs, etc., the farmers could get direct delivery.

The fifty thousand bushels of seed secured will be followed by other shipments if the farmers show their appreciation of the measures taken, and the situation requires it. The Government is extremely anxious to increase the planting of spring wheat in order to overcome the shortage in fall planting, and will do everything possible to co-operate with the farmers.

MAY CUT KINGSTON TREES.

KINGSTON, Feb. 15.—The Board of Works will recommend to the City Council that enough trees to yield one thousand cords of wood be cut down on the streets and in the parks, that the wood be cut into twelve-foot lengths, and taken to the fair ground, where it will be further cut by an electrically operated saw and then stored for sale next winter.

MAJOR DALY RETURNS.

Vernon Castle Meets Death

Castle was a captain in the British Royal Flying Corps, and was 32 years of age. Last year he was connected with the Royal Flying Corps at Camp Mohawk, Deseronto, Ont., and narrowly escaped death in an accident. His companion, a cadet, was killed at that time.

Castle, in trying to avoid a cadet this morning, swerved his machine beyond his control, fell, and was unable to right himself. The cadet was an American, but was being instructed by the British. The accident happened close by the Benbrook field. The cadet was uninjured.

A number of Peterborough airmen, including Lieut. Geo. Logan, were under Capt. Castle's tutelage at Deseronto.

All Women To Vote In Next Election

Special to The Toronto Star and the Peterboro Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 15.—Universal women's franchise in the Dominion is assured. Whether it will be enacted next session or not makes little difference. Before the next election comes every woman in Canada who possesses the qualification in age, residence, etc., necessary for the present male franchise, will vote. The assurance that the entry of women into the industrial arena would be protected, by according them equal political rights with men, was, it is stated, given to the Labour delegates, which met here some days ago, and the results of whose deliberations with the Government on purely labour matters, was made public this morning. About a million and a half new voters will be added to the Canadian franchise before another polling day is set in Ottawa.

A further question discussed by the Labour men, not directly connected with the problem of labour supply, was the request of the delegates that the alcoholic contents of beer at present permitted in prohibition provinces, should be increased for the sake of certain classes of labour in particular which are believed to require it. The present content permitted is only 2 1-2 per cent.

ANNUAL MEETING HELD TUESDAY

Stoney Lake Cottagers Elect Officers

The annual meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association was held in the city on Tuesday and the following directors were appointed for the current year: Messrs. T. H. G. Denne, William Irwin, H. W. Stock, R. Neill, E. H. D. Hall, J. Nugent, J. D. Collins, S. Henderson, H. Sutherland and James Acton. The last three are of Toronto.

The fianncial statement which was presented, showed a small balance. This was applied towards the purchase of store fixtures purchased from H. W. Stock. At a subsequent meeting of the directors Mr. T. H. C. Denne was again appointed President and Mr. Wm. Irwin, Vice-President.

To the Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I noticed in last evening's paper a list of the fire alarm boxes and tried to figure out what part of the city the different boxes were in, but had to give it up in despair. Perhaps you woud be good enough to tell me where Wards One, Two and Three are. Also don't you think it would be much better if the Council would number them North, South, East and West, as we would then have a much clearer idea what part of the city the different alarm boxes are in, whereas calling them Ward One, Two and Three does not give any idea whatever. Trusting the Council will remedy this defect, I remain,

"MAGGIE."

One of the biggest events in the local theatrical season was the visit to the Grand Opera House last night of Miss Phyllis Neilson-Terry, the distinguished English artiste and her clever company, in the entertaining and well written comedy, "Maggie," from the pen of Edward Peple, author of "The Prince Chap" and "The Littlest Rebel." Unfortunately the audience, due largely, perhaps, to the inclement weather, was not very large. The merit of the attraction called for a capacity house.

It was the first visit of Miss Neilson-Terry to Peterborough, and those who saw her last evening will unite in hoping that she may soon return. She was altogether delightful in the title role, her first comedy party by the way, as most of her stage life has been devoted to Shaksperian roles. "Maggie" is a young Irish girl living in Harlem, who is suddenly hurled into the midst of an aristocratic English family as the heiress to the family fortunes. She is a diamond in the rough, and her behaviour sets the sedate household by the ears until, simultaneously with the discovery that she is not the real heiress, she decides to return to America with Dennis Moran, the man she loves. Miss Neilson-Terry's work in this role was appealingly realistic and effective. She made "Maggie" a real personage, whose fineness of character shone clearly through the unconventionality of her actions and speech.

The supporting company was thoroughly adequate. Mr. John Moran was convincing and manly as Dennis Moran, and Mr. Arthur Lewis' portrayal of the part of the Bishop of Baychester was a masterpiece.

Miss Neilson-Terry was called back three or four times at the end of each act by the enthusiastic audience.

An unadvertised feature marked the close of the play when Mr. Joseph Wearing gave an eloquent resume of the present condition of the war, pointing out the dark side with the collapse of Russia, and the bright side with the come back of the Italians, the growth of the United States' strength and the grim determination of Britain and France.

Miss Neilson-Terry then recited in a manner that indicated her Shaksperian training, Drake's speech to his men from "Drake," Louis N. Parker's historical play. The recitation was given with an expression and a clearness of enunciation that made it most effective.

McNaughton Gets Fifteen Lashes And Three Months

For Indecent Assault on Fourteen Year Old Girl—Ten Similar Cases Have Been Discovered By the Police

WAS FOUND GUILTY

"Fifteen strokes of the cat o' nine tails and three months in jail" was the sentence meted out by Magistrate Dumble this morning to Ernest McNaughton, who was found guilty a week ago of indecently assaulting a fourteen year old girl.

McNaughton's request for permission to make a statement was granted by the court. Apart from a romance that he had come to Peterborough with the Borden enterprise in November, he said, "I gave the young lady the best advice she ever got in her life."

"You're a pure adviser for a little child" was the Magistrate's caustic reply. "I should have thought that you would be repentant this morning."

"I am innocent of the act or of intent to commit the wrong," declared McNaughton, when sentence was passed upon him.

He was arrested several weeks ago, following an investigation by the police of a report that a little girl had been accosted while returning home one night by a stranger who professed to be a friend of her father's, and following his approach made improper advances from which she escaped by immediately calling for help. The police have traced to McNaughton at least ten complaints of acts similar to this one, and there may have been others. He was working as an agent for Collier's Weekly and their splendid war book premium, and had signed up about one hundred and twenty-five subscribers. In view of the circumstances the Canadian manager for Colliers has made a special effort to reassure these purchasers. The books arrived in the city to-day by special delivery and are being distributed. Readers of Collier's Weekly regard it as the foremost periodical, especially among weeklies in America, and realize that no reflection attaches to it from the McNaughton incident. Wythe Williams' recent article disclosing the causes for the failure of the Allies' drive last year has been widely quoted in the press, and is easily one of the outstanding beats of the war.

MUSICAL DRAMA "ISLE O'DREAMS" COMING HERE

Planned on a big scale the United Producing Company Limited are to present here their big musical success, "The Isle O' Dreams," the brilliant romantic drama in which Chauncey Olcott made his name as a singer of Irish ballads. Not only have they secured a brilliant company of established favorites but have been extremely lucky in securing that sweet singer of ballads, Mr. Julius Velie, one of the finest of the younger actor-vocalists on the American stage today. Mr. Velie was specially engaged for this leading role to make a Canadian east to Coast tour, and he has certainly made a name by his acting and beautiful tenor voice in the West, where the tour opened.

The Isle O' Dreams will be presented here on Tuesday, Feb. 19th, at the Grand Opera House, and as the management have decided to play this big production at popular prices, excellent business is sure to result. The show is clean cut, the songs are famous, and the scenic production is far ahead of the usual ones to visit here. Seats go on sale to-morrow at the theatre for this pleasing attraction, and those desiring a pleasant evening's entertainment should not forget the date.

Prizes Offered To Pupils Of Every School By Mr. R. Neill For Best Bird Houses Built

Mr. Robert Neill's offer of two prizes to each school in the city to be awarded to the children who make the best bird houses this term, should arouse the pupils and their teachers to the advantages of this action. To the young folks the prizes should be an incentive to take up this work, if they have not already done so, and to exercise their best handiwork and invention that they may fashion houses worthy of entry in the contest. To the teacher, Mr. Neill's offer provides an excellent opportunity of creating a new interest in the children, especially among the boys, in the habits of our Canadian birds. The small boy's propensities have leaned toward the destruction of birds and their nests. If the young people can be brought to realize the great work of common birds in protecting crops, if the boys can be led to take a friendly and sort of brotherly attitude towards his little feathered friends, through the influence of such a competition as this, its success must be measured by results other than the miniature houses.

It must have impressed citizens who have followed this movement for the protection and conservation of bird life, that in Peterboro bird houses have been comparatively few, even in the grounds of the best homes. A walk last summer through the residential districts discovered only two bird houses, one in the north end, and the other over on the west side. On the other hand, a visit to "The Hawthorns," the Mann homestead, east of Bridgenorth, was repaid alone in the finding of a number of bird houses placed about the lawn. One of them was the home of a bluebird and its brood, and a wren had pre-empted the other.

The idea back of the bird house movement is not only a hazy one, but above that is the element of utility in the protection of crops following the birds' continuous warfare on insects that destroy crops. It is hoped that many of the children will endeavor to win the prizes, and that their teachers will give them every encouragement. It is intended that an exhibition of the prize winning houses will be made before the summer holidays, and the houses will remain the property of the children. The contestants should learn that houses must be built on the specifications of their prospective dwellers. Thus, the house the bluebird favors it different in details from that which attracts the wren. Again the swallow has its particular demands. So with other birds, and children should design and complete for a particular bird.

When the houses are occupied in the summer months, and the birds are busy carrying food to their young, parents and children both will find that these summer friends add a touch of nature that is otherwise lost.

$187,779,000 LOAN TO RUSSIA A "PROBLEM"

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15. — What is to become of the $187,779,000 lent to Russia by the United States raises a problem that cannot be solved until a responsible government is organized. A full credit of $325,000,000 was extended to Russia, but only $187,779,000 was drawn upon and this was used to pay for supplies and munitions purchased in the United States. No attempt has been made by the Bolsheviki to draw upon the remaining credit. No supplies are now going forward. The United States government undoubtedly will hold Russia responsible for the debt, but administration officials said to-day that nothing will be done until full information of what has taken place has been received.

vate motor cars. It is feared that some of these people may die as a result of the shock. Some of the pitals.

Late to-night Deputy Chief Mann of the Fire Department said the loss of life among the babies might be 100, but the number could not be definitely fixed as yet. On the floor of one of the playrooms were the bodies of the 38 children whose fate was beyond question, the eldest being about two months old. A score or more had been rescued by District Chiefs Lapointe and Pressean with the assistance of other firemen and some of the returned soldiers. These rescues were effected by way of windows and fire escapes. The recovered bodies were found by the firemen in little white enamelled cots in which the children had been sleeping when the fire started.

FORD TO CONSTRUCT LIBERTY MOTORS

All Available Parts of Detroit Plant, Not Now on War Work, Will be Employed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—All available parts of the Detroit plant of the Ford Motor Company, not now engaged in Government war work, will soon be devoted to high speed production of Liberty motors for America's aeroplane fleets. The Detroit factory has been turning out cylinders and other engine parts for several months, but the new programme, disclosed to-day, provides for wholesale production of the completed engines. Recent tests of the Liberty Motor indicate that a minimum of 400 horse-power can be expected from the new engines.

Facilities for giving American aviators advanced training abroad have been overtaxed to such an extent that it has been found advisable to fit the men for actual battle conditions at flying fields in America. Instruction in observation, bombing, and combat work is being given the student fliers by pilots acquainted with the latest strategic developments in aerial warfare.

Although theoretically the American aviators will be ready for work at the front immediately after their arrival in France, it is planned to continue the present system of sending them across the lines in company with squadrons of experienced pilots to add the final touches to their training.

NORWAY HAS LOST 714 SHIPS IN WAR.

During the same period fifty-three Norwegian vessels, with more than seven hundred men, were posted as missing. Nearly two-thirds of these are war losses.

THE AFTER EFEECTS OF LA GRIPPE

Often Worse Than the Disease Itself —Victims Left Weak, Nervous and Worn Out

Often Worse Than the Disease Itself — Victims Left Weak, Nervous and Worn Out.

La Grippe—the name by which influenza is most generally known—is a disease prevalent throughout Canada during the winter and spring months. Anyone who has felt its pangs is not likely to forget the trouble. La grippe starts with a slight cold—and ends with a complication of troubles. It lays the strong man on his back; it tortures him with fevers and chills, headaches and backaches. It leaves him a prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, consumption and other deadly diseases. In fact, its after effects are more serious than the trouble itself. You can avoid la grippe and winter colds by keeping your blood rich and red by the occasional use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you have not done this and the disease lays you low, you can banish all its evil after effects by this same great blood-building, nerve restoring medicine. This has been proved in thousands of cases throughout Canada by la grippe victims who have been made well and strong through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Among the cured is Miss Irene Bootes, Portsmouth, Ont., who writes:—"I take much pleasure in recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because I have proved their worth in my own case. Last winter I had a severe attack of la grippe and it left me weak and all run down. I had severe pains in the chest and under the arms, palpitation of the heart and attacks of neuralgia which left me with the feeling that life was scarcely worth living. I was taking doctor's medicine, but it did not help me and I was much discouraged. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began their use only on the principle that I would try anything that might better my condition. I had only been using the pills a couple of weeks when the pains began to leave me. Gradually my strength returned, my appetite improved, and in a little more than a month I felt all my old time vigor had returned. I am sincerely glad I was persuaded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I shall always have a good word to say for them.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills not only cure the disastrous after effects of la grippe, but are also a specific for all these troubles due to poor blood, such as anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, women's ailments, and the generally worn out feeling that affects so many people. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SAYS GERMAN DEATHS EXCEED THE BIRTHS

Neutral Observer Records Havoc Wrought By Tuberculosis and Epidemic of Dysentery

GERMANS LONG FOR PEACE

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The Times publishes an article by a neutral on conditions in Germany, in the course of which occur these statements:

"Nothing but the iron grip of Prussian militarism restrains the nation from making advances to its adversaries more pronounced than any yet made. Germans are longing for peace; of that there can be no question, whatever but they want to have peace with victory.

"They do not any longer abuse their enemies as in the early days of the war, when the gospel of hate was inculcated with such success. The vials of their wrath are now poured out on Lloyd George and Clemenceau. The language used against the statesmen could not be more severe if it were employed against Bethmann Hollweg or Michaelis.

"No doubt the shortage of supplies has had much to do with this change of mental attitude. The proudness of the flesh has given way before the discipline of fasting. This accounts for very much in recent developments of the German policy."

The writer, after asserting that the home population of Germany in the fourth winter of the war finds the conditions of life almost unbearable, says:

"It is well known that tuberculosis is making havoc among the population, children and young people being especially liable to the inroads of the scourge. During the summer and autumn contagious dysentry prevailed throughout the country. It is less general at the present time, but has not died out, as was hoped would be the case during the winter. The cause is undoubtedly bad food."

Dealing with the increase of morality over the birth rate, he instances the case of Dresden.

"Whereas, up till October, 1915, the number of births in Dresden were regularly in excess of the deaths, there has been an excess of births over deaths since then in two months only namely, May and September, 1916. In the last two months of 1915 the deaths exceeded the births by 108. In 1916 there were 6,440 deaths, compared with 5,817 births. The increase of this decline was very noticeable in the first two months of 1917. The figures were: In January—Births, 474, deaths, 721. In February — Deaths, 883; births, 449. It would be easy to prove by examination of the statistics of other German towns that what is happening in Dresden is happening elsewhere in Prussia and Central Germany. The only places where the decline in the birth rate is less ominous are those where strong religious influences exist to combat it."

As a result of the official order requiring every householder to clear away the snow in front of his house, the writer says, amusing scenes are to be witnessed in many parts of Berlin, where with an army of voluntary helpers, consisting of schoolboys and schoolgirls, the householders are at work clearing the snow from the side walks. Privy Councilors and Court ladies shovel and sweep the snow away side by side, with professors, heads of schools, porters and servant girls.

Demands Of German Labour, Heard In U.S. Are Revolutionary

Eight Hour Day, Six Day Week For Men, and Special Programme of Work and Hours for Women—Most Drastic Measures Proposed.

WANT RIGHT TO STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—An outline of revolutionary demands to be made on the Kaiser's Government by German labour, which has reached the American Government, shows that they are asking more of the despot that American labour has asked of its democracy.

This programme may play an important part in the settlement of the social unrest among the people in the Austro-German Empires, if they get the whip hand as a result of the social upheaval reported under way there.

The programme provides for an eight-hour day and a six-day week. It prohibits all Sunday work except that absolutely necessary, and provides for a day of rest during the week for Sunday workers. It prohibits night work except "in a few cases where it is absolutely necessary, and which can be determined by law."

Women must not work more than eight hours a day, five days a week, and not more than four hours on Saturdays, or other days preceding holidays.

Women must not be given work to take home with them.

The employment of women under this plan would be absolutely prohibited at night, on Sundays or holidays, on work which is damaging to health, and for six weeks prior to childbirth, for twenty-six weeks thereafter, and during the next twenty-six weeks they may work only four hours a day.

No child under 15 could be employed in any kind of work. Those between 15 and 18 may not work more than six hours a day and these may not be employed at night, on Sundays or holidays, in mines, or on work dangerous to health.

Enforcement of the laws protecting labour in this way would be in the hands of inspectors chosen by the labourers themselves. Only women inspectors would be permitted to inspect and pass on women's working conditions.

Want Right to Strike.

"The right to strike," says the plea, "must be freed from all restrictions and conceded without restrictions to all sections of the population."

Every place employing more than twenty persons must provide for a committee from the employes to have a voice in the treatment of the workers in the place by the employers. This committee would have a vote as powerful as that of the employers.

Workers in this way would be protected in all Government departments by fully authorized committees named from their membership by the workers themselves.

Insurance, which would guarantee every man and woman out of a job a place to eat and sleep and something to wear, would be provided by the Government.

The Government would be compelled to establish a Ministry of Workers to administer social legislation.

In addition to this, there is a long and detailed list of demands provided and disabled soldiers, calculated to ensure them and their dependents adequate care between the time they are discharged and the time they are fully re-established as private citizens.

CATTLE MARKET

Cattle Markets.

The feature of the week's markets has been the light receipts. The Fuel Controller's orders closing down business for a couple of days operated in holding up the shipping of cattle to market the early part of the week. A few cars lifted just prior to the order going into effect reached the city in time for Monday's market. After that there was practically no market for Tuesday, and only very small offerings for the Wednesday and Thursday markets. The result of the light offerings was a fairly strong tone to prices all through the week, though at no time was there anything to get excited about, as prices advanced but very slightly over the previous week. A few small lots of very extra choice quality baby beef steers fetched high prices, ranging from $13 to $14, but these were exceptions from the general run. Choicest lots of butcher steers and heifers held firm around $11.50 to $11.75, and an extra choice lot or two at $12. Butcher cows and bulls also stiffened a little in the week-end market.

Although receipts were not heavy in sheep and lambs, prices tended to ease off 50c. to 75c. towards the end of the week.

Hogs were very irregular, selling up to $19 in one marked, but finally settling down to $18.75, fed and watered for the week end.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts this week 272 cars with 2,864 cattle, 597 calves, 7,702 hogs, 855 sheep and lambs and 125 horses.

City Cattle Market—Twenty-two cars with 102 cattle, 56 sheep, 550 hogs, 35 calves, and 48 horses.

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE MAN WITH THE SKULL CAP.

"Denny," said McCarty, as they left the Lavenham, "if somebody belonging to you was on their death-bed—which God forbid!—and wanted to give you a final message, how long would it take you to get leave to go to them?"

"And what might you be springing now?" Dennis demanded. "Sure, if the Old Man was in his office and I could get his ear I'd be ready to start in an hour."

"Even if it meant a trip of a week or ten days?"

"Uh-huh! This is not the time for a rush of work with half the town closed for the summer, unless a firebug gets busy. The full company's at the engine house, and I am next in line for my vacation anyway. But to get off on such short notice it'd have to be a matter of life and death I'm thinking."

"Well, go ahead, and kill off somebody quick." McCarty paused to light the stump of a cigar he had preserved throughout the preceding interview. "I don't care who, but you had better make it someone that is already dead, in case of complications. Tell the big chief that you've got 'o get off to-night sure."

"Mac! What is it you're up to?" Dennis's eyes sparkled. "We're not going——"

"We're off to Chicago on the midnight train!" McCarty cut him short. "The inventor has given us the slip, Grafton Foxe nor his wife won't talk, Mary's passed the deal up, and Mrs. Doremus has told all that she knows. We are no nearer the truth than when the girl landed at my feet, and I'm wasting no more time running round in circles. I'm going to get that Ivy Collins if she's above the sod and make her come across with the truth."

"Maybe she saw nothing and knows no more than us, this minute," ventured Dennis.

"Then, why did she drop out of sight?" retorted McCarty. "She's either paid to keep out of the way or she's hiding on her own account and which ever it is, by the Lord I am going to dig her out. I wired to that lad in Chicago, Joseph Pangborn, that Mrs. Foxe gave us the address of, but I got no answer and we'll just have a try at the job ourselves."

"I'm with you!"—Dennis cried. "I'll hotfoot it now to the old man and I'll be at your rooms at 11 to-night with my grip."

"And don't bring ten bundles and a bird cage!" admonished McCarty. "We're travelling light."

Dennis arrived punctually on the hour and found McCarty deep in his own packing.

"I've taken a section for the two of us," the latter announced with a grim satisfaction. "Me being fat, I'll have the lower berth, and I'll thank you Denny not to drop your boots on me, as you did when we went to Washington that time after the lad that had old Throckmorten's diamonds."

"We got him, though!" Dennis exulted. "You never went out after anyone yet you didn't get them, Mac, and I've got a hunch that you are not going to fail now."

"Not if I can help it." McCarty rose, red-faced from strapping his bag. "The inspector has a couple of men out looking after the inventor fellow, and we'd do no good be staying here anyway. I'm putting my two eyes and the sense I was born with against Terhune's science, and I'm going to follow the trail to the end, Denny, but the Lord knows what we will find there."

"We'll find the Collins girl," asserted Dennis confidently. "You're thinking Mrs. Doremus told the truth this afternoon, and that Quimby had nothing to do with the murder?"

"As far as she knows, yes. She wouldn't have dared to defy that blackmailing Mary if the girl had anything more on either of them than that Quimby was there at the time. If Marion Rowntree's body fell past her window like she says, it came from either the Foxe's apartment or Antonio's, and between the two that have skipped lies the truth. Come on, or we'll miss the train."

On the way to the station, he drew a folded paper from his wallet, and handed it to Dennis.

"What's this? Small gold and platinum mesh-bag, linked in alternate squares, cab—something—emerald in top, monogram M. R. on the shield.' What does it mean?"

"Do you mind the time soon after the murder, when I told you 'twas funny to me that no purse or hand bag was found? 'Twas unlikely Miss Rowntree would go out, no matter on what errand, without even a powder puff or a thing to hold her small change, yet not a sign of a pocketbook has turned up, though all the apartments in the building have been searched.

"There was none on the body, and every one that's gone out since has been watched, but they have not tried to get rid of it. The chances are that either the girl has it with her, or the young inventor has; if it's the girl and she tries to dispose of it, we can maybe trace her through it. That is the description of the purse Marion Rowntree must have carried, for it has been missing from her things since that night. I called on her aunt this evening and she gave it to me."

"Did you see Quimby, too?" McCarty nodded.

"Mrs. Doremus got in touch with him after we left her this afternoon, and he looked as if he'd had the shock of his life. He told me the same story she did, and it rings true, Denny, I'll have to hand that to him. Whether the girl followed him there that night, or he followed her, and whatever knowledge he may have of her death, he had no active part in it.

"I dropped a few lines to the inspector—in case he wants to let Terhune in on the fact 'twas Quimby who was in Mrs. Doremus's apartment—before one of them, thinking perhaps, he knows already, gives it away. I am playing square with Terhune and I don't want him to think I'm stealing a march on him."

The journey was uneventful, and late in the afternoon of the following day they found themselves nearing their destination. Dennis was visibly suffering from the bond of silence imposed by McCarty, and he carried himself with the air of a gloomy conspirator. Looking carefully about the smoking car he leaned forward, and nudged his companion.

"Mac! There's no one within earshot but that old man in the skull cap, and him buried a hundred miles deep in his book. It's about time I knew where we were heading for, and what we are going to do when we get there."

"If you could tell me that, Denny, I'd thank you!" responded McCarty readily. "The waiting room of the station is the last sign we've got to go by, and after that it'll be a case of following our noses."

"Do you mean to tell me that you have come a thousand miles to go wandering like a loon around the streets asking people if they've met up with Ivy Collins?"

"Whist! Soft pedal on names, Denny. I mean I'm going to size up the lay of the land and figure out from there just what a person would do if they wanted to leave no trail. It's a waste of time to dig up her friends, for she banked on giving all of them the slip and was taking no chances of being recognized either."

"How do you get that?" asked Dennis. "She didn't go to them Platts, because she knew that the police would be after her there for a statement, but as to not being seen——"

"Didn't she do all that she could to change her appearance? I told you what the porter said; can't you dope it out for herself? She put on a different dress, carried her coat inside out and tied a dark veil over her hat. Moreover, she didn't even write that telegram herself. She's slick, and she put it all over the porter, pretending she was too nervous, and getting him to do it, so that her handwriting wouldn't be left behind her. If she's in funds, she'll hang on to that gold purse, not knowing how to get rid of it, but if she's broke she'll put it up."

Dennis's eyes were on the rolling country scudding past the window.

"It seems to me," he remarked, that if she wanted to lose it she might have thrown it off the car. She'd a space of a thousand miles to do it in, and leave never a trace."

McCarty made no reply, and Dennis, glancing up, caught a swift signal of warning.

"Now what the ——" he began, but McCarty rose.

"Let's beat it back to the Pullman," he suggested with elaborate carelessness. "I've smoked till I'm dry, and I've a little something in my bag—"

In the vestibule Dennis seized his arm.

"What took you all of a sudden?" he demanded. "Anyone would think that you had seen a ghost!"

"'Twas the man in the skull cap," returned McCarty. "I had my eye on him and he wasn't asleep, but he never turned a page for five minutes. He was on the job listening, and we'll take no more chances till we are off this train."

"When they finally pulled into the station McCarty got off quickly, looking neither to the right nor to the left, and Dennis followed. Once beyond he gates he stepped to one side, and wheeled, and the man of the smoking car, with a soft straw hat pulled low over his eyes in place of the skull cap, passed them, and walked on to the taxicab stand.

"Did you get that? Right behind us." He nudged Dennis.

"Shall we follow him?" that amateur sleuth suggested eagerly.

McCarty chuckled.

Opportunity Hammering at Your Door

"OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS BUT ONCE"—so goes the old saying. Opportunity to-day is pictured as a giant battering the door, with persistence as well as power.

WHENEVER THE READER OF THE GLOBE opens his paper at one of the Want Ad. pages Opportunity confronts him—as a highly desirable position, as a chance to buy a profitable business, as an offer of a farm. Thousands of readers save money by buying automobiles or machinery, or the various things that appeal to them on these pages.

OPPORTUNITY ALMOST BREAKS THE DOOR DOWN for Teachers. Sometimes eight solid columns are used in one issue to tell of vacancies in schools throughout Canada. No other paper in the world carries as many "Teachers Wanted" ads as THE GLOBE.

THE "HELP WANTED," "BUSINESS CHANCES," "For Sale or Exchange" and the various other classifications give the proof of THE GLOBE'S popularity with Opportunity. To many subscribers its widely-patronized Want Ad. pages are a barometer of business; to the ambitious, they are a special incentive to become daily readers of Canada's National Newspaper.

Canada's National Newspaper

excels in those things that make a newspaper strong, those things that establish confidence among its readers. For instance, accuracy and authority are fundamentals in THE GLOBE'S news services — in war news, especially, a most reassuring fact. Besides the general channels of news, THE GLOBE has the advantage of the exclusive right to the cables of The London Times, The London Chronicle, The New York Times and The Philadelphia Ledger.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about $2, and have a better remedy than the ready-made kind. Easily done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 55 cents and gives you 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, it is splendid.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Germany Short of Food.

The real food situation in Germany is the important puzzle of the war. The United States food administration has got hold of some figures on the standard German ration for noncombatants, which seem to indicate that the Teutons are in desperate straits. Figured in calories, the food value of this ration is only 10,000. This is not sufficient nourishment to keep a man of 140 pounds from losing weight steadily, even if he does nothing but lie on his back for 24 hours a day. If he has work to do, he will eat up his fat and then his muscular tissue, so much the faster. If the figures received by the food administration are correct and are not supplemented by other rations not mentioned, the civilian population of Germany must inevitably be weakening fast

Armenians Choose Girl First, Take Chance on Love.

American Principal of School in Turkey Receives Letter Requesting Any One of Three.

Armenian marriages are always arranged, the question of love not entering, writes Hester Donaldson Jenkins in World Outlook. I remember when the principal of an American school said to one of her teachers who was contemplating matrimony: "I hate to have you go, but I should not mind so much if you loved him," that the Armenian drew herself up indignantly; she would not be so unmaidenly as to love a man before marriage.

An Armenian man generally picks out his own wife, one whom he has seen and approved. But he does not court her; instead he goes to her parents and makes very careful inquiries as to her health, disposition and housewifery, after which he bargains keenly for her dot. Without a dot an Armenian girl may scarcely marry.

The American principal of a school for Armenian girls in Turkey received a great many applications for wives from the Armenian men of the neighborhood. Once she received a letter which read something like this:

"Your Nobleness.

"Mademoiselle: I wish to marry one of the girls in your school. Will you get me little Aznif, her of the curly braids and strong eyebrows? Or if you cannot obtain her for me, then I will take Marian, with the big, black eyes and the shining teeth; or if I cannot have her, I wish Zarroohee, with the straight features and white skin. But do not offer me any other, for I love only these three."

In the same school occurred the unique experience of Schnorrig. Dikran had come to her father and bargained for her. When she was told of her impending marriage she was sulky and sad, for she had read English books and did not wish to be sold to a husband like a bale of rugs. But she left school and let her mother prepare her trousseau. At the formal betrothal she and Dikan met for the first time. When the priest put the question whether she was willing to be betrothed to this man she shocked all the relatives assembled in festive array by a bold "No."

The priest argued with her, and the latter father would probably have forced her by pushing her head forward had not Dikan declared that he liked her spirit and would not have her forced to take him. So the party broke up in tears and lamentations. But the two young people met each other a good deal that winter, naturally taking an interest in each other, so the story ends with a happy marriage after a real American courtship.

Why Swagger Sticks Are Used.

The use of "swagger stick," much in evidence lately among the boys in khaki, has been misunderstood in the United States. In Canada recruits at any time during the last three years have, in certain stages of their training, almost invariably carried these little canes when off duty, not through affection or vanity, but simply because the use of them prevented the young soldiers from slipping their right hands into their trousers pockets. The finished soldier would not think of putting his hand in his pockets, but the soldier in the making is likely, unless constantly on his guard, to be guilty of this breach of the rules. The Canadian youths who jauntily and gayly swung swagger sticks at Valcartier, Quebec and Aldershot, Nova Scotia, even one short year ago, have since become the heroes of Vimy Ridge and Hill No. 70.

Men Over Andes.

The Andes have been crossed for the first time by aeronauts. Two Argentines started in a balloon from Santiago, Chili, and landed four hours later near Mendoza, on the Argentine side.

Whooping Cough

"The disease I most dread is Whooping Cough, for children are often permanently injured by the awful straining of the cough. You should never neglect it, and treatment should be started at the first symptom. You cannot mistake the symptoms: protracted coughing, worse at night; peculiar whoop; labored expectoration of mucus; apparent suffocation after coughing.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is a positive remedy for this disease—repeat the dose frequently, for if given freely it liquifies the tough mucus, makes it easy to expectorate and counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. There is no danger whatever from Whooping Cough when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given."

The best way out is to give you all the value of the premium in the biggest-selling soap in Canada—that's Comfort. The Comfort bar is bigger now—at the same price.

Of course all wrappers, coupons, etc., now out in the stores will be redeemed as heretofore—but get them in early before our present stock of good Premiums is used up. If the new bar isn't in stock yet, the old one is just as good value—with premiums.

PREACHER DREAM, POOR LUCK

Cap'n Jim's Nightmare of Wrong Color According to Official Book, to Benefit Him.

Cap'n Jim was lacin' up his shoes out in the main cabin by the big stove before I took my gittin'-up chew an' got on my pants an' shirt.

The second bell the cook was clangin' on the main deck down below was shakin' the frost off the willows on the bank longside the quarter-boat. After the racket died out Cap'n Jim started his mornin' vision report: "Dreamed of a preacher last night, Dave," he says. "He was standin' up in a skiff an' heavin' eggs at a big lummox of a catfish. What does you perdict that vision means?"

"That's a bad vision, Jim," I says, "an' a hard one to perdict. Wait till I git the book."

I dug the old dream-book out of the trunk in my stateroom. When I got by the stove Cap'n Ed and Cap'n Lafe was there with Cap'n Jim.

"Poverty — Prayer — Preacher. Preacher: if colored, denotes advance in position or inheritance of gold," I read. "Was he white or nigger?"

"White—I think," says Cap'n Jim. "But he might have been some sickly yaller-lookin'."

"If white," the book says, "It portends a reduction of income or a successful business trip."

Cap'n Jim looked discouraged as a froze rabbit. "Where to would I be takin' a business trip, with the dang fleet laid up for the winter an' me cut to mate's pay till the spring work starts. I figger the shrinkin' income part o' that dream's all I'll git."

Cap'n Lafe hauled out the stone with a hole in it that he carried the time him in the Dixie Queen sunk at Settlers Bend. "This here'll ward off the doom, Jim," he says, handin' the stone to Cap'n Jim. I give ol' Jim my rabbit-foot what has kept bad luck away from me many's the time, an' we started in tryin' to recollect some more charms, but just then the flunky cast loose on the breakfast-bell an' we all drifted for'd an' below into the dinin'-hall.—From "A Mushroom Midas," by Hugh Wiley, in Scribner's Magazine.

Crepes and Pongees.

Crepe de chine, in spite of its name, does not come from China but from Japan, Italy and France. There are no factories for making silk piece goods in China, all the weaving being done by hand. With the exception of pongees, the products of the Chinese looms are not popular abroad, except in Oriental countries, being too heavy, although the patterns are wonderfully beautiful and the colors exceedingly rich.

The pongees are woven in the homes of the peasants, and as they come from many looms no two pieces are ever exactly alike in weight, fineness, color and texture. The Shantungs come from the Llutang district, and the Nanshai from the Nighai district.

Mother and Children Had Awful Coughs

WERE CURED BY

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Mrs. Arthur Appleyard, Novar, Ont., writes: "This past winter my children and I had awful colds and coughs which we got by being in drafts. I tried a number of different remedies for us, but got no relief. I thought I would try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and I found it a most excellent and sure cure. It gave relief to the tickling in the throat, and stopped the cough, and with a few bottles we were all cured."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a remedy that has been on the market for over twenty-five years, and we can recommend it as being without doubt, the best cure for coughs and colds that you can posibly procure.

There are a lot of imitations on the market, so when you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get it. Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

READY!

In the newspapers there recently appeared articles telling of the arrival of the American fleet at Queenstown—telling how the Officers of the English Navy had gone to Vice-Admiral Sims and asked him when he would be ready for action. Every American thrilled with pride at his answer—

"WE CAN START AT ONCE."

"READY TO START AT ONCE"—What a wonderful motto for every man, and yet how many of us realize that at any moment we may suddenly be called away from Business, from Home and Friends, from this world of ours to pass in to the Great Beyond.

Are you Mr. Reader, "READY TO START AT ONCE?" Have you made provision for those dependent on you should the call come?

"READY TO START AT ONCE." No man can do more—we cannot afford to do less.

If your loved ones are not already protected against such an emergency you had better act while you have the opportunity. To-morrow may be too late.

LUX and the way to use it

Pour boiling or very hot water over the LUX flakes —"pure essence of soap."

Whisk into a lather. At once you get the richest, creamiest lather you ever saw, which dissolves dirt without rubbing.

After cooling, stir the clothes about in this heavy lather. Do not rub or twist them. Rinse in two or three relays of water of the same temperature you washed them in.

So thoroughly is LUX dissolved that not a trace remains in the garment to discolor it. LUX won't harm anything that pure water alone will not injure. For silks use lukewarm water.

Taking French Leave.

The origin of the phrase to "take French leave" has been the signal for many a philological contest, but the outcome of them, for the most part, has been to increase interest in the question. It has been plausibly suggested that the custom of disappearing unobtrusively from a crowded reception was borrowed by the English from the polite French. Again, it has been suggested that the French, in the phrase, "French leave" is implied in the etymology of the word "frank," meaning free, a permission not granted but assumed. But the question is further muddled by the fact that the French have a phrase, "prendre conge a la maniere Anglaise," or "se retirer a l'Anglaise," with precisely the same significance, with the slit at the English. In Germany the phrase is identical with the English. From Hilpert's German dictionary it would appear that it is more than 100 years old, while the custom which it celebrates, withdrawing without final leave taking, was an established practice in Germany 300 years ago.

FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN.

A child's skin is tender as well as beautiful and eczema may be caused by chafing of clothing, the use of poor soap, exposure to cold or sudden change of temperature. Probably no treatment for eczema has ever proven so successful as Dr. Chase's Ointment, and this applies particularly to baby eczema. This ointment is delightfully soothing, stops the itching and consequently prevents scratching. Gradually the sores are healed up, and the skin is left soft and velvety.

Early Day Buttons.

The ancients lacked buttons—one wonders, indeed, how they got along without them—but evidently they possessed studs of modern pattern, such as those with which we fasten our cuffs and collars. And, in truth, they did even have a kind of button (though not sewn on), which fastened garments with a pin and hook exactly in the way our brooches and clasp pins operate.—Exchange.

Prefer Irregular Lines.

The straight line is an abomination to the Chinese. They endeavor to avoid it in their streets and buildings, and have banished it completely where country field paths are concerned. They will always substitute a curve wherever possible or they will torture it with a zigzag. To the Chinese mind the straight line is suggestive of death and demons.

PUT ONE OVER ON THE GUARD

Challenged Soldier Demanded Sentinel's Name on Pretext of Reporting Him to Lieutenant.

Among the members of the Indiana university ambulance corps at Allentown, says the Indianapolis News, there is one man who from this time on will require, while on guard duty, any person whom he challenges at night to furnish his full pedigree. There is a reason.

Recently while the section was on guard at the camp this man was stationed at a distant post on the grounds, at a place where the guards experience a great deal of trouble with men climbing the fence during the wee hours.

Shortly after one o'clock in the morning the guard saw a man climbing the fence. He hurried up, challenged the man, and asked for an explanation. It was forthcoming.

"Well," said the challenged one, "you are to be congratulated. I have been coming over this fence every night for a week and I have never been challenged before. I would like you to give me your name and your section number, and I will report you to your lieutenant."

In a dazed manner the guard did so and the man walked off. Not until he was "kidded" by his section mates on telling the story did he fall for his being duped. He is now on the trail of the man whose ingenuity saved himself.

PARTY IS SAFE IN LABRADOR

Message Received Indicates Explorers Have Traversed the Peninsula From South to North.

The peninsula of Labrador has been traversed from the south to the north for the first time by a scientific exploring party, according to an announcement by Dr. W. J. Holland, director of the Carnegie museum, at Pittsburgh, following the receipt of a telegram from St. Johns, Newfoundland, announcing the arrival at that point of the expedition, which undertook the journey.

The expedition was jointly financed by the Carnegie museum, the National Geographic society and Alfred Marshall of Chicago, who was a member of the exploring party. In addition to Mr. Marshall, the personnel of the expedition included W. B. C. Todd, the curator of ornithology in the Carnegie museum, and O. J. Murie, the curator of mammals in the same institution. They took with them a number of Indians.

The telegram received by Doctor Holland gave no details of the expedition other than its safety and success. A number of similar attempts by explorers have failed.

Then Head for Statehouse.

Major P. Dale, who has a smokers' establishment in Ohio street, says the Indianapolis News, has a relic of the Civil war that is causing the soldiers of today considerable worry. Major Dale's father, Colonel Dale, was the commander of the Fourth Missouri cavalry during the Civil war. Among the relics left by the colonel was a poster announcing a meeting of soldiers at the statehouse in Jefferson City, Mo. This poster is now the property of the son here.

"Several days ago," says the owner of the poster, "I put the relic in the window of my store, thinking it would interest passersby. The poster calls for a meeting of soldiers at the statehouse at 8 o'clock. I guess I'll have to take it down as the soldiers in town from Ft. Harrison read the thing and then head for the statehouse. They don't observe it closely or they'd discover that it is dated 1863 and that the statehouse mentioned was in Jefferson City, Mo."

Prize Fighters Needed, Too.

"I suppose you're very anxious to become a soldier and fight for your country?" said a physician to a robust young man who came before him for examination. "You look good and I'll pass you. Do you claim exemption?"

"Well, I should say I do," replied the robust young man, in an injured tone. "I wouldn't make a good fighter; I'm sick, I am."

"You're sick?" inquired the physician. "You surprise me. What's the trouble?"

"I'm nervous, doctor," replied the young man.

"You're nervous? What's your occupation?"

"I'm a prizefighter."

"Well, go over and win a few prizes knocking out the enemy and I think your nervousness will wear off. Passed."

Open-Air Schools.

Quite the popular fad in the East is the outdoor school, especially for the very young children. These schools are generally on the porches of the houses where they are held and are thus partly protected, and at the same time get plenty of fresh air. Miss Aimee Harvey, formerly of St. Louis, who spent a year at the Montessori school in Rome a few years ago, has charge of such a school at Lexington, Mass., for the winter, having also taught a summer class out of doors.

Baffled.

"Mr. Dubwaite talks in his sleep and it is causing Mrs. Dubwaite great concern."

"That shows she's a true woman."

"Exactly what I was telling Dubwaite. She's probably worried because she can't understand what he says."

Similarity.

"You say Grafter makes you think of a corkscrew. Why so?"

"Like a corkscrew, he has a pull, but it's on account of his crookedness."—Exchange.

MONEY RUNNING SHORT.

Kaiser's Income Will Not Meet Interest on Debt.

The German announcement that the seventh German war loan had brought in a total of 12,420,000,000 marks, or nominally $3,107,500,000, raised some familiar questions. A total war debt of 74,416,300,000 marks, or $18,104,000,000, has now been created in the seven war loans. On this amount, which excludes Treasury bills outstanding or discounted at the Reichsbank, the annual interest charge is, roughly, $900,000,000. Early in 1916, when Germany was still refusing to impose any heavy war taxation on its people (being still obsessed with the idea of making France and England pay the German war expenses through a stupendous indemnity), it was estimated that about one-sixth of the proceeds of its war loans had to be used to meet interest on the existing war debt.

In another year or two, one-fourth would have to be thus used. Last April the German Government began to put on additional taxes. Those on coal, transportation, and war profits were estimated to bring in $312,000,000. In the fiscal year ending March 31, 1914, the Empire's revenue from all sources except loans were $851,000,000, including $220,000,000 from post and telegraph and $41,000,000 from railroads. In neither of the two succeeding years did total ordinary revenue, according to the budget estimates, rise above $830,000,000.

In the budget for the year ended last March the "special war taxes" brought the ordinary revenue up to $915,000,000; but, as this included $260,000,000 of gross revenue from railways, posts, and telegraph, and printing office, against which there were maintenance charges totalling $218,000,000, it left barely $700,000,000 net. But with interest payments now $900,000,000, this means that even the increased Imperial revenue falls short by about $200,000,000 annually of meeting interest on the war debt, and meantime Treasury bills and new war loans follow one another on the market. Furthermore, the annual interest on that debt now exceeds by nearly $50,000,000 the entire Imperial revenue of the year before the war.

How Glass Beads Are Made.

Most of the world's beads are Venetian. In the island of Murano a thousand workmen are devoted to this work. The first process is to draw the glass into tubes of the diameter of the proposed bead. For this purpose the glass house at Murano has a kind of gallery 150 feet long. By gathering various colors from different pots and twisting them into one mass, many combinations of colors are made. The tubes are carefully sorted by diameters and chipped into fragments of uniform size.

These pieces are stirred in a mixture of sand and ashes, which fills the holes and prevents the sides from closing together when they are heated. They are next placed in a kind of frying pan and constantly stirred over the fire until the edges are rounded into a globular form.

When cool they are shaken in one set of sieves until the ashes are separated, and in another series of sieves until they are perfectly sorted by sizes. They are then threaded by children, who work with wonderful rapidity, tied in bundles, and exported to the ends of the earth.

France has long produced the "pearl beads" which in finer forms are close imitations of pearls. They are said to have been invented by M. Jacuin in 1656. The common variety threaded for ornament is blown from glass tubes.

An expert workman can blow five or six thousand globules in a day. They are lined with powdered fish-scales and filled with wax. It takes sixteen thousand fish to make a pound of scaly essence of pearls.

IRRITATING FORM OF ITCHING PILES

A SOURCE OF CONTINUAL WORRY AND ANNOYANCE—SLEEP AND REST IMPOSSIBLE UNTIL RELIEF IS OBTAINED.

Bridgetown, N.S., February 2.—All classes of people are subject to piles, but especially those who are exposed to dampness. Teamsters, farmers, railroad men and laborers suffer greatly from this distressing ailment.

While there are plenty of remedies recommended as a treatment for Piles, Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only actual and guaranteed cure. It is truly wonderful how the merit of this preparation has become known throughout this continent and Europe.

But when a person has endured the torture of piles, the itching, stinging sensation, the sleepless nights of misery, the annoyance during the day when going about the daily work, he feels grateful for the relief and cure brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment and does not forget to recommend it to his friends.

Mr. E. G. Langley, Bridgetown, N. S., writes: "I have much pleasure in recommending Dr. Chase's Ointment. For about fifteen years I was troubled with piles and all the so called remedies that I used brought me no relief. At last I tried Dr. Chase's Ointment and am glad to say that it has made a complete cure. It is nearly twenty years ago since I was cured and I have never been troubled with piles since. At one time I was away from home travelling a great deal, and I always carried a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment with me. Ever since I was cured I have been recommending it to everyone whom I knew to be troubled with piles."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Cyclist Messengers Satisfactory.

One of the difficulties that has been experienced by infantry following up a retreat, has been the quick transmission of reports and the maintenance of touch with their flanking column, writes a war correspondent. In cyclist training no little time is devoted to perfecting the system of communication, and experience has proved that cyclist messengers are both a speedier and more reliable means of communication than either telephones, which have to be laid, or visual signaling.

Prior to 1914, there were many who asserted that cyclists were too vulnerable to be of use. It has been proved already that they were wrong, even though the character of the war in the West has not been peculiarly favorable to cyclist operations, and that cyclist battalions are and will continue to be one of the most important and valuable arms of the service.

35,000,000 Documents in One Room.

One of the most marvelous organizations in the world is found in the new buildings at Kew of the claims and record department of the ministry of labor. Here the whole work of unemployment insurance, formerly administered from various towns throughout the United Kingdom, is directed.

In one room alone 35,000,000 documents relating to workmen's insurance are housed, and even in this labyrinth it is possible to trace the name and full particulars of any claim in two or three minutes. The efficient working of an intricate and complicated system is carried out almost entirely by a staff of women numbering over 600.

Suggests Decoy Soldier.

We have heard of tin soldiers, but it has remained for J. Burgess, an officer in training at Fort Sheridan, Ill., to bring to our attention a camouflage soldier of papier mache. His plan is to place a large number of these dummy soldiers beside the regular troops on the firing line, to serve as decoys for the Germans. Unable to distinguish between the real and faked soldier, he believes the Germans will waste a great amount of ammunition on the papier mache figures. In this instance every hit will be as good as a miss.—Popular Science Monthly.

Vatican Real Help to Rome.

It is perhaps the Vatican that constitutes the best and surest antiaerial weapon. The pope lives within its walls, and Austria, the most Catholic monarchy, will send no bombs to Rome, says an exchange. As the capital of Italy, Rome would perhaps not be spared, but a stray bomb on the Vatican would trouble the consciences of the dual monarchy more than the slaughter of any number of innocent noncombatants and create complications for the imperial government greater than they care to face. It is doubtful whether even Protestant Germany would care to affront the conscience of a not inconsiderable part of its population. There have been no formal assurances given to that effect—if they exist they have not been made public—yet there seems to be a tacit understanding that because of the pope's presence Rome is to be respected.

Thus, this city of many vicissitudes, though prayer and fasting are as much out-of-date as a means of defense as the "terror by night" that haunted the old monks of Subiaco, carries within herself a purely spiritual defense more powerful than any girdle of steel.

Occupation.

"I failed to reach you by telephone either at your office or at your home. Don't you work any more?"

"Of course I work," protested Mr. Chuggins.

"Where about?"

"On a street corner or in the middle of a country road—any old place the flivver happens to quit on me."

Nickel Is Out of Date.

It is announced by the press of one of the large cities in the United States that its 5 and 10 cent stores are to be supplemented with 25-cent stores. This looks very much as if, in the course of time, the old-fashioned and once popular dollar store would find its way back.

SLUGGISH LIVER CAUSES LOTS OF TROUBLE

When the liver becomes sluggish it is an indication that the bowels are not working properly, and if they do not move regularly many complications are liable to set in.

Constipation, sick headache, bilious headache, jaundice, heartburn, water brash, catarrh of the stomach, etc., all come from a disordered liver.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are a specific for all disease or disorders arising from a slow, sluggish, lazy or torpid liver, and they have been universally used throughout Canada for over 20 years with the greatest success.

Mrs. W. A. Harrison, 7 Poplar Grove, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you concerning the great good I have received by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills for a sluggish liver. When my liver got bad I would have severe headaches, but after using a couple of vials of your pills, I have not been bothered any more."

DOVER IS BOMBARDED BY AN ENEMY SUBMARINE

German Undersea Boat Fired Thirty Rounds at British Port, Inflicting a Few Casualties, Including One Child Killed ---Lancashire Troops Make Successful Raid--Heavy Shelling North of Lens Where Canadians Are Holding the Line.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 16.—An enemy submarine bombarded Dover early this morning, it is officially announced. The submarine was fired on from the shore and ceased the bombardment, after some thirty rounds had been fired. There were less than a dozen casualties, and only slight damage.

The official statement reads: "Fire was opened upon Dover by an enemy submarine 12.10 o'clock this morning, the firing continuing for three or four minutes. The casualties were, killed one child, injured three men, one woman and three children. Slight damage was caused to house property."

Yesterday morning German destroyers, in a raid in the Straits of Dover, sank eight British patrol ships which, according to an Admiralty official statement, were looking for German submarines.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(Official).—A successful raid was carried out by Lancashire troops early last night in the neighbourhood of the Ypres Staden Railway. Eleven prisoners were taken by our troops and our casualties were slight. The hostile artillery was active in the course of the night north of Lens and opposite Labassee and Wytschaete.

(By W. S. Forrest.)

PARIS, Feb. 16.—Roumania is vastly disappointed at President Wilson's failure to mention her in his latest message to the world, I learned on excellent authority to-day.

If official encouragement is given to Roumania during this critical juncture, I understand, it will be of the greatest importance in helping to stand off the present menace from the Central Powers and the Russian Bolsheviki.

The country's morale is of the best, and the army is still an important combative force, but encouragement of both diplomatic and the army is imperative.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 16.—Warsaw has been placed under martial law by the Germans, as a result of the high feeling of the Polish population against the Central Powers, despatches received here to-day declared.

The streets are guarded by heavy cordons of policemen and soldiers to prevent huge demonstrations planned by workmen's organizations. Most of the theatres and restaurants have been closed.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 16.—"Everything is attainable, once the peoples of the world begin talking with one another without claiming infallibility," declared Prince Max of Baden, in an interview in Berlin.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 16.—"Real peace negotiations between the Central Powers and Roumania have not been opened, but preliminaries have begun," declared the Berlin despatch received here to-day. It added that Foreign Minister Kuelmann would leave for Bucharest, the former capital of Roumania, now in the hands of the Austro-Germans.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 16.—The Bulgarian Government has resumed diplomatic relations with Russia, according to a despatch received from Sofia to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 16.—There is much feeling against the Central Powers in Warsaw, the capital of Russian Poland, and great excitement prevails, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. The workmen are said to be planning demonstrations. The streets are being patrolled by soldiers and policemen.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The belief that a big naval engagement has occurred is expressed in despatches received in Stockholm from Gothenburg. The despatches reports the recovery of a large number of bodies of German sailors who apparently belonged to a warship. Gothenburg is on the western coast of Sweden, and is near Skager-Rak.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Feb. 16.—The French last night made successful raids near Vauquois, bringing back prisoners. The French repulsed reconnoitering parties in Upper Alsace.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, Feb. 16.—Germany has countermanded her transfer of troops from the Eastern to the Western front, because of the failure of the Brest-Litovsk peace negotiations, according to a despatch from Russia, published in the Idea Nazionale to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, Feb. 16.—That "peace is nearer than ever," was the unofficial belief spoken in Vatican circles to-day.

The Vatican has learned from Papal Nuncios, it was stated, that President Wilson's latest speech favourably impressed the Democratic and Pacifist parties in Austria and Germany, particularly the former.

DAY SHUNTING ON PARK STREET DURING WAR GRANTED C.G.E.

Dominion Railway Board Accedes to Request of the Local Company Because of Increased Special Work

MR. R. C. BRAUND AGAINST IT

An application of the C. P. R. to permit the shunting of cars over their industrial spurs to the plant of the Canadian General Electric Company, at Peterboro, during the day as well as the night, was granted for the duration of the war, by the Dominion Railway Board in Toronto, yesterday, the Board consiging this concession justified because of the volume of business done by the company.

"I built my business there before they came," said R. C. Braund, who protested against the use of the siding during the day. "I should have some redress. These corporations and the city should not benefit at my loss. Farmers cannot allow their rigs to stand outside my store because of the shunting."

E. G. Patterson, superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Company, stated that his company had invested $500,000 in the business for which the siding had been built. There was no restriction on day usage when the city gave permission to build the siding. Such restriction would cause serious delays, inasmuch as 75 per cent. of the company's work was munitions manufacture.

Chairman Scott said the board had put a restriction on the shunting to protect Mr. Braund, but that the amount of war work done at the company's plant made the removal of the restriction necessary.

CAPT. DUNSFORD AT HALIFAX

Peterboro' Officer Among Those Arriving on Hospital Ship To-day

Canadian Press Despatch,

HALIFAX, Feb. 16.— An hospital ship with 772 officers and men, including several cot cases, arrived today the majority of the passengers go forward by rail to-day to their homes or their respective military districts.

Capt. Martin Dunsford, of Peterborough, is among the passengers. He was wounded some time ago.

SOCIALISTS ARE GAINING

Movement is Increasing in Strength Daily and its Influence will be Widely Felt During Next Few Months

FAVOUR PEACE NOW

Canadian Press Despatch:

NEW YORK, Feb. 16. — German newspapers received here to-day indicate the growing strength in Germany of the Radical Socialist movement, which is in favour of immediate stoppage of fighting and opposed to all votes of credit in the Reichstag for war purposes.

This movement has now grown to a standing of a serious political party, with many members in the Reichstag and various Municipal Councils of the German Empire. They also persist in their antagonism to the Monarchial system. It is evident that this party will make its influence widely felt in Germany this year.

BRITISH DRIFTERS WERE SURPRISED BY QUICK ATTACK

Armed Only With Light Anti-Submarine Guns They Did Not Have a Chance When Enemy Destroyers Dashed Among Them in the Dark

SHOWED COOL COURAGE

Canadian Press Despatch:

DOVER, Feb. 16.—The weather was thick and the night was very dark when German destroyers dashed upon British patrol vessels in the Strait of Dover early Friday morning and sank eight of them.

The patrol vessels, being equipped only with light armament for anti-submarine work, did not have a chance once the Germans got among them.

The risk thus taken is shared by great numbers of trawlers and drifters operating in all weather and at all hours, yet the proportion of losses has been remarkably small.

On the latest occasion the crews bore themselves with the same coolness and courage that drifter men have shown in innumerable circumstances of danger and difficulty.

In one noteworthy incident the drifter was shelled at close quarters by two German destroyers, whose thirty pound shells killed all of the crew except two and set the drifter afire. The two survivors seeing their craft ablaze, and believing it would sink, launched a boat. They had not rowed far when they saw the vessel was still afloat and the enemy retiring. They returned, put out the fire and brought the drifter to port.

BETTER FREIGHT SERVICE TO GO INTO EFFECT SOON

Canadian Press Despatch,

MONTREAL, Feb. 16.—Revolutionary changes in local freight arrangements in Ontario will go into effect very shortly by order of the Canadian Railway War Board. The idea will be to move freight cars by the shortest route from point to point no matter what lines it covers. In some cases short connections between railroads will have to be built and this will be done as soon as the frost is out of the ground. The change will mean quicker local service.

THREE MONTHS FURLOUGH FOR MARRIED 1st DIVISION MEN

First Batch Leaves the Front For Canada—The Maple Leaf Troops Pull Off Successful Raid at Hill 70 and Near Haigicourt.

OFFICERS DECORATED

OTTAWA., Feb. 16. — The statements in a morning cable to the effect that some 700 married men with the families who went over with the first contingent, is confirmed by the Militia Department here to-day.

For some time past strong efforts have been made to secure a furlough for non-coms and men of the First Contingent. The question, however, was fraught with considerable difficulties, but it has now been found possible to secure for these veterans three months' leave to visit their families.

The privilege is granted on the specific stipulation that the men return at the expiration of that time, and that no extensions will be granted. Already 700 have applied for the furlough. The men will be brought to Canada just as rapidly as shipping facilities will permit. Every possible arrangement will be made to welcome the veterans home in a manner worthy of their record.

(By W. A. Willison, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press.)

Canadian Army Headquarters in France, Feb. 15. — To-night more than one hundred officers of the original First Expeditionary Force, who landed in France in the middle of February, 1915, met at dinner to commemorate their arrival three years ago, while at the first of the week the first batch of married N.C.O.'s and men of the original force left the front on a three-months' furlough to Canada. Altogether, nearly seven hundred married men have applied for this special veterans' leave, which Canada has made possible by the striking support of its forces in the field.

Raid Near Lens.

On the eve of an historic dinner to commemorate the arrival of the First Canadian Division in France, three years ago, the Canadians raided the enemy lines near Hill 70, and in front of Lens, capturing a total of ten prisoners and two machine guns. At approximately the same time far south, at Hargicourt, other Canadians again crossed one thousand yards of No Mans Land, took 18 prisoners and two machine guns, destroyed four trench mortars, and bombed both the enemy's front and support lines.

The raid in the Hill 70 sector, which was carried out early yesterday morning, was supported by a heavy barrage from our artillery, to which the enemy replied with straggling artillery fire. He also offered strong resistance with machine gun and rifle fire; but our veteran troops broke into the line, returning with six prisoners and two machine guns as proof of the success of the operation.

At 6 o'clock this morning in front of Lens Canadian troops, operating in two parties, gave the nervous enemy another decisive taste of Canadian mettle. The operations, which were covered by artillery, trench mortar and machine gun barrages, were carried out by two parties. On the left little opposition was encountered, the attackers capturing three prisoners and two machine guns. On the right the party was held up by close-range machine gun fire, but succeeded in capturing one prisoner.

These raids confirm the presence of crack German troops opposite the Canadians, the prisoners taken belonging to the First Guards Regiment.

Late this morning Canadian Headquarters was the scene of a pleasing ceremony, in which Belgium, honouring the Canadian Corps, gave a striking appreciation of the value of Canadian service at Passchendaele and in other historic combats in the salient. Fourteen Canadian officers were decorated by Gen. Sir H. S. Horne, commanding the First Army, with the Belgian Croix de Guerre. The same decoration has been awarded to six other officers and 187 non-comissioned officers and men.

BRITISH LABOUR IS BACK OF THE NATION

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—British labour is back of the nation to the finish in the war of making the world safe for democracy, W. A. Appleton, Secretary of the British Federation of Trades and head of the British mission to the United States, declared to-day.

"British workers are backing up the Government and the war aims of the Entente like a stone wall," Appleton declared. "Ninety-nine per cent. of the workers are solid in their determination to stamp out Kaiserism."

DOG MEAT COMMON FOOD WHILE CROWS ARE LUXURY NOW

Conditions in Germany Are Appalling---Cabbage Crop Was a Failure and Grain Crop Was Below Normal--Fats Are Almost Totally Lacking---Beer Famine Grows Too.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner)

(By Wm. Philip Simms—Copyright 1918 by United Press)

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 16.—Hindenburg is squeezing the Germans like an octopus, a sponge.

Even if there is little complaint in the army over food, Germany and Austria are starving.

The situation was bad six months ago; it is infinitely worse to-day.

The last cabbage crop was a failure. Next to the potato the cabbage is the German masses' standby. Like an Egyptian plague, the caterpillars destroyed the crop, stalk and all. It is said that a wind blew the butterflies from France, producing the devastating army of caterpillars. The plum crop likewise was a failure owing to the weather. The Germans boast a plum tree for each man, woman and child. Marmalade is one of the mainstays of the masses. Now there is practically none.

The last grain crop was below normal, despite reports to the contrary. It was due to lack of nitrate for fertilizer. Practically all nitrates, now principally manufactured out of the air, are used in explosives. Bread is therefore shorter than ever. It is not only mixed with potato flour, but with a powder made from turnips, carrots, chestnuts, etc., from which the poisonous by-products have been chemically extracted.

The German people have a saying—"The very stars fight against us."

ARE EATING DOGS.

Dogs are eaten to such an extent, that the breed has practically disappeared in certain districts. Crows are becoming a delicacy. Fats are almost totally lacking. The weekly fat ration some time ago was 82½ grams, including lard, butter, etc. The Canadian child spreads on its after school tart more butter than the entire week's ration in Germany. I have heard again the story that corpses are reduced for fats. Two nurses claim to have seen the process. Whether it is true or untrue, the story refuses to down.

The beer famine is growing. This is equally as great a blow to the masses as the bread famine. The Sundrat reduced malt allowances for next brewing year to 13 per cent. for Bavaria and 10 per cent. for North Germany, as against 35 per cent. last year.

DEATH-RATE APPALLING.

German Bohemia is suffering intensely. The death-rate is appalling. Cracow and the vicinity have been drained of every mouthful, which has been sent to other parts of Austria and Germany, regardless of the most primary needs of the district. Women carrying starving babies parade the streets demanding bread and peace. Pillaging and wrecking are common occurrences, while troops from other parts of the Empire steadily shoot demonstrators down.

Hindenburg is sweezing Germany and Austria dry to keep up the army. This army he and Ludendorff propose to feed into the man of another offensive. The masses are aready asking the "why" of it all. The Hindenburg party replies with promises of an early, miraculous peace.

But the handwriting is on the wall. Nothing short of a miracle can prevent disaster to the Kaiser's crowd when the duped masses demand a reckoning.

THE WAR VETERANS.

There is an evident and growing need for a better spirit, and a clearer understanding of the general attitude adopted in Peterboro toward the Great War Veterans. The remarks of Mayor Duncan at Thursday's meeting of the council, in opposing a grant to the G.W.V.A., clearly indicate that His Worship, along with many other citizens, has failed to comprehend the nature of the Association or the calibre of its members. Some of the Veterans themselves are not free of responsibility for this attitude on the part of the citizens. A few of them have come home with the idea that since they offered themselves for service the State owes them an easy living for the rest of their lives, and with the sentiment, too, that they are going to run everything in general to suit themselves. These few Veterans, however, should not be taken to represent the whole body of returned men in Peterboro any more than the citizens of Peerboro would want to be represented in the eyes of the outside world by some of the men who manage to get into the City Council.

If the Mayor knew the whole membership of the Great War Veterans' Association, he would have hesitated to use the expressions he employed in his address the other evening. The Peterboro branch contains over 225 members, some of them with a record of nearly three years at the front. Some have lost an arm, some a leg, and scores more will carry the scars of German bullet or shrapnel for the rest of their existence. These men are not "chocolate soldiers." They are men who have held the "Salient," men who went over the top at Courcelette and at Vimy Ridge, men who have held fast during the horrible gas attack at Ypres, when the Canadians blocked the way to Calais. Let His Worship read the application forms on file with the Veterans' secretary, or the discharge sheets of these men, and he will form a different opinion of the Association.

THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT.

The figures made public by Sir Robert Borden as to the result of the call for men to reinforce Canada's troops at the front should be published broadcast among the people of Quebec by advertisement if necessary—so that they may understand the true condition of affairs, says the Toronto Globe. Under voluntary recruiting during three and a half years of war the French-Canadians failed to send enough men to the front to do much more than make good the wastage in the Twenty-Second Battalion — the one distinctively French-Canadian unit among the forty-eight front-line battalions of the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

This failure of Quebec to pull its weight in the boat, and its inevitable result in drying up the stream of voluntary recruiting in the other Provinces, made the adoption of the Military Service Act necessary. The young men of English-speaking Canada were manifestly hanging back until the Government provided for a "square deal". The only way in which substantial justice could be done and the burden of the war could be borne equitably was by calling out all the fit men in all the Provinces by classes, subject to appeal for exemption on the ground of domestic obligations or industrial need. The selective draft was regarded as a fair method of securing the required infantry reinforcements which could no longer be obtained by voluntary enlistment.

The unmarried men between twenty and thirty-four were called to the colours two months ago. Up till February 9th, 20,507 men of this class, whose appeals for exemption had been determined or who had made no appeal, had been ordered to report for duty, and 16,786 had reported. The Montreal and Quebec military districts were called on to provide 2,389 men. Of these only 1,716 men were in uniform on February 9th. Why is it that the Province of Quebec—containing over a fourth of the population of Canada—has contributed, under the Military Service Act, which is supposed to provide for an equitable levy upon the manhood tenth of the men so far obtained under the first call to the colours? The reason is obvious. The people of Quebec have taken advantage of the exemption provision of the law to a degree that was not considered possible when the measure was framed. In the district of Montreal alone 55,876 men claimed exemption before the tribunals, and only 4,297 of these claims were disallowed. Most of the men ordered into uniform appealed, while the Militia Department appealed against many thousands of the exemptions granted. The result is that out of a total of 52,165 claims for exemption still to be heard before the tribunals or on appeal throughout the Dominion, 33,280 are pending before the tribunals and Appeal Courts of Quebec Province. While the draftees in the other Provinces are being put into uniform the Quebec courts are so congested with appeals that months must elapse before that Province provides its quota under the calls already made. Unless the war drags on into 1919 thousands of the youth of Quebec drawn for service and havnig no reasonable ground for evading the call, will not be trained in time to take their places in the firing line.

Do the people of Quebec know the facts? Should not the situation be put before them in plain terms as a preliminary to prompt action by the Government to relieve the congestion? The Globe believes that there are very many people in Quebec Province who would welcome such action as a means of restoring the balance and securing the equitable enforcement of the law. At the present time, and for months to come, English-speaking Canada, unless the Quebec appeals are speedily disposed of, will continue under conscription to supply an undue proportion of the reinforcemnts required, as for three under voluntary enlistment.

UNSINKABLE SHIPS.

News that means have been found to make transports immune to torpedo attacks is much more encouraging and credible than are stories to the effect that a way has been discovered of freeing the seas of submarines. The former appeals to reason as a probable development, while the latter requires too great stretching of the imagination. If the United States' inventors have accomplished the rendering of vessels unsinkable even when a huge hole is torn in their hulls, they have rendered a service not only useful in war but in peace, and it is a life-saving, not a lifestaking, discovery. All honour to them.

Necessity is the mother of invention. It is an old saw and true. The submarine warfare conducted by Germany has made the unsinkable ship a necessity to the Allies. It has always been highly desirable that such vessels be built, and there have been occurrences, at intervals, when the great need for them has been brought home forcibly, such as the loss of the Titanic and the Empress of Ireland. But it is only when such disasters become numerous and so close together that they cannot be forgotten that a real effort is made to eliminate them, and war has brought this condition.

With the ship proof against sinking on account of collisions, whether with other vessels or icebergs, and able to stay afloat after tearing the hull on hidden rocks, ocean traffic will lose most of its danger. It will be a big step forward. Of course all these reports, however probable, must be taken with a grain of salt until the evidence is conclusive, and it should not be overlooked that Mr. Saunders, who announces the unsinkable ship, is the man who announced some time ago that means had been found of doing away with the submarine menace, and whose statements were repudiated later by the American authorities.—London Advertiser.

THE DOG CATCHER.

It will soon be three weeks since the City Council authorized the appointment of a dog catcher, and the hounds are still running at large. The proposal to stage a round-up promises to find a place in the cemetery of civic ventures with any others of its kind.

GREATER PRODUCTION.

Now would be a good time for Ald. Dobbin to inaugurate a greater production campaign for city gardeners instead of waiting for the growing period. This summer will see an extension of the movement which was initiated last year.

"HEAR! HEAR!"

Baron Beaverbrook takes charge of Britain's propaganda department. It is to be hoped he will show more interest and originality than he did as "eye-witness."—London Advertiser.

During the recent soft spell it was very unpleasantly brought to the notice of pedestrians the value of keeping the sidewalks free of snow in the winter time. This has been an exceptional winter no doubt, and it may be that it is the reason why only in isolated cases are the walks kept clean. The thaw of last week brought with it a condition on our streets that forced many people to walk through slush and water that, to say the least, was unpleasant, and must have been dangerous to the health of many.

Of the few places where this condition did not exist might be mentioned a stretch on St. Joseph street, Margaret and Homewood avenue. The householders there all through the winter have kept their walks bare of snow and when the thaw came it was a pleasant relief to shake the water and slush off the boots on the dry walk. This is something that everyone could well perform for the city in their own and their neighbours' interests. It is not to be expected that the city could do more than what can be accomplished by the snow plough, but it would be a very pleasant condition if citizens would supplement the work of the plough by making the walk in front of their property, immediately after a storm, entirely free of snow—and they should.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

A MASTER OF STYLE.

Turgency is One of the World's Greatest Writers.

"Turgenev is the purest of stylists, the first classical prose writer of his country," Dr. Charles Sarolea insists in his book, "Great Russia." "Like Pushkin, he had the most intimate knowledge and mastery of the resources and the riches of the Russian tongue. 'I remember once, when in the Crimea, and wishing to learn the Russian language, I asked Maxim Gorky what would be the best method to follow. Gorky, the least artistic, the least Westernized of writers, sent me first of all to Turgenev. It is a fact that foreigners begin their study of Russian by reading Turgenev. It is he who initiates them into the secrets of the most complex, the most finely graded, the most varied and the most subtle of modern languages—perhaps of all languages the sole heir to the genius of the Greek tongue.

"But Turgenev is still more; he is a master of European literature. His horizon is as limited and monotonous as the horizon of the steppes. He works with certain ever-recurring types of lovers, proprietors, peasants, intellectuals, and revolutionaries. If his talent remains personal and original, if he has not copied from his predecessors, he is forever copying himself. But in his limited world, which is his own, Turgenev is without a rival. The best judges in all countries — Merimee, Taine, and Hennequin in France; Brandes in Denmark; Henry James in America; Galsworthy in England—have recognized, in spite of the obscuring medium of translation, the mastery of his art. He has color, meaning, order, composition. He has moderation and proportion. He knows how to sum up a situation in a few lines; how to draw a character with a few strokes. He has none of the tedious speeches which make Dostoevsky and sometimes Tolstoy so ardeunt to read. He excels in telling a story."

"As an artist Turgenev seems to have profited by all of his experiences, even by the harshness of the censorship; and the failings of mankind ministered to his art no less than its virtues. Narrowly watched by censors, he was forced into those reticences and reserves, and into that veiled delicacy of illusion which heightens artistic effect. He had no illusions about his characters, but maintained throughout a Shakespearian objectivity toward them. But being a fatalist he believed in the immutability of his characters and made them all act according to the strict logic of their temperaments."

Sir Mackenzie's Beard.

The late Sir Mackenzie Bowell had worn a beard for almost 50 years, and all due to an incident that occurred in 1859. In writing to J. G. Elliott, past president of the Canadian Press Association, expressing regret that he could not attend the convention last June in Toronto, and to accept a gavel made from the wood of the building in which the organization was formed, he wrote: "On my return home after three days' absence in Kingston attending the Provincial Fair and the organization meeting of the Canadian Press Association, and not having shaved, my good wife expressed a wish that I would go and shave, that I looked rather forlorn. I turned and told her that I never would shave any more, and I have never shaved since." The incident is now told in connection with the former Premier's death.

Defaulters Under Military Service Act Are To Be Rounded Up

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—The day of the defaulter is past. For the man who disregarded the Military Service Act the army is inescapable. After weeks and months of preparation, the system by which defaulters are to be apprehended has been completed. Starting to-day, the Dominion Police, under the Department of Justice, is undertaking a vigorous and relentless campaign that will catch in the toils every man in Canada in Class One, who cannot show reason why he should not be in the army.

Henceforth any male person in the Dominion of Canada, who looks to be of the age of the men in Class One, is liable, at any time, and in any place, to be approached by persons with authority, and asked to "stand and deliver." If they are legally free from being in the army, the onus of proof is on them. If the man accosted makes the plea that he is married, he must produce a certified copy of his marriage certificate, or he will be apprehended and held in custody until he proves that he is married. If he is over, or under, the age, he must produce a certified copy of his birth certificate. If he is exempt, he must produce his exemption certificate. If he is an American citizen, he must produce his registration card, or his United States citizenship papers, or a certificate from the American Consul. If he is a citizen of another country, he must produce evidence to that effect, or remain in custody until he does so.

No Third Degree.

When a man is taken in custody it does not mean that he is to be put through any third degree ordeals. He will simply be taken to the headquarters of the Dominion Police and treated with all consideration until he proves his case. For instance, in Toronto, a man who has no proof on him will be taken to Dominion Police Headquarters in the Old Board of Trade building. If he claims that he is married he will be asked to name some person who knows that he is married. He will be allowed to call that person up by telephone, or to telegraph to him, or to telephone long distance to him, and in all cases the expense will be borne by the country and not by the accused. If the Dominion Police are satisfied that he should not be in the army, he will be released. If he requires several days to prove his case, he will be held at camp until he does so. If he cannot prove that he should not be in the army, he will be put into uniform.

If a young man is apprehended on the streets of Toronto, and it is found that he claims that he is married, or over age, and works, say, with some well-known firm in the city, the Dominion police will call up that firm, and if it backs up the statement of the accused, he will be released; or if the Dominion police decided that he was telling a true story, he will be asked to report back with evidence in support of his contention next day, and relased until then. An out-of-town man will have more trouble, but if he can obtain evidence in any way, he will be allowed to do so, and at no expense to himself. Until the evidence is forthcoming he will be held in custody.

Police at Work.

In Toronto the Dominion police have already been working in a quiet way. Sixty-one men have been apprehended to date and their claims investigated. Forty-six produced satisfactory evidence that they were not liable to the draft. Fifteen were put into the army. In addition there were 136 cases investigated which were brought to the attention of the Dominion police by means of anonymous letters and similar methods.

A great number of men in Category E failed to register, being of the opinion that they would not be in the army anyway, because of unfitness. These men are all to be apprehended and brought to Dominion police headquarters. They will have to explain why they did not comply with the terms of the proclamation. Unless obviously unfit, they will likely have to undergo another medical examination. If placed higher than Category E, they will be put in the army. If they still remain in Category E they probably will be exempted, but they will learn that the law is to be obeyed and may run the risk of prosecution in the courts.

General in Whole Country.

This process of tapping on the shoulder men of military age is not to be confined to Toronto, but will occur in every place of any size in the whole country. Dominion police are stationed at "strategic points" so that they can gather in promptly persons in rural districts who have been reported to them as not complying with the law. There will be no use of a defaulter travelling from one place to another. The trail of the policeman is over them all. All trains are watched; the travelling public, no matter where, may be required to show evidence as to why each and all are not in the army.

Exemption Certificates.

All men in Class One must produce an exemption certificate. If the time of exemption has expired, they still are free if the Dominion police are satisfied that they are not disregarding a call from the Registrar. If the accused pleads that he is too old or too young, then the evidence that he must obtain is a certified birth certificate. If he pleads that he is married then he must carry with him a certified marriage certificate and so on. In other words, whatever evidence he has must be documentary. Of course that word "must" is only friendly advice. He does not require to carry any evidence if he does not wish to. But the result of that course of action will be his apprehension, and he will be held until the evidence is produced. Much trouble will be saved by preparing a document, which the Dominion police, on demand of its production, will at once accept.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys, and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble

American Troops Abroad Require 100 Pounds Daily

MILLION MEN IN FRANCE WILL CONSUME 11,500 TONS OF BEEF MONTHLY.

Chicago. — To maintain the American army in France one hundred pounds of gross tonnage a day must be landed at French ports for each man according to Captain Earl J. Zimmerman, executive officer in the depot quartermaster's department here.

"The American people have no conception of the quantity of supplies needed for the men 'over there,' said Captain Zimmerman, "nor of the difficulty of getting it to them. For example, it takes 23,000,000 pounds of frozen beef each month to feed a million soldiers.

MEN ON GARRISON RATIONS.

In explaining the food supply of the American soldiers abroad, and the the manner in which it must be sent, Captain Zimmerman gave a general picture of the difficulties of the quartermaster's corps in constantly maintaining a sufficient quantity of food.

According to his statement, the men in France are on a "garrison ration" —the same as soldiers at cantonments in this country. This ration is five pounds a man each day. This weight, however, includes eating utensils and container. For a million men 150,000,000 pounds of rations a month are required, amounting to 4,000 carloads.

WHAT MILLION MEN EAT.

A list of the food required for a million men for 30 days would include the following:

23,000,000 pounds of frozen beef.
37,500,000 pounds of flour.
6,000,000 pounds of bacon.
2,000,000 cans of beef.
1,000,000 cans of corned beef hash.
1,000,000 cans of corned beef hast.
3,000,000 pounds of sugar.
2,400,000 pounds of coffee.
973,000 pounds of butter.

At all times, Captain Zimmerman said, a thirty day supply is maintained in France.

RAILWAYS CLEAR OF SNOW TO THE TIES.

In Many Places and Bare Spots Have Appeared in Fields.

The recent mild weather left long stretches of railway clear of snow down to the ties, according to reports from G.T.R. conductors, and in fields the bare earth has appeared, where formerly it was a foot or more under snow. The material results of the thaw are plainly evident in the country, and if the snow continues to melt in just as easy stages there should be no trouble from the expected floods.

The G.T.R. has been rushing grain shipments east through Peterborough all week, and if the present weather conditions prevail for some time the total movement will reach a very appreciable quantity.

GRAIN CARS OFF.

Broken Rail on Orillia Line Gave G.T.R. Men an Extra Job.

A broken rail is believed to have caused the run off on the G. T. R. near Gamebridge, above Blackwater Junction, on Thursday night, when twelve or fourteen cars bumped the rails and created a heavy job for the wrecking crew in restoring order. The cars were loaded with grain and their cargoes were near capacity.

MANY WAR TROPHIES.

Captures by Canadians Have Been Safely Preserved.

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—Canada has secured a record of her war achievements in the way of trophies, according to Dr. A. G. Doughty, Dominion Archivist.

At Baltimore five large carloads of Canadian trophies have been arranged in an exhibition building, and will bear testimony during the new Liberty Loan campaign to the exploits of the Canadian troops, as well as provide an comprehensive object lesson of the war in all its phases — German cannon and machine guns captured at Ypres, Festubert, Courcelette, and Vimy; German aeroplanes, helmets taken from the officers of the Kaiser's crack regiments, uniforms and badges, posters and proclamations.

In fact, Dr. Doughty states that even if Canada were to get nothing more she would have sufficient material to form one of the finest war-museums in the world.

THIMBLE AND TRINKET CAMPAIGN NEXT WEEK

The Ontario W.C.T.U. is endeavouring to raise a fund of $25,000 for free tea, coffee, cocoa and lemonade.

The National Y.M.C.A., whom the Ontario W.C.T.U., is aiding, will need $50,000 to cover their free drinkables.

The W.C.T.U. has already sent to France, mainly for this purpose, about $11,000; but the need grows more insistent.

In addition to the free drinkables, the Ontario W.C.T.U. has become responsible for the cost of printing a weekly leaflet of cheer and spiritual help, which is being sent through the mails to all the soldiers in the forward trenches, who express a desire to receive it. The appreciation of the men this bit of comfort can be judged by the fact that in one division alone and within one month after the issue began, 15,000 soldiers asked that their names be entered on the "Pay-book Leaflet" list—the leaflets being so named from the fact that they are designed to fit into the soldier's pay-book.

To aid in raising the necessary funds, the W.C.T.U. of this city will hold a Silver Thimble and Trinket Days on 18th, 19th and 20th of February, when they will ask every citizen to look throughout their possessions for broken, useful, unwanted bits of gold and silver trinkets, discarded jewellery or table silver, solid or triple-plated. Any of the following articles will be thankfully received, and the proceeds of thir sale used for the above purpose:

Old gold or silver thimbles, bracelets, brooches, rings, chains or links of chains, scarf pins, old gold or silver watches, odd muff links, studs, gold or silver tops of canes or umbrellas, watch charms, broken spoons, forks, or toilet articles in sterling silver or triple-plate, coins in gold or silver, which have been monogrammed or punched.

All these articles will be melted down and the proceeds used to flood the forward trenches with the harmless drink our boys so need.

Articles that would bring more money if sold than as scrap will be sold.

Music & Drama

"THERE SHE GOES."

One of the best musical comedies of the season was staged last evening in the Grand Opera House, when "There She Goes" was presented by Harvey D. Orr. The production is featured by an abundance of music, pretty girls and elaborate costumes. It is full of funny situations and includes dances of every known variety. The characters are good and the stage settings excellent. The musical programme contains a variety of new song hits, in which a number of clever girls participate. The production is one of those delightful musical pieces like its predecessor, "The Million Dollar Doll." It is a good show and is well handled by a good all-round company of star performers.

PENNA COAL OUTPUT.

January Figures Show Decrease, but Figures Considered Good.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15. — The shipments of anthracite in January, as reported to the Anthracite Bureau of Information and announced today, amounted to 5,638,383 tons, a decrease of 303,342 tons compared with January, 1917, and 60,562 tons less than the December figures. The bureau states the figures are a good showing, in view of the fact that January was the coldest month in a generation in the anthracite regions.

The total shipments for the first ten months of the coal year, which began April 1, amount to 64,663,456 tons. This is an increase of 9,054,374.

LIKE BOLT FROM HEAVEN'S BLUE

A happy discovery of Cincinnati chemist interests' women here

Your high heels have put corns on your toes and calluses on your feet, but why care now?

A genius in Cincinnati discovered a magic ether compound and named it freezone. A quarter ounce of this freezone can now be had at any drug store for a few cents. Apply a few drops on your tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shriveled and loose that you lift it off with your fingers.

Just think! You get rid of a hard corn, soft corn or a corn between the toes, as well as hardened calluses for a few cents and without suffering one particle, without the slightest irritation of the surrounding skin. Just a touch of this marvelous freezone on a sore, troublesome corn gives instant relief.

ENGLAND'S NEW AIR TRAINING SYSTEM BOON TO AVIATORS

Under Scheme Recently Adopted Flyers Quickly Rounded Into Condition.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The British have made great strides in their aviation training camps in the last few months, according to S. B. Riley, of Manchester, who has arrived in New York. They have adopted a course of training that is almost directly opposite to the methods of instruction employed in France, America and elsewhere, and the results are little short of remarkable, he said.

"Under the new method of training in England," said Mr. Riley at the Aero Club of America, "the boys are being trained to get into trouble and not to keep out of it. As a result they are doing the intricate feats of flying at the very beginning of their training, and the record of casualties is less than ever in the history of aeronautics.

"At the Gosport Aerodrome, which is the principal aviation field in England, the record of serious accidents is now so low that it is almost negligible. Moreover, the men, by being trained to tackle everything, do everything and face every form of danger right from the start, are thus able to complete their training course in a shorter period and are competent to fly in any kind of a machine when they enter active service. Under the old method, after taking a course in general aviation work, it was necessary for an aviator to take special training courses for the various types of machines, such as bombing machines, scouting planes and others."

Mr. Riley expressed the opinion that the coming spring would see the aviator come into his own the battlefields of Europe. He said that the English people were intensely interested in the work of their aviation training corps, and big things are expected of their fliers who have been trained under the Gosport system.

TRAINED BY CAPT. CASTLE

Lieut. Jackson Home from Fort Worth, says Deceased Flier was Loved by Cadets.

Lieut. W. Jackson, who has completed his training as an aviator at Fort Worth, and is home on leave before reporting for service, was one of the students of the late Capt. Vernon Castle, who was also a personal friend of Capt. Maurice Park, an instructor at Fort Worth. Lieut. Jackson remarked that Capt. Castle was admired by all the Cadets. He was a fearless, almost a reckless, flier, and as a Captain with service at the front, was not required to make flights. He took a personal intreset in the Cadets not only in their training, but in their general affairs.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years old, had bronchitis and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for her and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

IRISH COMEDY REPEATS SUCCESS AT THE ORPHEUM

'Peg O'My Heart" as Delightful as Ever and Capably Produced By New Company

(From Montreal "Telegraph.")

"Peg o' My Heart," the comedy of J. Hartley Manners which on previous visits to the city has met with a flattering reception, is at the Orpheum this week, and at both performances yesterday big audiences gave those taking part enthusiastic applause.

The play is full of Irish wit and humour. It is charmingly presented by a company that has not only carefully studied their various parts, but who also put vim into their acting and utterances. All through the three acts they carried the audience with them, and while those present were amused at the languid air and nonsensical remarks of the spoiled rich woman's son, Mr. Joseph Allenton, as "Alaric," whose favourite expression was "Tush, tush, and nonsense," they fairly rocked with laughter as "Peg" (Ann Pittwood), made him eat humble pie.

Peg was charming. Her rich Irish brogue was a tonic, and her quaint sayings, to use a familiar expression, "fairly clinched matters." She was appealing, dramatic a nd tragic, and the manner in which she said, "That's not an argument, it's a statement," and "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear," drew forth prolonged applause.

Eliza Mason, as Mrs. Chichester, the rich lady, who lost her fortune by the failure of the bank in women all her money was deposited, and who tried to make a lady out of "Peg," gave a clever interpretation of her part; while Amy West, as her daughter, Ethel, seemed at first to feel considerably bored by having a poor relation thrust upon her, but later showed that her apparent indifference was only on the surface.

John Alexander, as Montgomery Hawkes the solicitor, Betty Collington as the maid, and Ralph Campbell as Jerry, all contributed liberally to make the comedy a big success. It was "Peg" however, that was the star of the show. She asked the question, "What's the matter with you? Don't you feel good?" and, as far as the audience was concerned, there was no need for an answer. They demonstrated it effectively by laughter and applause.

Arts and Crafts Column

HUGHSON JOHNSTONE, painter and decorator, 416 Water street, will answer in this column each Wednesday for Examiner readers, questions relating to painting, sign-writing, paper-hanging, kalsomining, furniture polishing, decorating, etc., for the benefit of those who might like doing their own work. Questions sent to the Examiner will receive attention in due course.

A.B.C., Peterborough, Ont.: Kindly publish in your "Arts and Crafts" column the best way to prepare silk for painting upon? And at the same time let me congratulate the management for turning out such an interesting and impartial (sort of serve the public kind of a) paper such as the Examiner has proven itself to be.

Ans.: Have a light frame made over which will stretch the silk, then wash it well with alum water, let it dry thoroughly, and apply a wash of isinglass dissolved in water—say, as much isinglass as you could pile on a quarter dollar to a pint of water. When this is dry, draw the design with charcoal or crayon, or pounce it on the silk and proceed to paint with either water or oil paint. The isinglass size will keep it from spreading in the silk. Get the Russian isinglass if possible.

Ans.: Old stock 8 yards, new stock 5 yards.

Mrs. H. T., City: Please tell me how many yards of paper should be in a roll of that wide oatmeal paper?

S. M. W., Port Hope: Is it true that new mahogany can be made to resemble antique mahogany, defying detection

Ans.: A lot of the antique mahogany as well as other antique woods are really faked. I have known furniture makers, after turning out a brand new piece of furniture, made from new wood, to hit it with a piece of iron in several places, rub the sharp edges off with coarse sandpaper, and in other ways give it the appearance of wear, before staining it to resemble antique mahogany, when it would be sold as a piece of furniture once occupying a prominent and honoured place in the drawing-room of the Earl or Duke or Lord of somewhere. If space would permit, I would like to go into some of the methods used in faking furniture. They are most interesting. About "defying detection," well, one up to the tricks might be hard to fool. But the average person would find it just a little difficult to know how to apply the test.

ALD. E. WORTH WANTED TO AVOID ARGUMENT

"I am too young a fellow to enter into an argument of this kind," is what Ald. Worth meant to say on Thursday evening at a Committee of the Whole Council, when the question of a grant to the Great War Veterans came up for discussion. Ald. Worth was reported as saying that he had considerable experience with returned soldiers, and would rather not say anything. This might be taken to indicate that Ald. Worth knew more than he cared to tell, but as a matter of fact, he felt constrained as a junior member of the City Council to avoid getting into an argument.

Alphonse Bernier Charged as a Defaulter Under the M.S.A.

MONTREAL, Feb. 15.—The Dominion Police last night, with their dragnet for deserters under the Military Service Act, gathered in Alphonse Bernier, one of the prominanti-conscriptionist speakers of last summer.

A Quebec despatch says: Little trouble is being encountered in rounding up deserters here, and any who are challenged in the street usually produce their papers without protest, if they have them, and those who cannot show cause for exemption are being conducted to the Citadel. The only ones with whom the officers have trouble are married men. They in some cases resent being questioned, and few accosted so far have been carrying their marriage certificates. When the campaign is well under way the officers will adopt more rigid measures, it is said.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

MR. JULIUS VELIE

The distinguished Actor-Singer, who will make his first appearance here on Tuesday next, Feb. 18th, in the great Olcott success, "The Isle O' Dreams," the sweetest story ever told.

"The Isle O' Dreams," a play, not a motion picture, which with Julius Velie, late star of "Freckles," and a big company is coming to the Grand Opera House, on Tuesday, February 18th, is a gentle story of tender, human interest. It is an Irish comedy-drama that is sparkling with wit and sweet pathos, the kind that while it makes you laugh, creates at the same time a tender feeling, and sends you away from the theatre a better man or woman from having seen it. As a part of the play, are several charming ballads by Chauncey Olcott and Ernest Ball, such as "Mother Machree," "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," which were written specially for it. It reflects life on a beautiful island off the Coast of Ireland, where there is much romance, laughter and song, with a pervading sympathy that makes one see the heart beat beneath all the activities of the simple island folks. It is the United Producing Company's most ambitious effort.

New Treatment Now Advocated For Bronchitis

Is Having Wonderful Success, and is Making Most Remarkable Cures.

For bronchitis a different form of treatment is now advocated. It consists of a scientifically devised vapour that penetrates to the uttermost recesses of the lungs and bronchial tubes. Every spot that is sore, every surface that is irritated is at once bathed with soothing balsams and healing essences that make chronic bronchitis an impossibility.

This treatment now so universally employed in bronchitis, throat troubles, colds, etc., is called CATARRH-OZONE. It acts just as air of the pine woods acts, as a healing antiseptic remedy for all diseases of the breathing organs.

Just think of it—a remedy that can be carried with the very air you breathe to the seat of bronchial or catarrhal inflammation. A remedy powerful enough to kill germ life and yet so healing that disease flees before it. Catarrhozone is truly a wonderful remedy. In many lands it has won its way, and is affording grand results to sufferers from colds, catarrh, throat weakness, asthma and bronchitis. There is no sufferer from a grippy cold or any winter ill, that won't find a cure in Catarrhozone, which is employed by physicians, ministers, lawyers and public men throughout many foreign lands. Large size lasts two months and costs $1.00 and is guaranteed; small size 50c., sample size 25c., all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

CAFETERIA TEA WAS A SPLENDID SUCCESS

The Evolution of Man Was Exemplified Last Evening in Trinity Church--The Committees in Charge --Time Limit on Speakers

The evolution of man, from a useless out-door creature into a useful, tame indoor animal, was evident last night by the splendid service rendered by the men of Trinity Methodist Church, who undertook to manage the Cafeteria Tea from the kitchen end of the game to the entire programme given afterwards.

Everything was successful and with no exaggeration or stretch of imagination the affair may be characterized in the words of the Pastor, Mr. Wilson, as the most successful event ever held in the Church. The basement was transformed from the grim and austere appearance of a concrete Sunday School room into a miniature fairy land, brilliantly festooned by valentine decorations of crepe paper hearts, cupids, etc. The transformation was done under the direction of Mrs. Edgar Burnham, who, for three evenings had never left the work before 11 o'clock. The tables were most attractive from the long lunch counter, where trays awaited the customer, who picked up what he wanted and carried it to the individual tables for the guests. Each department represented a world of work, patience and task on the part of those in charge.

The Committees:

The Ladies (assisted z ythe men) undertook to serve tea on the cafeteria plan, and had appointed the following committees:

THE PROGRAMME.

The supper, at which over three hundred were served, was followed by a most amusing and spicy programme. Conductor Jobbit, who, being an employee of the G. T. R., knows all about being on time, saw to it by means of a "stop bell" that no man exceeded his time limit of five minutes. The programme was as follows, Rev. Mr. Wilson acting as chairman:

Speech—Mr. Campbell.
Solo—Mrs. Hartshorn.
Piano Trio—Messrs. Crane, Hartshorn and King.

Reading—Mr. R. J. Soden.
Solo—Mr. Austin.
Address—"The Coal Situation," by Mr. Crane, which, he said, was acute, not cute. In his speech Mr. Crane outlined the statistics, giving definite ideas of the coal areas: Ontario, 38,000 tons; New Brunswick, 1,800; Scott & Co., none; Alberta, several millions, etc. Mr. Crane was interrupted by Dr. Morrison, who objected to the subject on account of the serious aspect at so joyful an occasion. Mr. Campbell protested, and it was finally carried by a hearty vote, that Mr. Crane reserve his speech for the loons behind his island at Stoney Lake, six months hence.
Solo—Mr. Staples.
Reading—Mr. R. J. Soden.
Solo—R. F. Downey.

ASKS $5,000 AS DAMAGES

Through the firm of Gordon, Widdifield and O'Brien, Ralph Sutton, of Peterborough, has instituted proceedings against N. George Bell, Harriett Bell and Norman Nelson, all of Peterborough, and asks damages of $5,000 from the defendants on the allegation that they wrongfully induced his wife to leave and remain apart from him.

They were married in Peterborough in 1912 and farmed for some time in Saskatchewan. Almo Sutton, the plaintiff's wife, is the daughter of N. G. Bell and Harriett Bell.

It is understood that the defendants deny the allegation and have retained the firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry to defend the action.

SNOW PLOW SPLIT IN TWO ON SUTTON LINE.

Believed to Have Resulted From Hitting Snow-Packed Crossing.

While clearing the Sutton line of snow on Thursday, a G. T. R. plow struck an obstruction, probably ice-packed by farmers' traffic at a crossing, and shot from the rails, bringing up in the ditch near a fence. The plow was split clean up the centre, but none of the men within nor the train crew were injured. It was a narrow and a fortunate escape. There has been some suggestion among railway men that plows should pull up at crossings and pass them at reduced speed. Farmers' sleighs beat down the snow into a barrier that packs and freezes, forming a source of danger to a plow that is forcing the drifts under full steam. Several accidents have been attributed this winter to these crossing dangers, and it is claimed that they can be avoided altogether by anticipating them.

BRITAIN LACKS CEREALS.

Some Anxiety Manifested—Bread Rations Possible.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The cereal situation is beginning to cause some anxiety, and it may ultimately become necessary to institute bread rations.

Although Chancellor Bonar Law said in the Commons on Wednesday that at the end of last year the total stocks of wheat in this country were greater by 2,000,000 quarters than they were at the end of 1916, it must be remembered that Great Britain is taking a generous share in helping to stave off starvation in France and Italy.

The supplies of meats are somewhat better at this week-end. Most of the butchers and retailers obtained fairly good amounts at the Smithfield market this morning.

"WHEATLESS WEEKS" NEXT.

U. S. Farmer Claims It Is Unprofitable to Raise Grain.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Members of the Wheat Growers' Association here, who demand that the Government raise the price of wheat from $2 to $2.75 per bushel, held a meeting last night with Senators and Congressmen from ten western States and told them that at the present time wheat is being fed to hogs because it is cheaper than corn, and that unless the price of wheat is raised the farmer will find it financially impossible to raise it this spring. They said under present conditions "wheatless weeks" will take the place of "wheatless days" during the coming months of the war.

FIXED PRICE FOR WHEAT.

Saskatchewan Grain Growers Want It Done for Year After War.

REGINA, Feb. 15.—A resolution calling upon the Government to fix the price of wheat to the farmer for 1918 and to fix a minimum price for the remainder of the war and the year following, was passed practically without discussion by the 2,000 farmers attending the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association. The Government is also asked to remove the duty on all fuel and lubricating oils and to purchase seed and feed for the relief of settlers in the south-west of the province, who suffered from drouth last year. The delegates overwhelmingly defeated a resolution to amend the constitution giving them power to nominate political candidates. President S. A. Maharg, M.P., was re-elected.

STOLE ARMY DRUGS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Herbert Elkin, one of the several men indicated for plotting to dispose of expensive and habit-forming drugs stolen from a U.S. army medical supply depot in this city, pleaded guilty in the Federal Court. Jacob Katz, Government witness, said he had delivered $200 worth of a drug to Dr. Benjamin Berger for which he was paid $50. Dr. Berger, Dr. Herbert A. Cohen, Robert Levine, a druggist, and two employes at the depot are the other defendants.

Insomnia Cured Without Drugs

INTERNAL BATHING RELIEVES THE CAUSE.

If you do not sleep there is always some cause. Don't start dosing with drugs. Nerves can't consume them. Relieve the cause and a good, sound sleep will be the result.

The system cannot be right if the Colon or large intestine is not kept clean, and free from all waste matter. Bathe internally if you want perfect health.

Mr. F. C. Voight, Rapid City, Man., writes: "For several years I suffered from Indigestion, Nervous Debility, Insomnia, and Constipation. Had no appetite, and the doctors did not expect that I would live throughout the winter. Your book interested me. I got a J.B.L. Cascade, and in a few days obtained remarkable results. I now sleep and enjoy my meals better than for years before. I regard the 'J.B.L. Cascade' as a God-send to me." The 'J.B.L. Cascade' as a perfected appliance for Internal Bathing invented by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York, and has been the means of restoring thousands to perfect health. It is shown and explained by the Warne Drug Co., who will be pleased to give you an interesting book called "The What, The Why, The Way of Internal Bathing," on request. Ask for it.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAS. SUTHERLAND)

Matthew, 17th Chap., 4th verse, "Lord, it is good for us to be here."

Our Lord returned to a mountain to pray. It is supposed to have been Mount Tabor, in the north of Galilee. He took Peter, James and John with him, who witnessed the raising of Jairus' daughter, and attended his agony in the garden. They were competent witnesses to testify of the fact. While engaged in prayer he was transfigured before them or changed into another form; it is the word used by the Apostle Phil., 2-6-7, 'In the days of his flesh Christ took on him the form of a servant.' He drew a veil over the glory of his God-head; but now the disciples beheld his glory; as of one only begotten of the Father and had such a discovery of him in the form of God as they were able to bear. He appeared like the sun of righteousness; the light of the world shone forth from behind the clouds, which commonly obscured his splendour. The face of Moses shone but as the moon; with a borrowed reflected light; but Christ's shone as the sun, with an innate inherent light which was the more sensibly glorious because it suddenly broke out, as it were from behind a black cloud. All his body was altered so that beams of light darting from every part through his clothes, made them white and glittering. The shining of the face of Moses could be concealed by a veil, but such was the glory of Christ's body that his clothes were enlightened by it. This appearance would give the apostles some idea of the divine glory which he had with the Father before he became flesh, and which was always inherent in him, though veiled under outward meanness. It was intended to support their faith, when they would have to witness his crucifixion, and would give them an idea of the glory prepared for them, when changed by his power to be like him. Moses and Elias, heavenly messengers, appeared talking with him; their conversation had reference to his sufferings and death which he was to accomplish at Jerusalem, thus fulfilling the scriptures and the great designs of mercy for which he came into the world. The great delight the disciples took in seeing this glorious sight, and hearing the discourse, is expressed by Peter. Saintly souls reckon it good to be in communion with Christ, good to be near him, good to be on the mount with him. Though it be in a cold and solitary place it is good to be retired from the world and alone with Christ, and how good to be with Christ, glorified in heaven with all the saints. But observe, while Peter was for staying there, he forgot what need there was of the presence of Christ and the preaching of the apostles to the perishing multitudes below. At this time the other disciples wanted them greatly. When it is well with us we are apt to forget others. Peter would rather prefer private communion with God than public usefulness; both are necessary to build up Christian character. Paul was willing to abide in the flesh when he saw it needful for the cause, though he had a desire to depart and to be with Christ, which was far better. Phil. 1:24-25. Peter talked of making three tabernacles, for Moses, Elias and Christ, and said: 'Lord it is good for us to be here.' His proposal rather expressed his feelings than his understanding. While Peter spake a bright cloud overshadowed them, an emblem of the divine presence and glory. Not like the display at Mount Sinai, but a bright cloud, denoting the introduction of a clearer and more encouraging discovery of the divine glory by the gospel. From this cloud a voice was heard, like that at Christ's baptism, adding a command to hear him in preference even to Moses and the prophets. This glorious vision terrified the apostles, as much as the preceding display of their Lord's glory delighted them. Ever since man sinned and heard God's voice in the garden, many wonderful appearances of God have been terrible to man who, knowing he has no reason to expect any good, has been afraid to hear anything immediately from God. They fell prostrate to the earth till Jesus encouraged them; when looking around they beheld only their Lord left alone with them in his usual appearance. Christ's touches were often healing, and here they were strengthening and comforting. It is Christ by his word, and the power of his grace that comforts believers and silences their fears, and none but Christ can do it. Christ's errand into the world was to bless and comfort his people, that being delivered out of the hand of their enemies they might serve God without fear.. Luke, 1:74-75. The next day as they came down from the mount, Jesus charged them not to mention this event till after the resurrection. They asked on what ground the Scribes had taught that Elijah was to come before the Messiah appeared, probably desiring to know whether what they had beheld was intended by the Prophet Malachi. He replied that Elijah in fact had come, and the Scribes and people had not known him but had persecuted and put him to death, as they would do the Messiah. Thus the disciples clearly perceived that John Baptist had been foretold under the name of Elijah, in whose spirit he had come, and whom he resembled in his disposition and work. Let us ever remember that discoveries of the Redeemer's majesty tend to give a right understanding of his abasement. Could we now behold that sacred countenance which once for our sins was crowned with thorns we should behold it more glorious than the noonday sun. We should no longer see him hanging on the cross between two thieves, but arrayed with light as a garment, surrounded with glorified saints and angels, celebrating his praises. When we get a glimpse of our Redeemer's glory our hearts begin to glow with love and joy; we would always continue in that pleasing frame. These glimpses are vouchsafed to prepare us for, and to support us under, tribulations. We must pass through varied experiences in our way to glory and spend our lives in service for the honour of Christ and the good of his people. We know not what we shall be; save that when the Saviour shall appear, we shall like him. Blessed be God, there is a mount of everlasting joy before us, and Jesus will be with us forever.

Your sincerely,
JAMES SUTHERLAND.

PEACHES IN PLENTY.

Fears That Trees in Niagara Peninsula Suffered are Dispelled.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 16.—The fear that the peach crop had been utterly destroyed by the unprecedented cold spell in the Niagara district was dispelled this morning by W. A. McCubbin, of the Dominion Field Laboratory of Plant Pathology, who has just completed a careful examination of the buds in the district about St. Catharines, which he considers is fairly representative of the whole peninsula. "While the buds are fewer than normal, and not nearly so large or well developed, comparatively little damage has been done by the frost," he announced.

COAL SCARCE TO-DAY.

Scant Supply Left Over from Yesterday's Receipts at Taylor's Yards.

Applicants for coal, most of them women, began to gather at the Police Station this morning at 8 o'clock, and the only available supply was a remnant at Taylor's yards from yesterday. There were no receipts to-day by any of the local companies. Many home bins must be running low, and the week closes with no relief in sight. Shipments have been comparatively few all week, but it is to be hoped that next week will bring at least sufficient supplies for the city's necessities.

BIG CROWD SAW GAME

Showing a superiority in weight, speed and cleverness, the De La Salle team, of Toronto, conquerors of the Aura Lee champions, handed the Peterborough juniors a 7 to 5 defeat in the Junior O.H.A. third round game at the Brock street rink last night. The visitors set up a two goal lead in the first period, and the best the Petes could do was to equal the score made by the De La Salle crowd in the last two sessions. It was 4 to 2 at the end of the first period and 6 to 3 at the close of the second, while the Petes came on and outscored the green and white crew by two to one in the last chapter. The return game will be played in Toronto next Tuesday night.

De La Salle trotted out a clever, speedy team. In height and weight they made the Petes look like Midgets, where their quick passing and they showed pretty stick-handling and a world of speed and cleverness, particularly in their work around the nets, while their quick passing and fake passes had the local defence guessing.

The Peterborough youngsters gave every ounce they had and battled the speedy visitors until the last gong rang. They lacked the finished style of the De La Salle aggregation, especially in attack, but they never stopped trying and the big crowd got its money's worth.

Babe Dye, last year with Aura Lee, was the visitors' brightest star. The right wing player flashed through the Petes like a shadow. Several times he fooled them completely by bluffing a pass and then going on through himself, and he was lightning fast in his work around the nets. Green, the light-haired centre man, who hails from the north country, was another player always in the limelight. He had plenty of speed, stick-handled cleverly, and did some great back checking as well. McCurry, at left wing, was not far behind his comrades on the line, while the defence was very effective, with Koster doing some great work in the nets.

For the Petes, Cherrett and Murray were the pick. The former was never outclassed by the visitors, his speed and stick-handling comparing favourably with the best the Toronto gang showed. He scored the Petes' first three goals and was always prominent. Murray was good all the way in the nets and he had lots to do to head off Dye, Green and company. Every goal scored on him was at close range and he frequently saved when his defence was beaten, kicking them out in great style. Hagerman never stopped working, and little Williams buzzed around like a hornet when he was out. The crowd cheered lustily when he dumped Spring the visitors' big defence man.

Dr. Jerry Laflamme refereed the game and had a light task, as the contest was remarkably clean. The teams lined up as follows:

| De La Salle | | Peterborough. |
|---|---|---|
| Koster | Goal | Murray |
| Cain | Right Defence | Girard |
| Spring | Left Defence | Hagerman |
| Green | Centre | Cherrett |
| Dye | R. Wing | Park |
| McCurry | L. Wing | Bartley |
| Travers | Substitute | Williams |

The game got away almost exactly on time, with the pace fast from the go-in. Murray had to stop several shots in the first couple of minutes, nailing a beauty from Dye. Bartley tested Koster with a couple of long drives from the boards, one of which nearly knocked him over. It was the Petes who scored first, Park recovering the puck from behind the Toronto nets and passing out to Cherrett, who beat Koster for the first counter.

De La Salle quickly evened up, Green and Dye got away nicely and although Murray made a clever stop of the former's shot, Dye swooped in and hammered the rebound through.

Two minutes late Cain broke away with Dye, and when the Petes' defence opened up for the pass, Cain sailed on in himself and beat Murray.

That made it 2 to 1, and Dye increased the lead shortly afterward when he completely fooled the local defence by faking a pass and then waltzing inside.

Cain drew a penalty for tripping Cherrett, but the odd man advantage did not favour the Petes, for Dye went the length of the rink in a pretty rush and boosted the figures to 4 to 1.

The Petes began to liven up, and for the balance of the period more than held their own, although they were able to score only one goal, Cherrett beating Koster with a quick shot from a scrimmage. The left it 4 to 2 at the end of the period.

De La Salle opened the second period as if they were going to run up a score, Dye got away for a nice rush and although Murray stopped his shot, Green was on hand to swipe in the rebound.

A little later Green came back alone and worked right inside for a pretty goal.

Although they had frequent opportunities the visitors failed to beat Murray again during the period, while Cherrett closed the gap a little when he got away, stick-handled around the De La Salle defence and bored a fast one past Koster.

The third period was not as fast as the first two, although the Petes were trying hard to pull down the lead. Early in the period they scored a goal when Bartley pushed the rubber into the net during a scrimmage that resembled a rugby game. Murray was performing in stellar style in the nets, pulling off some spectacular stops. Finally, however, Dye and Cain combined nicely for a close-in goal, and the score was 7 to 4. Travers was benched for tripping, and Bartley went off a moment after for a similar offence. A little later Spring was chased for upsetting Park.

The Petes cut down the majority a little shortly before the final bell, when Cherrett got away and passed to Bartley, who scored at close range.

Employ Chinese in War Zones

It was Kipling who coined the phrase about the white man's burden, and the expression has come home to roost.

In the fight against Germany the French have drawn heavily for men on their African colonies. The "Turcoes," or the Arabs of Algeria, were the heroes of the early mad charges and now there is hardly an offensive in which the coal black Senegalese are not given heroic work to do somewhere along the line. No doubt there will be many colored regiments in the American Expeditionary Force, and the British drew on their trained troops in India during the critical days three years ago. Now these troops are employed elsewhere, except some Hindoo cavalry, the Gurkhas, who patrol the roads in parts of the army zone. They are fine looking horsemen.

It is, however, chiefly as paid laborers that the British armies in France employed the colored races. In the summer the Egyptians are used, but as they are not accustomed to the cold climate, they have to be shipped south for the winter, just as the French Senegalese fighters are. There are also gangs of natives from South Africa, who do common labor for wages, and the French employ Annamites, who are the natives of the French portions of Indo-China.

The most satisfactory of all the Asiatic laborers, however, are the men from the north of China. They are in no sense forced to come. They are intelligent, hardy, and do excellent work. The British officers who have dealings with them are most enthusiastic about their qualities, and, as usual, it is the British who are the most successful in handling the strange races.

There are at present many thousands of Chinese laborers in the British army zone in France. They are muscular looking men and their general appearance is much superior to the Chinese one sees in Eastern United States. These men come from the northern provinces. Their skin is brownish rather than yellow. Physically they are well formed, appear extremely strong, and decidedly intelligent.

The men brought to France are all young, as might be expected. The cost of transporting them is very high, and naturally only the best are accepted. The recruiting is done by a private concern, partly British and partly Chinese. The propaganda consists, oddly enough, chiefly of war photographs. They do not present France in any too alluring light, but somehow war has a fascination, even for the Chinese. Upon enlistment a bonus is paid.

A long contract in Chinese and in English is insisted upon. The men who know enough English to be interpreters are the highest paid. The contract further pledges the British Government to pay an indemnity in case of death or total disability.

The most interesting part of the contract, however, is the stipulation that while the man is away the British Government pays to his family or dependants in China a certain sum, which varies according to the man's pay in France. This is a form of compensation that has many advantages, and is one that might well be copied in the payment of white men who go to war, or who engage in any kind of work.

"Are the Chinese laborers thrifty?" I asked the Colonel in command of the camp.

"Not particularly," he said. "They have had very little experience in handling money, and at first they are apt to spend it rather freely. It is only just before returning home they begin to save. We have organized special banks for them, so as to encourage thrift."

"What kind of things do they buy?"

"Whatever they see. They are very fond of personal adornment. I know, for instance, they bought every straw hat in town the first day they arrived."

The British Government supplies them with a tropical kind of straw hat, but several of the men about the camp preferred the more conventional kind of a hat with a bright ribbon around it, very much like those of the college undergraduates.

"They also like to buy pocket knives, watches, rings, etc., continued the colonel.

"What do they do for amusement?" I asked.

"We give them movie shows once in a while."

"What kind of films do they like?"

"They seem to prefer Charley Chaplin," replied the Colonel, with a smile. Thus our civilization stood the test.

The colonel in charge of the receiving camp, from which gangs of 500 are sent out to build roads, handle freight, build barracks, etc., is a strong partisan of the Chinese.

He stated that there had been instances in which some of the natives had been scared of the Chinese, but in no case, he said, had he ever found that a Chinaman had disturbed or annoyed any white person.

They are perfect gentlemen in their behaviour," he said.

The rations of the Chinese comprise rice, meat, bread, vegetables, flour, bacon, and tobacco.

They cook their own food, and in general they appear to be well nourished.

Work is done under military supervision, but certain hours of liberty are allowed. On rare occasions some individual wanders off and forgets to return, but on the whole, discipline is not difficult to maintain. The men are generally serious and good workmen. In particular they are good carpenters and build wooden shacks to perfection.

There are also a number of Chinese missionaries working in the camp. All the doctors speak Chinese, having lived in the Far East.

REV. F. J. SAWERS TO GO OVERSEAS AS A CHAPLAIN

Rev. F. J. Sawers, rector of St. Peter's church, announced at the services on Sunday, that he had requested of the Bishop of Toronto to be allowed to go overseas to join the service as chaplain, and requested that he be relieved of his duties here after Easter, a substitute to be placed here in his absence. He said he felt everyone should do their bit in this great crisis, and it was following out this idea that caused him to come to decision.—Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

SAYS REVIEW'S FIGURES ARE NOT CORRECT

Board of Education's Overdraft Only $7,000 Mr. Gordon Says

Mr. Gordon, when interviewed today, and asked if he had anything to say about the Reviews attack on the Board of Education, claiming a $17,000.00 overdraft, said that the Review was only out in its calculations a little over $10,000, and that $7,000.00 indebtedness of the Board was mostly created upon the recommendation of certain shareholders of the Review who urged that the moneys be spent and they were properly and carefully spent.

"You would think a $5,000.00 ex-Finance Minister," said Mr. Gordon, would not allow his paper to be $10,000.00 out in its computation on a $17,000.00 transaction, but there is no telling what may happen in the present state of mind of the Review Editor. Figures, ordinarily, do not lie, but a newspaper that does not know the difference between right and wrong, may be able to make them try to lie, although the attempt is plain and barefaced."

A Pretty And Picturesque Calendar

The Peterborough Creamery calendar for 1918 is a smile-maker, and "quite too cute for anything." It depicts a bright and attractive young damsel calling up "650," the Creamery's telephone number, and smilingly conveying the message "Please have your driver call, as we have decided to use your pasteurized milk. If you don't drink Creamery milk, get a calender—that will settle it.

Board Of Trade And Reeves Discussed Greater Production

"We want to help the farmers who feel discouraged," explained Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., at this afternoon's meeting of the Greater Production Committee of the Board of Trade with the reeves and deputy reeves of the townships of Otonabee, Smith, Monaghan and Ennismore. Mr. J. W. Meyers presided. The shortage of labor has decreased the acreage of land plowed at the present time but it was believed that for some farmers who have fallen behind the outlook is not beyond repair.

"We want to get more wheat planted," Mr. Gillespie continued, "and hope that farmers may be encouraged to be in readiness for work when the spring opens. Their machines should be in good order and they should have their seed. I know that 75 per cent. of the farmers do this, but we want the other 25 per cent. too, and also those who are discouraged."

The attendance included Warden Anderson, Reeves McIntosh, Nicholls, Holland, Deputy Reeves Eason, Middleton, and Bell, Mr. V. Eastwood, J. J. Hartley, Jas. Hamilton, B. D. Hall and Mr. Gillespie.

"We want to find out," said Mr. Meyers, "how we can best work in this county to assist the farmers and stimulate greater production this year."

Mr. McIntosh stated that there were 11,000 acres in Monaghan to be worked this year by only 108 men.

SEED POTATOES, $4.50

Heavy Rates on New Ontario Stock Puts Them at High Figures.

New Ontario seed potatoes are selling in the city at approximately $4.50 a bag. Northern seed is said to be of particular advantage from the fact that they have not reached maturity, whereas the stock grown here is matured and as a result is deficient in certain seed qualities that New Ontario and New Brunswick potatoes possess.

Six Months For Getting $30 Under False Pretences

Harry Gilbert, a former member of the bands of the 57th, 59th and 93rd was sentenced to six months in jail by Magistrate Dumble this afternoon on a charge of obtaining thirty dollars under false pretences. This morning Gilbert pleaded not guilty, but made a confession after the court had adjourned, and the hearing was resumed this afternoon. He admitted having obtained $10 from Miss Dickson, and $20 from Mr. R. M. Waddell, to whom he had appealed for subscriptions to a War Veterans' Relief of his own fabrication. He gave his name as Mr. Roberts and had asked prospective donors to forward their cheques to the Barrie Building. The police have been working on the case for several weeks. Finally a letter was sent to Mr. "Roberts," notifying him that there was a registered letter at the Post Office, and when Gilbert presented himself, it was stated, Detectives Newhall and Meagher were waiting nearby with the trap all set.

The ruse worked with complete success. Gilbert maintained his innocence this morning until the counsel of friends moved him to a confession. Mr. G. N. Gordon, Major Davidson and Adjt. McElhiney requested Magistrate Dumble to exercise clemency in dealing with the prisoner, who is a veteran of the South African war, in which he lost his right index finger, and a good musician. Mr. Dumble replied that he could not establish a precedent. Gilbert is married and has one child.

Davidson Gold Mines

We think that the present is the proper time to buy Davidson Gold Mines stock. The price of the issue is relatively low at the moment, and we are informed that the property will go on a producing basis before the end of this month.

The attractiveness of the Davidson as a speculative investment is exceptional; because of the extensive bodies of good milling ore opened up and ready for the mill, because of the relatively small capitalization of the company, because the company is entirely free of debt and because the mine is efficiently managed.

We believe that your profits will be larger if you wire us your orders for Davidson stock at once.

Woman Killed After A Violent Fight In Home

Terrific Struggle Marks the Slaying of Rooming Housekeeper—Vicious Dogs Crouch at Side of Victim's Body Talkative Parrot Silent.

CLEWS POINT TOWARD FEMALE ASSAILANT

New York, Feb. 18. — Mrs. Helen Hammel, 48 years old, was found strangled to death in the basement of a rooming house which she had for many years conducted at No. 507 West Twenty-third street. She had been terribly beaten and her arms were covered with deep bites. A linen towel tied tightly about her throat apparently caused death.

The detectives of the Fourth branch after a thorough investigation of the case, developed but one tangible clew. They believe that Mrs. Hammel was slain by a woman.

In many aspects the crime is singular. The theory of robbery was abandoned immediately with the finding of nearly six hundred dollars in jewelry and a like sum in money near the body. The woman's pocketbook lay beside her undisturbed and two dogs which were constant companions, one of them unusually vicious, did not interfere with the commission of the brutal slaying. From this the police gather that the slayer was known by the dogs.

Eugene Wendle, a lodger in Mrs. Hammel's house, arrived home from work yesterday at 11 o'clock in the morning. He went to his room, and subsequently called down to Mrs. Hammel to wake him at seven o'clock last night. She did not answer, as she usually did, and he went down through the rooms seeking her. In the basement of the house where the woman lived in three rooms with her husband, he found her body. It was lying upon a couch and beside it there crouched the two dogs. On a table in the centre of the room a parrot, which the police subsequently learned can talk fluently, moaned incessantly.

Wendle ran into the street, and summoned Policeman Neff, of the West Twentieth street station. The Fourth branch detectives were soon on the scene. Evidences of a terrible struggle extended through the long entrance hall and into the room where the body was found. The walls and floor were stained and articles of furniture were scattered all about the room. Near the table the police found a steel such as is used with a carving set. It was stained and half covered with hair. A piece of a washing stick in like condition was found half way through a window, leading to the rear yard.

It was apparent that Mrs. Hammel had suffered a fracture of the skull. A peculiar fact in connection with her injuries was that the person who inflicted them had subsequently washed the dead woman's face, and then put a linen bandage with absorbent cotton over the deep scars upon her forehead.

This unexpected attention on the part of the assailant first inclined the police to their theory, later strengthened, that the crime was committed by a woman. The teeth marks upon her arms were made by small teeth in a small semi-circle, and hairpins were in great profusion all about the floor.

When Inspector John J. Cray, Assistant District Attorney Cardone and Acting Captain Thomas Walsh of the Second Branch Detective Bureau, arrived at the house, they sent for Frederick Hammel, the woman's husband, who is employed as a cook at the Sailors' Snug Harbor, Staten Island. He said that he left the house on Monday at noon and that he had not been there until summoned yesterday. His work had made it impossible for him to get home more than twice a week since the war began.

All of the seven boarders in the house were questioned and the police decided that none of them were involved. Then they began a search for another boarder, a woman. Up to a late hour she had not been found, but the police learned that her absence would not necessarily involve her since she has been away frequently for days at a time.

Heard Womans Screams.

Wendle, the man who found the body of Mrs. Hammel, was the last one to see her alive. That was at eleven o'clock on Wednesday morning. The police learned that Edward Kelly, who keeps a poolroom adjoining the Hammel house, had commented on Wednesday afternoon regarding screams in the basement in which Mrs. Hammel was found. He said that he thought nothing of the incident at the time, knowing that Mrs. Hammel had two dogs which could protect her in an exigency.

The only other indication of an unusual incident in the house was reported by William Comm, a roomer who is employed at night, and who was in bed in the house on Wednesday afternoon. He told the police that at about two o'clock he heard Mrs. Hammel in an altercation with a woman and that subsequently he heard a noise which he assumed to be slamming of a door. He was interested in the incident because of the fact that he had lived at the house for five years and had never heard Mrs. Hammel raise her voice or become ill-natured about anything.

Although the woman's husband identified a broken side comb as the property of his wife, the fact that more than twenty hairpins were scattered about the basement and a small coloured stone from a ring which did not belong to Mrs. Hammel was found, combined with other circumstances to interest them in the absence of the woman roomer. They could establish no proof of a quarrel at any time between the two women nor could they find any indication that Mrs. Hammel was on bad terms with any one. She had been in charge of the rooming house for nearly ten

SIR WM. ROBERTSON CHIEF OF THE STAFF TENDERS RESIGNATION

Major-General Wilson Succeeds Him—General Robertson Declines to Take Position on the Allied War Council—What the Change in the High Command Means.

LONDON, Feb. 18. — General Sir William Robertson, chief of the British Imperial Staff, has resigned, it was officially announced. General Wilson, Sub-chief of Staff, takes the vacated place.

General Robertson was unable, the statement says, to accept a position as military representative on the Supreme War Council at Versailles, or to continue as chief of the Imperial General Staff with limited power.

The inference to be drawn from the British official statement regarding General Robertson's resignation seems clearly to be that the Supreme War Council has been given the powers which its name implies, and that it will be in fact the directing head of all the allied military operations.

There have been many rumours recently that General Robertson was to retire as Chief of the British Staff and be replaced by Major-General Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, the Sub-Chief of Staff and British Military Representative on the Supreme War Council. The suggestion was, however, that should this change be made, General Robertson would exchange places with General Wilson and become the British Military Member of the Versailles Council.

General Robertson's Career.

Sir William Robertson has had one of the most remarkable careers in the British army. He enlisted in the 9th Lancers at the age of 19 and after studying hard to obtain an education he received a commission in the 3rd Dragoon Guards at the age of 29. Four years after becoming an officer he won the distinction of being attached to the intelligence branch of the service in India. There he studied Indian languages one after another until he became one of the expert linguists of the army. Against heavy odds he won his way steadily forward without influence by sheer hard work.

During the South African war he served on the staff of the expeditionary force and won the approval of Lord Kitchener for his faculty of getting things done. Following the South African war, he received the appointment of commandant of the study of languages in French and German and added the close study of continental armies. His administrative abilities while in charge of the staff college marked a new epoch there.

Severely Wounded in Chitral.

On the outbreak of War Sir William was Director of Military Training, and he had much to do with the preparation of the British expeditionary force. He went to France as quartermaster-general, and his success in that department led to his appointment as chief of staff under whose direction all branches of the army came.

Sir William served during the Chitral campaign, where he was severely wounded, and in which he was mentioned in despatches and received in addition to the campaign medal with two clasps the Distinguished Service Order. In the South African war he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, mentioned in the despatches, and awarded the Service Medal with four clasps. He was promoted to the rank of brigadier-general at Aldershot in 1907, and passed the staff college in 1908.

Among the earlier war service exploits of this distinguished officer were the Miranzi and Black Mountain expeditions in 1891, during which he acted as transportation officer.

Rose From Ranks.

The most remarkable fact in the career of Sir William Robertson is the fact that he has risen from the ranks, educated himself and outstripped in the race for promotion men who appeared to have every possible advantage over him in the way of education.

A born soldier, there has been but one example of promotion from the ranks which can compare in any way with the career of the Chief of Staff, which was that of John Elley, a tanner's apprentice, who is buried in the chapel Royal at Windsor, under the title of Sir John Elley, K.C.B.

Second only in command to Sir Douglas Haig, the position of Sir William Robertson became necessary through the new problems which had to be faced in the present war. He was selected for the position by Lord Kitchener himself, who can detect an organizer by instinct. During the war the work which Sir William has accomplished is regarded throughout the army as the most brilliant piece of scientific management of material that the war has ever seen.

New Chief of Staff.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, K.C.B., is an Irishman, 53 years of age, of fine physique and soldier-like bearing. While his activities have chiefly been diverted into staff channels, he has had a distinguished military career, and possesses all those qualities which eminently fit him for leadership.

Before the present war Gen. Wilson saw active service in Burma and South Africa, where he won the D. S. O. Following the South African campaign he was made Director of Military Operations at the War Office, and in this position made his mark as an administrator, rendering valuable service to Lord Haldane when he was organizing the expeditionary force.

When the war broke out in 1914 he was appointed Deputy Chief of the General Staff in France, later becoming Chief Liaison Officer at French headquarters. In 1916 he went to Petrograd as British military member of the Franco-British Mission to Russia.

His whole knowledge of military matters affecting all the entente allies made him the logical choice for Britain's representative on the allied central military committee and his appointment to that position was consequently no surprise.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"The shoe is on the other foot, my lad! It's him that's trailing us, and we've got to lose him. Pick up your bag and go on in the waiting room; I'll take a taxi, and if he chases me I'll shake him off. If he hangs on to you, go on through the waiting room and on out. You don't know this town, but grab the first taxi you see, and tell the chauffeur that there's a fellow behind that is no friend of the family and that he can make a triple fare by dodging him and then doubling back. See?"

"Oh, I see right enough, but suppose the chauffeur don't take my view of it? What if he lands me at a station house, and has me run in for a sloping crook?"

"In this town?" retorted McCarty, with immense scorn. "Go along with you Denny! I'll meet you back here in an hour, whatever happens. Mind you, don't get lost yourself!"

It wanted fifteen minutes to the hour when McCarty sauntered into the station to find Dennis, red and embarrassed, barricaded behind a newspaper to avoid the flirtatious glances of a large and buxom lady across the aisle of seats.

"So there you are! You could be doing better by remembering you're on the job, and not trying to attract atenion——"

"I never!" denied Dennis, hotly. "That dame's been giving me the eye ever since you left, and I've no use for any of them as well you know!"

"She has, eh?" McCarty turned thoughtfully, but the woman had already disappeared. "Come on then."

"Did you lose the old fellow? You were gone long enough!"

"He's up somewhere north of the river by now. He was tagging along, all right, but he's not on to the game, and it was like child's play to drop him."

With Dennis in tow, McCarty made his way to the lost-and-found desk, and stepped up to the window.

"Can you tell me, please, if a coat was found in the station here a week ago last night?" he asked blandly. "My wife dropped hers—a long tan one, with a silk lining."

"Any name in it, or maker's tab?" demanded the clerk.

"No name, but I don't know about the tab; she didn't tell me, and I forgot where she bought it, but it was somewhere in town."

"This it?"

The clerk produced a light brown travelling cloak, and laid it upon the table. McCarty turned it over; it was lined with a brilliant plaid, and bore on a tab the name of one of Chicago's principal shops.

McCarty relinquished it with a shake of the head.

"No, sir, 'twas lined differently."

"Well, nothing else like what you described was turned in."

"'Twas hers, wasn't it?" demanded Dennis when they had left the station safely behind them. "However, did you dope that out?"

"She'd want to lose it as quick as she could, wouldn't she? 'Tis loud enough to wake the dead and you could trail her a mile in it. What better place could she drop it than in a big station like that, with the crowd going and coming all the time?"

"What put you on that she bought the coat in Chicago, anyway?"

"She went to New New York from here last spring, and if she'd got it there, why would she be afraid of it being recognized in Chicago? Now, the question is: What did she do next?"

"Maybe after all she went to someone who she knows would take her in, and keep quiet about it." Dennis was plainly stumped.

"No. Mrs. Foxe has got after every one of them without a sign of life. I'm going on the idea that she's avoided the people that know her, and the places where she's known, as if she were a stranger here. Now let's see."

"She's got in about the same time in the evening as this or maybe a bit earlier than now, for we lose an hour fooling around. The porter said she couldn't eat a thing all day, but she will have felt freer once she got off the grain, and maybe faint for food. The first thing she'll look for is a meal, and the next a lodging and she will not have gone far, nor yet tried a big public place, in her condition. There's a lunch room over there across the street; come on till we try it."

"If she was a man, now, I'd know the place she would have headed for," remarked Dennis with a wistful eye on a corner cafe, but McCarty dragged him relentlessly away.

The lunch room on nearer inspection proved to be principally a rendezvous for taxi-drivers, and a second one was dingy and uninviting, but a block farther along they came upon a small bakery and restaurant combined, with clean oilcloth covered tables and a trim, brisk looking waitress in charge.

Entering they seated themselves and ordered a modest meal. The waitress eyed them frigidly at first, alert for attempted gallantry, but McCarty beguiled her with naive inquiries about the city, and she was soon chattering with the good natured condescension of the sophisticated toward the simple stranger.

Most of their grade was at noon, she explained, but people dropped in from nearly every train for a bite. It was the only restaurant of its kind in the neighborhood; the others were big and noisy or else low grade.

"I don't suppose you know of any little, quiet hotel near, that you are in the habit of recommending to folks—do you?" McCarty asked, as he laid a substantial tip behind his back. "Not a commercial house, or noisy or expensive, but respectable and more of a family place; the kind my wife could go to if she were here alone, and be taken care of all right."

"Well, sir, there's a nice little one, four blocks up, my sister and her husband run it. A dollar a day for your room, and meals extra. I send lots of people there and they always go back again, so I guess that they like it all right. It's respectable and clean and my sister does the cooking herself."

"Is there a bar?" demanded Dennis, as his sole contribution to the conversation.

"Is there a bar?" demanded Dennis, as his sole contribution to the conversation.

"What kind of a town do you think you've struck?" the girl laughed. "Of course there is. The house is quiet, though and orderly and your wife could stop there alone as well as not. Only last week I sent a young lady there, who dropped in here right from the train, just like you, and she must be satisfied, for my sister says she's there yet."

"Is she trying to see everything there is in the town, staying this long?" laughed McCarty as he rose. "But maybe she only came the end of the week."

"No, sir, it was Tuesday night. I guess she ain't very well, though, she looked kind of sick. If you want to try it you'll find it a nice place."

"Sure we will!" agreed McCarty heartily. "Four blocks up, you say?"

"Yes, sir, on the corner. Oh, thanks!"

She dropped the tip in her pocket. "It's the Middle Western; you can't miss it."

"If that's not blind luck!" ejaculated Dennis as they started up the street. "It's the Collins girl; it's bound to be; coming on Tuesday night, sick and all. No wonder she was rocky, with a murder on her soul, or at least in her mind's eye. How will you nab her, Mac?"

"I'll be damn' certain it's her before I do any nabbing," responded McCarty. "We'll have to go easy, now, and keep our eyes open."

"You can go as easy as you like!" his companion retorted. "I'm going to have one drink and beat it to bed as soon as I can find a place to lie down. It's small rest I got on that shelf last night with you snoring away underneath and this job is more wearing than a fact'r'y fire."

They found the hotel without difficulty and its appearance bore testimony to the cleanliness and respectability its sponsor had claimed. McCarty paused at the desk before registering and ruffled the pages of the big, flat book.

"I wonder if 'twas here Mike stopped two weeks ago?" he said in a careless aside to Dennis.

"Mike who?" the proprietor asked with a keen glance.

"Michael Devlin, my cousin from New York," responded McCarty.

"Nobody here of that name. Sign there, please."

McCarty obeyed, but his quick eye had found that for which he sought. The only entry for Tuesday of the preceding week was: "Miss A. Wilkes, Boston, Massachusetts," in an erratically angular hand.

They followed the boy to a large double bedroom on the second floor, and Dennis, after ascertaining the location of the bar, bestowed a dime upon him and closed the door. McCarty waited a moment, then swiftly re-opened it, but the boy had departed, whistling, and the hall was deserted. Transfering the key to the inside, McCarty turned it in the lock.

"If it's all the same to you," ventured Dennis meekly, "I'd like to know what name you put down for me."

"Your own; you'll never remember any other. I'm your brother, Tim, and don't be yelling out 'Mac' tomorrow! Did you get a slant at that register?"

"How could I, with you on top of it? And what's the idea of the time-table; looking up a train for home already?"

"No, I was just making sure that the address she wrote down was phony—she is on the books as a Miss Wilkes from Boston, but no train gets in from there at the same time as the New York one."

"The name is neither here nor there and maybe she stopped off in New York, suggested Dennis, helpfully. "'Twas a long shot and we might be on the wrong track after all. Are you coming down to the bar?"

"I am not, and mind you don't get matching for the drinks and tell your family history," McCarty warned. "The proprietor lamped us downstairs as if he spotted us for plain clothes men from the jump. If anybody gets inquisitive, leave them to me; I'll answer them to-morrow."

Dennis's absence was not prolonged. Five minutes had barely elapsed when he reappeared, and his face was a study.

"What is it?" asked McCarty quite sharply.

DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Removed the Cause of this Woman's Illness.

Worcester, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a weakness and pain which used to keep me in bed for two days each month. I tried many doctors without benefit until I was really discouraged. My mother urged me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had helped her so much. I did so and soon saw a change for the better. I kept on taking it and am now so well and strong that I can do all my housework, even my washing and I have a little baby who is as healthy as I could ask—thanks to your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. F. H. STONE, 24 Bowdoin St., Worcester, Mass.

Women who suffer from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, headaches and nervousness should lose no time in giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial.

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face Was Such a Sight

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. Those festering and running sores appear on the forehead, on the nose, on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unsightly to both you and your friends.

There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

This sterling remedy has been on the market for over 40 years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. Victor G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear, so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run-down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is All the face is clear."

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Ex-Premier Caillaux Is An Ambitious Politician And a Traitor to France

THE arrest of former Premier Joseph Caillaux marks the culmination of M. Clemenceau's determination to bring to justice a man whom he, with others of the leading statesmen of France, had long believed to be a man of unscrupulous personal ambition who was poisoning the political life of France.

The substance of the charge against M. Caillaux is that since 1911, when the Agadir incident in Morocco nearly caused a rupture between Germany and France, he has acted consistently in the German interests to the detriment of his own country and that he has tried to seduce Italy from loyalty to the entente, again in the interests of Germany.

"Caillaux se croit Napoleon," Clemenceau has said. His dominant belief in himself and his utter indifference as to the means to an end have succeeded in hypnotizing less courageous men into a belief in his genius for leadership and power.

But the accumulated evidence of Caillaux's intrigue has at last proved too much for the most complacent of his followers and now M. Barres, the distinguished French novelist and Deputy of the Seine, has declared that "From every crevice that opens into the underworld the same name issues. At the bottom of all these pits the same person, Caillaux, is always to be distinguished. Caillaux is the first spark of the fire. In the great historic menagerie of distinguished men who for the peace of the people ought never to have been at liberty, Caillaux's cage should be placed next that of Cardinal de Retz, whose libertinage and passion for intrigue have at any rate given us a masterpiece of political psychology."

The love affairs of Caillaux have become notorious in connection with the shooting by his present wife of the editor of Figaro, for which she was acquitted. During one of his terms of office as Minister of Finance he fell in love with the wife of one of the clerks in his department. That clerk was rapidly promoted. After a time the wife divorced the clerk and married Caillaux. Then he discovered that Mme. Caillaux was still in love with her former husband and he sued for divorce, and made the former husband the co-respondent. When made alive to the ridicule of the position he endeavored to withdraw the suit, but the wife insisted on its continuance, won the case against him, and married her former husband. His next adventure was to detach the wife of Leon Clarette, the author, who is his famous present wife.

Caillaux became Minister of Finance in 1911, and at once hatched an elaborate scheme for the co-operation of France and Germany in developing the Congo and Cameroon territories. These negotiations will probably remain the crowning instance of the evils of secret diplomacy for they were carried on without the knowledge of the French Premier or the French Ambassador at Berlin, and their consummation would have virtually surrendered the French Congo to German control.

With the close of the famous trial against his wife it was supposed that Caillaux's career was at an end, but nevertheless he was able to secure the post of Paymaster-General in the French army, and evidence has accumulated to show that he has used his post since the beginning of the war to conspire against his country.

Among his war plots was a conspiracy against General Joffre, in which he had the support of the Socialist-Radical party, of which he has been virtual chief, and it is proved beyond peradventure that he has persistently tried to arrange a separate peace between France and Germany that would leave Great Britain, Belgium, and Russia in the lurch.

"Can we forget," writes Gustave Herve in the Paris Victoire, "that during his last trip to Italy he compromised himself with the fine flower of Italian pacifism, and that the Italian police have a complete record of his 'defeatist' harangues and that our Ambassador in Rome had to notify our Government that the Italians wished to expel from Italy this former Prime Minister of France?"

EX-PREMIER CAILLAUX

NERVOUS HEADACHE PAINS IN BACK

Could Scarcely Get About the House —Doctors Did Not Seem to Help Me, But I Found a Cure Which I Can Recommend to Others.

Mrs. H. Crary, 515 Cedar Street, Peterborough, Ont., writes,

"I was suffering from a run-down condition of the system, nervous debility and sleeplessness. I lost a good many nights' sleep, and some nights after going to sleep, would wake up with a start, and then lie awake for hours. I also had frequent headaches, and pains through my back. I got so bad that I could hardly do any work. I had taken doctors' medicine, but it did not seem to help me. Through reading in the newspapers of the help others had derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I started taking this medicine. The first box helped me, so I continued, taking about five or six boxes. I found that I was a great deal better, able to sleep well, and do my work with out any trouble. My headaches and nervousness are gone. My mother lives with me, and she has also found great benefit from the use of the Nerve Food. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervous trouble of any kind."

When the nerves give out everything goes wrong. The heart's action is weakened, the stomach fails to digest the food, headaches result, you cannot rest or sleep properly, and you get run-down and discouraged.

There is only one way to get out of this condition, and that is by feeding the nerves and thereby nourishing them back to health. The most successful treatment used for this purpose is Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This fact has been proven in so many thousands of cases all about you that it seems as though everybody should know it by this time.

Ask your friends and neighbours about this great food cure, and put it to the test in your own case. You will then understand why so many people are enthusiastic about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.75, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. The genuine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author, on the label.

"WHO WILL WIN THIS BATTLE?"

Your kidneys are the filters of the body. If they become inactive and fail to eliminate the waste matter, they are apt to throw the whole mechanism of the body out of order, thus toxic poisons can accumulate in the system and be as deadly as snake venom.

Besides causing the minor ailments of rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago and backache, neglect of the kidneys is apt to develop into more serious diseases, such as diabetes or stone in the bladder.

Rid the body of toxic poisons—clean the bladder and kidneys and cure the twinges of rheumatism with Anuric and you win the battle of life.

Anuric was first discovered by Dr. Pierce, and has benefited thousands of sufferers as well as appeased and eliminated the ravages of the more serious kidney diseases. Now procurable at any good drug store, or send Dr. V. M. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or branch office, Bridgeburg, Ont., 10 cents for trial package.

Thorold, Ont.—"I was wonderfully helped by taking 'Anuric.' For about three years I had kidney trouble and rheumatism. I also had backache. My limbs would swell and I had rheumatism in my arms and hands. My hands would swell and joints would be so sore and stiff I could scarcely do my work. They would pain me something awful. I doctored but without relief. At last I saw 'Anuric' advertised. I began its use and two bottles completely cured me of all my rheumatism, and I think it was permanent for that was a year ago and I have never had any return of this ailment. I have never found a medicine so good as 'Anuric'."—Mrs. B. H. Hutty.

WEMYSS IN ROYAL LINE.

He Can Trace His Ancestry Back to King George III.

The London Observer: It is curious that Sir Rosslyn Wemyss, the new First Lord, should be in the same Royal line as the late Brigadier-General Fitz-Clarence, to whom is now generally given the credit (if it may be allowed to one man) of having saved the situation at the first battle of Ypres. Both trace descent from William IV.'s association with the actress, Mrs. Jordan, the one through the eldest son, George, afterwards created Earl of Munster, and the other through the daughter, Augusta, who married a son of the Marquis of Ailsa. So it happens that King George and Sir Rosslyn Wemyss are both great-great-grandsons of George III.

ARRESTED AT KITCHENER.

German Wrote Chief Grassett Alleging Attempt to Poison Him.

Kitchener, Feb. 15. — Joseph Ringle, a middle aged man of German nationality, has been taken into custody at the instance of the Dominion police, and will be held for examination. For some time past he has been writing letters to Chief Grassett of Toronto, claiming that a Toronto officer had tried to poison him, and that as soon as his mouth healed he was going to get another dose.

ITALY CALLS FOR LABOUR.

Voluntary National Service May Be Followed by Compulsion.

STEFANSSON'S TRIP.

Explorer Is Returning After Many Months in the Arctic.

Vilhjalmar Stefansson, the Canadian explorer, and his party are safe. A message received by Mr. G. J. Desbarats, Deputy Minister of Naval Affairs, announced that Mr. Stefansson and party have arrived safely at Fort Yukon, Alaska, from the far north. This means that the explorer about whose safety there has been considerable doubt for several months past is coming back to civilization after his long sojourn in the Arctic regions.

It is presumed that the party will now make their way to Nome, and wait for the first steamer that will bring them back to Canada. It is possible, however, that Stefansson may decide to go overland to Dawson.

It is understood here that Mr. Stefansson, who was in charge of the northern division of the Canadian Arctic expedition, spent last winter on Melville Island. It was thought he would come out either via Lancaster Sound and Labrador or the Behring Sea. Apparently he has not chosen either of these routes, but chose to come over the ice to Herschell Island and from there to Alaska, probably by way of Fort MacPherson. His party consists of about 24 men.

The Canadian Arctic Expedition set out for the north in 1913. It was divided into the northern and southern divisions. The northern division proposed to explore unknown parts of the Beaufort Sea, carry on investigations in the northern islands, and search for new land. The members of this division set out in the Government steamer Karluk. They proposed to establish a base on Banks or Prince Patrick islands. Shortly after passing Point Barrow, however, the vessel became ice-bound and was carried eastward as far as Thetis island. As it appeared that the vessel was frozen in for the winter, Mr. Stefansson, with a small party set out for the mainland on a hunting trip. During their absence, the Karluk, with the remainder of the northern division, was carried away, crushed by the ice and sunk.

In endeavoring to reach Herald Island, eight members of the party lost their lives. The remainder, numbering nine men, including Capt. R. A. Bartlett, succeeded in reaching Wrangel Island. Bartlett journeyed on foot to the Siberian coast and thence to Alaska, in the Herman, where he was able to communicate with the outside world to have relief ships sent. The shipwrecked men were taken from Wrangel Island by the schooners King and Wing, and transferred to the U. S. Revenue cutter Bear, which landed them at Victoria, B.C.

Despite the loss of the Karluk, Mr. Stefansson determined to continue his work in the far north. He made arrangements to journey on foot over the ice to unknown parts of Beaufort Sea, it being understood that a vessel would be sent to Bank Island in the summer of 1914 provided he did not return before the breaking up of the ice. The party, after being carried eastward to the 140th meridian proceeded northward, but they were compelled to make for land at Norway Island, when they proceeded south to Kellett, where they were met by George Wilkins with the Mary Sacks.

A base was established at Kellett, from which Mr. Stefansson made a journey across Southern Banks Island to locate Eskimos in the vicinity of Prince of Wales Strait. Failing to locate them, he returned to Kellett and made arrangements for a trip northward.

With a small party he proceeded as far as Cape Alfred, and from thence north-westerly. It was ascertained that no land existed in this direction.

The breaking up of the ice obliged Stefansson to discontinue the expedition for 1915. He arrived at Prince Patrick Island and followed its shore northward to Cape McClintock. From there they set out over the ice in a northerly direction and in three days land unmarked on any chart was seen. From observations taken the land appeared to be extensive. Owing to the lateness of the season he was obliged to hasten back to Kellett.

Mr. Stefansson continued his exploration work within the Arctic circle during 1916, with Kellett as his base. An expedition under Mr. Storkerson was sent in the Polar Bear, which had been purchased, to the new land to carry on survey work. When the Polar Bear party failed to arrive at Cape Alfred, the place of rendezvous, Mr. Stefansson undertook to locate them. His party left Cape Ross for the new land on April 18th, 1916, and met Mr. Storkerson on May 3rd at Cape James Murray. From this point the last mail from the exepdition received by the Canadian Naval Service Department was despatched.

MANY PEOPLE REPORT BIG GAINS IN WEIGHT

Thousands of Thin, Frail People Are Restored to Health By Tanlac —Amazing Gains in Weight Are Related—Powers of Medicine Conclusively Proven

ONE of the most noteworthy features in connection with Tanlac and one which stands out more prominently than any other, perhaps, is the large number of well-known men and women from all parts of Canada who have recently reported astonishing and rapid increases in weight as a result of its use.

Thousands have testified that this famous medicine has completly restored them to health and strength after every other medicine and the most skilled medical treatment had failed.

One of the most remarkable cases on record is that of G. W Miller, of 282 McNab street, Hamilton, Ont., who was for twelve years postmaster and merchant at 96 Corners, Brant County. Mr. Miller declares that he has not only gotten complete relief from rheumatism and stomach trouble by taking Tanlac, but that he has gained thirty-two pounds besides. An extract from his statement follows:

"As a result of rheumatism and stomach trouble, I had fallen off to one hundred and fifteen pounds. My legs had perished away until I couldn't walk without a cane and had to sell out my business and give up the Post Office.

"I now weigh one hundred and forty-seven pounds, gained thirty-two pounds, by taking Tanlac, and can go any place I want to without a stick, and feel better than I have in years."

Fireman Gains 20 Pounds.

Alexander Gange, fireman on the Canadian Pacific, residing on Keele street, Toronto, says:

"I have gained twenty pounds since I began taking Tanlac and I'm feeling fine now. I certainly was in bad shape from stomach trouble and disordered kidneys before I used Tanlac. I had gotten to the place where I couldn't stoop over without getting a catch in my back that hurt like my back would break, and I was almost disabled for work. I started taking Tanlac, every sign of my troubles have disappeared and I am in better shape than I have been in years."

Gained Twenty Pounds.

Wm. S. Bickell, paint contractor, living at 51 Windsor, Ont., says:

"I have actually gained twenty pounds on Tanlac and I feel like a different man. About a year ago, I began to suffer with stomach trouble and I just couldn't describe to you the misery I went through with. I fell off in weight to one hundred and thirty pounds and just felt worse than I can tell you. Besides my big gain in weight, I have improved until I am hardly like the same man."

Salesman Makes Big Gain.

Walter F. Brown, traveling salesman, 132 Yorkville street, Toronto, Ont., says:

"I gained seventeen pounds by taking Tanlac and my recovery has been a surprise to myself as well as to my friends, as they had given me up to die, and all the money that I had spent for treatments and medicines had failed to help me. I spent eleven months in hospitals and fell off to ninety-six pounds.

"To say it is wonderful the way Tanlac helped me doesn't halfway express it. I'm already feeling a thousand times better and am on the road to health after five years of suffering. My appetite is fine, the gas and indigestion has disappeared and I am feeling better than in years."

Hamilton Woman's Gain.

Mrs. William Green of 141 Hunter street, Hamilton, Ont., says:

"I have actually gained twenty pounds since taking Tanlac and my neighbours and friends seem amazed at the wonderful change in my condition. I was almost a nervous wreck from suffering with stomach trouble. For two solid years I wasn't able to do a thing about the house and my stomach became so upset that I could not even retain the medicines which were prescribed for me. I could barely hobble from one chair to another, and was told by specialists that nothing could be done for me.

"If anyone could feel like a new person, I do, since I began using Tanlac. I have a splendid appetite, can eat just anything I want to and my food nourishes me and does me good. My nerves are in fine shape, I sleep like a log at night and can do almost everything there is to do about my house."

More Remarkable Gains.

The foregoing statements, from these well-known citizens of Ontario, while astonishing, are not really remarkable, as thousands of people all over the United States and Canada have taken Tanlac with the same results, and in some cases, far greater. Take for instance the case of Mrs. Viola Ives, 315 Cross street, Little Rock, Ark., U.S.A., who gained forty pounds; or that of Mrs. G. W. Williams, of Gadsden, Ala., U.S.A., who gained forty-eight pounds, that of O. H. Mahaffey, Nashville, Ten., U.S.A., who gained forty pounds; or that of Mrs. O. C. Cason, Asworth, Ga., U. S. A., who gained thirty-five pounds; or that of Mrs. Chas. Peden, of Huntsville, Ala., U.S.A., who gained twenty-seven pounds; and thousands of others too numerous to mention.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter.

WOMAN KILLED IN VIOLENT FIGHT

years and was well known and liked in the neighbourhood.

One of the strangest features of the unusual case was that the police, upon being informed that the parrot, Pete, could say anything, devoted nearly an hour to an attempt to getting a bit of information from him. The woman's husband impressed them with the fact that the bird constantly commented upon things about him. This time he refused to do more than moan. The dogs, one a mongrel Irish terrier and the other a dachshund, both snapped at the policemen and it was necessary to tie the mongrel up because of his conduct when the investigation was in progress.

Gallant English Woman, Major in Serbian Army, Was in Terrible Retreat

MRS. ST. CLAIR STOBART, who commanded a field hospital in Serbia, had the rank of major, and was known as "the Lady of the Black Horse," was in the disastrous flight of the Serbian army and tells some of the incidents of the retreat. She says:

I saw by the side of the road, on a grass common, a hay-cart, a woman, and half a dozen soldiers. The woman was evidently in trouble; she was weeping, gesticulating and shouting through her tears at the soldiers, who were in possession of the hay-cart. I guessed what had happened, so I halted the column and asked the woman to tell me what was the matter. I found, as I had suspected, that the soldiers had bought hay from her—for the sum of three dinars—and when it came to payment, they had discovered that they had no change, only a ten dinar-note, called in Serbian "banka." I told the soldiers if they didn't pay the woman what they owed her, they must leave to her the hay, or I should report them to the commander, and I took their names and regiments. But they swore that they had no change. I didn't believe them, and there was not time to investigate, but I could not let the woman be robbed, so I said I would buy the hay and pay for it, and I gave her three dinars. Now, then," I said, "the hay is mine," and I shouted to our men to come and take it off the cart. Our men were delighted; they leaped to the road and ran quickly to the cart. This worked magic, for hay was difficult to procure, and in an instant the leader of the dinarless soldiers produced three dinars; they had, he said, got hidden in his pocket. I handed them to the woman, telling her that she could also keep the other three, and I graciously allowed the soldiers to take away the hay.

Remarkable, indeed, was the dignity and orderliness with which, from start to finish, the retreat of the Serbian army was conducted. And the silence! Hour after hour, day and night after night, week after week, thousands upon thousands of soldiers, trudging wearily beside their slow-paced oxen, or with their regiments of infantry, or driving their gun-carriages, or, as cavalry, riding their horses—in silence. No laughter, no singing, no talking; the silence of a funeral procession, which, indeed, it was; a silence only broken by the cries of the drivers to their oxen: "Svetko! Belia! Napred! Desno! Leva!" ("Svetko! Belia! Forward. To the right! To the left!") and the ceaseless rumbling of wagon wheels, which sounded like the breaking of an angry sea on a distant pebble beach. I have, since my return, re-read accounts of the retreat of Napoleon's army from Moscow, and though we were spared some of the horrors they endured, there were two features in our Serbian retreat which were happily absent in the other. For the retreat in which we took part was the retreat, not only of the Serbian army, but of the Serbian nation. This meant that thousands of women, children, and old men, driven from their homes by the advancing enemy, were in ever-increasing numbers, as we progressed southwards, adding to the difficulties of the safe retreat of the army, by mixing with the columns of artillery, cavalry, infantry, engineers, field hospitals, and swelling the procession.

Wagons filled with household treasures, beds, blankets, chairs, frying-pans, even geese, slung head downwards at the back of the cart, or balancing themselves with curious dignity upon the uneven surfaces of indiscriminate luggage; a look of pained astonishment on their faces at their rude removal from their own comfortable pastures.

Or, more frequent and more painful still, wagons filled with little children; the oxen, weary and hungry, led by women, also weary, hungry, and footsore. I saw one woman, dragging by the rope two tired oxen drawing a wagon in which were eight small children. I saw a tiny boy leading two tiny calves, which were drawing a tiny cart containing a tiny baby, who was strapped to the cart. I saw a woman, evidently not wealthy enough to possess a cart and oxen of her own, carrying her two babies, one on her back and one in front; and, in one of the crushes which frequently occurred, the baby on her back was knocked off by the horns of a passing ox.

RUMANIA'S SELF LOYALTY.

New York World: It is pretty hard that the Rumanians who have been chased out of their country by the Germans, chiefly by Russian failure to give them promised support should now be obliged to fight Russians in defence of their compatriots in Bessarabia. At least they have not yet determined to give up kin and country as trifles not worth fighting for, after the Bolshevik formula.

Your Bad Taste In The Morning Is Due To Catarrh

Destroy This Poisonous Disease Before Your Health is Seriously Injured.

Perhaps you haven't thought of calling those unpleasant symptoms that affected your nose and throat by any particular name—but it's Catarrh just the same.

When the attack is severe, your eyes are watery and look weak. Your breath is offensive, due to inflammation in the nose and throat.

At last science has discovered a real remedy, a new scientific marvel which acts like no other Catarrh remedy on earth. "Catarrhozone" operates on a new plan; it is a direct remedy, goes instantly to the source of the trouble. Its rich, fragrant essences and healing balsams are breathed in vapour form through a special inhaler and give instant relief.

Catarrhozone doesn't stop at the relief stage—it goes further—keeps on going till a cure is effected. Bad cases are cured, as you can judge from the following letter:—"Every morning for six months last winter I awoke with a bad taste, an awful breath and stuffed up feeling in my nostrils," writes Bob E. Rutland, of Regina. "It was simply an awful case of chronic Catarrh. Relief first came from Catarrhozone. I used that inhaler twenty times a day and took it to bed with me at night. I am cured, and by the use of Catarrhozone stay well. Now I am free from irritable throat trouble, coughs, colds, headache, or catarrh."

No medicine on earth is so certain to cure every form of Catarrh or throat trouble as "Catarrhozone." Get the large $1.00 size, lasts two months and is guaranteed; medium size 50c, sample size 25c.; all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co. Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Historic Capital of Nova Scotia

IN the early part of the eighteenth century, an expedition fitted out and dispatched by the Earl of Halifax, president of the Board of Trade and Plantations, fixed upon the peninsula situated near the centre of the south-east or Atlantic Coast of the Province of Nova Scotia, as a site for fortifications and a naval station, and the selection was confirmed. The Earl of Halifax was one of the most advanced and farseeing among the English statesmen of his times. He appears to have obtained information in advance of the report of his expedition, and to have acquainted himself thoroughly with the numerous advantages which Chebucto Bay, now Halifax Harbor, had to offer to both the navy and the merchant marine of England. Large sums of money were immediately expended upon the site. So much discernment had been displayed in the preliminary work that Lord Cornwallis settled a community between the fortifications and the water front and, in honor of the man who had so intelligently paved the way for it, named the place Halifax.

Two of the same title have sometimes been confounded. George Saville, Marquis of Halifax, was the first. He held high places and took a conspicuous part in the political activities of three reigns, as Baron Saville, Viscount Halifax, and, finally, as the Marquis of Halifax. Rewards came to him for his participation in the restoration, and to his eloquence is attributed the rejection of the bill excluding the Duke of York from the succession. Because of the manner in which he accommodated himself to changing conditions later on, he came to be known as a "Trimmer," a name which he adopted and defended with signal ability.

Charles Montague, Earl of Halifax, after whom the city of Halifax was called, was the second. He entered the House of Commons as member for Maldon during the convention Parliament, and was made First Lord of the Treasury in 1697. He is sometimes called the father of the English debt, since the first of the great financial measures was passed while he was a Lord of the Treasury. When a second loan became necessary, he met the emergency by establishing a national bank, with a capital of £1,200,000, the shareholders of which were to be called the Governor and Company of the Bank of England. Partly as a consequence of his bold manners, and partly because of high party feeling, certain charges were brought against him alleging a breach of trust as Chancellor of the Exchequer, and he was impeached, but the proceedings fell through. Although out of office during the reign of Queen Anne he took an active part in the negotiations that led to the union between England and Scotland, and in those for the succession of the House of Brunswick. Notwithstanding the demands of a remarkably busy career, he found time to write poetry and to befriend authors and artists.

Halifax grew up, naturally, from the water's edge, for, from the beginning, shipping constituted the principal industry of the community. In the course of time, the street along the water front was supplemented by another higher up and running parallel, and eventually other thoroughfares appeared, one above another, like terraces, until they reached the fortification, known as the Citadel, on the summit of the hill. With the further passing of time, the city grew westward, to the north and south of the Citadel, and toward the north-western arm of the bay. The harbor, about one mile in width, terminates in a magnificent sheet of water, known as Bedford Basin, which is capable of floating the navies of the world. With its suburbs the city proper extends, along the slope of the fortified hill, over an area about three miles in length and one mile in width. Dartmouth, a handsome suburb, on the other side of the harbor, has become a busy and quite populous place during the last three years. The view from the bay, looking either way, has delighted thousands of visitors.

For over a hundred and fifty years the English warships of the North American station, comprising some of the largest and finest vessels of the Royal Navy, have made Halifax their headquarters. Likewise the city has long been one of the most important transatlantic terminals and calling stations. During recent years it has been making vast and costly dock and harbor improvements, and little of this work has been impaired by the recent disaster.

The recognized value of the port, in both a naval and a commercial sense, makes it certain that Halifax will be quickly, solidly, and handsomely rebuilt.

KIDNEY DISEASE OVERCOME.

Mr. James Prouse, cattle dealer, Sheho, Sask., writes: "For about ten years I suffered from kidney disease; at times was bad with backache, and derangements of the digestive organs. During that time I was treated by four different doctors. One day I read in Dr. Chase's Almanac about the Kidney-Liver Pills and began to use them. Altogether I used six boxes. All I need say is that I feel well now and attribute this condition to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

OBITUARY

JENNIE GARRETT.

The funeral of the late Jennie Hill Garrett, wife of Sergt. Richard Garrett, and daughter of Lockmaster Hill of Buckhorn, who died on Thursday in Toronto, took place yesterday afternoon to the Lakefield cemetery. A largely attended service was held conducted by Rev. Cecil Spencer, in St. John's Church.

The circumstances surrounding Mrs. Garrett's death are particularly sad. Some two years ago her home was burnt to the ground and she never recovered from the shock. Her husband, Sergt. Garrett, who was overseas, was given leave to return, but nothing could be done and she passed away in Toronto, at the age of 31 years. She leaves one small daughter.

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing.

HEART WAS BAD NERVES ALL GONE

Very important it is in this age to have a clear cool head, a strong heart and steady nerves.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry, fall to the lot of women attending to their household duties and social obligations. The constant strain under which they continue day in and day out will soon shatter the strongest system. Before long the heart gets weak, flutters and palpitates, the nerves become unstrung, you start at the least sound, the pulse becomes weak and irregular, then finally comes physical breakdown or nervous prostration.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the remedy you require to strengthen your heart and steady your nerves.

Mrs. Jackson, 457 Bolivar St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "Fifteen years ago I was so bad with my heart I could not walk across the house, my nerves were literally all gone, and I was frightened at my shadow. I commenced to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and was soon able to do my own work. I have told dozens of people about them, some as bad as I was, and to-day they are also doing their own work. If more people would take them there would not be so many weak hearts."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ANOTHER AIR ATTACK ON LONDON

THE CASUALTIES LIGHT IN SATURDAY'S RAID

Another Raid Made On London By Enemy Airplanes Last Night

Only One Machine Succeeded in Reaching the Metropolis --Eleven Were Killed and Four Injured in Saturday's Attack---Foe's Artillery Reported Active at Several Points on Western Line---Bolsheviki Forces Have Civil War on Their Hands.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Six or seven aeroplanes took part in the air raid on Sunday night. The first flew over London, dropping bombs in various districts. All the others were turned back.

Six German aeroplanes attempted to attack London on Saturday night. but only one succeeded in reaching the Capital. This raider dropped one bomb in the southwestern district. One of the German aeroplanes fell into the sea.

On Sunday night London was raided again, a number of bombs being dropped in the city.

Eleven persons were killed and four injured in an aerial attack on London Saturday, it is announced, officially. The casualties of Sunday's raids are not yet known.

The casualties in Sunday night's air raid was 16 killed and 37 injured, it was officially announced this afternoon.

In the two air raids of Saturday and Sunday nights on London the Germans killed a total of 19 persons and injured 41. In each case only one raider appears to have been able to escape the British barrage and bomb London, itself. The greatest harm was done by the Sunday night raider, whose bombs killed 16 persons and injured 37.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 18.—Ensign Krylenko, Bolsheviki Commander-in-Chief has decided to come to Petrograd to raise an army of 100,000 Bolsheviki, which he will command personally in operations against the Cossack Army of General Alexieff, which has assumed serious proportions.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The strike of the Shipbuilding workers in various parts on both coasts has been settled by President Wilson, and the men returned to work to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 18.—A hostile raiding party was driven off during the night by one of our posts in the neighbourhood of Gravelle. Prisoners were taken by the Portuguese in the neighbourhood of Neuve Chapelle. The enemy's artillery has shown some activity south of the Arras-Cambrai Road, north of Lens, and in the neighbourhood of Zonnebeke.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 18.—A deep, serious schism has been created between Germany and Austria-Hungary by the termination of the armistice between the Central Powers and Russia, and a renewal of a state of war, according of the Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. The Austrian press, continues the correspondent, is warning Germany against the re-opening of hostilities in which Austria does not wish to participate. The semi-official Framdenblatt is silent but the Neue Frei Press is quoted as pointing out that the Austrian Monarchy no longer borders upon Russia, and is not like Germany, compelled to resume warfare. The only thing Austria might do against its will, says the newspaper, is to protect the free connection between the Monarchy and the Ukraine.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The Germans last night made an attack on the Champagne front, to-day's War Office statement reports. They gained a footing in the French position, but after a spirited engagement, were driven out.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—General Sir Wm. Robertson, late Chief of Staff, has accepted the important position of the Eastern Command, that is, the eastern portion of the British Isles.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Germany's declaration against the Bolsheviki has caused most serious schism between Germany and Austro-Hungary, the Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph wired to-day.

The Austrian press is protesting against a re-opening of hostilities in which Austria has no desire to participate, the correspondent says:

The newspaper Die Zeit, hopes the "Czernin-Wilson re-approachment continues," and that Germany won't interfere with it.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TOKIO, Feb. 18.—The Diet has passed a vote of confidence in the Government by a vote of 241 to 117.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 18.—Kieff has ben re-captured by the Bolsheviki troops. The Radas (Ukraine) forces were routed and are in flight. The Red Guards routed Gen. Alexieff's forces at Makeyevka, Lomsx and Zviero.. The Polish legionaries have been defeated in the Krishva district of th Province of Mohileff.

KIEV CAPTURED BY BOLSHEVIKI TROOPS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 18.—Kiev, one of the principal cities of Ukraine, was captured by the Bolsheviki on Friday after sanguinary fighting. The streets were filled with dead or wounded. The city was bombarded by the Bolsheviki aviators. Polish troops have defeated the Bolsheviki at Bobruisk, 85 miles south east of Minsk. Other Polish troops are advancing towards Smolensk. The casualties at Kiev are estimated at 4,000 killed and 7,000 wounded. In a battle at Odessa, Monday, between the Bolsheviki and Moderates, hundreds were killed. The city was bombarded by warships.

Papers Criticize The Government's Action

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Leading papers are to-day quite critical of the Government's action in regard to General Robertson, which is generally interpreted as a dismissal of that distinguished soldier. Some editorials declare he was treated scurvily, and that his work has contributed largely to the efficiency of the British Army. The Post goes so far as to suggest that Lloyd George should resign the Premiership and make way for men like General Jan Smuts or Speaker Lowther to head the Government.

SUDDEN DEATH OF OFFICER JUST BACK FROM FRANCE

Lieut. Herbert Cust Boyd on Leave After Being Gassed and Shell Shocked Passed Away in Nicholls Hospital After Operation For Appendicitis

FAMILY HIT HARD

Few families have made greater sacrifices in the war than the Boyd family of Bobcaygeon, and another was added to the tragic list on Sunday in the death of Lieut. Herbert Boyd, who passed away at Nicholls Hospital after an operation for appendicitis, and indirectly from the shock received while at the front.

The late Lieutenant Herbert Cust Boyd was a son of Mr. W. T. C. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon. He was a graduate of the Royal Military College and in the fall of 1916 was granted a commission in the Mechanical Transport Service of the British Army. Shortly before the recent severe fighting around Passchedaele he was transferred into a battalion of the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry Regiment, was slightly gassed and shell shocked in the Passchendaele operations and afterwards suffered from appendicitis, was very recently returned to Canada on leave, and at the time of his death was, to all appearances, recovering from a successful operation for appendicitis in Nicholls Hospital.

Yesterday about 2 p.m. after his midday meal, although apparently well, he complained to his nurse of feeling a slight faintness, after which he immediately collapsed and died in a few minutes, everything possible having been done by the nurses and doctors present to save his life.

Lieut. Boyd was the last surviving son of Mr. W. T. C. Boyd, at present residing at the corner of Dublin and Stewart streets. The eldest son, Thornton, who was at the front with the Princess Patricias, was killed in the earlier stages of the war and the second son was accidentally drowned in Pigeon Lake last October. Three sisters survive.

The greatest sympathy will be extended to Mr. W. T. C. Boyd in the death of his son.

The funeral will be announced later.

A Wire From Mr. Burnham

Federal Member Refers to Cases Before Leave-of-Absence Board

The Examiner this afternoon received the following wire from J. H. Burnham, M.P., who is at Ottawa:

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 18, 1918.

Where conscripts have appealed to the Leave-of-Absence Board, which has power to send them back to the farm, and have heard nothing further or have been sent away without a hearing the case, if their agents forward to me specific affidavits to that effect, showing that the appeal was duly made, I will take them immediately to headquarters, who promise to deal with them, or if the agent comes from Peterborough, let him notify me and I will go with him.

Forwarding me former affidavits and correspondence with unsigned notes scribbled on them in lead pencil is useless, and should be discontinued. I am here for the special purpose of helping all those appealing to get their cases properly disposed of, but the material furnished me must be material directly bearing on the point of failure to secure right of appeal to the Board.—J. H. Burnham.

NO CHANCE FOR GERMANS

If Allies Hold on the West Front the War is Won Says Simms Who States That Huns Are Putting Up Their Biggest Bluff

HAS ONE PUNCH LEFT

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By William Philip Simms.)

(Copyright 1918 by the United Press.)

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 18.—Hold on the west front and the war is won. Therein is the whole story of my Swiss impressions. I don't mean that peace will follow within 24 hours of Hindenburg's fiasco. But I certainly believe an allied peace is possible this year. This conclusion is unhasty. It was reached by a process tantamount of mathematicel computation.

From personal observation, I know what the French punch is like, and what British bulldogism is, while from my study here I believe I have gained a fair idea of what Germany can do. From this knowledge I don't believe the Germans have the proverbial chance in a thousand, despite Hindenburg's strategy and Ludendorff's tactics.

LITTLE AID FROM AUSTRIA.

Hindenburg can expect little or no aid from Austria. Emperor Carl's position is too wobbly to warrant sending Austrian-Hungarians, Czechs, etc., to their slaughter on the west front. The Prussians may browbeat them into activity against Italy, simultaneously with a German offensive against France, but this appears about all.

Czernin said in December that as Germany is fighting for Trieste, Austria might fight side by side with the Germans on frontiers other than Austrian. Ludendorff has practically reorganized the German army, which probably will comprise 200 divisions (2,400,000 to 3,000,000 men) when the offensive starts—if it starts.

Despite this armistice agreement, the cream of divisions from the Russian front have been drafted to the west. The older troops on the western front have been replaced by storm troops.

Austria will aid with artillery and guns captured in Italy and elsewhere. The Germans are boasting a horrible new gas. They brag that this gas has already been tried out in Italy and at Cambrai. But if information which I have is true, the allies have no need to worry much.

FOE'S BIGGEST BLUFF.

Germany is putting up its biggest bluff. Dying of rot, she is trying to scare the allies by making faces. Doubtlessly she has one punch left, after which—nothing. The masses are thoroughly war-weary. The election at Bautzen is a proof of this. Bautzen, an agrarian centre, always was violently pan-German and adamant against Socialism. Before the recent election the war party, certain of the result, proclaimed the outcome would show the extent to which the people were backing the Kaiser.

A socialist was elected by a large majority, throwing the militarists into consternation. Through the latters own demands the election cry was "for or against reconciliation and peace." However, as George Archibald, American jockey, just out of Austria, said, "Dont let this German peace talk fool you too much. Just give them a winning streak and they'll insist on annexing New York and Chicago. On the other hand if they pull an offensive, just give 'em another dose of that Verdun stuff and they'll be eating out of your hands.

Local War Veterans Demand An Apology From Mayor Duncan

His Remarks in the Council Are Denounced as Disloyal and Prussian, "An Insult to the King's Uniform and a Slur on the Defenders of the British Empire"--Veterans Incensed Over Charges That They Won't Work and That They Are Chocolate Soldiers and Hold Special Meeting to Discuss Situation.

MAY INVOKE AID OF DOMINION EXECUTIVE

Resolved that owing to the insulting, disloyal, un-British, and, as yet, unfounded statements made by the Mayor of this city, in reference to charges that a great many members of this Association refuse to work, which we consider a most deliberate libel against this Association, we hereby request that Mayor Duncan place forthwith into the hands of the Association the names of the members of this Association who refuse to work, as the charges he has made would greatly injure the interest in, and welfare of, the returned soldier and those who have yet to return, and are also an insult to the fathers and mothers who have sent forth their sons to fight for the liberty and freedom which he and the other members of the City Council and the people whom they represent, enjoy.

"I am in favour of doing all I can to help the real war veterans," states the Mayor. "The real war veterans, in our opinion, are those good comrades of ours who will never return, who are now resting in Flanders' fields."

We strongly recommend to the citizens, ratepayers and public, generally, that he make a public apology before the Whole Council for the uncalled for statements mentioned in Council on February 14th.

After an animated discussion the above resolution was unanimously passed by the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, on Saturday night, at a special meeting called for the purpose of discussing the remarks made by Mayor Duncan and other members of the Council the other night, in refusing the Veterans' request for a grant to pay the rent of the Association's new club rooms. President H. J. Staunton was in the chair, and although the meeting was called at short notice the attendance was one of the largest in the history of the Association.

That the Veterans are incensed at the statements made by Mayor Duncan is putting it mildly. Indignation was at high pitch in Saturday's meeting, and member after member denounced the Mayor and called for action. The refusal of the grant, while it might have been the subject of comment under other circumstances, was hardly mentioned, so angry were the Mayor's charges that they would not work and that there were too many chocolate soldiers in the Association. These charges were pronounced by the members as disloyal and a slur on the King's uniform.

The members lost no time in "going over the top" when President Staunton opened the meeting by reading the newspaper reports of the Mayor's remarks.

"We should pass a vote of censure on the City Council," remarked the first speaker, who is represented by three sons in the army—two in Europe and one in Mesopotamia." The time has come when the citizens should be represented in the Council by educated men who know their business. It should be the aim of the War Veterans to unite with decent citizens to see that the proper men are elected to office. Mayor Duncan should be called into order to show him that we are not chocolate soldiers.

Prussian Expressions".

"Mayor Duncan's remarks were Prussian," hotly declared another speaker who still carries a piece of shrapnel as a souvenir of the great war. "He has greatly insulted the King's uniform. His words have cast a slur on the defenders of the British Empire and on the relatives of the men who have gone forth to fight. We should demand an apology and it it is not forthcoming take some other action to attain our object."

"I agree with the previous speaker," said a third veteran who went overseas with the 1st Canadian Division and was dangerously wounded. "But we should consider our course of action carefully in order that we will have the full force of public opinion with us. The reference made by Mayor Duncan to "chocolate soldiers" was not only a slur n the King's uniform, but it was a slur on individuals as well. The men who did not get to France, through no fault of their own, and who took the solemn oath of service, are deserving of the same credit as the men who served in France, even the men who won Victoria Crosses, because they offered all they had to the country. They have done all that they could do and if through some physical defect they were unable to reach the firing line it was not up to Mayor Duncan or anybody else to speak of them in that way. I am very sorry the Mayor should have taken such a stand the very first time the City Council has been asked to contribute to this Asociation. If the grant had been turned down politely, although we might have been disappointed, we would not have thought much about the matter. If in the opinion of the Mayor, as representing the citizens, the grant should not have been made, it was his privilege and his duty to refuse, but there was no necessity of him going as far as he did.

Sue the Mayor for Libel.

"We should sue Mayor Duncan for libel," remarked a veteran artillery man of the 1st Division. "Let us get into touch with our Dominion Secretary and bring action against the Mayor."

"The Mayor should be made to produce the names of the men whom he said wouldn't work," remarked another speaker. "He couldn't make me believe that men who stood up to their waists in water in the trenches in Flanders, holding back the Huns, are men who won't work if they are able or can get employment."

Members Want Protection.

"The reference to 'chocolate soldiers' and the pith of the Mayor's remarks were directed against the men who didn't reach France," pointed out another veteran with considerable heat. "Well, I am one of them, and we, as members of the G.W.V.A., demand the protection of this Association. I gave up my position, left my wife and family, and offered myself. I went as far as they would let me. Am I to be called a 'chocolate soldier' all my life? Let us get into communication with headquarters, bring one of the Dominion Executive here and institute a suit for libel against the Mayor."

"I tried twenty-seven times to get over there. If the Mayor calls me a 'chocolate soldier' I'd like a chance to go a couple of rounds with him," dclared another member.

A committee was named to draft a resolution to cover the feelings of the members, and finally the motion, published above was passed and copies ordered to be sent to Mayor Duncan and to the press.

A vote of thanks was passed to Ald. Archie McIntyre for his action in moving in Council that the grant to the War Veterans be made.

The meeting was then brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the G.W.V.A. will be held to-night, in the Armouries, and as there is important business to come up, a large attendance of members is requestd.

SENATOR HUMBERT ARRESTED

Canadian Press Despatch:

PARIS, Feb. 18. — Senator Humbert, editor of Le Journal, was arrested at his chateau at Mesnil Guillaume, outside of Paris. He was brought to the city this morning for interrogation by Bouchardon, of the Paris military court. The arrest of Senator Humbert is a sensational sequel to the trial of Bolo Pasha, at which the Senator was a witness. At that time he demanded that the government clear up the doubt surrounding his case. The exact charge against the Senator has not yet been made public.

Frank Jenne Says:

If you knew—actually know to a certainty—that C.P.R. stock was going up to 150 this week, you would jump right in and buy; yet we all know that there will be an advance in wool every day, so why not protect yourself by investing in a suit at once? I am using for this month the same samples for our made-to-measure clothing as I have used during the past eight months, and it is a wise investment to order that spring suit at once.

THE VETERANS' AIMS.

In view of the reception accorded the Great War Veterans' request for a city grant and to the apparent misunderstanding, not only on the part of the City Council, but of many other citizens, as to the nature of the association, the following statement of the aims and objects of the G.W.V.A. should be of interest:

1. To perpetuate the close and kindly ties of mutual service in the Great War, the recollections and associations of that experience, and to maintain proper standards of dignity and honour between all returned soldiers.

2. To preserve the memory and records of those who suffered and died for the nation. To see to the erection of monuments to their valour, the provision of suitable burial places and the establishment of an annual Memorial Day.

3. To ensure that proper provision is made for the due care of the sick, wounded and needy, among those who have served, including reasonable pensions, employment for such as are capable, soldiers' homes, medical care, and equitable provision for dependent families of enlisted men.

4. To constantly inculcate loyalty to Canada and the Empire and unstinted service in their interest.

PRESS AND PARLIAMENT.

Edward Price Bell says the British Parliamentarians are jealous of their prerogatives, says the Toronto Star. They regard themselves as the only accredited representatives of the nation, and resent outside interference in government. "Newspaper criticism they do not decry, but what appears to them to be a deliberate connection between a Cabinet Minister and a newspaper or group of newspapers for determining public policy, provokes their antagonism."

There was a time when it was necessary to assert strongly the right of free journalistic criticism of the acts of public men. The pendulum has now swung so far in the opposite direction that people are complaining of newspaper dictatorship. Northcliffe is the man at whom the attack is directed because of his ownership of a chain of papers, including the London Times and the London Daily Mail.

It is, of course, possible that a man possessing such enormous resources, combined with remarkable vigour and assertiveness, may become an autocrat, and a journalistic autocrat is no better than any other. A free press is essential to liberty, and so is a free parliament. One cannot take the place of the other. No newspaper can make itself such a forum as parliament is, such an instrument for the clash of conflicting views. It must take it own stand and leave it to others to express opposing views. In parliament all can be heard; the opponents meet face to face, and if debate can modify opinion, the opportunity is there. The press, while doing its own duty, should be willing to support in the strongest way the freedom of parliament.

THE KAISER'S SOCIALIST ALLIES.

There has been much speculation over the question why the so-called "international" socialists the world over sympathize with and work for the cause of Germany, says the Hamilton Herald. There is little doubt about the fact. In Germany itself the leading socialists are hardly less loyal to the warlord and his militarist aims than are the imperialists. They have given the war party steady support throughout the war. On the occasion of the recent strike troubles they hastened to disclaim all knowledge of or sympathy with that movement. At present the leading socialists of Switzerland are clamoring for the disbanding of the Swiss army which guards the border facing Germany, and there is no doubt that they are making the demand at the instigation of the German government, which may have military designs pointing in that direction. By a quick march through Switzerland a German army could make a flank attack on the French which might well have disastrous results to the allied cause. The socialist organization in the United States is not only pro-German in sympathy, but is one of the principal instruments through which the German propaganda work is carried on in that country. In Russia and in Italy the demoralizing propaganda which disorganized the armies of those countries and paved the way for easy German victories was the work of socialists in the pay of the German government. Scratch a socialist and it is ten to one you will find a pro-German.

"For 30 years," remarks the Philadelphia Record, "Germany has been planting its agents in all foreign countries for the purpose of dominating those countries or overwhelming them. The German government has repressed socialism at home, but socialism in all other countries has been the abject slave of Germanism. And at home socialism ceased years ago to be international and became wholly German and, to all intents and purposes, Pan-Germ.n.

What is the explanation? You would naturally suppose that the contrary would be the fact—that socialism, which one is accustomed to think of as an advanced form of democracy, would heartily sympathize with the nations which are fighting the battles of democracy in this war.

We think the explanation is to be found in the instinctive recognition by socialists of Prussian military autocracy as a system akin to their own. Prussianism and socialism alike depend for success upon centralization of authority and thorough, systematic organization. We have in Germany, especially in Prussia, the best example of a socialized state. In many respects it is the model of the "social commonwealth," as idealized in the imaginations of international socialists. In the rigid, stern system of Prussian autocracy the socialists recognize a sort of cousin-German of Marxian socialism, and prefer it to the freer and more flexible democracy of America and western Europe. They feel that the triumph of German arms would put the world under discipline, centralize authority, establish more thorough organization of industries, and thus prepare the way for the establishment of the social commonwealth. They realize that the greatest foes of socialism is the individual freedom which is so highly prized by the people of the western democracies. World-domination by Germany would suppress individual freedom and exalt the power of the state, thus making it easier, as the socialists hope, for them to realize their dreams.

To the Editor, Examiner:

Sir: Re paragraph in your paper, "Good Opportunities on Farms for Returned Men with Families." I think it a good suggestion that inexperienced men be placed on farms to learn the trade, but regarding experienced farm hands, both returned and civilians, I know that if the government would offer a grant of land at a reasonable price, and sufficient money at reasonable interest on easy terms, they would soon get lots of men for greater production, for I know some good men who would be glad of a start on their own account, but will not work for farmers as they have had some experience.

Experienced Farm Hand.

Peterboro, Feb. 15.

Dear Editor: Having read in your paper a serious and far-reaching accusation against one of the smaller churches of the city, a church that in her humble way is trying to carry out the great commission, will you permit me to ask a few questions, which I think, bear on the subject?

Is Religion a necessity? Is Worship an essential part of our religion? Did God make a mistake when He instituted the Church? Is God, who was the present help in time of trouble to our fathers, not to be sought, worshipped and relied upon now? Is not God and worship essential to the moral and spiritual need of the people?

The fool is now saying publicly: "Close the churches for the winter months." He cites the apparent waste of coal in an ash box as a hideous crime, but the tons of coal burned in the theatres and opera houses, and the hundreds of dollars spent in these places of amusement, as quite right.

These places are evidently a necessary essential to the well being and life of the people, but God's House, Gospel preaching, and prayers, are not (?) If this be true, we are fallen on strange times. By the way, are all the ashes from places of amusement so very carefully sifted, and fuel conserved, that there is need to close even one day a week? Let us be consistent and close the churches if they do not meet a need.

If there are too many churches, more than the population of Peterboro demands, as at present there is a church for about every 1500 people, then let us ask some of these preachers to go farming, make munitions or enlist.

But I fear the man who argues thus is blind, or does not see afar off.

The man who attacks the church, attacks God, and denies man's greatest need.

Yours truly,
Concerned.

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—In reply to a letter in Friday's issue of your paper, signed "Traveller" re coal situation here, I beg to draw your attention to the reflection which he casts on the Park street Baptist church.

By his letter he leads the public to believe that we are wasting a lot of coal. Now, this is unjustified and uncalled for. There are no more cinders or coal in the ashes than there are in any ordinary individual's ashes put out for collection.

We have eliminated all our week meetings except Wednesday night prayer meeting in order to conserve coal. This writer, who is afraid to sign his name says as a war measure that half the churches ought to be closed.

Now, in my opinion, if all the nickel shows and opera houses were closed during the balance of the winter instead of the churches and if the "Traveller" (whom I am led to believe by his statements regarding closing of churches cannot be much of a church goer) would attend church more with others and pray for the termination of this awful war possibly we might see the end of it sooner.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

Yours truly,

MISS ANN PITTWOOD

In "Peg O' My Heart," the Comedy at the Grand next Thursday, Feb. 21. The seat sale opens to-morrow (Tuesday) morning.

"Peg O' My Heart" is made relishable because it differs from the usual dialogue and situations of the average plays that have come our way. This play deals with youth, simplicity and love, is filled with gusts of laughter. The action of the piece takes place in England, and has to do with the adventures of a little Irish girl who has been raised by her father—an Irish Socialist, living in New York, who sends her to her aristocratic relatives to be educated and refined. That a play can be free from problems, of morality and discussions of social vice, and still be one of the sensational hits of our local stage, has already been proven by the wonderful patronage accorded J. Hartley Manners' comedy in previous seasons. Robert Campbell wishes to asure theatregoers he is sending to this city, complete in every detail, the same beautiful production and xcellent cast, headed by Miss Ann Pittwood in the title role.

MR. BURNHAM DISCUSSES DAYLIGHT SAVING IN A LETTER TO COUNCIL

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has sent the following letter to the City Council:

Ottawa, February 16, 1918.

To the Mayor and Council of the City of Peterborough, Ont.

Gentlemen,—Will you allow me to ask you to give me your opinion by resolution concerning the Daylight Saving Measure, which is likely to come up at next session.

This matter is not so easy as it looks to some people, and as you are the domestic representatives of all the citizens, I cannot make a mistake in supposing that your opinion will represent them all.

The farming community is not interested. It states that it uses all the daylight now, and therefore any changes in the hours do not concern it.

It is well to consider this matter from the beginning. The day is supposed, as you are aware, to date from the time the sun is directly overhead. Instead of that it is taken from the time when it is directly underfoot. In order that there may be a general day of which all people in the world may take notice, it is taken to date from Greenwich, England. It must necessarily be later than that to the westward by just so much as it takes the sun in its apparent course to reach other places to the westward. Therefore it would be apparent that Standard Time is more important than Daylight Saving, especially as the business of the world is transacted by wire telegraphe wireless and other instantaneous means, so that a telegram sent from London at twelve noon reaches New York five hours earlier, although it travels across the Atlantic in 3 seconds as a matter of fact. If it were called twelve in New York when it is 12 in London this absurdity would be impossible.

At the same time we must recognize the fact that the attempt to alter solar time, is at best a device to turn nature from her course. We cannot alter solar time as a matter of fact.

It is also to be observed that if we would say we would begin business at 6 instead of 7, we would have attained exactly the same object that we are seeking in Daylight Saving, which agrees to all 6—7. Daylight Saving is to be adopted by the United States, no doubt, in national way, but whether it will be adopted locally there, in the same way, remains to be seen, and it may be said that no matter what system is adopted people can still get up when they please and go to bed when they please.

If, therefore, you endorse the Daylight Saving plan, you might consider it worth while to add that it would be still more advisable to adopt a standard time also, so that in leaving Peterborough in the swift express you would not reach your western destination some time ahead of the time you left, all of which involves a very serious confusion in business. It is that fact that compelled the railways to adopt a standard time. "All sorts of time" are having their effect upon business, and it would surely not be inopportune for you to state that in your opinion it is time some uniform or standard time was adopted, by the world of business, of which we form a part, however humble.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, yours respectfully,

J. H. Burnham.

P.S.—If you will allow me I should like to suggest that you also take note, in view of the threatened greater scarcity of coal next winter, that Hydro is lowering its rates, and that the equivalent of electricity in coal would mean, nominally, coal at $10 a ton, but when we consider the greater loss, in the burning of coal, of thermal energy, it means probably coal at $5 or $6 a ton. We have been so long accustomed to regard electricity as a dream that we may be just a little slow in adopting it as a reality, but the immediate future is going to be very serious, especially for the mass of the people, and prices of fuel as well as of food may be very much higher. Hence no doubt you will consider that we should use what brains we have to solve the situation since we may well be expected by those whom we represent to adopt a remedy if there is one.

J. H. Burnham.
